Dear Mr Ehlers,

We intend to publish a book dealing with, amongst other issues, the murders of ANC representative Dulcie September in Paris in 1988, SWAPO leader Anton Lubowski in Windhoek in 1989, and SACP leader Chris Hani in Boksburg in 1993.

Your name will be mentioned in the book because of your prominent position in the former apartheid government, as a former navy commodore at one stage attached to the South African embassy in Paris; as a private secretary of then president PW Botha; a former director of the GMR group; a cousin of former NIS director Neil Barnard; an international arms trader and at least up to 1995 also as the honorary consul for Colombia in Pretoria, a position which would have given you diplomatic bag facilities.

It is mentioned in the book:

- That your brother-in-law, Burtie Eksteen, became involved in business deals with military intelligence transport facilitators Jose Holgado and Arlindo Maia after you married his sister, Lorraine;
- That your father-in-law Mike Eksteen lost his coal mine 'Rusplaas Steenkool' to his son Burtie and that Burtie sold the assets to the aforementioned Jose Holgado, probably for purposes of military technological production;
- That the murder of your parents-in-law, Mike and Elsie Eksteen, in 1990 could be connected to the arms trade as it occurred shortly after Mike Eksteen visited a military business project in Mozambique which he found to be 'dangerous' and with which he refused to become involved, and which prompted him to re-investigate the Rusplaas affair;

- That this project could be connected to you as it involved the military intelligence front companies Soundprops 1145 and Lomaco, and that the middle man who went by the name of Danie Oosthuysen was allegedly known to you;
- That one of your companies, Ideabusiness, started out as 'Rotatrade 6' at the time when sister company 'Rotatrade 25' was sold to the SACP led by Chris Hani in 1993;
- That the first person to arrive at the Chris Hani murder scene was an individual who represented a company called 'Protea Medical Products', which is registered at the same postal address as 'Renaissance Medical Products', which is directed by Mr [REDACTED] who is a fellow director of yours in one of your companies.

We will welcome all comments you may have on the above. Please let us have them by December 5th, 2003.

Yours sincerely

M Davey
