secteur, during which time Witness QAR never left her home.<sup>12250</sup> Witness JAMES was never told by his mother, with whom Witness QAR lived in the grandfather's home, or anyone else, that Witness QAR went to the Muganza commune office in Remera, which Witness JAMES estimated was one and a half hours from his grandfather's house by foot.<sup>12251</sup>

4605. Notwithstanding the Chamber's view that Witness QAR did not personally attend Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony, the Chamber rejects the testimony of Witness JAMES as to Witness QAR's whereabouts on the day in question. First, while the Chamber accepts that Witness QAR lived in the same cellule as Witness JAMES' grandfather,<sup>12252</sup> Witness QAR did not testify about whom she lived with. Further, even if the Chamber were to accept that Witness QAR was living with Witness JAMES' grandfather, Witness JAMES was not said to be living at his grandfather's house with Witness QAR, for which reason the Chamber considers he had no reason to know of her whereabouts at all times. Lastly, the Chamber does not consider the fact that Witness JAMES was never told by his mother, with whom Witness QAR allegedly lived in the grandfather's home, or anyone else that Witness QAR went to the Muganza commune office in Remera<sup>12253</sup> to be conclusive evidence of Witness QAR's whereabouts.

4606. Lastly, with respect to Witness QAQ, Witness QAQ testified that he decided to attend a meeting at the Muganza commune office, that he estimated may have been held between 20 and 22 June 1994, so he could see Ndayambaje and Nteziryayo, both of whom he knew well.<sup>12254</sup> He did not intend to follow the meeting; he only intended to come out at the end of the meeting.<sup>12255</sup> Witness QAQ set out for the meeting at about 1.00 a.m.<sup>12256</sup> and walked all night in order to get to the commune office; he hid in a sorghum field close to the bureau such that when the meeting began, he was already in the field close to the office.<sup>12257</sup>

4607. The Chamber does not consider several aspects of Witness QAQ's account to be plausible. First, the Chamber does not consider credible that he walked all night to get to the meeting just to see Ndayambaje and Nteziryayo. More significantly, the Chamber recalls that Witness QAQ was a Tutsi civil servant from Muganza commune. As such, the Chamber considers it doubtful that Witness QAQ would have chosen to attend the meeting given the prevailing circumstances. Further, notwithstanding Witness QAQ's alleged friendship with Ndayambaje and Nteziryayo, Witness QAQ felt it necessary to hide throughout this meeting, even before he heard the allegedly inciting statements pronounced by Ndayambaje.<sup>12258</sup> The Chamber is of the view that these aspects of Witness QAQ's testimony weaken the credibility of his account.

4608. In any event, even if the Chamber were to accept that Witness QAQ observed Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony, the Chamber notes Witness QAQ was hiding some 100 metres from the meeting's venue,<sup>12259</sup> for which reason he admitted that he could not see the speakers.<sup>12260</sup> He nevertheless testified he could hear Ndayambaje and Nteziryayo from where he was located<sup>12261</sup> because a megaphone was being used at the meeting<sup>12262</sup> and he knew when they spoke because their names were mentioned before they addressed the meeting.<sup>12263</sup> Nonetheless, Witness QAQ agreed that the speeches he heard were often incomplete or unclear; there were statements he could not hear and he only paid attention when the names of the persons that he was able to identify were mentioned.<sup>12264</sup> Therefore, even accepting that Witness QAQ observed Ndayambaje's swearing-in, in the circumstances, the Chamber considers that any probative weight to be accorded to the testimony of Witness QAQ is minimal.

of Brother Stan, which was corroborated by the testimony of Prosecution Witnesses QAF, QAL and TO.<sup>12268</sup>

4610. Notwithstanding these consistencies with respect to the time and location of the meeting in question, several discrepancies between the Prosecution and Defence evidence are discernable. For instance, Prosecution Witnesses FAL, QAF and RV testified to the presence of additional officials such as Muvunyi<sup>12269</sup> and Kalimanzira,<sup>12270</sup> which was disputed by several Defence witnesses.<sup>12271</sup> Further, Witnesses TP, RV, FAL and QAL also testified that the population brought traditional arms with them,<sup>12272</sup> in contrast to Witnesses FAG, QAF, Nteziryayo and Defence Witnesses GABON, KEPIR, AND-11, AND-73 who all testified that the population was not armed.<sup>12273</sup> Witnesses TP and Witness QAL testified that Nteziryayo took the floor after Ndayambaje,<sup>12274</sup> in contrast to the evidence of the other witnesses.

4611. Since the Chamber considers that it is not required to make any finding as to the presence of either Muvunyi or Kalimanzira or whether the audience was armed at the swearing-in ceremony, it is not necessary to rely on the foregoing testimony of these Prosecution witnesses. In any event, however, the Chamber considers the discrepancy with respect to the identity of these additional officials is not significant. As to whether the population was armed, the Chamber notes the testimony of the witnesses shows that between 1,000 and 5,000 people were present.<sup>12275</sup> In the circumstances, the Chamber considers it possible that while some people may have come bearing machetes and other instruments which may double as traditional weapons, others did not, which may account for the discrepancy in the witnesses' evidence. In any event, the Chamber does not regard as significant either the discrepancy as to whether the population was armed, or Witness TP's and Witness QAL's testimony regarding the order of the speakers.

4612. The Chamber further notes Witness RV was the sole witness to testify to the presence of Nyiramasuhuko.<sup>12276</sup> While Nteziryayo, Ndayambaje and Defence Witnesses KEPIR and AND-11 corroborated the testimony of Witness RV with respect to the presence of certain other dignitaries, such as Nsabimana and former Sous-préfet Ntawukulilyayo,<sup>12277</sup> they and others denied the presence of Nyiramasuhuko.<sup>12278</sup> Considering all the Defence witnesses testified to the presence of another female Minister, Bernadette Mukarurangwa,<sup>12279</sup> whose presence Witness RV did not testify about, the Chamber considers it possible that this discrepancy is a mistake. In any event, while the Chamber is not convinced that Nyiramasuhuko was present, this discrepancy alone does not weaken the credibility of Witness RV's testimony with respect to more significant aspects of the swearing-in ceremony.

4613. Moreover, in contrast to all the Prosecution and Defence evidence that the meeting took place in the woods near the commune office, Witness TP testified the meeting took place outside the commune office in the courtyard.<sup>12280</sup> Brother Stan also described the venue as a woodland area near the Muganza commune office, just before the football pitch,<sup>12281</sup> which the Chamber notes is on the opposite side of the Muganza commune office from the woods.<sup>12282</sup> Having regard to the testimony of the various witnesses as to the relative proximity of the woods where the meeting actually took place vis-à-vis the commune office and the football field, where Witness TP and Brother Stan respectively testified the meeting took place, variously described as between 30 and 100 metres, the Chamber does not consider the discrepancies in these witnesses' testimony significant.

4614. Most significantly, in contrast to all the Prosecution evidence, the Defence witnesses testified that the swearing-in ceremony took place in the afternoon of 22 June 1994,<sup>12283</sup>

because Nteziryayo was occupied with the swearing-in ceremony for the new bourgmestre of Ndora commune, Fidèle Uwizeye, on the morning of 22 June 1994. The Chamber notes Witness RV corroborated that Nteziryayo had to swear in the new Ndora bourgmestre before he came to Muganza,<sup>12284</sup> yet still testified that Ndayambaje was installed into office at a ceremony held at about 10.00<sup>12285</sup> or 11.00 a.m.<sup>12286</sup>

4615. The Chamber recalls that the Prosecution witnesses variously testified between November 2001 and March 2004, in contrast to the Defence witnesses, who testified in February 2007 and November 2008. The Chamber notes that at the time of cross-examining the Prosecution witnesses, it was never put to them that they may be mistaken as to the timing of the swearing-in. It was not until the Defence cases opened that testimony was led that the meeting occurred in the afternoon. In the circumstances, the Prosecution witnesses never had the opportunity to refute the testimony of the Defence witnesses.

4616. In any event, the Chamber does not consider this discrepancy to be important considering the Prosecution and Defence witnesses are consistent on the significant features of the meeting, namely that it was the swearing-in ceremony of Ndayambaje, that the meeting took place on or around 22 June 1994, that the meeting was held in the woods near the Muganza commune office, and that Ndayambaje and Nteziryayo spoke at the meeting.

4617. The Chamber therefore accepts that the foregoing witnesses all testified to the same event, namely Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony of 22 June 1994.

4618. The last Prosecution witness to testify about this event was Witness FAU. Witness FAU did not take part in that day's ceremony.<sup>12287</sup> He was informed by assailants who came to his house to abduct Nambaje, the Tutsi girl Witness FAU was hiding, that they had attended a meeting on the same day,<sup>12288</sup> and the meeting's purpose was to swear in Ndayambaje.<sup>12289</sup> The assailants told Witness FAU that at the meeting they attended, Nteziryayo and Ndayambaje had referred to the need to clean a house, and throw the dirt out, and that those protecting Tutsi girls must hand them over to the assailants or be killed.<sup>12290</sup>

4619. The Ndayambaje Defence, relying on Witness KWEPO, contends that on 22 June 1994 Witness FAU was no longer in his home secteur because he had joined the army in May 1994, after the killing of his wife Nambaje, after which he did not return to Muganza commune.<sup>12291</sup>

4620. Witness FAU first testified that he joined the army and stayed in Ngoma commune at the end of May or beginning of June 1994.<sup>12292</sup> The Chamber considers this testimony accords with Witness FAU's testimony that he took in Nambaje the day after the killings at Kabuye Hill,<sup>12293</sup> which the Chamber notes occurred between 22 to 24 April 1994 (), kept Nambaje at his house for one month, perhaps from April until the end of the month of May or early June 1994, when assailants came to take Nambaje away and kill her.<sup>12294</sup> However, Witness FAU later testified that he joined the army approximately one week after Nambaje was killed, towards the end of June 1994.<sup>12295</sup> The training took 12 days, but was not completed because the country fell to the RPF.<sup>12296</sup> The Chamber considers that Witness FAU's testimony as to the timeline of the events appears confused. Nevertheless, having also considered the Prosecution evidence with respect to the abduction of eight Tutsi girls after Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony, the Chamber accepts Witness FAU's testimony that Nambaje was taken from FAU's house after this ceremony. The Chamber therefore rejects the testimony of Witness KWEPO as to Witness FAU's whereabouts on 22 June 1994.

4621. Having regard to the foregoing, the Chamber will only consider the evidence of the remaining Prosecution witnesses, namely Witnesses FAG, FAL, FAU, QAF, QAL, RV, TO and TP, as well as the Defence witnesses with respect to this allegation.

4622. Turning to the content of the speeches made at the swearing-in ceremony, the Chamber notes that there is varied agreement among the Prosecution witnesses with respect to the content of Nteziryayo's and Ndayambaje's speeches. Prosecution Witnesses FAG and FAL allege that both Nteziryayo and Ndayambaje used parables concerning the need to clean the house of dirt and place it outside.<sup>12297</sup> Witness FAU gave corroborative hearsay evidence to the effect that killers who came to his house had come from a meeting where Nteziryayo and Ndayambaje had told them "when you clean a house, you do not keep the dirt inside the house, but you take it outside of the house and if anyone is protecting a girl, he or she must hand her over to the assailants; otherwise, he will be killed by the assailants".<sup>12298</sup>

4623. In contrast to Witnesses FAG and FAL, Witness TO testified that only Nteziryayo told the fable concerning the consequences of the failure to sweep dirt,<sup>12299</sup> whereas Witness QAL offered hearsay evidence that Ndayambaje told the population to clean up and put the dirt out, to the extent that they should be able to find a needle in that heap of dirt.<sup>12300</sup> Witness TP also testified that Nteziryayo referred to the need to sweep dirt and the consequences of the population's failure to do so,<sup>12301</sup> and thus corroborated Witness TO. However the Chamber notes Witness TP also testified that Nteziryayo further spoke about the need to destroy the snake's eggs,<sup>12302</sup> which the Chamber notes no other witness testified about. In contrast, Witnesses RV and QAF both testified that only Ndayambaje recounted the fable of sweeping dirt.<sup>12303</sup>

4624. With respect to statements other than those concerning "dirt", Witness QAF testified Nteziryayo congratulated the population for their work, asked those still protecting Tutsi girls to hand them over to the killers,<sup>12304</sup> and threatened that if men did not give up their Tutsi girls, they would be killed with them.<sup>12305</sup> This was corroborated by Witness QAL who testified that Nteziryayo started by greeting the people and asked if they had carried out the instructions given to them; people answered they had.<sup>12306</sup> Nteziryayo also asked people who had married Tutsis and had children to kill all Tutsis as he did not want any Tutsis around anymore.<sup>12307</sup> Witness FAU's hearsay testimony is also corroborative insofar as he testified that the killers told him that those protecting Tutsis who refused to hand them over would be killed.<sup>12308</sup> Witness TP also testified that Nteziryayo thanked the population for what they had done, but said they should not relax because there was a lot yet to be done.<sup>12309</sup> Further, the Chamber notes that both Witness FAL and Witness TO testified that Nteziryayo criticised Bimenyimana's poor performance as bourgmestre,<sup>12310</sup> although the Chamber notes no other witness confirmed this.

4625. Witness FAL testified that Nteziryayo talked about killing the Tutsis,<sup>12311</sup> that Nteziryayo stated the enemy had to be fought, that the enemy was Tutsi, and that all Inkotanyi were Tutsis,<sup>12312</sup> and Nteziryayo criticised the outgoing bourgmestre, who Nteziryayo deemed incapable of hunting down and killing Tutsis,<sup>12313</sup> Abatutsi,<sup>12314</sup> and Inkotanyi.<sup>12315</sup> In contrast however, in addition to the Defence witnesses, Witness TP also testified that Nteziryayo did not pronounce the word Tutsi or Inkotanyi in his speech.<sup>12316</sup> Witness QAL also did not hear either Nteziryayo or Ndayambaje use the words Inkotanyi or Ibyitso; they rather spoke about Tutsis.<sup>12317</sup>

4626. Insofar as Prosecution Witnesses QAF and TP variously testified that Nteziryayo<sup>12318</sup> and Ndayambaje<sup>12319</sup> thanked the population for their “work” and/or urged them to continue their “work”, Ntakirutimana testified that “gukora” has several meanings in Kinyarwanda, including to do something bad, to work arduously and thank you.<sup>12320</sup> In his Expert Report, Ntakirutimana wrote that “gukora” was synonymous with to work, to kill, to remove, to clean, communal work, umuganda, finish the job, rape and take away.<sup>12321</sup> “To work” could be going to destroy someone’s house, or to raid and steal from someone.<sup>12322</sup> In the context of the 1994 conflict, “to work” meant “to kill”. You must work with a weapon, and what you do with the weapon is quite clear. If you do work, you will get the Tutsis’ land. All those who did not wish to work should be set aside.<sup>12323</sup> The operation to eliminate the enemy or the snake was a euphemism for “work”.<sup>12324</sup>

4627. As to the meaning of the parable concerning the sweeping of dirt, Witnesses FAG, FAL and TO testified that Ndayambaje explained the parable [used by either both Nteziryayo and Ndayambaje or Nteziryayo alone] which they understood meant that those Tutsi women and children in hiding needed to be killed such that no Tutsis survived.<sup>12325</sup> Although disagreeing with the evidence of Witnesses FAG and FAL as to who pronounced the parable, Witness TO nevertheless agreed with Witnesses FAG and FAL that Ndayambaje explained the fable to the population; he referred to people who were hiding Tutsis, while Tutsis were being sought after.<sup>12326</sup> Witness TP also understood that the parable was encouraging the killing of surviving children,<sup>12327</sup> although he alleged it was stated by Nteziryayo.

4628. Witnesses QAF and RV testified they understood Ndayambaje’s speech concerning the removal of dirt to mean that those young Tutsis still alive were to be killed.<sup>12328</sup> Witness TO further testified that while Nteziryayo did not mention the word “Tutsis” in all his alleged speeches, the witness stated that the fable Nteziryayo recounted made clear the meaning of his message.<sup>12329</sup> Although it was the first time Witness TO heard the fable, its meaning was made clear by subsequent events.<sup>12330</sup> Witness QAL also testified that it was a common proverb in Rwanda and Witness QAL understood it to mean that good and bad people should be separated and people who were undesirable should be killed.<sup>12331</sup> According to Ntakirutimana, proverbs referring to the sweeping outside of dirt were truisms which could be easily understood. In the context of the war situation, such a proverb would have been understood to mean that the people who attacked Rwanda and came from outside, needed to be thrown out of the country.<sup>12332</sup>

4629. Witnesses FAG, FAL, QAF, QAL and TP testified that after the swearing-in ceremony, Nteziryayo's and Ndayambaje's statements resulted in further attacks against Tutsis who were tracked down and killed.<sup>12333</sup> Witness TO testified that this was engaged in by "some scoundrels and a few thieves [who] engaged in flushing out women and children and [engaged] in looting", in compliance with Nteziryayo's instructions, but did not otherwise involve the general population.<sup>12334</sup>

4631. The Chamber considers that witnesses will not always have an exactly identical recollection with respect to the same event, and all the more so where many years have passed between the occurrence of an event and the giving of testimony. The Chamber further considers that not only the passage of time, but also the deterioration of human memory should be kept in mind when assessing a witness' evidence with respect to certain events. In the present circumstances, the Chamber has considered the witnesses' evidence with respect to the swearing-in ceremony. As analysed, the Chamber considers the account of most of the Prosecution witnesses differs in varying degrees as to the content of what was said by both Ndayambaje and Nteziryayo. The Chamber is nevertheless of the view that the discrepancies can be attributed to a variety of reasons, such as the level of education of the witnesses, the late arrival of certain witnesses,<sup>12341</sup> their position at the venue of the meeting,<sup>12342</sup> the quality of the megaphone or the clarity of the speakers.

4632. The Chamber considers the differences in the testimony of the eight Prosecution witnesses as to the content of Ndayambaje and Nteziryayo's speeches can be explained by virtue of these variable factors and for this reasons considers that these particular discrepancies are not significant. The Chamber is strengthened its view having regard to the countervailing and consistent evidence of the Prosecution witnesses that either Nteziryayo or Ndayambaje or both incited the population by means of parables principally relating to the sweeping of dirt, as well as plain speech.<sup>12343</sup> The Prosecution evidence also consistently establishes that the audience understood that Tutsis in hiding needed to be killed.<sup>12344</sup> The Chamber further notes the consistent, albeit often general, evidence of the Prosecution witnesses to the effect that after the meeting, killings occurred.<sup>12345</sup>

4633. In contrast to the Prosecution witnesses, Witness BOZAN, Brother Stan, Witness KEPIR, Witness AND-11, Witness AND-73, Siborurema, Ndayambaje and Nteziryayo testified that Nteziryayo's speech concerned problems of security and the situation at the front, and that Nteziryayo invited the population to ensure its own security and safety within the locality, as well as discussed the Turquoise area and the arrival of the French.<sup>12346</sup> Numerous Defence witnesses also testified that Préfet Nteziryayo did not use proverbs or parables during his address.<sup>12347</sup>

4634. With respect to Ndayambaje's speech, Witness BOZAN, Brother Stan, Witness KEPIR, Witness AND-11, Witness AND-73, Ndayambaje and Nteziryayo also testified that

Ndayambaje focused on castigating wrong-doers, urging the population to collaborate to restore peace and stability, denouncing those who played a key role in the massacres, and asking them to do everything to reconstruct their society.<sup>12348</sup> Several Defence witnesses equally testified Ndayambaje did not use proverbs or parables in his messages to the public.<sup>12349</sup>

4635. The Chamber also notes Brother Stan, Witness AND-11, Witness AND-73 and Ndayambaje denied that following the swearing-in ceremony there were massacres by the local population in Muganza commune,<sup>12350</sup> although Ndayambaje testified there was news of people being chased by the RPF in the northeast of the region,<sup>12351</sup> and Brother Stan and Witness AND-11 testified to some looting carried out by groups of thugs.<sup>12352</sup> Witness GABON testified that at the time of Ndayambaje's swearing-in the killings had diminished in intensity and that during the first week of Ndayambaje's tenure, killings had virtually ended and people were fleeing.<sup>12353</sup>

4636. The Chamber recalls that Nteziryayo and Ndayambaje, as the Accused, may have a motive in seeking to reduce their personal responsibility for the alleged incitement in question. Further, while the Chamber notes that none of the remaining Defence witnesses were detained at the time of their testimony such that they would not have a motive to lie to seek any leniency, the Chamber nevertheless recalls that all of the Ndayambaje Defence witnesses have close ties to Ndayambaje.

4637. As already discussed elsewhere, Brother Stan was a close friend of Ndayambaje's, having known him since 1988.<sup>12354</sup> Witness GABON formerly had professional ties with Ndayambaje. Witness KEPIR lived and worked a short distance from the commune office in Remera, used to report to Ndayambaje on matters related to his professional activities and accompanied him on various trips throughout Butare in the latter half of April 1994.<sup>12355</sup> Witness KEPIR also testified that he was a friend of Ndayambaje.<sup>12356</sup> Furthermore, the Chamber recalls Witness EV's testimony with respect to events at Kabuye Hill, namely that Witness EV saw Witness KEPIR with Ndayambaje on two separate occasions at Kabuye Hill during which refugees came under attack ().<sup>12357</sup> On the second occasion, Witness KEPIR was driving a blue double-cabin Hilux.<sup>12358</sup> Witness FAU also testified that Ndayambaje used Witness KEPIR's blue vehicle to drive to the Muganza commune office to pick up weapons for use at Kabuye Hill.<sup>12359</sup> This association between Witness KEPIR and Ndayambaje also has a bearing on Witness KEPIR's credibility. Witness BOZAN would also have had professional ties with Ndayambaje during both of Ndayambaje's periods in office. Accordingly, the evidence of these Defence witnesses with respect to Ndayambaje must be reviewed bearing these personal ties in mind.

4638. With respect to Nteziryayo, both Witnesses AND-11 and AND-73 knew Nteziryayo before the events because they were in the army together.<sup>12360</sup> Witness AND-11 also knew Nteziryayo well from the time he began to work in Kabayi commune from 1991.<sup>12361</sup> Witness AND-11 called Nteziryayo a friend with whom he would sometimes have a drink after APAME meetings.<sup>12362</sup>

4640. As for Brother Stan, the Chamber also notes the discrepancies between earlier statements given by Brother Stan in 1995 to a Belgian judge and his testimony at trial. In his previous statement before the Belgian judge, Brother Stan said that Ndayambaje talked about "restoring order in the house", whereas in court Brother Stan testified he could not recall any statement about putting order in the house, only "putting order in ... Muganza commune". Further, insofar as his previous statement included a reference to "the dust behind the fireplace", Brother Stan claimed that the Belgian judge who had taken his statement must have added that expression to his statement, thereby putting words in Brother Stan's mouth.<sup>12363</sup> Both these discrepancies, and moreover Brother Stan's explanation, which the Chamber does not find credible, cast doubt on Brother Stan's testimony as to the contents of Ndayambaje and Nteziryayo's speeches at the swearing-in ceremony.

4641. As such, the Chamber considers the Defence evidence on the whole is not sufficiently credible as to raise a reasonable doubt about the nature of the utterances made by Ndayambaje and Nteziryayo at Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony.

4642. Accordingly, the Chamber finds it established beyond a reasonable doubt that on the occasion of Ndayambaje's swearing in ceremony on 22 June 1994, an event attended by the general population,<sup>12364</sup> Nteziryayo and Ndayambaje told the population to continue with their “work” and urged them to “sweep the dirt outside”. Having regard to the witnesses’ own testimony as to what they understood “work” and “sweeping dirt” to mean, which was also corroborated by Ntakirutimana in the context of 1994, the Chamber accepts that these witnesses understood they needed to kill Tutsis.

4644. In the absence of any evidence that either of the Accused were either present or in some way responsible for the taking of the children, the Prosecution has not discharged its burden of proving beyond a reasonable doubt that either Nteziryayo or Ndayambaje are responsible, either directly or indirectly, for the taking and killing of Witness TP’s child.

4645. Therefore, having considered the totality of the evidence before it, the Chamber finds the Prosecution has established beyond a reasonable doubt that at Ndayambaje’s swearing-in as the bourgmestre of Muganza commune on 22 June 1994, an event attended by the general population, Ndayambaje and Nteziryayo urged the population to “sweep the dirt” and instructed that those hiding Tutsis who refused to hand them over should be killed. Further, the Chamber finds it established beyond a reasonable doubt that after Ndayambaje’s swearing-in ceremony searches for Tutsis took place and killings followed. In contrast the Chamber does not find that the Prosecution discharged its burden of proof with respect to the taking and killing of Witness TP’s son.

3.6.44 Abduction of Tutsi Women and Girls, June 1994

3.6.44.1 Introduction

4646. The Ndayambaje Indictment alleges that “as from 20 April 1994, in Muganza commune and the surrounding area, Ndayambaje ordered, supervised and participated in massacres of the Tutsi population, committed by militiamen, soldiers, communal policemen and communal authorities”.<sup>12370</sup>

2004 p. 42 (ICS); T. 25 February 2004 p. 11 (Witness QAL) (Inhabitants from three secteurs were present; she estimated 200 people attended, none of which were Tutsis as they had been killed).

4647. The Prosecution further alleges that following Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony on 22 June 1994, at which Ndayambaje incited the population to kill Tutsis, a group of Tutsi girls were abducted from Mugombwa secteur, with Ndayambaje's knowledge, and subsequently killed.<sup>12371</sup> In support of these submissions, the Prosecution relies on the testimony of Prosecution Witnesses QAR, QAF and FAU.

4648. The Ndayambaje Defence does not dispute that a group of Tutsi women and girls were abducted from Mugombwa secteur. The Ndayambaje Defence submits, however, that the abduction took place in mid-May 1994, well before Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony on 22 June 1994. The Ndayambaje Defence further submits that the Prosecution witnesses lack credibility and that Ndayambaje was not present at the Statue of the Virgin Mary in Mugombwa during the Tutsi women and girls' abduction.<sup>12372</sup> The Defence relies on the testimonies of Defence Witnesses ANGES, BOZAN, Brother Stan, JAMES, KWEP, MATIC, MUZIK, SABINE and Ndayambaje.

3.6.44.2 Preliminary Issues

4649. With regard to Ndayambaje's alleged presence during the abduction of Tutsi girls prior to their killing, the Indictment did not specify the site or date of this allegation. The Chamber therefore finds that this allegation was not sufficiently pled and the Indictment was defective. The Chamber will rely on the principles set out in the Preliminary Issues section of this Judgement (), to determine whether the defect in the Indictment was subsequently cured through timely, clear and consistent notice to the Ndayambaje Defence.

4650. The summary of Prosecution Witness QAR's anticipated testimony in the Appendix to the Pre-Trial Brief stated that she attended a meeting chaired by Nteziryayo and attended by Ndayambaje in June 1994. The following day there was a house-to-house search for girls and women in hiding. Four girls and a teacher were brought out. The people were divided as to whether or not these women should be killed. It was decided to wait for Ndayambaje to ask him what to do with them. Ndayambaje arrived and said, "[w]ere you not told that if you sweep the dirt towards your house, it heaps up and ends up chasing you out of your house? Then throw away the dirt".<sup>12373</sup> Witness QAR later heard that the women were taken by a group to the Mugombwa brickyard.<sup>12374</sup>

4651. Witness QAR's previous statement of 14 October 1997 included the same information as contained in the Pre-Trial Brief. Furthermore, in her previous statement of 20 June 1995, Witness QAR stated that she was a witness to the killing of women and girls who had so far been spared by assailants from Saga, on the orders of Ndayambaje. Ndayambaje claimed that some of the refugees knew how to write and corresponded with the Inkotanyi. On being asked if they should be killed Ndayambaje replied, "[d]o as you please. Are they not the ones who are going to related [sic] what happened when the Inkotanyi arrive?" Upon that, they got them up and massacred them on the spot.<sup>12375</sup> She did not mention the incident in her previous statement of 20 May 1997; this statement to Tribunal investigators dealt solely with the massacre at Mugombwa Church in April 1994. Both these statements were disclosed to the Defence on 4 December 2000, well before the start of Witness QAR's testimony on 15 November 2001.<sup>12376</sup>

4652. The summary of Prosecution Witness QAF's anticipated testimony in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief states that a meeting was held by Nteziryayo, near the commune office around May or June 1994, at which Ndayambaje was present. Ndayambaje spoke using metaphoric language, saying that all the garbage had to be swept out – this was interpreted to mean that all Tutsi women had to be eliminated. The morning after the meeting, Witness QAF saw an attack on the homes of young Hutu men who were hiding Tutsi girls. Witness QAF learned that several other girls were taken from their hiding places and killed.<sup>12377</sup>

4653. In his previous statement of 14 October 1997, Witness QAF stated that he attended a meeting at the Muganza commune office in May or June 1994, attended by Ndayambaje, the bourgmestre. After the meeting, a wave of panic swept over the people. The following morning, he heard shouts and saw Jean Baptiste Mukararinda lead an attack on Mugombwa to search the homes of the young Hutu men who were hiding Tutsi girls. He saw people from Saga escorting three girls they had discovered at the home of Jean Mukundirehe. Several other girls were taken from their hiding places and killed. This statement was disclosed to the Defence on 4 November 1998, prior to Witness QAF's testimony on 5 February 2004.<sup>12378</sup>

4654. Considering the content of the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief and the previous statements of Witnesses QAR and QAF, the Chamber considers that the Ndayambaje Defence was provided with clear, timely and consistent notice that following a meeting at the Muganza commune office in June 1994 there was an abduction of Tutsi women and girls in Mugombwa secteur by assailants from Saga, that Ndayambaje was present during the abduction and that the women and girls were subsequently killed. Consequently, Ndayambaje was reasonably able to understand the nature of the charges against him and there was no prejudice in the preparation of his defence case.

3.6.44.3 Evidence

Prosecution Witness QAR

4655. Witness QAR, a Tutsi woman from Muganza commune, testified that she knew Ndayambaje since they were both children.<sup>12379</sup> She identified Ndayambaje in court.<sup>12380</sup>

4656. Witness QAR testified that the conseiller of Mugombwa wrote a letter that he sent to the authorities in Saga, identifying the Tutsi women and girls who had so far been spared.<sup>12381</sup>

4657. On 18 June 1994, in the days after she had attended a meeting behind the commune office in Muganza commune, a group of assailants led by a man she knew named Masima arrived in Mugombwa from Saga. They took eight women and adolescent girls from their homes. The witness was detained with them. Seven of the women were from Mugombwa; one was a teacher from Saga. Witness QAR had spent the night with one of the women, a farmer from Mugombwa, at the priest's house following the massacre at Mugombwa Church in April 1994. This woman was pregnant and was accompanied by her three-year-old child.<sup>12382</sup>

4658. Initially, there was some disagreement between the attackers from Saga and some people who were trying to protect them, but it was agreed to wait for the bourgmestre to decide what to do with the Tutsi women and girls. They were made to wait near the Statue of St. Mary in Mugombwa for his arrival. Ndayambaje arrived in a vehicle. He did not get out but spoke to Masima from inside.<sup>12383</sup> On being asked by Masima what to do with the women, Ndayambaje replied, “[d]o whatever you want to do.”<sup>12384</sup> On cross-examination, Witness QAR testified that Ndayambaje said, “I realise that among these people there are intellectuals and therefore take them away”.<sup>12385</sup> When the bourgmestre left, Masima told the women and girls that they had been delivered to him and ordered them to stand up. The women were taken away to be killed.<sup>12386</sup>

4659. They were taken to Gasenyi, a valley between Mugombwa and Kibayi where there were furnaces. Witness QAR testified that the assailants took away eight women. She did not go with them to Gasenyi. Before leaving Mugombwa, the assailants realised that there had been confusion over Witness QAR's identity. She was told that her hour had not yet come and she was released. The woman they wanted had the same first name as her but a different surname. None of the women and girls came back. They were killed.<sup>12387</sup>

4660. On cross-examination, Witness QAR was referred to her previous statement of 14 October 1997 which states that there was a house-to-house search and four girls from Karonkano cellule, Mugombwa secteur, and a teacher from Saga were brought out. The teacher was accused of writing to the Inkotanyi. The statement also recorded that when Ndayambaje arrived in Mugombwa he said, “[w]ere you not told that if you sweep the dirt towards your house it heaps up and ends up chasing you out of your house, then throw away the dirt”.<sup>12388</sup> Witness QAR testified her statement was not recorded correctly: more than four women were detained; four were from Mugombwa and four were from other secteurs. She testified that the words she attributed to Ndayambaje in her trial testimony had the same meaning as those reflected in her previous statement.<sup>12389</sup> Although the statement of 14

October 1997 states that Witness QAR did not know what finally happened to the women, she later learned that they had been taken to a brickyard in Mugombwa.<sup>12390</sup>

4661. Witness QAR was also referred to her statement of 20 June 1995 to Belgian authorities which stated that the women and girls in Mugombwa who had been spared were massacred on the orders of Ndayambaje by assailants from Saga. According to the statement, Ndayambaje said that among the women were some who could write and were in correspondence with the Inkotanyi. According to the statement the women were massacred “on the spot”.<sup>12391</sup> Witness QAR testified that this was not correct; she did not say that they were killed on the spot, but that they were taken to the furnaces at Gasenyi.<sup>12392</sup>

4662. Witness QAR testified that before 6 April 1994, she attended several meetings convened by Ndayambaje at the Muganza commune office. Those meetings in Muganza commune took place both before and after the war. There was approximately one meeting per month. After the death of the President, there were meetings almost every day.<sup>12393</sup>

Prosecution Witness QAF

4663. Witness QAF, a Hutu farmer from Mugombwa secteur, Muganza commune, convicted of genocide-related crimes and released from prison in 2003,<sup>12394</sup> testified that he attended a meeting at the Muganza commune office.<sup>12395</sup> Witness QAF arrived late and was told when he arrived that Ndayambaje had been appointed the new bourgmestre but he had missed the announcement.<sup>12396</sup>

4664. The day after the meeting at the Muganza commune office, young Tutsi girls from Witness QAF’s neighbourhood were abducted. He later heard that they had been killed. One of the girls was the daughter of Nyarunani, another the daughter of Melchior, and the last one was the daughter of Pascal.<sup>12397</sup> They were young and none of them had children. The girls had been seeking refuge at Jean Mukundirehe’s house, since their fathers had been killed. The mothers of two of the girls were still alive. The girls were flushed out from Mukundirehe’s house and were subsequently killed.<sup>12398</sup>

The abduction took place early in the morning.<sup>12399</sup> He did not see the girls being killed but Mukundirehe, his neighbour, told him he participated in the burial of the girls.<sup>12400</sup> Witness QAF did not know Witness QAR.<sup>12401</sup>

4666. Witness QAF testified that he knew Ndayambaje well. When they were young, they attended the same primary school and later he saw Ndayambaje when Ndayambaje became the bourgmestre who replaced Chrysologue Bimenyimana. The witness identified Ndayambaje in court.<sup>12402</sup>

Prosecution Witness FAU

4667. Witness FAU, a Hutu farmer from Muganza commune and a detainee in Rwanda at the time of his testimony, testified that he met an 18-year-old Tutsi girl called Nambaje.<sup>12403</sup> She was the daughter of Anaclet and was with a five-year-old girl.<sup>12404</sup> He found them in Kivumo secteur with the girl's grandfather and brought them to a house.<sup>12405</sup> Witness FAU admitted that during the period that he hid Nambaje at a house and he sexually abused her.<sup>12406</sup>

4668. After a month, in late May or early June 1994, three assailants called Cassien Ngonza, Nyambindi and Rutabana came to the house, accompanied by a crowd who remained outside.<sup>12407</sup> They took Nambaje and the young girl and killed them in the home of a Tutsi named Kinyagiwo who had also been killed.<sup>12408</sup> Witness FAU testified that before taking Nambaje, Cassien Ngonza told the witness that there had been a meeting the purpose of which was to swear in Ndayambaje,<sup>12409</sup> and at which Nteziryayo and Ndayambaje had said, "when you clean a house, you do not keep the dirt inside the house, but you take it outside of the house and if anyone is protecting a girl, he or she must hand her over to the assailants; otherwise, he will be killed by the assailants."<sup>12410</sup> The assailants said if a person hiding a Tutsi refused to hand that Tutsi over to the killers, that person would also be killed because the people hiding Tutsis in their homes were going to cause subsequent problems.<sup>12411</sup>

4669. Witness FAU did not attend the meeting but heard it was attended by the conseillers and other people leading the attacks. Witness FAU did not take part in that meeting because he was protecting Nambaje and the five-year-old child who was with her and he wanted to avoid a situation in which they would be taken away.<sup>12412</sup> All the inhabitants of his secteur including the conseillers were aware that he was hiding Nambaje.<sup>12413</sup>

4670. The meeting ended at approximately 5.00 or 6.00 p.m. after which the assailants came to the house. The witness knew Ndayambaje but not Nteziryayo, but he had been told that Nteziryayo was the préfet and chaired the ceremony at which Ndayambaje was sworn in as the bourgmestre.<sup>12414</sup> When it was put to the witness that his previous statement said that this meeting with Nteziryayo and Ndayambaje took place before the killings at Mugombwa Church and at Kabuye Hill, the witness explained that in fact, the ceremony during which it was said that they had to sweep dirt out took place after the events of Mugombwa and Kabuye.<sup>12415</sup> Witness FAU also testified that he joined the army approximately one week after Nambaje was killed, but did not complete the training because the RPF arrived.<sup>12416</sup>

4671. When confronted with his statement to the Rwandan Prosecutor that said he saw Nteziryayo at a meeting in his commune, Witness FAU stated his statement must have been taken down mistakenly because while he talked about that meeting, he did not attend it.<sup>12417</sup>

4673. Witness JAMES, a Hutu student with a Tutsi mother, was 14 years old in 1994 and from Mugombwa secteur, Muganza commune.<sup>12425</sup> Witness JAMES testified that Witness QAR gave false testimony about the abduction of Tutsi women and girls.<sup>12426</sup> Witness JAMES testified that he lived in a house 400 metres from that of Witness QAR.<sup>12427</sup> On cross-examination, Witness JAMES testified that he last met with Witness QAR the day before he left to testify before this Tribunal. The witness stated that he never discussed the events at

Mugombwa in 1994 with Witness QAR but Witness QAR often discussed the events with Witness JAMES' mother and he listened to their conversations.<sup>12428</sup>

4674. Witness JAMES identified the house where Witness QAR sought refuge during the events, as the building on the extreme left of Defence Exhibit 655A. To the extreme right of Defence Exhibit 655A was the bar where he worked, which was his brother's old house.<sup>12429</sup>

4675. Witness JAMES testified that around 20 and 21 May 1994, young women and girls who remained in his area were killed.<sup>12430</sup> At around 1.00 p.m. that day, the witness was working outside at his brother's bar<sup>12431</sup> when he saw some assailants pass by with seven or eight girls, heading towards the Statue of the Virgin Mary. The women and girls had been taken from their hiding places in the village. Witness JAMES recognised Yacinthe from Mpatsimondo, and Nyirangazari among them. He did not see Witness QAR with them. According to Witness JAMES, Witness QAR was at the house all day on the day of the abduction and did not travel to the Statue of the Virgin Mary with the assailants.<sup>12432</sup> On cross-examination, Witness JAMES testified that Hyacinthe, Juvénal's daughter, was a relative of his. She was a Tutsi, like all women and girls who were abducted with her.<sup>12433</sup>

4676. Witness JAMES testified that the group of assailants was led by a very well-known person called Masima from Saga secteur, in Kibayi commune. The group was armed with traditional weapons. Witness JAMES followed the convoy up to the Statue of the Virgin Mary. The distance between his elder brother's bar and the statue was 115 metres. Witness JAMES saw Witness BOZAN at the Statue of the Virgin Mary. Witness BOZAN was trying to convince the assailants to release the women and girls but the assailants refused. Witness JAMES stayed at the statue for less than five minutes before returning to his brother's bar to resume his work. He did not see Witness QAR or Ndayambaje in the vicinity or at the Statue of the Virgin Mary on that day. The witness testified that young people from Mugombwa told him afterwards that the girls and women were killed at the Statue of the Virgin Mary. Chrysologue was the bourgmestre of Muganza commune when the abduction of the young women and girls occurred.<sup>12434</sup>

4677. Witness JAMES testified that he knew Ndayambaje, who lived in Nyarunazi, Mugombwa secteur in Muganza commune, in 1994. Ndayambaje was a student at that time. A distance of 100 to 120 metres separated the witness' parents' house and that of Ndayambaje.<sup>12435</sup>

Ndayambaje Defence Witness BOZAN

4678. Witness BOZAN, a Hutu civil servant from Muganza commune, testified that he knew Yasina, who was Nyarunani's daughter.<sup>12436</sup> Nyarunani lived in the same secteur as the witness in 1994. The witness stated that Yasina took refuge at his home. At the beginning of the unrest in April 1994, Yasina and another girl called Nyirakadori sought refuge at the house of the witness' neighbour, Jean Mukundirehe. The witness testified that his house was about 100 metres away from Jean Mukundirehe's house.<sup>12437</sup>

4679. Witness BOZAN testified that Yasina and Nyirakadori were abducted by a group of about 30 assailants between 15 and 20 May 1994.<sup>12438</sup> The assailants included some Burundians and were led by Jean Baptiste Mukurarinda, also known as Masima, and Raymond. The witness also recognised Damascene Nyamukwaya among them. They were armed with traditional weapons. The witness was in front of his house when Masima and his group launched an attack resulting in the abduction of Yasina and Nyirakadori. The attack took place at about 3.00 p.m. Yasina and Nyirakadori were in company of Witness MATIC in a field where they were abducted.<sup>12439</sup> The abducted girls were Tutsis.<sup>12440</sup> The convoy of assailants passed by his house taking with them Yasina and Nyirakadori. Witness BOZAN tried to intercept them but one of the assailants pointed his spear to at him and told him it was not any of his business. Witness BOZAN followed the convoy to the Statue of the Virgin Mary not far from the church where other abducted girls were. There were two girls called Yasina among the abductees. In addition to Yasina and Nyirakadori, Nyarunani's daughters, Yasina, Mpatsimondo's daughter from Mugombwa secteur, Karonkano cellule, was among them.<sup>12441</sup> Nyarunani and Mpatsimondo were both dead. Nyarunani had been dead for some time and Mpatsimondo died in April 1994. Both men were Tutsis.<sup>12442</sup>

4680. The convoy reached the Statue of the Virgin Mary at about 3.15 p.m. Witness BOZAN testified that upon their arrival at the Statue of the Virgin Mary, he asked the assailants to release the girls or at least to inform their respective families, but his request was rejected.<sup>12443</sup> There were other people present at the scene who were arguing with the assailants. Witness MATIC was there, as was Nyarunani's wife and the cousins of the abducted girls but they could not do anything.<sup>12444</sup> Witness BOZAN indicated that his conversation with the assailants lasted about five minutes.<sup>12445</sup>

office. On arrival at the commune they were told that the bourgmestre was not present so they decided to wait for him to return. After about 45 minutes, they decided to go back to the Statue of the Virgin Mary but before they left they asked a policeman at the commune office to report the incident to the bourgmestre.<sup>12446</sup> The round-trip took about one hour and 15 minutes to one hour and 25 minutes.<sup>12447</sup> When he returned to the Statue of the Virgin Mary, he was told that the girls had been taken to Gasenyi to be killed.<sup>12448</sup> He did not see Ndayambaje present at the statue.<sup>12449</sup>

4682. Witness BOZAN testified that he knew Witness QAR and that she was not among the girls who were abducted and taken to the Statue of the Virgin Mary.<sup>12450</sup> The witness denied Prosecution Counsel's suggestion that the abductions took place in mid-June 1994, during the harvest. Witness BOZAN testified that he wrote a report on the incident for the attention of the conseiller, which was transmitted to the commune office. However, no assailant was arrested.<sup>12451</sup>

Ndayambaje Defence Witness MUZIK

4683. Witness MUZIK, a Hutu farmer from Muganza commune<sup>12452</sup> and husband of Defence Witness MATIC, testified that after the death of the president on 6 April 1994, when the war broke out, two girls, Yasina and Nyirakadori, sought refuge at Nyirabashytsi's house on 22 April 1994. Witness MUZIK testified that Nyirakadori's father was Melchior Nibizi and Yasina's father was Juvénal Nyarunani; both girls were Tutsis.<sup>12453</sup>

4684. Witness MUZIK testified that one day in mid-May 1994, he went to Macumi's home to collect money from a sale of banana wine. On his return, he met an old woman called Nyiramanywa who told the witness that Yasina and Nyirakadori had been abducted from Nyirabashytsi's house. On arriving home, Witness MUZIK's wife was crying and she told him that Yasina and Nyirakadori had been with her collecting sweet potato plants when they were abducted.<sup>12454</sup> They were abducted by assailants from Saga in Kibayi commune, led by Masima Baptiste.<sup>12455</sup> Witness MUZIK went to Nyirabashytsi's house and learned that Mukundirehe was not there. He followed the assailants from his home, towards the road below the parish because he had learned that the abductors had gone in that direction. He joined a number of people, including Jean Mukundirehe, at Felesi's home below the parish. They followed the attackers to Gasenyi.<sup>12456</sup>

4685. The killing of Yasina and Nyirakadori took place at Gasenyi. Witness MUZIK testified that on arriving at Gasenyi, on the border between Kibayi and Muganza, the assailants were already on the other side. The assailants pointed out the bodies of Yasina and Nyirakadori to them. These bodies had been hacked into pieces using machetes and the corpses had been dumped in pits which were used as ovens for making bricks. There were a total of five dead bodies in the pits, including three other girls he did not know. Witness MUZIK and some others buried the corpses using hoes borrowed from the home of Mr. Butoyi and Mr. Sendegeya who lived above Gasenyi. They left the site between 4.00 p.m. and 5.00 p.m.<sup>12457</sup>

4686. After the burial of Yasina, Nyirakadore and the other three girls at Gasenyi, he went with others to the conseiller of Mugombwa secteur, Viateur Singirankabo, to report the incident. The conseiller was recovering from an illness. On receiving the news he insisted on being escorted to break the news to the authorities. The witness and others accompanied the conseiller to the Muganza commune office where they met Bourgmestre Chrysologue Bimenyimana at around 5.00 p.m.<sup>12458</sup>

4687. Witness MUZIK testified that Bourgmestre Bimenyimana told the conseiller that someone else had already informed him about the dead girls and he would visit the site the next day with an investigation officer to carry out an investigation on the killings.<sup>12459</sup>

4688. Witness MUZIK testified that Ndayambaje was reinstated as bourgmestre of Muganza commune at the end of June 1994. He did not see Ndayambaje on the day of the abduction of Yasina and Nyirakadori. Ndayambaje was not the bourgmestre at the time of the abduction and killing of Yasina and Nyirakadori.<sup>12460</sup> Chrysologue Bimenyimana was bourgmestre.<sup>12461</sup> The witness disagreed that the attack took place in June 1994, insisting that the girls were abducted in mid-May 1994.<sup>12462</sup>

4689. On cross-examination, Witness MUZIK denied that someone bearing his name, and whose father and mother had the same names as his father and mother, had been the subject of Gacaca proceedings in Rwanda in 2007, and was sentenced to 17 years imprisonment for participation in killings and destruction of houses. He testified that he knew nothing about this.<sup>12463</sup>

4690. On cross-examination, Witness MUZIK denied participating in an attack at Come. He also denied participating in an attack launched on the house of Wagibago or in the attacks during the course of which Baributsa and Ntirantekura were killed.<sup>12464</sup>

4691. Witness MUZIK testified that he was illiterate and could not recall the exact dates of events, though he could give estimates.<sup>12465</sup> He further stated that his wife was aware that he testified before the Tribunal but was unaware of the content of his testimony.<sup>12466</sup>

Ndayambaje Defence Witness MATIC

4692. Witness MATIC, a Hutu farmer and wife of Defence Witness MUZIK, from Muganza commune,<sup>12467</sup> testified that one Thursday in April 1994, two Tutsi girls, Nyirakadori and Yasina, came to seek refuge at Agnes Nyirabashyitsi's house where Mukundirehe also lived. Nyarunani was Yasina's father, and Melchior Nibizi was Nyirakadori's father.<sup>12468</sup>

4693. Witness MATIC testified that about 20 assailants made up of Burundian refugees led by Masima, came from Saga and found the witness, Yasina and Nyirakadori in a sorghum field while they were harvesting sweet potatoes at about 3.00 p.m.<sup>12469</sup> Witness MATIC knew that they were Burundians because they were speaking Kirundi, a Burundian language.<sup>12470</sup> On cross-examination, she stated that they were collecting sweet potato stems from a sorghum farm.<sup>12471</sup> The assailants were armed with clubs and disguised in a way that made it impossible for the witness to recognise them. The assailants seized Yasina and Nyirakadori and took them away. This incident happened in mid-April 1994.<sup>12472</sup> On cross-examination she testified that the abductions took place in May 1994. Ndayambaje was reinstated as the bourgmestre in June 1994.<sup>12473</sup> On being questioned by the Bench following her cross-examination, the witness testified that the abductions took place at nightfall around mid-April 1994.<sup>12474</sup>

Ndayambaje Defence Witness ANGES

4696. Witness ANGES, a Hutu shopkeeper from Muganza commune, testified that in May 1994, she witnessed an attack in Mugombwa. The attack was led by Masima, a primary school teacher from Saga. Burundian assailants participated in that attack.<sup>12479</sup> The witness was at her shop and saw that the assailants abducted persons, among them a girl from Saga called Pelagie and another girl. Later, she learned from some people who had followed the assailants that the abducted persons had been killed at a brick factory between Saga and Mugombwa.<sup>12480</sup>

4697. Witness ANGES testified that at the time of the abduction, Chrysologue was the bourgmestre of Muganza commune, not Ndayambaje. Ndayambaje was sworn in as bourgmestre later, towards the end of June 1994.<sup>12481</sup>

Ndayambaje Defence Witness Constant Julius Goetschalckx a.k.a. Brother Stan

4698. Brother Stan testified that in early May 1994, he heard broadcasts on Radio Muhabura that the RPF was aware that the witness and others had cleaned Mugombwa Church. This news created a wave of panic regarding how the RPF had become aware of what had happened at Mugombwa. It also led to the hunting down of a number of girls living in Mugombwa, who were subsequently killed in the valley below the brick manufacturing industry between the parish and Saga, on 11 May 1994. He knew the date because he fell ill with malaria following this event. On that day, Brother Stan was driving through Mugombwa Parish towards the school, APAME, when he was surrounded by a group of young men carrying spears, chasing a young girl who was trying to escape. The attackers ran past the witness and continued chasing the girl. The witness carried on towards the school.<sup>12482</sup>

4699. Brother Stan testified that he met Ndayambaje in 1988, when he was bourgmestre of Muganza commune.<sup>12483</sup>

Ndayambaje Defence Witness KWEPO

4700. Witness KWEPO, a Hutu banana beer vendor from Muganza commune, testified that in April 1994, two or three days after the outbreak of the war in Muganza, Witness FAU forced a Tutsi girl, Nambaje, who was about 16 years old, into marriage.<sup>12484</sup> The witness saw Nambaje sometimes helping her husband sell banana beer. According to Witness KWEPO, Nambaje remained in Witness FAU's house for about a week and a half.<sup>12485</sup> Witness KWEPO testified that Witness FAU lived with his parents in Mugombwa secteur, Muganza commune, about one kilometre away from the witness' house. In 1994, Witness FAU was between 16 and 17 years old.<sup>12486</sup>

4701. Witness KWEPO testified that Nambaje was killed in early May 1994.<sup>12487</sup> Witness KWEPO saw many attackers, among them Masima, Ngona and Nyirinkwaya. They passed in front of KWEPO's house escorting six or seven abducted girls and forced the girls to cross the river. Among the abducted persons were Adele, Nambaje and Ntanpuhwe's daughter.<sup>12488</sup> Witness KWEPO testified that shortly afterwards he went to Witness FAU's house where Witness FAU confirmed that his wife was among the abducted persons. The witness suggested that Witness FAU contact the authorities, in particular the bourgmestre, Chrysologue Bimenyimana, to prevent the attackers from harming the victims. In the evening of that day, a person called Nsangande told Witness KWEPO that the girls had been killed near a brick factory located at Gasenyi, on the border between Saga and Mugombwa.<sup>12489</sup> Witness KWEPO testified that the abduction of the girls did not take place on the day of Ndayambaje's swearing-in as bourgmestre, contrary to Witness FAU's testimony.<sup>12490</sup>

Ndayambaje Defence Witness SABINE

4702. Witness SABINE, a Hutu farmer from Muganza commune who had convictions for genocide-related killings, had already served his sentence and been released from prison when he gave evidence before the Tribunal.<sup>12491</sup> The witness testified that, along with Ngonza and Nsanzuwera, he participated in attacks on Josiah's children after they fled Kabuye Hill in April 1994. Witness SABINE killed one of Josiah's sons at Ntabizi's house.<sup>12492</sup> The witness along with other attackers took Jacqueline, Lydie and Adele out of Maharariyeri's house.<sup>12493</sup> Jacqueline was about 16 years old, Lydie nearly 19 and Adele was about 23. They were the daughters of Josiah and Doroka.<sup>12494</sup> Déo Gakwandi immediately took Adele away to forcibly marry her. The other girls were killed on the roadside by Ngarukiye, Nyirinkwaya, Kanyota and Sendama.<sup>12495</sup> On cross-examination it was pointed out that in a record of Gacaca proceedings involving Witness SABINE in 2006, the witness had stated that the killings took place in May 1994, rather than April 1994 as he testified at trial. Witness SABINE testified that this was mistakenly recorded.<sup>12496</sup>

4703. Witness SABINE testified that Adele was killed towards the end of April 1994. He learned of her death from Déo Gakwandi who had taken her as his wife by force. On the day she was taken away, she passed close to the witness' house.<sup>12497</sup> On cross-examination, Witness SABINE testified that he had told the Defence that Adele was killed in the first few days of May 1994. On being asked by the Prosecution to clarify when Adele died, he testified that she died towards the end of April or early May 1994. He witnessed her abduction. There were between 10 and 15 girls; some Tutsis, some Hutus whose fathers were said to be giving contributions to the Inkotanyi. Some of the girls' fathers had already been killed.<sup>12498</sup>

4704. Witness SABINE testified that Witness FAU forcibly married a Tutsi girl named Nambaje, daughter of Anaclet. He knew Nambaje prior to the events of April 1994. He could not recall the dates but thought that Witness FAU took her as his wife at the beginning of the killings. Nambaje lived with Witness FAU for less than one week. Witness SABINE saw her every day, and confirmed that she was forcibly married to Witness FAU.<sup>12499</sup> Witness SABINE testified that Nambaje was killed in an attack spearheaded by Ngonza towards mid-April 1994.<sup>12500</sup> On cross-examination he testified that she was killed towards the end of April 1994.<sup>12501</sup> He learned from Witness FAU that Nambaje had been abducted and killed by Ngonza and his band.<sup>12502</sup> It was said that Nambaje was not killed because she was Tutsi but because she was supporting the Inkotanyi. Her father, Anaclet, was supporting the Inkotanyi. Nambaje was killed because she was his daughter.<sup>12503</sup>

4705. When Nambaje was killed, Chrysologue Bimenyimana was the bourgmestre of Muganza commune; Nambaje was not abducted and killed on the day Ndayambaje was installed as bourgmestre. His father told him about the swearing-in of Ndayambaje and the days do not correspond. Witness SABINE fled to Burundi in July 1994, one week after the swearing-in ceremony. There were no more killings going on at that time.<sup>12504</sup>

4706. Witness SABINE did not agree that between April and July 1994 it was primarily Tutsis who were killed; he stated that both Hutus and Tutsis died.<sup>12505</sup> Witness SABINE testified that in 1994, he knew Ndayambaje. Ndayambaje was a student in 1994.<sup>12506</sup> He saw Ndayambaje in July 1994 when they were fleeing Rwanda.<sup>12507</sup>

Ndayambaje

4707. Ndayambaje testified that he was aware of the abduction of three girls by Masima's group; however this event occurred in May 1994, not after his swearing-in ceremony on 22 June 1994. He never met Masima and the other assailants at the Statue of the Virgin Mary in Mugombwa. At the time of the abduction he was bed-ridden, which is when he learned about the incident.<sup>12508</sup>

3.6.44.4 Deliberations

4708. It is not disputed that a group of Tutsi women and girls were abducted from Mugombwa secteur, Muganza commune by some assailants from Saga and were subsequently killed. What is in dispute is when the abduction took place, and whether Ndayambaje was present during the abduction.

3.6.44.4.1 Timing and Reason for the Abductions

4709. The Prosecution alleges that the abduction took place the day after Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony on 22 June 1994. The Ndayambaje Defence asserts that the abduction took place long before Ndayambaje's swearing-in, around mid-May 1994.<sup>12509</sup>

4710. Witness QAR testified that she was a survivor of the abduction in Mugombwa. According to her testimony, the abduction took place on 18 June 1994, in the days following a meeting at the Muganza commune office.<sup>12510</sup> Witness QAR testified that she remembers the date of the abduction as being 18 June 1994 because on that day she was lucky enough to escape with her life.<sup>12511</sup> The Chamber refers to its findings with respect to Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony and finds that it is not evident that the meeting about which Witness QAR testified is Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony. Furthermore, the Chamber observes that Witness QAR may well have been mistaken while placing the purported meeting in mid-June 1994 due to the various meetings she attended at the Muganza commune office before, during and after the war.<sup>12512</sup> Furthermore, the Chamber recalls its previous finding that Witness QAR did not attend Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony, given that she was a Tutsi (). The Chamber previously considered that Witness QAR's testimony as to what occurred at the swearing-in ceremony was hearsay evidence based upon what she subsequently gleaned from others ().

4711. The Chamber nevertheless finds Witness QAR to be credible in all other respects. Witness QAR may have a distorted view of the timing of the events in question given the passage of time, yet she corroborates that the event took place in June 1994. In this regard, she provided a very specific date and the level of detail proffered buttresses her credibility.

4712. Witness QAF testified that the abduction took place early in the morning on the day after Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony, a meeting which he attended.<sup>12513</sup> The Chamber has previously found his testimony regarding this meeting to be credible. This corroborates Witness QAR's testimony that the abduction occurred in June 1994.

4713. The Chamber observes that Witness FAU was a detained witness at the time of his testimony and was awaiting trial in Rwanda for crimes related to the 1994 genocide.<sup>12514</sup> The Chamber will therefore treat his testimony with appropriate caution. Witness FAU testified that the abductions took place in late May or early June 1994, and gave hearsay testimony that this followed a meeting at the Muganza commune office at which Nteziryayo and Ndayambaje had said, "when you clean a house, you do not keep the dirt inside the house, but you take it outside of the house and if anyone is protecting a girl, he or she must hand her over to the assailants; otherwise, he will be killed by the assailants.”<sup>12515</sup> According to Witness FAU, the abduction took place in the evening of the same day.<sup>12516</sup>

4714. Witness FAU also testified that he joined the army approximately one week after Nambaje was killed, but did not complete the training because the RPF arrived.<sup>12517</sup> However, the Chamber also recalls that Witness FAU testified that he took in Nambaje the day after the killings at Kabuye Hill,<sup>12518</sup> and kept Nambaje at the house for one month, perhaps from April until the end of May or early June, when assailants came to take Nambaje away and kill her.<sup>12519</sup>

4715. Notwithstanding the inconsistencies in Witness FAU’s evidence, he was living with Nambaje prior to her abduction and death.<sup>12520</sup> Consequently, the Chamber finds that he would have been in a better position to know as to what date this abduction occurred. Furthermore, even though Witness FAU did not partake in that day’s ceremony,<sup>12521</sup> he was informed by assailants who came to the house to abduct Nambaje that they had attended a meeting that day,<sup>12522</sup> and the meeting’s purpose was to swear in Ndayambaje.<sup>12523</sup> It was the assailants who told Witness FAU that at the meeting they attended Nteziryayo and Ndayambaje had referred to the need to clean a house, and throw the dirt out, and that those protecting Tutsi girls must hand them over to the assailants or be killed.<sup>12524</sup> The Chamber therefore considers Witness FAU’s hearsay testimony to corroborate Witnesses QAR and QAF with regard to the date of the abduction.

4717. Notwithstanding the evidence brought by the Ndayambaje Defence, and the specific date provided by Witness QAR, the Chamber considers that the detailed evidence proffered by Prosecution Witnesses QAF and FAU affirms that the abduction took place after Ndayambaje’s swearing-in ceremony on 22 June 1994. On the basis of Witness FAU’s hearsay evidence that the assailants came to search for the girls because they were told to search for and throw out dirt, the Chamber also accepts that searches were carried out with a view to locating Tutsis.

3.6.44.4.2 Ndayambaje's Alleged Presence During the Abductions

4718. The Chamber will now consider whether Ndayambaje was present during the abduction in Mugombwa, which neither party contests occurred between April and June 1994.

4719. Witness QAR testified that she was among the women and girls who were abducted in Mugombwa. According to her testimony, Ndayambaje came to the Statue of the Virgin Mary during the abduction, where the attackers were waiting for him, and told the attackers to do what they wanted with the women and girls and to take them away.<sup>12530</sup> She is the only witness to have testified to this fact.

4721. As to the evidence of Witness SABINE, the Chamber notes that this witness has convictions for genocide-related killings and his testimony should therefore be treated with appropriate caution. This was the only witness who specified that Ndayambaje was not killed because she was Tutsi but because she was supporting the Inkotanyi, as her father did.<sup>12531</sup> The Chamber considers this a strange statement to make considering Ndayambaje was only 16 years old at the time.

4722. Furthermore, Witness SABINE's testimony with regard to the dates of the death of the girls was internally inconsistent. He changed his story from April 1994, to May 1994, to the end of April 1994, to the first few days of May and then the end of April and early May 1994.<sup>12532</sup> The Chamber finds this witness to be unreliable, especially given that he did not agree that between April and July 1994 it was primarily Tutsis who were killed; but stated that both Hutus and Tutsis died.<sup>12533</sup> The Chamber considers the witness is denying the genocide and therefore cannot be found credible in this regard.

4723. Witness QAR testified that she had known Ndayambaje since they were children.<sup>12534</sup> This was not challenged by the Ndayambaje Defence. The Chamber considers that Witness QAR's eyewitness testimony of the abduction is corroborated by both Prosecution and Defence witnesses with respect to a number of salient features of the attack; the identity of the attackers, the number of girls abducted, that some of the abductees were adolescents, that they were abducted from houses in Mugombwa, that the assailants gathered the women and girls at 4724. Witness QAR testified that a man she knew, Masima from Saga, led the group of assailants.<sup>12536</sup> This is corroborated by a number of eyewitness accounts: Witness QAF who identified Masima by his real name, Jean Baptiste Mukurarinda, testified that he appeared to be the leader of the group;<sup>12537</sup> Witness BOZAN testified that the assailants were led by Jean Baptiste Mukurarinda, also known as Masima;<sup>12538</sup> Witness JAMES testified that the group of assailants was led by a well-known person called Masima from Saga secteur;<sup>12539</sup> Witness MATIC testified that the abductors were led by Masima from Saga,<sup>12540</sup> and Witness KWEPO testified that Masima was among the attackers.<sup>12541</sup>

4725. Witness QAR's account that eight women and girls were abducted<sup>12542</sup> is largely corroborated by Witness JAMES' testimony that there were seven or eight girls,<sup>12543</sup> Witness KWEPO's testimony that there were six or seven girls,<sup>12544</sup> and Witness MUZIK's testimony that he saw five dead bodies at Gasenyi, including the bodies of two girls he knew, who were among those abducted.<sup>12545</sup>

4726. That the group of abductees included adolescent girls, as asserted by Witness QAR<sup>12546</sup> is corroborated by Witness QAF, who testified that he knew three of the abducted girls to be the young daughters of Nyarunani, Melchior and Pascal, none of whom had children;<sup>12547</sup> Witness FAU, who testified that Nambaje was 18 years old;<sup>12548</sup> Witness KWEPO, who testified that Nambaje was about 16 years old;<sup>12549</sup> and Brother Stan, who testified that as he drove through Mugombwa he witnessed a group of young men chasing a young girl.<sup>12550</sup>

4727. The circumstances of the abduction about which Witness QAR testified, namely that the women and girls were taken from their homes,<sup>12551</sup> is corroborated by the eyewitness accounts of Witness QAF, who testified that the girls were flushed out from Jean Mukundirehe's house where they had been seeking refuge,<sup>12552</sup> and Witness FAU's testimony that Nambaje was taken from a house by the attackers.<sup>12553</sup>

4728. Witness QAR testified that the women and girls were gathered at the Statue of the Virgin Mary in Mugombwa where there was a disagreement between the attackers from Saga and some people who were trying to protect them.<sup>12554</sup> In this respect, her account is corroborated by Witness JAMES who testified that he followed the convoy of assailants and abducted women and girls up to the Statue of the Virgin Mary in Mugombwa, where he remained for about five minutes.<sup>12555</sup> According to Witness JAMES, he saw Witness BOZAN at the Statue of the Virgin Mary trying to convince the assailants to release the women and girls.<sup>12556</sup> Witness BOZAN's testimony provides further corroboration of this sequence of events; Witness BOZAN testified that he followed the convoy to the Statue of the Virgin Mary where he asked the assailants to release the girls, or to at least inform their respective families, but his request was rejected. There were other people present at the scene who were arguing with the assailants.<sup>12557</sup>

4729. Witness QAR gave hearsay testimony that the women and girls were taken to Gasenyi, a valley between Mugombwa and Kibayi where there were furnaces,<sup>12558</sup> and where the women and girls were killed.<sup>12559</sup> She testified that she knew they were killed because none of them came back.<sup>12560</sup> Witness MUZIK's eyewitness account supports Witness QAR's hearsay testimony. Witness MUZIK testified that he followed the attackers to Gasenyi, on the border between Kibayi and Muganza communes, where he saw the bodies of five dead girls in pits which were used as ovens for making bricks. The bodies had been hacked into pieces using machetes. Witness MUZIK and some others buried the corpses.<sup>12561</sup> Witness ANGES, Witness KWEPO and Brother Stan gave hearsay testimony that the abducted persons had been killed at a brick factory between Saga and Mugombwa<sup>12562</sup> and Witness BOZAN gave hearsay testimony that the girls had been taken to Gasenyi to be killed.<sup>12563</sup>

4730. Witness FAU testified that in late May or early June 1994, three assailants called Cassien Ngona, Nyambindi and Rutabana came to a house, accompanied by a crowd who remained outside.<sup>12564</sup> They took Nambaje and the young girl she was looking after, and killed them in the home of a Tutsi named Kinyagi, who had also been killed.<sup>12565</sup>

4731. The Chamber considers Witness MUZIK's account of the event to be not credible. The witness was charged with the custody of Yasina and another girl,<sup>12566</sup> the daughter of his cousin's wife, and yet was not able to prevent her death. He was not present during their abduction and therefore his evidence is questionable. The Chamber considers his testimony to be not credible in this regard.

4732. The Chamber finds that while Witness QAR's account of the circumstances of the abduction is corroborated in material respects by both Prosecution and Defence witnesses, she is the sole witness to testify that she was among the abducted women and girls, and that Ndayambaje was present during the abduction.

4733. The Chamber recalls that on cross-examination, the Ndayambaje Defence sought to adduce some inconsistencies between Witness QAR's testimony at trial and her previous statements to the Tribunal's investigators. Witness QAR was referred to her previous statement of 14 October 1997 which states that there was a house-to-house search and that four girls from Karonkano cellule, Mugombwa secteur, and a teacher from Saga were brought out. The teacher was accused of writing to the Inkotanyi. The statement recorded that when Ndayambaje arrived in Mugombwa he said, "[w]ere you not told that if you sweep the dirt towards your house it heaps up and ends up chasing you out of your house, then throw away the dirt".<sup>12567</sup> Witness QAR testified her statement was not recorded correctly. More than four women were detained; four were from Mugombwa and four were from other secteurs.<sup>12568</sup> She further testified that the words that she attributed to Ndayambaje in her testimony at trial, i.e. that the attackers should do what they wanted with the women and girls, and that among those abducted were intellectuals who should be taken away, had the same meaning as those reflected in her previous statement.<sup>12569</sup> According to this statement, Witness QAR did not know what finally happened to the abducted women and girls, but she later learned that they had been taken to a brickyard in Mugombwa.<sup>12570</sup>

4734. On being referred to her previous statement of 20 June 1995, which stated that among the women were some who could write and were in correspondence with the Inkotanyi, and that the women were massacred "on the spot", Witness QAR testified that this was not correct; she did not say that they were killed on the spot but that they were taken to the furnaces at Gasenyi.<sup>12571</sup> The Chamber accepts Witness QAR's explanation for this minor discrepancy. The Chamber does not consider these alleged inconsistencies between her testimony at trial and her previous statements of 14 October 1997 and 20 June 1997 to be sufficiently serious to undermine Witness QAR's credibility; the inconsistencies are minor and do not go to the root of her account.

4735. The Chamber observes that Defence Witnesses JAMES and BOZAN directly contradict Witness QAR's testimony. According to their testimonies, Witness QAR was not among the abductees and Ndayambaje did not speak with the assailants at the Statue of the Virgin Mary during the abduction.<sup>12572</sup>

4736. The Chamber accepts Witness JAMES' evidence insofar as it corroborates Witness QAR's account of the abduction of the Tutsi women and girls and their gathering at the Statue of the Virgin Mary in Mugombwa. The Chamber observes that Witness JAMES testified that Witness QAR gave false testimony regarding the abduction of Tutsi women and girls. According to Witness JAMES, Witness QAR was at a house all day on the day of the abduction and did not travel to the Statue of the Virgin Mary with the assailants.<sup>12573</sup>

4738. According to Witness QAR's testimony, the assailants waited for some time for Ndayambaje to arrive.<sup>12577</sup> Given the short time that Witness JAMES was present at the Statue of the Virgin Mary, his testimony does not preclude Witness QAR's presence at the statue after he left. The Chamber therefore rejects Witness JAMES' testimony that Witness QAR gave false testimony regarding the abduction of Tutsi women and girls since he was not in a position to make this assertion.

4739. With respect to Witness JAMES' testimony that Ndayambaje was not present at the Statue of the Virgin Mary, the Chamber finds that he was at the Statue of the Virgin Mary for less than five minutes before returning to work, 115 metres away from the statue.<sup>12578</sup> Witness JAMES was therefore not in a position to testify that Ndayambaje did not arrive at the statue during the abduction, particularly since Witness QAR testified that Ndayambaje arrived in a vehicle and did not get out when he spoke with Masima.<sup>12579</sup>

4740. The Chamber recalls its previous finding that Witness JAMES' testimony is not credible in respect of his assertion that Witness QAR lied in relation to the massacre at Mugombwa Church (). The Chamber also recalls its previous finding that Witness JAMES' testimony that Witness QAR did not attend Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony was not credible (). Based upon the above considerations, the Chamber therefore finds that Witness JAMES' testimony that Ndayambaje did not come to the Statue of the Virgin Mary does not cast doubt on Witness QAR's eyewitness account.

4742. According to Witness BOZAN's testimony, neither Ndayambaje nor Witness QAR were present at the statue at this time.<sup>12582</sup> Witness BOZAN testified that the conversation between him and the assailants lasted about five minutes, after which time he left to inform the bourgmestre of what was going on.<sup>12583</sup> The Chamber finds that Witness BOZAN was only at the statue for about five minutes, at the same time as Witness JAMES. Like Witness JAMES, he too was not in a position to testify that Witness QAR or Ndayambaje were not present at the statue during the abduction at a later time.

4743. Witness BOZAN testified that he returned to the Statue of the Virgin Mary one hour and 15 to one hour and 25 minutes later.<sup>12584</sup> Upon return, he was informed that the girls had been taken to Gasenyi to be killed.<sup>12585</sup>

4744. The Chamber therefore finds that Witness BOZAN's testimony that neither Witness QAR nor Ndayambaje were present at the Statue of the Virgin Mary during the abduction does not cast doubt on Witness QAR's eyewitness account. Witness BOZAN was an official and should have, as such, been the first port of call for protection for these girls. He failed to take any steps to issue this protection and even though he knew the assailants, he did not arrest them. Furthermore, Witness BOZAN was implicated in the massacres at Mugombwa and was said to have had a machete when he went there. The Chamber therefore considers the testimony of Witness BOZAN is not credible.

4745. In summary, the presence of Witnesses BOZAN and JAMES in the vicinity of the Statue of the Virgin Mary on the day of the abduction, for a short overlapping period of time, does not preclude either Witness QAR's or Ndayambaje's presence at the site. Their evidence, although consistent, is not conclusive.

4746. In light of all of the foregoing, the Chamber finds Witness QAR's account of the abduction of Tutsi women and girls in Mugombwa to be credible. She was a survivor of the abduction and her testimony was compelling with respect to this allegation. The Chamber therefore finds that the Prosecution has proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Ndayambaje came to the Statue of the Virgin Mary during the abduction and that he made it clear that the abductors were free to do what they wanted with the girls. The Chamber also finds it established beyond a reasonable doubt that the abducted women and girls were subsequently killed at a brick factory at Gasenyi.

3.6.45 Evacuation of Tutsi Orphans, Mid-June 1994

3.6.45.1 Introduction

4747. The Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment and the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment both allege that in mid-June 1994, Ntahobali and Nteziryayo attempted to prevent the evacuation from Butare of about 300 orphans and their adult supervisors. They selected approximately 40 individuals whom they believed to be adult Tutsis, and forced them to remain in Rwanda.<sup>12586</sup>

4748. The Prosecution submits that on 5 June 1994, a convoy of orphans was to leave the Groupe Scolaire for the Burundi border. As the children were boarding the vehicles, Ntahobali arrived with Interahamwe and tried to prevent the children from embarking. The Prosecution contends that Ntahobali kicked and dragged the children and struck them with his rifle butt, and the Interahamwe in his company created disorder and pandemonium. At that stage, Colonel Munyengango and Préfet Nsabimana arrived and spoke with Ntahobali and his group, who then allowed the convoy to leave.<sup>12587</sup>

4749. The Prosecution further submits that when the convoy arrived at the Akanyaru border in the evening, Nteziryayo collated the lists of the members of the convoy, read the names and prevented some people from crossing over. The Prosecution argues that Ntahobali and Nteziryayo segregated about 30 people, who were loaded into buses and taken back to Butare, on the basis that they were Tutsis.<sup>12588</sup>

4750. The Prosecution submits that Nteziryayo's ability to intercept an International Red Cross evacuation and prevent individuals from crossing the border is indicative of Nteziryayo's power.<sup>12589</sup>

4751. In support of its submissions, the Prosecution relies on the testimony of Prosecution Witness TQ and Prosecution Expert Witness Alison Des Forges.

4752. The Ntahobali Defence denies that Ntahobali was present at the Groupe Scolaire, submitting alibi evidence placing him in Cyangugu from around 26 or 27 May 1994 to 5 June 1994. The Ntahobali Defence further submits that there was no incident of violence before the convoy set out. It also submits that the incidents described at the Groupe Scolaire during this time were perpetrated by wounded soldiers. The Defence submits that a civilian figure of authority, and not the Interahamwe, sent the adults back from the border.<sup>12590</sup> Furthermore, the Ntahobali Defence denies that Nsabimana was present at the Groupe Scolaire at the outset of the convoy.<sup>12591</sup>

4753. The Nteziryayo Defence does not deny that Nteziryayo was present throughout the evacuation of 5 June 1994.<sup>12592</sup> However, it denies Prosecution Witness TQ's uncorroborated evidence concerning the events that occurred along the route from Groupe Scolaire to the border and at the border itself.<sup>12593</sup>

4754. In support of its submissions, the Ntahobali and Nteziryayo Defence teams rely on the testimonies of Ntahobali Defence Witness WTHSA, Nsabimana Defence Witness Alexis Briquet, Nsabimana and Nteziryayo. In support of his alibi, the Ntahobali Defence relies on Ntahobali, Nyiramasuhuko Defence Witnesses Denise Ntahobali, Clarisse Ntahobali, Céline Nyiraneza, Witness WBUC, Maurice Ntahobali and Ntahobali Defence Witnesses Béatrice Munyenyezi and Witness WDUSA.

3.6.45.2 Preliminary Issues

4755. The Chamber notes that this allegation that Ntahobali and Nteziryayo attempted to prevent the evacuation of about 300 orphans and their adult supervisors from Butare, and subsequently selected approximately 40 individuals whom they believed to be adult Tutsis, forcing them to remain in Rwanda, was pled directly in the respective Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali and Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictments.<sup>12594</sup>

4756. The Ntahobali Defence does not deny that the evacuation of orphans took place on 5 June 1994 from the Groupe Scolaire. It submits, however, that these events, directly implicating Ntahobali, were not clearly set forth in the Indictment and that the evidence led in relation thereto expanded the criminal responsibility alleged.<sup>12595</sup>

4757. The Chamber recalls that the structure of Paragraph 6.33 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment and Paragraph 6.36 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment are identical. Paragraph 6.36 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment alleges that in mid-June 1994, Ntahobali and Nteziryayo attempted to prevent the evacuation of orphans.<sup>12596</sup> Nevertheless, this paragraph fails to specify the actual date of the evacuation and the location where these incidents were purported to have occurred. The Chamber therefore finds this paragraph to be defective.

4758. The Chamber must then determine whether this specific paragraph has been cured of these defects through subsequent Prosecution disclosures.

<sup>12596</sup> Para. 6.36 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment; Para. 6.33 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment.

4759. Recalling the principles of notice previously articulated in this Judgement (), the Chamber observes that the witness summary grid in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief lists one witness, Witness TQ, who was expected to testify that he organised a convoy of children to be evacuated from the Groupe Scolaire to the Burundian border on 5 June 1994. Prior to the evacuation, as the children were being loaded, Ntahobali arrived with a group of militiamen and soldiers, in order to prevent the children from embarking. The children were physically struck by members of this group. Ntahobali's group only abated in their attacks and let the convoy pass through when Nsabimana subsequently spoke to him.<sup>12597</sup>

4760. Furthermore, Witness TQ was expected to testify that as the convoy went on its way, Ntahobali and Nteziryayo both tried to cut off the convoy being led by Nsabimana. Although the convoy made it to the border and managed to negotiate passage for the children without identification checks, Ntahobali and Nteziryayo arrived and imposed identification checks prior to allowing passage. They also refused to let about 30 people cross. These people were selected by Nteziryayo on the basis of their physical appearance.<sup>12598</sup> The Chamber notes that the summary of the intended evidence of Witness TQ provided in the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief provides adequate details as to the exact date and the specific locations.

4761. The Chamber further observes that the prior statement of Witness TQ, dated 28 and 29 July 1998, was disclosed to the Defence on 4 November 1998, 15 November 2000 and again on 4 December 2000. This statement made specific reference to the evacuation of orphans on 5 June 1994, and to the involvement of Ntahobali and Nteziryayo respectively. These disclosures were made well before the start of Witness TQ's testimony on 6 September 2004.<sup>12599</sup>

4762. The Chamber finds that the substance of Witness TQ's previous statement is consistent with the summary of its anticipated testimony contained in the Appendix to the Pre-Trial Brief with respect to the attempts to prevent the evacuation of orphans and their adult supervisors and Ntahobali's and Nteziryayo's involvement therein.

4763. For the foregoing reasons, the Chamber considers that Paragraph 6.36 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment is cured by the disclosure of timely, clear and consistent information in line with previous jurisprudence.<sup>12600</sup> Consequently, Ntahobali was reasonably able to understand the nature of the charges against him and there was no apparent prejudice in the preparation of his defence case.

3.6.45.3 Evidence

Prosecution Witness TQ

4764. Witness TQ, a Hutu, was a detained witness when he gave his previous statement in July 1998, but was subsequently acquitted on charges of genocide when he gave evidence at trial.<sup>12601</sup> He was released on 21 January 2003.<sup>12602</sup> When testifying about refugees that were sheltered at the Group Scolaire, Witness TQ stated that on 21 April 1994,<sup>12603</sup> soldiers and civilians forced more than 1,500 Red Cross orphans, Red Cross employees and refugees outside and took them to the basketball courts.<sup>12604</sup> Around 40 persons were identified as Tutsis, based upon their identity cards or physical features, including the size of their nose, and were separated from the others. They were beaten, intimidated by the soldiers, characterised as RPF accomplices and called Inkotanyi and Inyenzi by the Interahamwe.<sup>12605</sup>

4765. Witness TQ testified that on or around 28 May 1994, he and Alexis Briquet, a representative of the NGO Terre des Hommes went to see Préfet Nsabimana at the Butare préfecture office.<sup>12606</sup> They went there to show the préfet an official document which would allow them to evacuate children gathered at the Groupe Scolaire to Burundi.<sup>12607</sup> While Briquet was discussing matters with Préfet Nsabimana, Witness TQ saw Colonel Nteziryayo with Colonel Simba.<sup>12608</sup> The former told him that Red Cross employees were conniving with the enemy, sending youths to Burundi to join the ranks of the Inkotanyi.<sup>12609</sup>

4766. Witness TQ testified that there were four convoys in total, evacuating orphans and refugees to the Burundian border, two of which left from the Groupe Scolaire; the first on 4 June 1994 and the second on 5 June 1994.<sup>12610</sup>

4767. On 5 June 1994 between 12.00 p.m. and 1.00 p.m., approximately 500 people, including Red Cross orphans, students from the Groupe Scolaire, refugees, orphans from Butare town or surrounding areas and members of the orphanage who belonged to the congregation of brothers, were prepared to travel in the long convoy of vehicles.<sup>12611</sup>

4768. This convoy consisted of three ONATRACOM buses provided by the ESO command and Préfet Nsabimana, and a number of trucks belonging to the Catholic Relief Services and the ICRC.<sup>12612</sup> The number of evacuees on 4 and 5 June 1994 totalled more than 700 people, 80 percent of which were Tutsi orphans.<sup>12613</sup> The witness averred that each supervisor was in charge of groups of five children, and had a list of those under his care.<sup>12614</sup> However, the names on these lists were not the real names of the children and most of the children had no identity cards or documents with them.<sup>12615</sup>

4769. Ntahobali, accompanied by around 20 Interahamwe and civilians, arrived at the Groupe Scolaire just as the children were boarding the first bus.<sup>12616</sup> The militiamen were wearing Interahamwe uniforms, namely the kitenge, while others were dressed in civilian clothes. They were bearing firearms and others were carrying traditional weapons. Ntahobali was sporting a very large beard; he was wearing trousers and was carrying a firearm, but had no uniform on.<sup>12617</sup> Soldiers arrived at the Groupe Scolaire prior to Ntahobali and his group and positioned themselves on the sidelines awaiting instructions from their superiors.<sup>12618</sup>

4770. Ntahobali personally hit some children with his rifle butt, kicked them and dragged them away from the vehicles, preventing them from boarding the buses.<sup>12619</sup> The perpetrators acted in plain sight of everyone and in broad daylight.<sup>12620</sup> The children struck by Ntahobali and his group were less than 14 years of age. Some of them sustained fractures<sup>12621</sup> and it clearly appeared as though it was an operation to prevent the children from fleeing.<sup>12622</sup>

4771. At this point, Colonel Munyengango and Préfet Nsabimana arrived. The officials spoke to Ntahobali and his group, who then stood aside, and the children boarded the vehicles. There was pandemonium, and some of the young girls got injured, were dragged down and had their clothes torn off them so they were naked.<sup>12623</sup>

4772. The witness testified that the convoy subsequently departed for Burundi under the aegis of Préfet Nsabimana and Munyengango.<sup>12624</sup> The families of several military authorities, including those of Major Ntambabazi and Colonel Munyengango travelled in the convoy, thus ensuring their security.<sup>12625</sup>

4773. Préfet Nsabimana, Colonel Munyengango and Nteziryayo were also part of the convoy.<sup>12626</sup> He could not recall if Nteziryayo joined the convoy from the Groupe Scolaire. Ntahobali also accompanied the convoy from the Groupe Scolaire aboard a Combi vehicle.<sup>12627</sup>

4774. Colonel Munyengango and his entourage sat in a pickup truck. There were soldiers in the back cabin of the pickup and there was only one military vehicle of this sort. Colonel

Munyengango's vehicle changed position throughout the duration of the convoy. He would be in the front of the convoy and negotiate for the roadblocks to be opened for the convoy to move on and then would come to the back to ensure that they had not left anybody behind. The witness himself was in a hearse vehicle belonging to the Red Cross, which followed Colonel Munyengango's vehicle, as the Munyengango presented the vehicle as belonging to the Red Cross and would intimate that the vehicle was intended for the evacuation of children.

4775. The convoy was stopped at the Kigembe roadblock in between the road leading to Gikongoro and the Nyakibanda Major Seminary, by members of the civil defence group who wanted the children to get off the trucks.<sup>12628</sup> Nteziryayo came to the roadblock and discussed with those members of the civil defence group in a very ordinary manner as if they were acquainted with one another.<sup>12629</sup> The witness stated that Nteziryayo was the head of the civil defence group.<sup>12630</sup> He indicated that members of the civil defence group were armed and brutal and it was clear that these people had been incited to hatred. On asking people to show their identification papers, members of civil defence would beat the people and call them Inyenzi/Inkotanyi.<sup>12631</sup> The civil defence group then became violent and indicated that the children were to disembark from the vehicles and walk through the roadblock "one after the other".<sup>12632</sup>

4776. At this point, the Combi vehicle in which Ntahobali was travelling caught on fire, left behind a trail of smoke and caught the attention of those at the roadblock, who ran to verify as to what was happening.<sup>12633</sup> Ntahobali and the other passengers got out of the burning vehicle. At that time Ntahobali was carrying a Kalashnikov rifle.<sup>12634</sup> The convoy managed to continue and reached the Akanyaru border without any further incident and without going through any other roadblock.<sup>12635</sup>

4777. The witness also testified that they were stopped at a roadblock at Kumukoni where the Interahamwe almost shot at the soldiers who were escorting Colonel Munyengango. Préfet Nsabimana explained to them that the evacuation was a Government authorised operation and the Interahamwe were appeased and the convoy could pass.

4778. The witness recalled that there was a roadblock at the Groupe Scolaire, set up in front of a place where there were some sisters. There was also one "where Ntahobali was", another near or at Mandarungira's house, one in Kumukoni, others set up at a place called Mukura, one at Kigembe and finally one near the border at Kanyaruga.

Witness TQ himself who executed a roll-call of all the names on the list.<sup>12637</sup> However, the list was taken from the witness by Colonel Nteziryayo, who read out the names, allowing some of the children and refugees to cross the border to Burundi and forbidding others from crossing the border.<sup>12638</sup> The witness opined that there was disorder at this stage. According to the witness, “we were told that we should let the Hutus cross over and hold back the Tutsis.” He responded that the children were from all ethnic backgrounds and that some were so young that their ethnic background was not known.<sup>12639</sup>

4780. The witness then requested Nteziryayo to be indulgent and let the children and their instructors cross the border without any prior conditions.<sup>12640</sup> Both Ntahobali and Nteziryayo segregated the orphans and refugees, which they claimed were Tutsis, based on their physical characteristics. These persons were then “encircled by Interahamwe and loaded into buses.” Among the people set aside was Nathan Bicunda.<sup>12641</sup>

4781. The witness specified that 30 of the 500 evacuees were set aside during the process.<sup>12642</sup> Among them were around eight to ten children.<sup>12643</sup> Although the witness went on to speculate that there were more than 20 out of the 30 people who were over the age of 14.<sup>12644</sup> When asked as to why he only specified that adults were kept back in his previous statement of 28 and 29 July 1998, the witness responded that on that day Ntahobali and Nteziryayo were saying that these were big children and that the distinction was between small children and older children. The witness said, “... it is the term ‘adults’ which comes to mind when you say they are elderly people, but in fact, there were children who were referred to as adults so that they can prevent them from crossing the border. So, in fact, they were children, but the killers referred to them as adults as to prevent them to cross the border.”<sup>12645</sup>

4782. The witness testified that Red Cross staff who came to help the children pass the border went away with those who were authorised to go through. As for the remaining 30 individuals, Préfet Nsabimana and Colonel Munyengango agreed to find a place for them to spend the night and they asked the witness to stay with those people. At that point, the witness told an ICRC employee that he “[could not] guarantee their safety, but [he] agree[d] to stay on with them.” Nteziryayo reprimanded the witness for his comments and asked in what capacity he thought he could guarantee anyone’s safety.<sup>12646</sup>

4783. The witness then got into a bus and accompanied the 30 individuals back to a centre in Karubanda, in Butare. They only arrived there at around 7.30 p.m. to 8.00 p.m. as they had spent a lot of time at Akanyaru. The witness stayed there for about one month.<sup>12647</sup>

4784. The witness testified that there were two further evacuation convoys organised; between 16 and 18 June 2004 and on 2 July 1994 as part of Operation Turquoise.<sup>12648</sup> The first convoy involved the evacuation of 180 children, and was from Karubanda to Akanyaru.<sup>12649</sup> They encountered no problems on this occasion.<sup>12650</sup> The convoy of 2 July 1994 was assisted by French soldiers, and evacuated those 30 persons who had been prevented from crossing the border into Burundi on 5 June 1994.<sup>12651</sup>

4785. The witness identified Nsabimana, Nteziryayo and Ntahobali in court.<sup>12652</sup> He said he knew Ntahobali since childhood because they had attended the same school in Butare, the Butare school complex. The witness claimed to know his likings and his preferences. According to the witness, Ntahobali was an Interahamwe.<sup>12653</sup> He added that during the events, he also saw Ntahobali at a roadblock mounted in front of the Ntahobali family house.<sup>12654</sup> He testified that he saw Ntahobali driving his mother, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, in a Peugeot pickup truck that belonged to a man named Rwamukwaya who was killed during the genocide and who was a neighbour of Nyiramasuhuko. This was around 20 or 21 June 1994.<sup>12655</sup>

Prosecution Expert Witness Alison Des Forges

4786. Alison Des Forges testified that Nsabimana had told her that the convoy left the Groupe Scolaire at about 3.00 p.m. Des Forges deduced that the problem encountered at “Shalom’s barrier” shortly after this departure was fairly brief, under one and a half hours in duration. She further testifies that at some point Nsabimana went to get the help of higher military officers because he was unable to proceed. However the witness stated she may have been confusing the situation, but that Nsabimana was definitely assisted by high ranking military officers.<sup>12656</sup>

Ntahobali Defence Witness WTHSA

4787. Witness WTHSA, a Hutu studying at the University of Butare testified that in April 1994 he noticed the presence of children at the Groupe Scolaire. He stated that there were some displaced children from Kacyiru orphanage and other orphans who were under the responsibility of the brothers who ran the school.<sup>12657</sup> He personally witnessed these children boarding buses and other vehicles and leaving the Groupe Scolaire during the first week of June 1994.<sup>12658</sup> He testified that of the evacuees, there were more young children but there were also adolescents and those who were in charge of the group.<sup>12659</sup>

4788. He was on the premises at the time of the evacuation because those who worked in the hospital knew that the children were going to be evacuated.<sup>12660</sup> He was already outside and waiting when the vehicles arrived.<sup>12661</sup> He stated that he had been informed in the morning, by those who lived at Groupe Scolaire, such as “Phocus” and other students, that there was going to be an evacuation.<sup>12662</sup> He said that he was at the Groupe Scolaire, in front of the building known as Kigoma, when he learned that the evacuation was going to take place.<sup>12663</sup> He further testified that he did not ask those who informed him how they knew that people were going to be evacuated.<sup>12664</sup>

4789. The witness estimated that between 70 and 120 children and adolescents were waiting to be evacuated on that day and that he thought they boarded two buses.<sup>12665</sup> Prior to boarding the buses, the children were in the inner court of the Groupe Scolaire, close to the head office. The children were in a normal state and were ready to leave. They were carrying their bags and waiting for the time to depart.<sup>12666</sup>

4790. The children and those that were guiding them were sitting down. He claimed that the buses came and stopped in front of the “cathedral”, and that those guiding the children then led them towards the buses. He stated that a crowd was following both the children and their guardians to see what was going on. At the time the children were assembled and at the time of the boarding there was no violence or agitation.<sup>12667</sup>

4791. Before the buses arrived, there were sick soldiers at the Groupe Scolaire, but there were also some soldiers who came at the same time as the buses. He stated that when the sick soldiers heard the children were going to be evacuated, they wanted to be displaced first and requested that the children be taken care of after them. He testified that these soldiers did not physically intervene in the departure of the children.<sup>12668</sup>

30 sick soldiers in uniform in the courtyard around the children while they were waiting to be evacuated.<sup>12672</sup>

4794. The buses were ordinary, green, Government buses but he could not identify the other “vehicle”.<sup>12673</sup> He remembered seeing two buses, but could not remember the exact number.<sup>12674</sup> He testified that there was a military vehicle at the front of the convoy, and another vehicle at the end of the convoy.<sup>12675</sup> Although he later stated that he was behind the convoy, and therefore it was difficult to see which vehicles were ahead of the buses.<sup>12676</sup> However, he insists that there was a military vehicle in front, because, even though it was an ordinary vehicle and not a military truck, there were a number of soldiers on board.<sup>12677</sup>

4796. Witness WTHSA testified that he waited because he wanted to see whether his three classmates would get into that convoy. He testified that only two of these three were able to board the buses.<sup>12680</sup> One was Hutu and the other was Tutsi.<sup>12681</sup> He stated that everyone wanted to be evacuated because war was getting closer and closer to the place where they were.<sup>12682</sup> He estimated that the buses left for Burundi between 11.00 a.m. and 1.00 p.m.<sup>12683</sup>

4797. The witness testified that he was upset that he was not evacuated but he was hesitating a bit. When it was suggested that he did not want to be evacuated at all, which is why he did not get on the bus, he replied that the reason he did not get on the bus was because there were no more seats and because he did not have more information about the health of his mother who was at home and unwell. He stated that if he had found a seat on the bus, he would have left. He stated that he went to check on his ill mother once a week. It was put to the witness that he had no wish to be evacuated and, in fact, wanted to stay behind to join in the attack on the children. He replied that he wanted to be evacuated as the war was intensifying and that everybody wanted to leave the country.<sup>12684</sup>

4798. The witness testified that during the time he was present on the premises until the time of the departure of the convoy, he did not notice any armed civilians, or persons who may have been referred to as militia, or Prosecution Witness TQ.<sup>12685</sup> The witness testified that he knew Witness TQ as he taught him French phonetics when the witness was in his first year at Groupe Scolaire, and supervised students in their dormitories there.<sup>12686</sup> The witness was said to have joined the school complex in 1988.<sup>12687</sup> He testified that on the day of the convoy of children, he did not see Ntahobali on the premises. The witness denied having seen Ntahobali anywhere in Butare between 6 April 1994 and 3 July 1994.<sup>12688</sup> The witness denied that he met Ntahobali in Dennis Karema's room at the Groupe Scolaire at this time, attending meetings where the Interahamwe was present.<sup>12689</sup>

4799. Witness WTHSA testified that as a student, he knew Ntahobali, who was in a higher class. Other than that there was no special relationship between them.<sup>12690</sup> He knew Ntahobali's sister, Brigitte, his mother, Nyiramasuhuko, and his father, Maurice Ntahobali.<sup>12691</sup> However, he asserted that neither Pauline Nyiramasuhuko nor Maurice Ntahobali knew him.<sup>12692</sup>

4800. Witness WTHSA testified that other than this evacuation, he did not witness any other evacuations of orphans or children or any other persons from the Groupe Scolaire.<sup>12693</sup>

Nsabimana Defence Witness Alexis Briquet

4801. Alexis Briquet testified that in April 1994, he was in charge of emergency operations for the Terre des Hommes foundation which had activities in Kigali, Rwanda.<sup>12694</sup> He further testified that in order to facilitate his work, he needed to get in touch with the local official in authority and so he was introduced to Préfet Nsabimana by Mr. Costa Pierantonio who was the Honorary Consul of Italy in Kigali.<sup>12695</sup> Briquet testified that when he met Nsabimana at the préfecture office on the two occasions of 28 May 1994 and 18 June 1994, Witness TQ, a Rwandese who was working at the Groupe Scolaire, was also in attendance.<sup>12696</sup> Witness TQ had become Briquet's local agent in Butare and was involved as far as possible in the official steps taken during this period.<sup>12697</sup> A protocol agreement to evacuate orphans was signed on 28 May 1994.<sup>12698</sup>

4802. The witness testified that Préfet Nsabimana supported the project of the evacuation of orphans.<sup>12699</sup> After signing the agreement in Gitarama, Briquet stated that he went back to Bujumbura to meet with his counterparts and thereafter returned to Butare to inform Préfet Nsabimana of it and to commence the evacuation operations.<sup>12700</sup> Briquet stated that the Government did not provide support in the form of soldiers to ensure the safety of the children.<sup>12701</sup>

4803. The witness testified that there were three convoys altogether representing more than 1,000 evacuees. He refuted that there were four major convoys or that there were two convoys on successive days.<sup>12702</sup> The first convoy was organised for the 4 or 5 June 1994, containing hundreds of children from an orphanage that was under the authority of the Belgian Red Cross.<sup>12703</sup> During this first evacuation, 300 to 400 children were evacuated, in three or four vehicles.<sup>12704</sup>

4804. Those loaded onto the vehicles during the first convoy were without priority; everyone who could find a seat could get onboard.<sup>12705</sup> However, the witness admitted that he did not remember what happened and did not remember being present throughout the period when children were put on board the vehicles. A supervisor who was attached to take care of the children or supervise them boarding onto the vehicles would have been in a better position to specify as to what actually happened when the children were boarding.<sup>12706</sup>

4805. The convoy had difficulty starting off at around 5.00 p.m. because the gate was blocked by civilians who refused to open it.<sup>12707</sup> Colonel François Munyengango had to negotiate with about half a dozen men and finally the gate opened and the convoy was able to pass.<sup>12708</sup> When questioned as to why the gates were blocked by the civilians, the witness responded that the civilians simply wanted to prevent the convoy from leaving. These civilians were inside the Groupe Scolaire grounds.<sup>12709</sup> Briquet further testified that Préfet Nsabimana had intervened to authorise the convoy to travel.<sup>12710</sup>

4806. The witness testified that Witness TQ was present during the journey between the Groupe Scolaire and the Akanyaru border. During the journey he was in a vehicle with the Italian Consul and others, including probably Witness TQ, but could not be certain that Witness TQ was in the vehicle.<sup>12711</sup>

4807. The witness testified that upon leaving the Groupe Scolaire, the convoy turned left and then left once again onto the main road which led to the border. He was not able to recall the name of this main road.<sup>12712</sup>

4808. Briquet testified that while the convoy was on its way, they were stopped at a first roadblock, as was expected, which was at the level of the Butare bishopric. They then were stopped for a long time at a second roadblock based on a road that was slightly sloped, with a bend towards the left. The roadblock was on the right-hand side where there were small houses as well as stalls. He did not remember any roadblock manned by soldiers; they were manned mainly by civilians. The witness was stuck in his car, behind the trucks with the children. He went out of his car and approached the roadblock, where he saw Colonel Munyengango agitatedly talking to the people around him. There were people trying to board the truck that was in front of him, and he heard people saying “but it’s full of Tutsis” as a means of deterrent.<sup>12713</sup>

4809. The witness testified that while they were at this roadblock, Colonel Munyengango was negotiating their passage and looked at the witness angrily, especially after the witness told him that if they were not able to pass through the roadblock in five minutes, then the convoy should go back. It was at that moment that Préfet Nsabimana arrived. The witness briefly explained their situation to him and Nsabimana went and spoke to those manning it, and after a few minutes, they were able to pass through.<sup>12714</sup>

4810. Briquet testified that throughout the trip from the Groupe Scolaire to the Burundian border for a distance of about 30 kilometres, they were stopped at all the 22 roadblocks so that it was necessary to negotiate at every stop.<sup>12715</sup> The roadblocks were manned by civilians armed with machetes and grenades. The witness testified that this was the longest and most difficult trip he had made.<sup>12716</sup>

4811. Briquet testified that when they got to the border, at around 11.00 p.m. or even midnight, there were a certain number of soldiers and also civilians present.<sup>12717</sup> It was an extremely lengthy exercise to go through the Rwandan border. The witness claimed that Préfet Nsabimana had gone back to Butare by this point; he did not recall having seen him during this process.<sup>12718</sup> He testified that Witness TQ was busy with the lists that had been prepared, as he was the person who must have created the lists.<sup>12719</sup> There were a number of adults who had infiltrated the convoy and the witness opined that this is what led to the subsequent problems they experienced.<sup>12720</sup> The main problem was that a number of adults were sent back by the Rwandan authorities, because the witness believed that they did not have the requisite documents.<sup>12721</sup> There were some 30 adults in this regard. Among these adults was a young woman who would not hesitate to claim her rights. However, a military officer whom he had seen on several occasions was there and made a very brief speech in a very stern manner in response to her claims. The witness also testified that some of the children and young people were badly injured when they came out of the trucks.<sup>12722</sup>

4812. The witness could not identify Nteziryayo by name, but testified that he knew of the person who became préfet after Nsabimana. The witness confirmed that he saw Nteziryayo at the border. The witness had met Nteziryayo on a number of occasions and therefore recognised Nteziryayo's face.<sup>12723</sup> Nteziryayo was very involved in listing out the names of the children and reading them aloud at the Akanyaru border.<sup>12724</sup> At that time, Nteziryayo was in military uniform as he was acting in his military capacity.<sup>12725</sup>

4813. The 30 adults, who were kept in Rwanda, were taken back to the Karubanda Social School.<sup>12726</sup> The witness confirmed that it was not Préfet Nsabimana who sent these adults back towards Butare.<sup>12727</sup> Briquet stated that the evacuation operation was for unaccompanied minors. Those that were prevented from crossing were not minors and mainly, if not all, women. On the other side of the border they would have been left to their own devices, as the organisations that were expecting these unaccompanied minors could not be expected to also take on 30 adults.<sup>12728</sup>

4814. Briquet testified that the second convoy was on 18 June 1994, during which they evacuated about 200 children, and that Witness TQ participated in the evacuation, interpreting for the children who spoke Kinyarwanda.<sup>12729</sup> Following the second evacuation, some children were left at Karubanda and their numbers increased almost every day, as the centre was a gathering point where children could be housed, fed and treated, if possible. Witness TQ was also there.<sup>12730</sup> The third convoy took place before the end of June 1994 or the first days of July, on either 4 or 5 July 1994.<sup>12731</sup>

Nsabimana

4815. Nsabimana testified that he personally participated in the evacuation of children from Rwanda, organised by Terre des Hommes, after several days of planning and organisation.<sup>12732</sup> He said that there were three evacuations and he was personally involved in two, and was personally evacuated in the third. The date of the first evacuation was 5 June 1994.<sup>12733</sup> The children were living in dormitories on the one side of Groupe Scolaire and the soldiers of the medical team were staying on the other side.<sup>12734</sup> These soldiers were under the command of Colonel Mugemanyi.<sup>12735</sup> Nsabimana testified that Colonel Munyengango came to his office on 5 June 1994 and told him that he would participate in the evacuations. On that same day, Nsabimana also asked Nteziryayo to participate.<sup>12736</sup>

4816. He explained that he requisitioned two buses from ONATRACOM, the national public transport agency in Butare, for the evacuation.<sup>12737</sup> He confirmed that soldiers from Groupe Scolaire who were convalescing from the medical team tried to prevent the evacuation.<sup>12738</sup> They were opposed to the evacuation exercise. As Nsabimana was unarmed and simply an observer, other military officers stepped in to calm the situation down, including Colonel Nteziryayo who Nsabimana had previously informed that he would require his assistance. There were also two officers there, Colonel Munyengango and Colonel Bizumuremyi.<sup>12739</sup> Nsabimana was clear that it was down to the actions of these officers that the convoy was able to depart.<sup>12740</sup> Nsabimana said that the soldiers from the medical team were otherwise “categorically opposed” to the departure and were armed.<sup>12741</sup>

4817. Nsabimana testified that the small children aged between two and three, but who were capable of sitting, boarded the buses in front of the office of the Director of the Groupe Scolaire, which is where the Accused was standing.<sup>12742</sup> The convoy must have easily totalled 500 people, or perhaps slightly more, including the children and those accompanying them. It left the Groupe Scolaire at around 3.00 p.m. or 4.00 p.m., and reached the upper Akanyaru at around 5.00 p.m. or even later.<sup>12743</sup>

4818. Upon leaving the Groupe Scolaire, there was a small roadblock of soldiers on the road that went from the Groupe Scolaire up towards the préfecture offices.<sup>12744</sup> They reached the “procure”, or rather the houses where the white reverend father stayed, and stopped there to organise the convoy. Nsabimana testified that at some point he was in front of the convoy and at other points he was in the middle and behind depending on the circumstances or the situation. For example, if they reached a roadblock he may have gone ahead to discuss with those manning the roadblocks.<sup>12745</sup>

4819. The first roadblock they encountered was at Chez Bihira. This roadblock was manned mostly by gendarmes and they stopped there for a short while to have a routine discussion.<sup>12746</sup> The next roadblock was the EER roadblock, located near the Hotel Ihuliro, manned by civilians.<sup>12747</sup> The convoy stopped at this roadblock for a long time. Nsabimana was initially at the rear of the convoy and once he realised that things were not moving he left the rear and drove up front to where the roadblock was. The initial problem at the roadblock was that students had come from Byumba, who had also been at the Groupe Scolaire, and the people at the roadblock would not let them go through. Colonel Munyengango tried to get the issue sorted, but those at the roadblock refused. Nsabimana resolved the problem by asking Colonel Munyengango to stay with the students while he went with the convoy, to deal with it upon his return. Colonel Bizumuremyi also remained there. The second incident at the roadblock was that those manning the roadblock entered into two of the buses but did not bring anyone out from within.<sup>12748</sup>

4820. Nsabimana testified that at this roadblock he was told that a certain Shalom was in charge. He was told to go to see him at Hotel Ihuliro, where he met with somebody, who he later realised was not actually Ntahobali; he met the actual Ntahobali at a later date.<sup>12749</sup> Before any discussions occurred with this man, the roadblock was opened and they continued on their way.<sup>12750</sup> Nsabimana convened Shalom to his office at an unspecified later date, and confirmed that it was Ntahobali but that he looked different to how he looked in the courtroom.<sup>12751</sup> Nsabimana confirmed that this occasion was the first time he had seen Ntahobali.<sup>12752</sup> Nsabimana testified that he did not see any Combi vehicle that caught fire.<sup>12753</sup>

4821. Nsabimana indicated that under normal circumstances the distance between Butare and upper Akanyaru would be 30 minutes, however on 5 June 1994 it took the convoy one hour or more. Nsabimana testified that the convoy passed through several roadblocks, more or less 20, all manned by civilians. Those manned by more people than others were armed with traditional weapons such as machetes. At smaller roadblocks, the people were armed with sticks and the like. There were roadblocks where the convoy was stopped and where it was necessary to negotiate, yet there were others where they would just pass through, either because the people manning them knew Nsabimana or Colonel Munyengango.<sup>12754</sup> Nsabimana testified that those at the roadblocks would check who was in the buses despite the presence of Nsabimana and Colonel Munyengango and check that it was an official convoy.<sup>12755</sup>

4822. Nsabimana testified that Nteziryayo was part of the convoy and was driving in his own Toyota Land Cruiser, alone and without bodyguards or escorts.<sup>12756</sup>

4823. It was still daylight when they reached the border at around 5.00 p.m., as night fell not long after they arrived. The process at the border took a while. Nsabimana left at around 10.00 p.m. or 11.00 p.m. The children and those accompanying them were able to cross, with the exception of 10 or so people. Nsabimana testified that there was a group of people who had worked with the orphans at the Groupe Scolaire and were cooks. They were given the choice as to whether they should leave with the children or to go back to Butare. They chose the latter option. Nsabimana heard later that the Bicunda family also came back, but not with the cooks, but he did not know why they came back to Butare.<sup>12757</sup>

4824. Nsabimana testified that Nteziryayo did not in any way stop anyone from leaving at the border.<sup>12758</sup> He further testified that he did not see Ntahobali at all during the 5 June 1994 evacuation.<sup>12759</sup> He further gave evidence that no one had requested, be it in written form or orally, that he participate in these evacuation operations. Nsabimana testified that he saw the written agreement dated 28 May 1994 for the first time in this courtroom, when tendered as evidence.<sup>12760</sup>

4825. Nsabimana testified that the second evacuation took place on 17 June 1994, and it was of orphans and unaccompanied children who were housed at the Karubanda Social School since 6 June 1994.<sup>12761</sup> He explained the purpose of the convoy at the roadblocks, and those manning them let them go through. He said that they arrived at the border at around 2.00 p.m. and everyone crossed through the border with no major difficulties.<sup>12762</sup>

Nteziryayo

4826. Nteziryayo testified that he participated in three operations for the evacuation of orphans, on 5 June, 18 June and 3 July 1994.<sup>12763</sup> He stated that he participated at the request of Nsabimana in the evacuation on 5 June 1994, about which he had not received any information until that very day.<sup>12764</sup> Nteziryayo testified that he did not know if there was an evacuation of small children on 4 June 1994 in the evening, as alleged by Witness TQ.<sup>12765</sup> Nteziryayo testified that no member of the Rwandan Interim Government sought to prevent any of the evacuations of the orphans.<sup>12766</sup>

4827. On 5 June 1994, about 400 children, orphans from Kacyiru, Kigali were gathered at the Groupe Scolaire in order for them to be evacuated on buses to the Democratic Republic of Congo via Burundi.<sup>12767</sup> Nteziryayo testified that the orphans were of various ethnic groups.<sup>12768</sup>

4828. Nteziryayo testified that a group of persons, some of them soldiers, others dressed in civilian attire, were opposed to the departure of those orphans; they caused disorder and disturbance and tried to prevent the children from boarding the vehicles.<sup>12769</sup> The soldiers who caused the trouble were mainly disabled or ill soldiers who had run away from the military hospital where Colonel Mugemanyi was the head, but other soldiers may have been involved.<sup>12770</sup>

4829. Nteziryayo testified that the persons who tried to stop the children from getting on board the vehicles on 5 June 1994 were not Interahamwe in the company of Ntahobali.<sup>12771</sup> These persons were soldiers and had no distinctive features or signs that would show that they were members of the Interahamwe organisation.<sup>12772</sup> In addition, he stated that he never heard anyone talk about Ntahobali being present.<sup>12773</sup> However, Nteziryayo admitted that on 5 June 1994 he did not recognise every one of the persons who attempted to prevent the evacuation and that he would not have recognised Ntahobali, if he would have been there, because Nteziryayo did not know him at that time.<sup>12774</sup>

4830. Nteziryayo testified that on 5 June 1994 he had fetched medicine from the hospital and was standing in front of the Groupe Scolaire, when Nsabimana approached Nteziryayo and asked him to assist him with the evacuation and to help him to convince the people to let the operation be carried out.<sup>12775</sup> Nteziryayo agreed to assist because he thought he could facilitate the operation.<sup>12776</sup> Nteziryayo testified that he did not ask Nsabimana about the reason of the evacuation and the fact that Nsabimana personally was involved in this.<sup>12777</sup> He stated that Nsabimana had told him in 1994 that the Government had authorised the evacuation of those children.<sup>12778</sup>

4831. Nteziryayo testified that he became privy to the information as to the evacuation when he was present at the Groupe Scolaire on 5 June 1994, and responded when asked by the préfet to assist; he had not known in advance that there was an evacuation operation of orphans.<sup>12779</sup> He joined Nsabimana and his assistants; some of them kept the troublemakers at bay, others helped the children to get on board the vehicles.<sup>12780</sup> Nteziryayo added that in a calm negotiation they reasoned with the troublemakers that they should not oppose the authority.<sup>12781</sup> He testified that when he helped the préfet to put those children on board the vehicles, he did not witness any person striking the children.<sup>12782</sup>

the Red Cross.<sup>12784</sup> Colonel Munyengango and his escort were already present when Nteziryayo arrived at Groupe Scolaire.<sup>12785</sup> He further testified that the head of the military hospital, Mugemanyi and another doctor, Colonel François Bizumuremyi, were also present.<sup>12786</sup>

4833. Nteziryayo testified that all the children together with their supervisors succeeded to board the vehicle that drove off to the border.<sup>12787</sup> Nteziryayo stated that the vehicle set off at around 3.00 p.m. under the supervision of Préfet Nsabimana, the officer of Terre des Hommes, and Colonel Munyengango, who escorted the convoy with a military escort.<sup>12788</sup>

4834. Nteziryayo averred that after having delivered the medicine he collected from the Groupe Scolaire to a family where his family members were staying, he drove in his personal vehicle, a white Peugeot 405 car, in the direction of the convoy towards Akanyaru, reaching the convoy after the Tumba gendarmerie camp on the way to Bujumbura.<sup>12789</sup> He testified that he never owned a Toyota Land Cruiser vehicle.<sup>12790</sup> Then, he followed the convoy at its tail end.<sup>12791</sup> Nteziryayo testified that the road from Butare town to upper Akanyaru was tarred. He gave evidence that in the course of the journey of the convoy, he did not intervene at any point in time. Nteziryayo further testified that given his position at the end of the convoy, he could not see how people conducted themselves or the negotiations at roadblocks that barred their route.<sup>12792</sup>

4835. He further testified that the convoy encountered difficulties in going across barriers or roadblocks. Nteziryayo stated that the convoy had to stop at at least 15 or more roadblocks.<sup>12793</sup> At every stop Nsabimana and Munyengango explained the reasons for the evacuation and the convoy could pass through the roadblock. He testified that he did not personally intervene at the roadblocks.<sup>12794</sup> He specifically did not intervene during the stop at the Kigembe roadblock.<sup>12795</sup> Contrary to the testimony of Prosecution Witness TQ, he did not speak in familiar terms to members of the population and the civilian defence who refused to open the Kigembe roadblock, where there was a road that led to Gikongoro for the convoy.<sup>12796</sup>

4836. Nteziryayo testified that no Combi vehicle which belonged to Ntahobali followed the convoy to Akanyaru or caught fire at the Kigembe roadblock or at any other spot on the way to Akanyaru, as alleged by Witness TQ.<sup>12797</sup>

4837. In response to the question as to why he accompanied the convoy up until the border, although the préfet had asked him only to assist in putting the children on board on the buses, Nteziryayo responded that he was convinced that his mission, or the reason for which he was invited to be there, was not finished yet.<sup>12798</sup>

4838. He testified that the convoy reached the border at around 6.00 p.m.<sup>12799</sup> At the border near the immigration office, many young delinquents or persons were gathered; the convoy's arrival caused a disorder. The supervisors of the convoy had to deal with this situation before the authorities dealt with the formalities for the departure of the children.<sup>12800</sup> Nteziryayo testified that Préfet Nsabimana was in charge of the whole organisation; that he supervised it and that he talked with the immigration officials, with the officials of Terre des Hommes and the other organisations.<sup>12801</sup>

4839. Nteziryayo affirmed that he did not see anyone being set aside on the grounds of their ethnicity. He further testified that he did not notice the presence of the Interahamwe in the convoy and therefore did not see them directly contravene the instructions of the préfet, which were generally being complied with by all involved. He did recognise that there were some people who were not authorised to leave with the orphans.<sup>12802</sup> He believed that they did not amount to 30 persons.<sup>12803</sup>

4840. Nteziryayo testified that he and others took care that the children were safely ushered out of the vehicles and brought to the location from where they would depart. They lined up the children, and called up their names from a list prepared by the Red Cross, Terre des Hommes officials and those who had been in charge of the orphans at Kacyiru, because most of those children had come from there. The children waited in a line in front of the barrier to be opened for them to pass through. He testified that all the children crossed the border at about 10.00 p.m. and that he returned to Butare town, arriving there after 11.00 p.m.<sup>12804</sup>

4841. A group of about 20 or 30 persons claimed to belong to the convoy and wanted to pass the border to Burundi along with the convoy, but they had to stay in Rwanda.<sup>12805</sup> They did not have the necessary papers or documents that authorised them to go out of the country, and their names were not on the list that had been prepared by the organisers of the evacuation exercise, that is, by the officials of Terre des Hommes and of the Red Cross.<sup>12806</sup> Préfet Nsabimana ordered them to return to Butare and accommodated them in Karubanda.<sup>12807</sup>

4842. He did not read out names on a list, deciding who was allowed to cross the borders and who had to remain in Rwanda. He had a list with him, but he never refused anyone from crossing the border.<sup>12808</sup> He testified that he did not, together with Ntahobali, chose people on the basis of the size of their noses and their heights suspected to be Tutsis, who were then surrounded by Interahamwe and loaded up into buses.<sup>12809</sup> This would not have been possible as Nsabimana, the area commander and the organisation Terre des Hommes were supervising the convoy.<sup>12810</sup> Nteziryayo stated that Nsabimana in his evidence had confirmed that he, himself, sent these persons back to Butare.<sup>12811</sup>

4843. Nteziryayo testified that among the persons who had to return to Butare was Nathan Bicunda, whom Nteziryayo knew while he was a student in the National University of Rwanda. Nteziryayo stated that he did not stop Bicunda from crossing the border, as alleged by Prosecution Witness TQ.

4844. In cross-examination Nteziryayo was shown Prosecution Exhibit 144A and read from it: “MINITRASO file MINITRASO file. That the children be led to south Kivu, Teré de hoecs those in charge of the operation are youngsters of the Red Cross, they are more numerous than the children. It is recruitment by the RPF that is disguised, three buses.” Nteziryayo testified that “hoecs” meant hommes or men and that MINITRASO was Rwandan and referred to a ministry, “SO” stood for Social.<sup>12812</sup> Nteziryayo he did not remember if there was a representative of MINITRASO present on the convoy of 5 June 1994.<sup>12813</sup> He denied the proposition that the above-mentioned text meant that the Government intervened in that evacuation operation.<sup>12814</sup>

4845. Nteziryayo testified that on 18 June 1994 he participated in a second evacuation of children.<sup>12815</sup> It started off from the Karubanda Social School where the children had been assembled.<sup>12816</sup> The final destination was Bukavu in the Democratic Republic of Congo via Burundi, and the evacuation consisted of between 300 and 400 children.<sup>12817</sup>

4846. Nteziryayo testified that on 2 July 1994 the humanitarian organisation notified the sous-préfet in charge of social affairs, who informed him that they had planned an evacuation on 3 July 1994.<sup>12818</sup> Again it started from the building of the Social School in Karubanda, where the children had been assembled and went via Burundi to Bukavu, in the Democratic Republic of Congo.<sup>12819</sup> More than 200 children were evacuated at that time.<sup>12820</sup>

Nyiramasuhuko

4847. Nyiramasuhuko referred to the 31 May 1994 Security Council meeting, chaired by the préfet of Butare préfecture, in her testimony. At this meeting, a report was issued on the progress made up until that date in Butare préfecture. In that context, the evacuation of the orphans in Butare préfecture, among other things, was discussed. The Government representatives invited those present in that meeting to assist with the evacuation of orphans in Butare and elsewhere. The Government was represented by the Ministry of Social Affairs (“MINITRASO”) and the Head of Government.<sup>12821</sup>

4848. Nyiramasuhuko testified that the entry for 29 May 1994 in her diary read “MINITRASO file, children taken to south Kivu, Red Cross, Terre des Hommes, supervisors are youths of whom there are more than children. This is RPF recruitment in disguise, three buses”.<sup>12822</sup> This referred to the programme drawn up by the government with NGOs during the meeting in order to evacuate children,<sup>12823</sup> and the préfet of Butare was supposed to supervise it.<sup>12824</sup> She stated that the evacuation of the children had been discussed for a while in Cabinet meetings, beginning in May 1994.<sup>12825</sup> The Minister of Social Affairs was responsible for those contracts and told the Cabinet when they had been signed.<sup>12826</sup> In her diary, the evacuation was mentioned only in the entry for 29 May 1994.<sup>12827</sup>

4849. Nyiramasuhuko denied that “RPF recruitment in disguise, three buses”, were her words about the evacuation of the children under the supervision of Nsabimana. Rather, she took them down as she heard them from Nsabimana himself, after ensuring that the contract with the NGOs regarding the evacuation of the children had been complied with. Asked whether Nsabimana could say these words when it was him who was ensuring the evacuation of the children, Nyiramasuhuko stated that he was ensuring respect for the contract which had been signed by the Government, but that it was not his initiative.<sup>12828</sup>

4850. Nyiramasuhuko averred that when she was taking down those notes she did not know where the children were, however, she was aware that the contract with the NGOs specified that a group of the children be evacuated to the south, through Butare, and another one to the north to Ngoma through Gisenyi. Nyiramasuhuko speculated that the children were at the Groupe Scolaire prior to the evacuation, but could not confirm this. She knew the contracts had been signed and she added that the préfet actually accompanied them as they went.<sup>12829</sup> However, on the actual day of the evacuation, Nsabimana said “[t]he children went but I took the decision to bring back the bigger ones to Butare so that their cases should be examined.”<sup>12830</sup>

4851. When it was put to Nyiramasuhuko that on 5 June 1994 Nsabimana actually evacuated the children, so he could not at the same time have said words to the effect that this was “disguised recruitment by the RPF”, she retorted that he was analysing the contract with the NGOs, which had specifically entailed “children” and not the older ones who were also involved in the convoy.<sup>12831</sup> He did not confirm that it was “disguised recruitment”, but made the statement on the same day he had made the evacuation and stated that he had decided to bring the youths back to Butare from Akanyaru, to examine their cases further. Nyiramasuhuko agreed with this measure.<sup>12832</sup>

4852. Nyiramasuhuko stated that her explanations regarding the evacuation of the children were not an attempt to attribute to the Government the activities which were carried out by Nsabimana.<sup>12833</sup> Asked if she had a document that showed that the Government had authorised Nsabimana to supervise the evacuation of the children, she stated that he, just like the other préfets or other state officials, was bound to implement the programme of the Government when he accepted to become a préfet. The contract signed by the Government and the NGOs was given to the préfets.<sup>12834</sup>

3.6.45.4 Deliberations

4853. The Prosecution and Defence witnesses are consistent to the effect that an evacuation of orphans took place on or around 5 June 1994 from the Groupe Scolaire to the Burundian border.<sup>12835</sup> Although there was a slight variation in the precise date by Defence Witnesses Briquet and WTHSA, who contended that the date may have been 4 or 5 June 1994 and ‘the first week of June’ respectively, the Chamber notes that the details they provided, for example, in relation to the number of vehicles involved and the presence of Colonel Munyengango specifically, is indicative of the fact that they are talking about the same evacuation.

4854. Witnesses TQ, Briquet, Nsabimana and Nteziryayo agree with regard to the number of evacuees on the 5 June 1994 convoy.<sup>12836</sup> Defence Witness WTHSA, however, provided a lower number of between 70 to 120 children.<sup>12837</sup> Nonetheless, he stated that the evacuation departed from the Groupe Scolaire,<sup>12838</sup> which was in line with the description proffered by the other witnesses.<sup>12839</sup> The relevant witnesses agreed that the subsequent evacuations departed from the Karubanda Social School.<sup>12840</sup> The Chamber considers that Witness WTHSA is testifying about the same evacuation convoy on 5 June 1994 and that the discrepancy with respect to the actual number of persons who boarded the buses for evacuation purposes on that day does not constitute a major issue in the instant case.

4855. The contentious issues are: (1) whether Ntahobali was present when the evacuees boarded the buses at the Groupe Scolaire and whether he along with others perpetrated violence on these evacuees as a means of preventing the convoy from departing; and (2) whether Nteziryayo and Ntahobali both prevented 30 Tutsis among the evacuees from exiting the Rwandan territory once the convoy reached the Akanyaru border.

4856. Witness TQ was the only Prosecution eyewitness to testify about the allegation that Ntahobali was present at the Groupe Scolaire during this time and tried to prevent the children from embarking the buses.<sup>12841</sup> Ntahobali was accompanied by around 20 Interahamwe and civilians bearing firearms and others carrying traditional weapons.<sup>12842</sup> He further testified that he saw Ntahobali personally hit some children with his rifle butt, kick them and drag them away from the vehicles.<sup>12843</sup>

4857. Both Nsabimana and Nteziryayo conceded that at the time of the evacuation on 5 June 1994, neither of them would have been able to recognise Ntahobali, as they did not know him.<sup>12844</sup> As a result, neither of them was in a position to refute or affirm Ntahobali's presence at the time of boarding.

4858. Witness WTHSA testified that he knew Ntahobali from his school days, but that Ntahobali was in a higher class.<sup>12845</sup> He denied that Ntahobali was present at the Groupe Scolaire when the evacuees boarded the buses.<sup>12846</sup> He further testified that he did not see Witness TQ during the time he was present on the premises until the time of the departure of the convoy, even though he knew Witness TQ from his days at the Groupe Scolaire as a student.<sup>12847</sup> In the Chamber's view, the fact that Witness WTHSA saw neither Ntahobali nor Witness TQ does not mean that they were not there. It is quite possible that Witness WTHSA's attention was drawn to other facts, given the significant number of persons present and the prevailing circumstances at the Groupe Scolaire at this particular time. In addition, the Chamber considers Briquet's testimony to be credible as to establishing the presence of Witness TQ on that day.<sup>12848</sup>

4859. In terms of the boarding process, both Nsabimana and Nteziryayo confirmed that the soldiers convalescing at the Groupe Scolaire tried to prevent the evacuation.<sup>12849</sup> Nteziryayo did concede, however, that other soldiers may have been involved and that there were civilians who were also opposed to the departure.<sup>12850</sup> However, he categorically affirmed that they were not the Interahamwe with Ntahobali as they showed no distinctive features or signs that they were members of the Interahamwe.<sup>12851</sup> Witness WTHSA provided an uncorroborated account that the boarding process was without incident.<sup>12852</sup> The Chamber will not give credence to Witness WTHSA's account, for the reasons set out above.

4860. Briquet admitted to not remembering precisely what happened and did not remember being present throughout the period when children were put on board the vehicles.<sup>12853</sup> In this way, he confirmed that a supervisor who was attached to take care of the children or supervise them boarding onto the vehicles would have been in a better position to specify as to what actually happened when the children were boarding.<sup>12854</sup> This supervisor was Prosecution Witness TQ.<sup>12855</sup> Furthermore, the Chamber recalls Briquet's assertions that when they arrived at the border, and the children disembarked from the buses, some of the children and young people were badly injured.<sup>12856</sup> This corroborates the fact that they suffered some means of violence at some point along the evacuation process and that the children were attacked prior to the boarding process.<sup>12857</sup>

4861. Witness WTHSA claimed that he did not witness any violent acts prior to the children boarding the buses at this time and that he was present until the convoy left.<sup>12858</sup> However, the testimony of the other Defence witnesses who were indisputably present, leads the Chamber to believe that the orphans were the subject of acts of violence at the time of boarding.<sup>12859</sup>

4862. All of the witnesses, including Witness WTHSA, were consistent regarding the fact that Colonel Munyengango and Nsabimana were present at the evacuation, and that because of their intervention to abate the violence the convoy could leave the Groupe Scolaire under their aegis.<sup>12860</sup>

4863. Nsabimana and Nteziryayo were the only two whose testimony referred to Nteziryayo's presence at the Groupe Scolaire. Nsabimana explained that Nteziryayo was there to help calm the situation down during the boarding process at the Groupe Scolaire, and that he was informed of the evacuation prior to the date.<sup>12861</sup> Nteziryayo stated that he participated at the request of Nsabimana in the evacuation, and had not heard about it until he was present at the Groupe Scolaire that day.<sup>12862</sup> He was getting medicine from the hospital when Nsabimana approached him and asked him to assist him with the evacuation and to help him to convince the people to let the operation be carried out.<sup>12863</sup> Nteziryayo agreed to assist, because he thought he could facilitate the operation.<sup>12864</sup> There was no further reference to his role at the Groupe Scolaire.

4864. The Prosecution and Defence witnesses are further consistent to the effect that the convoy had to repeatedly stop at roadblocks and negotiate its way through them, before reaching the Akanyaru border.<sup>12865</sup> Prosecution Witness TQ was the only witness to testify that Ntahobali was present during the route of the convoy.<sup>12866</sup> He testified that the only reason why they were able to pass through the roadblock, associated with Ntahobali, was because Ntahobali's Combi vehicle caught on fire.<sup>12867</sup> This caused enough of a distraction as to enable the convoy to pass through with no further issue.<sup>12868</sup> Witness TQ was also the sole witness to testify that Nteziryayo took part in the negotiations at the roadblocks in order that the convoy could pass.<sup>12869</sup> Nteziryayo himself confirmed, however, that he was following the convoy in his own vehicle.<sup>12870</sup> According to Witness TQ, Nteziryayo also accompanied the convoy, but he could not recall as to whether he was part of the convoy as from the Groupe Scolaire.<sup>12871</sup> Nsabimana testified that Nteziryayo was part of the convoy and was driving in his own Land Cruiser; he was alone without bodyguards or escorts.<sup>12872</sup> According to Nteziryayo, he accompanied the convoy up until the border, because he was convinced that his mission, or the reason for which he was invited to be there by Nsabimana, was not finished yet.<sup>12873</sup>

4865. The Chamber considers Witness TQ's evidence to be credible, that Ntahobali followed the convoy in a Combi vehicle that caught on fire and that Nteziryayo took part in obtaining passage for the convoy through the roadblocks.

4866. At the Akanyaru border, all the witnesses agreed that everyone in the convoy managed to cross over the border, except 30 or so people.<sup>12874</sup> The contentious issue is by whom they were prevented and why. According to Witness TQ, these selected people were prevented from crossing by Nteziryayo and Ntahobali together, because they were Tutsis, a characteristic ascertained mainly by assessing their physical features.<sup>12875</sup> Witness TQ said that Nteziryayo took the list of names from him and read out the names, allowing some to cross and forbidding others.<sup>12876</sup>

4867. Briquet was under the impression that those who were sent back by the Rwandan authorities were adults who had infiltrated the convoy without the requisite documents, and for whom the evacuation agreement did not provide.<sup>12877</sup> However, the Chamber notes his recognition of Nteziryayo's presence at the border, reading aloud the list containing the names of the children, and acting in a military capacity.<sup>12878</sup> This corroborates Witness TQ's assertion above.

4868. Equally, Nsabimana claimed that those who were sent back to Butare worked at the Groupe Scolaire with the orphans, as cooks.<sup>12879</sup> They were given the choice as to whether to cross over into Burundi or to return to Butare.<sup>12880</sup> The Chamber notes that Nsabimana did not implicate Nteziryayo at this juncture.<sup>12881</sup>

4869. Nteziryayo claimed that many young delinquents gathered at the immigration office, who caused disorder when the convoy arrived.<sup>12882</sup> He asserted that nobody was prevented from crossing based on ethnicity.<sup>12883</sup> He vigorously asserted that he only learned of the evacuation on the day thereof, when Nsabimana asked him for help with the boarding process at the Groupe Scolaire.<sup>12884</sup> Evidence was adduced that Nteziryayo did in fact know of the evacuations prior to his arrival at the Groupe Scolaire that day. This was clearly demonstrated by his comments to Witness TQ at the Butare préfecture offices, that the Red Cross employees were conniving with the enemy by sending youths to Burundi to join the ranks of the Inkotanyi.<sup>12885</sup> The Chamber considers that Nteziryayo did know of the evacuation prior to 5 June 1994.

4870. The Chamber finds Briquet's evidence to be credible and to largely corroborate that of Witness TQ. Briquet might not have fully comprehended why the 30 adults were not allowed to progress across the border. He was, however, certain that it was Nteziryayo who was very involved in listing out the names of the children and reading them aloud.<sup>12886</sup>

4871. The Chamber recalls that Witness TQ is the only Prosecution witness to testify that Ntahobali was present at all during the whole evacuation process,<sup>12887</sup> and to testify that it was

Nteziryayo and Ntahobali who segregated and prevented the 30 people from crossing the border.<sup>12888</sup>

4872. In the Chamber's view, Prosecution Witness TQ was an eyewitness and was involved in the entire evacuation process, from the organisation to the execution, acting in his capacity as supervisor of the evacuation procedure. Briquet corroborated Witness TQ's role.<sup>12889</sup> Witness TQ knew the children and the supervisors and is therefore a very strong witness in this regard. The Chamber recalls that Witness TQ was vigorously cross-examined by three different defence attorneys. Despite this intense cross-examination, Witness TQ's testimony remained internally consistent. There is no doubt that the person he saw at the Groupe Scolaire leading the group of assailants was Ntahobali, with whom he was already well acquainted from having attended the Groupe Scolaire together as children.<sup>12890</sup> Witness TQ further identified him as the son of Minister Pauline Nyiramasuhuko.<sup>12891</sup>

4873. He also identified Nteziryayo in court and affirmed that he was head of civil defence in Butare.<sup>12892</sup> The Chamber considers that he had no reason to implicate any one of the Accused, as he was acquitted prior to testifying in this case and by virtue of the fact that he was ethnically speaking, a Hutu. The Chamber finds Prosecution Witness TQ to be a salient and credible witness in this regard.

4874. Ntahobali presented an alibi that he was in Cyangugu outside of Butare préfecture during the 5 June 1994 attack at the Groupe Scolaire. The Chamber has previously determined that this alibi is not credible (). Therefore, the evidence presented by Ntahobali in support of this alibi does not raise a doubt as to his presence at the Groupe Scolaire on 5 June 1994.

4875. In light of all the foregoing, having assessed the totality of the evidence, the Chamber finds that the Prosecution has proven beyond reasonable doubt the allegations contained in Paragraphs 6.36 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment and Paragraph 6.33 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment. The Chamber finds that Ntahobali was present at the Groupe Scolaire on 5 June 1994, accompanied by Interahamwe and civilian militiamen, and together they perpetrated violent acts as an attempt to hinder the evacuation of orphans. The Chamber further finds that Ntahobali and Nteziryayo attempted to prevent the evacuation from Butare of about 300 orphans and their adult supervisors and selected about 30 individuals whom they believed to be Tutsi adults and forced them to remain in Rwanda.

préfecture.<sup>12893</sup> Paragraphs 6.53 and 6.59 allege that between April and June 1994, Nteziryayo not only incited, but also aided and abetted the population in massacring the Tutsis in Butare préfecture.<sup>12894</sup> Paragraph 6.34 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment alleges that after the handing over of office on 21 June 1994, the newly appointed préfet, Nteziryayo, continued to incite the population to “finish off” the enemy and its “accomplices”, most notably during the swearing-in ceremony of the Muganza bourgmestre, Élie Ndayambaje.<sup>12895</sup>

4877. The Prosecution submits that Nteziryayo made public statements inciting people to exterminate the Tutsi population as part of the genocidal plan of the Interim Government.<sup>12896</sup> To this end, Nteziryayo attended a meeting in Gikore secteur around mid-June 1994 where Nteziryayo ordered the population to flush out and kill the remaining Tutsi survivors.<sup>12897</sup> The Prosecution relies upon the testimony of Witness FAH.

4878. In addition to its submissions on the defective nature of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment,<sup>12898</sup> and its request to exclude the evidence of Witness FAH,<sup>12899</sup> considered below, the Nteziryayo Defence submits that the only occasion Nteziryayo went to Gikore between April and July 1994, was for a security council meeting on 24 May 1994.<sup>12900</sup> Nteziryayo did not attend a second meeting approximately two or three weeks after the Gikore meeting on 24 May 1994.<sup>12901</sup> The Defence relies upon the testimony of Nteziryayo.

3.6.46.2 Preliminary Issues

Failure to Plead Second Meeting at Gikore Secteur

4879. The Nteziryayo Defence submits that the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment is defective insofar as it failed to plead the Gikore meeting of June 1994. Further, the Defence submits that references in Witness FAH’s previous statements to a meeting which took place in April 1994 did not provide adequate notice that Witness FAH would testify as to a meeting in June 1994.<sup>12902</sup>

4880. Paragraph 5.8 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment alleges that from April to July 1994, incitement to hatred and violence was propagated by various prominent persons, including Nteziryayo, who publicly incited the people to exterminate the Tutsi population and its “accomplices”.<sup>12903</sup> Paragraph 6.31 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment alleges that between April and June 1994, Nteziryayo incited the population to slaughter the Tutsis in

Butare préfecture.<sup>12904</sup> Paragraph 6.34 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment alleges that after the handing over of office on 21 June 1994, newly appointed Préfet Nteziryayo continued to incite the population to “finish off” the enemy and its “accomplices”, most notably during the swearing-in ceremony of the Muganza bourgmestre, Élie Ndayambaje.<sup>12905</sup> The Chamber notes Paragraph 6.34 is not pled in support of any counts against Nteziryayo.

4881. Paragraphs 6.53 and 6.59 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment allege that between April and June 1994, Nteziryayo not only incited but also aided and abetted the population in massacring the Tutsis in Butare préfecture.<sup>12906</sup>

4882. The Chamber notes that Paragraphs 5.8 and 6.31 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment relating to incitement, as well as Paragraphs 6.53 and 6.59 relating to aiding and abetting are very general in nature. Aside from alleging that Nteziryayo publicly incited as well as aided and abetted people to exterminate Tutsis over a four-month period, these paragraphs fail to provide any details of specific incidents of incitement. In particular, no reference is made to any meeting in Gikore secteur. The Chamber therefore considers each of these paragraphs to be defective. Further, as previously established in the Preliminary Issues section of this Judgement (), the Chamber will not make findings regarding paragraphs other than those specifically pled in support of counts. Thus, the Chamber will not make any finding against Nteziryayo with respect to Paragraph 6.34 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment.

4883. The Chamber must then determine whether 5.8 and 6.31 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment relating to incitement, as well as Paragraphs 6.53 and 6.59 relating to aiding and abetting, were cured of their respective defects through subsequent Prosecution disclosures.

4884. Recalling the principles of notice previously articulated in this Judgement (), the Chamber observes that the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief makes no reference to a meeting at Gikore secteur. The Chamber notes the Prosecution relies upon the testimony of Witness FAH with respect to this allegation.<sup>12907</sup> The witness summary grid with respect to Witness FAH shows this witness was intended to testify that Nteziryayo and Muvunyi made a speech inviting people to fight together to stop the enemy; urging those who could not go to the frontline to post themselves at roadblocks and conduct a thorough search of the Tutsis, and kill them because the Tutsis are “a bad race, a race of snakes”. Witness FAH was also supposed to testify that three or four weeks later a meeting was held at the same venue where Nteziryayo, Ruzindaza and Muvunyi told people to look for the Tutsis everywhere and then kill them.<sup>12908</sup> The second meeting is the object of the current allegation.

4885. The Chamber notes that the summary of the intended evidence of Witness FAH provided in the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief was listed as being brought in support of Counts 1 (conspiracy to commit genocide) and 4 (direct and public incitement to commit genocide) against Nteziryayo. Further, the Chamber notes that the summary of the intended evidence of Witness FAH provided in the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief fails to give any details as to the time or location of the alleged incident of incitement.

4886. Witness FAH's statements provide further detail with respect to Nteziryayo's alleged inciting speech. Witness FAH's first statement of 7 April 1999 stated that towards the end of April 1994 the conseiller for Gikore secteur informed the population of a meeting with the bourgmestre and the préfet at the Gikore Centre in Nyarunazi cellule.<sup>12909</sup> Among others, Préfet Nteziryayo, Colonel Muvunyi, the President of the Court of First Instance, Ruzindaza, and the bourgmestre of Nyaruhengeri were in attendance. Witness FAH's statement then refers to a second meeting which took place three to four weeks after the first visit, towards the end of May 1994, where all the foregoing leaders returned to Gikore. On that occasion, Witness FAH recalled that the préfet said that the Hutus were fools because some of them were hiding Tutsis, others were living with Tutsi spouses while others forced Tutsi women to live with them without marriage. He said, "[y]ou have to kill them and destroy those who are hiding the enemy just like you destroy the enemy", and explained that when a snake twirls round a calabash, the calabash must be broken in order to destroy the snake. After the departure of the préfet, systematic searches were organised in houses and all over the surrounding hill. Several Tutsis were killed yet again.<sup>12910</sup>

4887. Witness FAH's second statement of 3 February 2000 also refers to the same two meetings that took place in Gikore secteur, held three to four weeks apart, but does not provide any further detail as to Nteziryayo's role at that meeting.<sup>12911</sup>

4888. The Chamber finds that the substance of Witness FAH's previous statements is consistent with the summary of his expected testimony contained in the Appendix to the Pre-Trial Brief. Although the summary of Witness FAH's expected testimony contained in the Appendix to the Pre-Trial Brief failed to mention either the time or location of the incident in question, the omission of such details was remedied by information contained in Witness FAH's statements which identified two meetings that both took place in Gikore secteur.

4889. With respect to the timing of these meetings, the Chamber recalls that the witness' first statement placed the first meeting in April 1994 and the second meeting, three or four weeks later. Nevertheless, the Chamber notes that the witness' statements claim Préfet Nteziryayo was present at both meetings. In the Chamber's view therefore, the second meeting must have taken place after Nteziryayo took office as préfet. The witness' trial testimony reinforced this conclusion. He testified that the first meeting took place around the end of May or beginning of June 1994,<sup>12912</sup> and a second meeting was called about two or three weeks after the first meeting.<sup>12913</sup> Witness FAH's previous statements were disclosed respectively to the Defence in November and December 2000, over three years prior to Witness FAH's testimony in April 2004.

4890. Having regard to the content of Witness FAH's statements which refer to Nteziryayo as préfet, the Chamber is of the view that the Nteziryayo Defence was on notice that the meeting about which Witness FAH would testify must have occurred in June 1994. As such, the Chamber also considers the discrepancy in dates to be minor and not such as to violate the right of the Accused to adequate notice.<sup>12914</sup> For the foregoing reasons, the Chamber considers that Paragraphs 5.8 and 6.31 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment relating to incitement, as well as Paragraphs 6.53 and 6.59 relating to aiding and abetting were cured by the disclosure of clear, consistent and timely information. The Chamber is of the view that the Nteziryayo Defence was on notice that it would need to defend itself against the allegation that Nteziryayo incited the population by speeches he gave at a meeting in Gikore secteur sometime in June 1994 when he was préfet, in support of Counts 1 and 4 of the Nteziryayo Indictment. The Chamber further considers the Defence did not suffer any prejudice and that the Defence's right to prepare was not violated.

Exclusion of the Evidence of Witness FAH

4891. The Nteziryayo Defence submits that at the time of filing the Nteziryayo Closing Brief its motion requesting the exclusion of portions of evidence of several Prosecution witnesses, including Witness FAH, filed on 23 January 2009,<sup>12915</sup> was pending.<sup>12916</sup> The Chamber observes that on 25 February 2009 the Chamber denied that motion in its entirety. The Chamber considered it was inappropriate to deal with the motion during trial, and chose to decide such issues in its final deliberations.<sup>12917</sup>

4892. Having regard to the Chamber's finding that the Nteziryayo Defence received sufficient notice of the current allegation, the Chamber considers there is no reason to exclude the evidence of Witness FAH. In addition to Witness FAH's evidence being provided in a clear and consistent manner, Witness FAH's previous statements were disclosed respectively to the Defence in November and December 2000, over three years prior to Witness FAH's testimony in April 2004 and well before the commencement of the Nteziryayo Defence case in December 2006. For these reasons the Chamber considers the Defence had sufficient time to prepare Nteziryayo's defence with regard to this allegation. For the foregoing reasons the Chamber considers the Defence did not suffer any prejudice and that the Defence's right to prepare was not violated. Accordingly, the Chamber declines the Defence's request to exclude the evidence of Witness FAH.

3.6.46.3 Evidence

meeting would take place on the same day at Gikore secteur in Nyaruhengeri commune.<sup>12919</sup> Préfet Nteziryayo attended that first meeting.<sup>12920</sup> On that occasion the bourgmestre of his commune introduced Nteziryayo as the “new préfet of Butare préfecture” before he introduced the other guests.<sup>12921</sup> Nteziryayo delivered a speech in which he said that Rwanda had been attacked by the “enemy” who had come to exterminate Hutus and that it was important that Tutsis, in reference to whom Nteziryayo referred to as “accomplices”, be killed before the enemy arrived.<sup>12922</sup>

4894. A second meeting at Gikore secteur, Nyaruhengeri commune, was called about two or three weeks after the first meeting.<sup>12923</sup> The inhabitants were again informed by persons sent by the authorities about that meeting on the day the meeting was held.<sup>12924</sup> They were informed the meeting was to start at 9.00 a.m., but it actually started at 10.30 a.m.<sup>12925</sup> People from Gikore and Bimba secteurs, as well as people from Kibaye, Kigembe and Muganza attended the meeting.<sup>12926</sup>

4895. Witness FAH testified that he came to the venue before the meeting started<sup>12927</sup> and saw the new préfet, Nteziryayo, and other authorities arrive one after the other in their cars.<sup>12928</sup> Nteziryayo wore civilian clothes, a suit and a tie.<sup>12929</sup>

4896. Nteziryayo addressed the population after an introduction by the bourgmestre.<sup>12930</sup> Nteziryayo talked about the circumstances under which the country had been attacked by the enemy. He further talked about the means at their disposal in order to take over the enemy.<sup>12931</sup> Nteziryayo told the population that they “did not comply by our instructions.”<sup>12932</sup> The witness recounted that Nteziryayo further stated:

That some were engaged in looting the belongings of the Tutsi, others were eating their cows or livestock; that young people had taken Tutsi girls as wives. You had forgotten to comply with your duty, carry out your duty. I would like to tell you that you have gone astray because the enemy has already infiltrated our ranks.... How can you take a Tutsi girl for your wife whereas you had killed her relatives ... ? ... those Tutsis you are hiding must all die.... 4897. Nteziryayo also said that when you clean a house, you do not leave the dirt inside it, you take the dirt outside.<sup>12934</sup>

4898. Speeches by Colonel Muvunyi, President of the Court of First Instance Ruzindaza and Bourgmestre Kabeza followed Nteziryayo's speech.<sup>12935</sup> Colonel Muvunyi said that the population had not complied with the authorities' former instructions. He added if the population did not fight the Tutsis, who were accomplices, then the Tutsis would exterminate the population. He told the population to search everywhere for the Tutsis, including those that they were hiding, and to kill them.<sup>12936</sup> Ruzindaza quoted from the book of Jeremiah, Chapter 6, verses 22 to 25, and said that the enemy was coming from the north and that if the population would not kill the Tutsis, they would face serious problems because the enemy was pitiless.<sup>12937</sup> The bourgmestre asked the attendees to implement the instructions delivered in the speeches and then closed the meeting.<sup>12938</sup>

4899. Witness FAH testified that on the day of the meeting he and the members of his group started to kill the Tutsi survivors in compliance with the instructions given.<sup>12939</sup> The witness said he and his "comrade" killed and buried two men from Bugesera.<sup>12940</sup> The witness injured his neighbour's child with a machete and threw the child into a latrine pit.<sup>12941</sup> He subsequently stated that he did not actively participate in killing anyone.<sup>12942</sup> The second wave of killings lasted only a short time because it aimed to identify and to "flush out" the few remaining Tutsi survivors.<sup>12943</sup>

4901. When put to Witness FAH that his first statement of 7 April 1999 stated the population was informed of a first meeting towards the end of April 1994, Witness FAH testified the meeting did not take place at the end of the month of April 1994, in spite of what was recorded in his statement.<sup>12948</sup> He stated he corrected this error in his second statement.<sup>12949</sup> When put to the witness that his second statement of 3 February 2000 also referred to a meeting at which Colonel Muvunyi spoke that took place in late April 1994,<sup>12950</sup> Witness FAH explained that he never made these statements but that the person who recorded the first statement made a mistake and this mistake reoccurred in other documents.<sup>12951</sup>

4902. Witness FAH explained that he wanted to correct these mistaken references to late April 1994 but was told he could do so at a later time. When put to him why he initialled other corrections in that statement, but not the references to late April, he claimed the investigators did not allow him to correct all the mistakes in his statement.<sup>12952</sup> Witness FAH first noticed errors in his statement in October or November 1998 when he made his confession.<sup>12953</sup>

4903. When put to Witness FAH that his confessional statement of 29 May 2003 confessed to participation in killings that occurred in April 1994, the witness stated that the attacks actually took place in June, after the meeting chaired by Préfet Nteziryayo where they were asked to kill Tutsis.<sup>12954</sup> He stated that his confessional statement contained errors for which he was not responsible.<sup>12955</sup>

4904. Witness FAH testified that Nteziryayo was préfet of Butare at the time of both the first and second meeting in Gikore secteur.<sup>12956</sup> Witness FAH knew that Nteziryayo replaced Nsabimana as préfet of Butare but could not recall the date of Nteziryayo's appointment. When confronted with Defence Exhibit 5,<sup>12957</sup> Nteziryayo's official letter of appointment as préfet of Butare of 21 June 1994, Witness FAH maintained that he was not mistaken about the dates of the meetings and that the letter of appointment might be fraudulent.<sup>12958</sup>

4905. Nteziryayo testified that the only occasion he went to Gikore between April and July 1994 was for a meeting on 24 May 1994.<sup>12959</sup> This meeting was one of several which formed part of the authorities' tour of the southern communes, pursuant to a decision taken at a meeting of the Security Council on 20 May 1994. Nteziryayo was not introduced as the new préfet of Butare at the time of the first meeting in Gikore as alleged by FAH because he was not préfet at that time.<sup>12960</sup>

4906. Contrary to the testimony of Witness FAH, he did not attend a second meeting two or three weeks after the meeting held in Gikore on 24 May 1994.<sup>12961</sup> He contested Witness FAH's testimony that he spoke about the means to fight the enemy; that he said that instructions had not been complied with; that he requested the population to kill Tutsis, even those persons who had taken Tutsi wives or girlfriends; and that he compared Tutsis to snakes and referred to them as dirt that needed to be put out.<sup>12962</sup> Nteziryayo stated that since he did not attend the second meeting, he did not know what others said at the alleged second meeting in Gikore.<sup>12963</sup>

3.6.46.4 Deliberations

4907. The issue in question is whether a second meeting took place in Gikore secteur sometime in mid-June 1994 at which Nteziryayo ordered the population to flush out and kill the remaining Tutsi survivors.<sup>12964</sup> Witness FAH testified to two meetings that took place in Gikore secteur, attended by various authorities including Nteziryayo, Nsabimana, Colonel Muvunyi, and President of the Court of First Instance Ruzindaza. The first meeting took place around the end of May or beginning of June 1994,<sup>12965</sup> which the Chamber considers to be consistent with Nteziryayo's evidence of a Security Council meeting in Gikore secteur on 24 May 1994.<sup>12966</sup> Witness FAH testified that a second meeting was called about two or three weeks after the first meeting.<sup>12967</sup> In contrast to Witness FAH's testimony, Nteziryayo testified that the only occasion he went to Gikore between April and July 1994 was for a meeting on 24 May 1994,<sup>12968</sup> and denied attending a second meeting two or three weeks after the 24 May 1994 meeting.<sup>12969</sup>

4908. Witness FAH was the only Prosecution witness to testify regarding the second Gikore secteur meeting.<sup>12970</sup> In its Closing Brief, the Prosecution asserts that Witness FAG also testified to a second Gikore secteur meeting, about two weeks after a first meeting.<sup>12971</sup> The Chamber notes that the portion of the transcript extracted under the sub-heading "Witness FAG" in the Prosecution Closing Brief is in fact the evidence of Witness FAH. Witness FAG only testified to inflammatory speeches made by Nteziryayo at Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony.<sup>12972</sup> Only Witness FAH testified with respect to the meeting in question, and this testimony is uncorroborated.

machete before throwing him into a latrine pit,<sup>12976</sup> in addition to other killings,<sup>12977</sup> Witness FAH subsequently downplayed his role in the genocide before the Tribunal, stating that he did not actively participate in killing anyone.<sup>12978</sup> The Chamber considers that Witness FAH may have had an interest in attributing responsibility for acts he committed during the genocide as being authorised by the authorities and therefore officially sanctioned, in order to potentially reduce his sentence. Having regard for the foregoing, the Chamber considers that Witness FAH's testimony should be viewed with appropriate caution.

4910. The Chamber notes that Witness FAH testified that the attacks he executed in June 1994 arose after the meeting chaired by Préfet Nteziryayo where they were asked to kill Tutsis.<sup>12979</sup> In the circumstances, the Chamber considers that the witness' particular motive to enhance Nteziryayo's role in these killings in order to diminish his own role indicates that he is not credible with respect to matters incriminating Nteziryayo.

4911. While the Chamber appreciates that it is not prohibited from relying upon the testimony of accomplice witnesses (), and that there is no legal requirement that a witness' testimony be corroborated (), the Chamber nevertheless has discretion as to whether to rely on uncorroborated, but otherwise credible, witness testimony.<sup>12980</sup> The Chamber is best placed to evaluate the probative value of evidence.<sup>12981</sup>

4912. Turning to the substance of his testimony, the Chamber notes there were several discrepancies between Witness FAH's prior statements and his oral evidence concerning the timeline of events. Both the witness' prior statements to ICTR Investigators, as well as his confessional statement to the Rwandan authorities, refer to April 1994 as the month when the first meeting and first attacks in which he was involved occurred. At trial Witness FAH explained that the person who recorded the first statement made a mistake and this mistake reoccurred in other documents.<sup>12982</sup> Witness FAH explained that he wanted to correct the mistaken references to late April 1994 in his statements but was told he could do so at a later time. He claimed the investigators did not allow him to correct all the mistakes in his statement.<sup>12983</sup> The witness' confessional statement also contained errors for which Witness FAH claimed not to be responsible.<sup>12984</sup>

4913. The Chamber considers that Witness FAH's confusion as to the timing of this meeting casts doubt on its occurrence. Further, the Chamber does not accept as plausible the witness' explanation that the investigators did not allow him to correct the mistaken references to late

April 1994 in his statements,<sup>12985</sup> but that he nevertheless amended other details in his statements.<sup>12986</sup>

4914. In the present circumstances, the Chamber is of the opinion that Witness FAH's evidence, standing alone, is not sufficiently reliable to ground a finding of fact beyond reasonable doubt that a meeting took place in Gikore secteur sometime in June 1994 during which Nteziryayo incited the population to kill Tutsis. As a result, the Chamber finds that the Prosecution has not established beyond a reasonable doubt that Nteziryayo incited the population to flush out and kill any remaining Tutsi survivors in hiding at a meeting in Gikore secteur in June 1994, in furtherance of a plan to exterminate Tutsis.

3.6.47 Distribution of Condoms, June 1994

3.6.47.1 Introduction

4915. The Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment alleges that during the events at issue, soldiers, militiamen and gendarmes, among others, widely and notoriously committed rapes, sexual assaults and other crimes of a sexual nature throughout Rwanda. These crimes were perpetrated against the Tutsi population, and in particular against Tutsi women and girls.<sup>12987</sup> The Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment further alleges that these assaults were the result of a strategy adopted and elaborated by Pauline Nyiramasuhuko and other political, civil and military authorities in the country, at both the national and local level who conspired to exterminate the Tutsi population.<sup>12988</sup> The Indictment also alleges that Pauline Nyiramasuhuko participated in the planning, preparation or execution of a common scheme, strategy or plan to commit the atrocities set forth. The crimes were committed by her personally, by persons she assisted or by her subordinates, and with her knowledge or consent.<sup>12989</sup>

4916. The Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment also alleges that from late 1990 until July 1994, members of the Government conspired among themselves and with others to work out a plan with the intent to exterminate the civilian Tutsi population. The components of this plan consisted of, inter alia, recourse to hatred and ethnic violence. In executing the plan, they organised, ordered and participated in the massacres perpetrated against the Tutsi population. Nyiramasuhuko elaborated, adhered to and executed this plan.<sup>12990</sup> The Indictment further alleges that from April to July 1994, incitement to hatred and violence was propagated by various prominent persons, including members of the Government and local authorities.

<sup>12990</sup> Para. 5.1 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment (in support of Counts 1-6, 8 and 10-11 against Nyiramasuhuko).

Nyiramasuhuko publicly incited the people to exterminate the Tutsi population and its “accomplices” and to get involved in the massacres in Butare préfecture.<sup>12991</sup>

4917. The Prosecution submits that in early June 1994, Nyiramasuhuko, in the company of at least four men and another woman and in a public place, handed out two boxes of condoms to a woman named Anastasie Mukasakindi, and said: “Distribute these condoms to our young men for them to rape the Tutsi, and after having raped them they should kill them. And moreover, it is these Tutsi women that steal away our husbands. Not a single one of them should survive. Rape them first and use the condom – by using the condoms, and after that kill them. Let no Tutsi woman survive.”<sup>12992</sup> In support of its submissions, the Prosecution relies on the testimony of Prosecution Witness FAE.

4918. The Nyiramasuhuko Defence denies the allegation and asserts that Witness FAE’s testimony is not credible and uncorroborated. It contends that Prosecution Witness FAE lived in hiding in several locations from 23 April 1994, and therefore it was hard to believe that she suddenly left her hiding place and was able to see the distribution of condoms by Nyiramasuhuko.<sup>12993</sup>

4919. The Nyiramasuhuko Defence also denies that Nyiramasuhuko was present at the time of the alleged event. The Nyiramasuhuko Defence notes that the Prosecution alleged that Nyiramasuhuko may have travelled between Murambi and Butare during this time. Instead, the Defence submits alibi evidence placing her in Muramba in Gisenyi préfecture at the time of this alleged incident, and asserts that she could not have travelled to Butare to distribute condoms.<sup>12994</sup> In support of her alibi evidence, Nyiramasuhuko relies on Nyiramasuhuko Defence Witnesses Denise Ntahobali, WZJM, Céline Nyiraneza, WBUC, Maurice Ntahobali, Shalom Ntahobali, WZNA, Nsabimana, WTMP, Edmond Babin and Nyiramasuhuko.

4920. The Defence further submits that if a public personality like Minister Nyiramasuhuko came to their secteur or cellule, everybody would have known. Yet three Defence witnesses testified they did not see Nyiramasuhuko. Furthermore, the Defence questions the believability of the Prosecution argument that Nyiramasuhuko developed a sudden concern in June 1994 to distribute condoms in order to prevent AIDS.<sup>12995</sup>

Thus, the Defence submits that FAE's testimony is not credible.<sup>12996</sup> In support of its submissions, the Nyiramasuhuko Defence relies on the testimony of Nyiramasuhuko Defence Witnesses MNW, WZNA and WNMN and Nyiramasuhuko.

4922. The Ntahobali Defence submits, on behalf of Nyiramasuhuko, that this allegation was not included in the Indictment.<sup>12997</sup>

3.6.47.2 Preliminary Issues

4923. The Chamber notes that as submitted by the Ntahobali Defence, the allegation that Nyiramasuhuko handed out two boxes of condoms in Cyarwa-Sumo secteur, Ngoma commune in early June 1994, and requested that the condoms be distributed among the young Hutu men to rape the Tutsi women and then kill them, is not specifically pled in the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment.<sup>12998</sup> The Chamber therefore finds the Indictment to be defective in this regard.

4924. Recalling the principles of notice previously articulated in this Judgement (), the Chamber will now determine whether the Indictment has been cured of these defects through subsequent Prosecution disclosures.

4925. The Chamber observes that the witness summary grid in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief lists one witness, Witness FAE, who was expected to testify that in Cyarwa-Sumo secteur, she saw Nyiramasuhuko with a gun, accompanied by four men. One of these men handed over a box of condoms to another woman, and instructed her to give them to their young supporters so that they could use them when raping the Tutsi women. The witness summary further states that Nyiramasuhuko told this woman that Tutsi women were to be killed "because they are taking their husbands".<sup>12999</sup>

4926. The Chamber notes that the summary of the intended evidence of Witness FAE provided in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief provides adequate details as to the location where this event purportedly occurred, but does not specify a time.

4927. The Chamber observes that the prior statement of Witness FAE, dated 7 May 1999, was disclosed to the Defence on 15 November 2000, 13 December 2001 and again on 21 December 2001.<sup>13000</sup> This statement made further specific references to the location, and specifically mentioned the time frame as "early June 1994". These disclosures were made well before the start of Witness FAE's testimony on 17 March 2004.

4928. The Chamber finds that the substance of Witness FAE's previous statement is consistent with the summary of her anticipated testimony contained in the Appendix to the Pre-Trial Brief regarding Nyiramasuhuko's presence in Cyarwa-Sumo secteur and her actions and statements in distributing the condoms and inciting others to rape and kill Tutsi women.

4929. For the foregoing reasons, the Chamber considers that the defect in the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment is cured by the disclosure of clear, consistent and timely information.<sup>13001</sup> Consequently, Nyiramasuhuko was reasonably able to understand the nature of the charges against her and there was no prejudice to the preparation of her defence.

3.6.47.3 Evidence

Prosecution Witness FAE

4931. Witness FAE averred that between April and July 1994 she did not stay in her house, but hid in several places, including people's homes, bushes and sorghum plantations.<sup>13007</sup> On 22 April 1994, her husband took and hid their children in the house of a Hutu neighbour.<sup>13008</sup> On 23 April 1994, the witness' husband went to live with his other wife. The same day, the witness also left her home and did not return until early June 1994.<sup>13009</sup> She hid in the house of a Hutu physician during this time, but she did not stay in the same place for too long, as the Tutsis were being chased and were afraid of being caught.<sup>13010</sup>

4932. Shortly after the witness returned to her house in June 1994, she saw Nyiramasuhuko not far from her (the witness') house.<sup>13011</sup> During the afternoon, she heard the noise of a vehicle passing on the road.<sup>13012</sup> At that time, Witness FAE was inside her house and looked discreetly out a window because she was afraid, and did not want to be seen.<sup>13013</sup> She saw a white double-cabin vehicle stopped on the road around 7.5 metres from her house, slightly to the right and opposite the house of a neighbour.<sup>13014</sup>

4933. The car contained five people, including Nyiramasuhuko. She could identify Nyiramasuhuko because the window of the vehicle was wound down.<sup>13015</sup> Doctor Chrysostome Ndindabahizi was driving the car. In the front passenger seat sat Simeon Remera, a medical assistant at the Butare psychiatric centre. In the rear seat, behind the driver, was an Interahamwe named Speratus Sibomana.<sup>13016</sup> Another Interahamwe named Jean-Bosco Hategekimana sat on the other side and Nyiramasuhuko sat in between the two.<sup>13017</sup>

4935. Doctor Ndindabahizi thereafter gave the box to the woman who owned the house and said, “[g]ive this to our young Interahamwe for them to use when they rape the Tutsi, so that they are not contaminated with HIV or AIDS”.<sup>13021</sup> Sibomana, who was sitting next to Nyiramasuhuko in the car, gave Nyiramasuhuko another box and she in turn gave the box to the lady who owned the house.<sup>13022</sup> Nyiramasuhuko said: “Go and distribute these condoms to your young men, so that they use them to rape Tutsi women and to protect themselves from AIDS, and after having raped them they should kill all of them. Let no Tutsi woman survive because they take away our husbands.”<sup>13023</sup> The witness commented that the “young men” referred to were the Interahamwe.<sup>13024</sup>

4936. Witness FAE further testified that Nyiramasuhuko did not get out of the car; she gave the box to Sibomana, who was sitting to her left in the car, and who in turn gave the box, through the window, to the lady.<sup>13025</sup> Witness FAE testified that she could hear what was being said because the vehicle in which Nyiramasuhuko sat was located not far from the window through which she was watching the events unfold.<sup>13026</sup>

4937. Nyiramasuhuko was wearing a military camouflage uniform, with the sleeves of the shirt rolled up.<sup>13027</sup> The witness commented that she could see that Nyiramasuhuko’s sleeves were rolled up when Nyiramasuhuko handed the box to the lady through the window.<sup>13028</sup>

4938. The witness averred that the boxes were about the width of the screen before her as she testified at trial, and that they were well sealed and were cube-shaped.<sup>13029</sup> The measurements of the screen before the witness were 31 by 23 centimetres.<sup>13030</sup>

4939. Witness FAE was confronted with her written statement of 7 May 1999 in which she declared that Nyiramasuhuko was seated in the front seat of the car with a gun between her legs.<sup>13031</sup> The witness explained that during her testimony she limited herself to answering questions asked by the Prosecutor, and was not asked whether Nyiramasuhuko had a gun. She further pointed out that a truck has a cabin in front and the bed of the truck is in the back, in which no one sits. Because it was a double-cabin vehicle, Nyiramasuhuko was sitting in the back seat of the cabin which was still part of the front of the vehicle.<sup>13032</sup>

4940. It was also put to Witness FAE that her prior statement indicated that the three Interahamwe were in the back seat. The witness reaffirmed her earlier testimony that Simeon Remera was seated next to the driver in the front seat.<sup>13033</sup>

4941. When put to Witness FAE that her prior statement did not mention the second box of condoms, Witness FAE stated that her statement was delivered and written in French, a language in which she was not fluent.<sup>13034</sup> She testified that she gave her statement in French using the little French she knew and in the absence of an interpreter.<sup>13035</sup> She averred that she did make certain corrections to the written version of her French statement, but may have overlooked certain other errors that needed to be corrected.<sup>13036</sup>

4942. Witness FAE confirmed that she was a member of the ARG (Association of Rwandan genocide survivors of 1994) which was aided by Ibuka.<sup>13037</sup> She denied that this association had a custom of character destruction, and averred that she was simply telling the court what she saw and heard at the time.<sup>13038</sup> She further denied that members of the ARG denounced people in order to be requited with scholarships for their children. She underscored that she, and no one else, paid for her children's studies.<sup>13039</sup>

Nyiramasuhuko Defence Witness MNW

Witness FAE worked at the university health centre in Butare, had five children, and was never legally married.<sup>13044</sup> A man went to Witness FAE's house about once a week. People said that the man was Witness FAE's husband.<sup>13045</sup> The witness testified that she did not see Witness FAE during the entire month of June 1994, as people had already begun to flee.<sup>13046</sup>

4944. Witness MNW knew Nyiramasuhuko, though only through hearing her speak on the radio and reading information about her.<sup>13047</sup> In 1994, the witness knew Nyiramasuhuko as Minister of Family and Women's Affairs.<sup>13048</sup>

4945. Witness MNW testified that she did not see Nyiramasuhuko in the secteur where she lived in May or June 1994.<sup>13049</sup>

4946. Witness MNW added that, in her capacity as a minister, everyone would have been informed of any potential visit by Nyiramasuhuko to their secteur, especially during a time of war, but this was not the case.<sup>13050</sup> She conceded that it was possible that Nyiramasuhuko could have made a private or covert visit, but believed that even if it was a private visit, the residents that saw her would have talked about it.<sup>13051</sup>

4947. Witness MNW stated that no one in her secteur told her that they heard Nyiramasuhuko say that Tutsi women had to be killed after having been raped.<sup>13052</sup> Witness MNW did not agree that Nyiramasuhuko had visited the Cyarwa-Sumo secteur in June 1994, distributed condoms and said "Tutsi females should be raped and killed".<sup>13053</sup> She had a "drinking joint" in her house and claimed that if Nyiramasuhuko had said either of these things, she would have known and heard of such a pronouncement from the people who came to that bar. Her patrons would have been happy with the distribution of condoms.<sup>13054</sup> Witness MNW testified that the bar she operated was not functional from 20 April 1994 until the killing stopped in early May 1994, and the bar closed again from the first days of June 1994 for the rest of the month due to a lack of supplies.<sup>13055</sup>

4948. Witness MNW confirmed that she lived at a crossroads and could see all the vehicles passing on the road. Witness MNW denied that Nyiramasuhuko could have visited the house next to Witness FAE's in early June 1994 without her knowledge. Her husband's boss lived within 100 metres of Witness FAE's house. She visited her husband's boss at least once a week, and he would have told her of any visit in this regard.<sup>13056</sup> However, she agreed that there were over 1,000 people in her secteur, and it was be impossible to hear of every event or activity in her secteur.<sup>13057</sup>

4949. Witness MNW testified that as a mother, Nyiramasuhuko could not possibly undertake actions such as those alleged. She also testified that Nyiramasuhuko could not have said that Tutsi women had to be killed after having been raped, and opined that perhaps it had been in another secteur.<sup>13058</sup> She further averred that the allegation was shameful as Nyiramasuhuko was a married Rwandan woman with children and was also a Minister of a high post. The witness had heard people talk about condoms, and had seen pictures of condoms, but did not see any.<sup>13059</sup> She stated that people in Rwanda would not use condoms unless they were sick, so she did not know to whom the condoms would have been distributed.<sup>13060</sup> She did not believe a minister would have risked distributing them because the minister would have been described as an “uneducated person.”<sup>13061</sup>

Nyiramasuhuko Defence Witness WZNA

4950. Witness WZNA, a Hutu, testified that he knew Nyiramasuhuko and that she had been Minister of Women’s Affairs since 1992.<sup>13062</sup> He got to know Nyiramasuhuko and her husband, Maurice Ntahobali, through his brother and a neighbour who were friends with the Ntahobali family.<sup>13063</sup> He saw Nyiramasuhuko once in early July 1994 when he was on his way back from the ESO. He said he saw her in front of the building her family owned in Butare.<sup>13064</sup>

4951. Witness WZNA testified that he had known Witness FAE for more than 10 years.<sup>13065</sup> Witness WZNA’s wife, his friend Speratus Sibomana and Witness FAE worked at the same place.<sup>13066</sup>

4952. Witness WZNA testified that Witness FAE was a Tutsi and her partner was a Hutu.<sup>13067</sup> Witness FAE had six children.<sup>13068</sup> He described Witness FAE as not very tall, about 1.6 or 1.65 metres, dark in complexion and around 30 to 36 years old.<sup>13069</sup> He told the court that Witness FAE had been living in Agateme when he arrived there in 1980 and was still living there between April and July 1994.<sup>13070</sup>

4953. Witness WZNA visited Witness FAE’s house between the months of April and July 1994. He went inside Witness FAE’s house in April and May 1994 on more than one occasion;

he confirmed that both Witness FAE and her children were inside the house on these occasions. The witness further testified that in April and May 1994 he passed in front of Witness FAE's house without entering, on his way to visit his brother. During these times he would see Witness FAE and her children as he walked by and at other times they were inside the house and he could not see them. The witness averred that in June 1994 he also saw Witness FAE and her children at their house.<sup>13071</sup>

4954. Witness WZNA testified that from the sitting room of Witness FAE's house, one could see what was happening outside only when the door was open, or if standing at the one window in the room, which overlooked the road. Only the front part of Witness FAE's neighbour's house could be seen from that window, but not the front door. He confirmed that from the window in Witness FAE's living room, it would be impossible to see if people were entering the neighbour's house.<sup>13072</sup>

4955. Witness WZNA gave evidence that his friend Speratus Sibomana, who was also the godfather of his son, continued to work between April and July 1994.<sup>13073</sup> He confirmed that they saw each other in early June 1994.<sup>13074</sup> He averred that Speratus Sibomana never talked to him about delivering condoms in June 1994 to Witness FAE's neighbour's house with Nyiramasuhuko.<sup>13075</sup> He stated that Sibomana would have told him of this occurrence if it had occurred, as it would have been an unusual event for Sibomana to be in the company of a minister.<sup>13076</sup>

4956. Witness WZNA testified that he did not know if there were people who supplied or delivered condoms to individuals in Butare préfecture. Aside from getting them from a hospital or pharmacy, he did not know of any other means through which condoms were distributed.<sup>13077</sup>

4957. Witness WZNA testified that he never heard of Nyiramasuhuko ordering people to rape others. He further stated that she would not have had time to complete such tasks due to the ministerial position she held. During the period between April and June 1994 he did not hear the name of Nyiramasuhuko mentioned and, except on the one occasion when he saw her in front of her building in early July 1994, he did not see her again.<sup>13078</sup>

Nyiramasuhuko Defence Witness WNMN

4958. Witness WNMN, a Hutu, identified Witness FAE as his sister's colleague and neighbour.<sup>13079</sup> In 1994, Witness WNMN had known FAE for over five years. She had been friends with his sister a long time, and he had seen her for a long time. Witness FAE's house and that of Witness WNMN's sister were about 300 or 400 metres apart; they spent almost all of their evenings together, mostly at the witness' sister's home, where they would share a drink and compare notes.<sup>13080</sup>

4959. Witness WNMN described Witness FAE as very tall, around 170 centimetres. She had a long face and she wore spectacles. She straightened her hair and was of average build. She was about 40 years old, like the witness' sister, and a Tutsi. She had a partner who visited her from time to time who owned a drycleaning office. The couple had four children together. There was a fifth child as well, who had a different father.<sup>13081</sup> The witness saw two of Witness FAE's children once between April and the end of June 1994, when they were playing with the neighbour's children in the courtyard.<sup>13082</sup>

4960. Witness WNMN further testified that he saw Witness FAE twice in May 1994.<sup>13083</sup> He met Witness FAE once more at his sister's home, during his four-day stay there towards the end of June 1994.<sup>13084</sup>

4961. Witness WNMN testified that he had known Nyiramasuhuko for a long time, because she worked with his father.<sup>13085</sup> Nyiramasuhuko and the witness were not personal friends, and he never went to any of the houses in which she lived.<sup>13086</sup> Witness WNMN did not see Nyiramasuhuko between the day President Habyarimana died and the day he departed from Butare on 4 July 1994.<sup>13087</sup> Asked whether he was in a position to report as to what Nyiramasuhuko did or said anywhere in Butare préfecture from the beginning of April to 4 July 1994, the witness responded that to do so would have been an invention.<sup>13088</sup>

4962. Witness WNMN testified that he was a native of Mpare secteur in Butare préfecture.<sup>13089</sup> He was teaching in early 1994, but in April 1994 he was on Easter holidays. He spent this time at his parents' home at Mpare secteur.<sup>13090</sup> Schools broke for Easter between 25 and 27 March 1994, and normally the holidays lasted two weeks.<sup>13091</sup>

4963. Witness WNMN stated that while teaching, he lived at his sister's home in Cyarwa secteur, as it was closer to the school where he was teaching. The witness stated that in 1994 the academic year did not follow the normal timetable due to the war.<sup>13092</sup> He testified that after the Easter holidays, classes resumed during the first two weeks of May 1994 and he taught for about two weeks and about three or five days.<sup>13093</sup> During this time, the witness went to his sister's house each day as the road to his school passed in front of her house.<sup>13094</sup>

He would go from his parents' house in Mpare secteur.<sup>13095</sup> After this period of two weeks and three days, he saw refugees coming in from other communes, and the school was forced to shut down because there were too many refugees. After the classes stopped, he went home.<sup>13096</sup>

4964. Nyiramasuhuko testified that Doctor Ndindabahizi was the chairman of the PSD Party in Butare. However, she did not know if he still held this position in June 1994. Nyiramasuhuko denied that during the war she sat in a vehicle with Doctor Ndindabahizi and distributed condoms with him. She added that she never moved around in a vehicle dressed in a military uniform with a firearm between her legs.<sup>13097</sup> Nyiramasuhuko testified that she knew Witness FAE. She further stated that she worked with Witness FAE in 1977, but never spoke to her.<sup>13098</sup> Nyiramasuhuko never saw Witness FAE from 1978 until the end of 1994.<sup>13099</sup>

3.6.47.4 Deliberations

4965. The issues at hand are whether Nyiramasuhuko was present at Cyarwa-Sumo secteur in the beginning of June 1994, and whether she in fact came to distribute condoms intended for distribution to the Interahamwe.

4966. Witness FAE is the only Prosecution eyewitness to testify as to the allegation that Nyiramasuhuko came to Cyarwa-Sumo secteur, Ngoma commune, in the beginning of June 1994 and distributed condoms for the Interahamwe, to be used in the raping and killing of Tutsi women in that secteur.<sup>13100</sup> She provided extensive testimony on Nyiramasuhuko's arrival in Cyarwa-Sumo secteur.<sup>13101</sup> She knew Nyiramasuhuko from when she worked at the University, when she went to MRND meetings with her husband, and when Nyiramasuhuko took her mother to hospital to be treated.<sup>13102</sup> She described her vehicle as a white double-cabin vehicle, and delineated and identified the passengers in the vehicle and the order in which they were sitting.<sup>13103</sup> Witness FAE described that Nyiramasuhuko wore a camouflage military uniform with the sleeves rolled up.<sup>13104</sup> Furthermore, the witness provided a coherent analysis of the events that occurred. She avers that only the driver, Doctor Ndindabahizi and Remera, who was sitting in the front next to the driver, alighted from the vehicle, while the three remaining passengers stayed within the vehicle.<sup>13105</sup> The witness also proffered that the boxes handed over were khaki-coloured, with a drawing of a condom upon them, and the word

“Prudence” marked on its surface.<sup>13106</sup> She was able to describe the dimensions of the boxes as well, comparing them to the screen before her during her testimony at trial.<sup>13107</sup>

4967. The witness also provided detailed excerpts of what was said by the relevant actors at this point. She stated that Ndindabahizi gave the first box to her female neighbour and said, “[g]ive this to our young Interahamwe for them to use when they rape the Tutsi, so that they are not contaminated with HIV or AIDS.”<sup>13108</sup> The Chamber notes that Witness FAE provided inconsistent testimony as to who gave the second box of condoms to the woman. Initially she said that Sibomana, who was sitting next to Nyiramasuhuko in the back seat of the car, handed Nyiramasuhuko a box which she gave to the woman.<sup>13109</sup> Nyiramasuhuko then said: “Go and distribute these condoms to your young men, so that they use them to rape Tutsi women and to protect themselves from AIDS, and after having raped them they should kill all of them. Let no Tutsi woman survive because they take away our husbands.”<sup>13110</sup> Witness FAE stated that she could hear these words clearly because the vehicle in which Nyiramasuhuko sat was located close to the window through which she was watching the events unfold.<sup>13111</sup> The witness also testified that Nyiramasuhuko gave the box to Sibomana, who in turn gave the box through the window to the woman.<sup>13112</sup> Witness FAE then reiterated that Nyiramasuhuko handed the box to the lady, explaining that she could see that the sleeves of Nyiramasuhuko’s shirt were rolled up when she handed the box through the window.<sup>13113</sup>

4968. The Chamber notes inconsistencies between Witness FAE’s prior statement and her testimony at trial. The prior statement declared that Nyiramasuhuko was seated in the front of the car with a gun between her legs.<sup>13114</sup> However, she did not describe the presence of a gun at any point in her testimony. The witness responded that she merely answered questions posed by the Prosecution and did not improvise or pre-empt with information that was not specifically requested.<sup>13115</sup> Witness FAE’s statement and testimony were also inconsistent as to the order of seating in the vehicle among the passengers. In her prior statement, Witness FAE stated that Nyiramasuhuko was seated in the front of the vehicle.<sup>13116</sup> However, in her testimony, she said Nyiramasuhuko was seated in the back.<sup>13117</sup> She justified this discrepancy by offering an explanation as to the dynamics of a double-cabin vehicle of this type. She claimed that the front part of the vehicle encompasses a cabin and the back is the bed of the truck, in which no one sits. Nyiramasuhuko was sitting in the back seat of the front cabin of the vehicle.<sup>13118</sup>

4970. Witness WZNA provided a detailed description of Witness FAE's sitting room window, overlooking the road, and what could be viewed from that standpoint. Witness WZNA stated that the front side of the neighbouring house could be seen but that the front door was not visible.<sup>13121</sup> Although this does not provide corroboration to Witness FAE's testimony that she was at the window when she viewed the events in front of her neighbour's house, it does confirm that Witness FAE would have been able to see both the car and the passengers seated within.

4971. Witnesses MNW, WZNA and WNMN all denied that Nyiramasuhuko was present during this time in Cyarwa-Sumo secteur.<sup>13122</sup> Witness MNW lived at the crossroads and so would have seen any vehicle that would have passed during that time.<sup>13123</sup> However, Witness MNW's theory as to why Nyiramasuhuko did not visit the secteur in June 1994 is based on the fact that she did not hear about it from others or her husband's boss.<sup>13124</sup> She had a "drinking joint" in her house and claimed that if Nyiramasuhuko had come or said these things, she would have heard about it from her patrons.<sup>13125</sup> However, Witness MNW conceded that the bar she operated was closed from the first few days of June 1994 for the rest of the month due to lack of supplies.<sup>13126</sup>

4972. The Chamber therefore considers that the testimony of Witness MNW in this regard is of limited value. Not only is the witness unreliable in terms of Nyiramasuhuko's whereabouts during that period, but she did not demonstrate first-hand knowledge of the situation.

4973. Witness WZNA stated that his friend Sibomana, who according to Witness FAE was in the vehicle with Nyiramasuhuko on that day, would have told him about delivering condoms in the presence of Nyiramasuhuko. This would have been an unusual turn of events, considering that he was in the company of a minister.<sup>13127</sup> Witness WZNA also claimed to have seen Witness FAE and her children in their house in June 1994.<sup>13128</sup> The witness based his conclusion that Nyiramasuhuko was not present at that time and did not distribute condoms, on the fact that Sibomana did not inform him of its occurrence. His evidence in this regard is neither compelling nor conclusive.

4974. Witness WNMN was a native of Mpare secteur, but lived with his sister in Cyarwa-Sumo secteur while he was teaching.<sup>13129</sup> In 1994, the academic year did not follow the normal timetable due to the war.<sup>13130</sup> He testified that after the Easter holidays, classes resumed during the first two weeks of the month of May 1994, and he taught for about two weeks and three or five days.<sup>13131</sup> During this time, the witness went to his sister's house each day as the road to his school passed in front of her house.<sup>13132</sup> He would go from his parents' house in Mpare secteur.<sup>13133</sup> The witness averred that after this period, he saw refugees coming in from other communes and the school was forced to shut down because there were too many refugees. After the classes stopped he went home to his parents' house.<sup>13134</sup> He also stated that he met Witness FAE at his sister's home towards the end of June 1994, when he spent four days there.<sup>13135</sup> The Chamber notes that Witness WNMN was not present in Cyarwa-Sumo secteur during the time of this incident, as he claimed to have been at his parents' house.<sup>13136</sup> He may have visited Cyarwa-Sumo secteur, but these visits may have been sporadic. Therefore Witness WNMN would not have been in a position to provide eyewitness testimony or direct knowledge of the whereabouts of Nyiramasuhuko.

4975. Each of the Defence witnesses provided their own hypotheses as to why Nyiramasuhuko could not have possibly distributed condoms and ordered rapes. Witness MNW initially testified that she had not heard any news of condom distribution in her secteur, which she claimed she was in a prime position to hear because of the bar in her house.<sup>13137</sup> Under cross-examination, it arose that Witness MNW had heard people talk about condoms and had even seen pictures of condoms.<sup>13138</sup> However, she did not elaborate as to whether the condoms she had heard of were linked back to Nyiramasuhuko. On the contrary, she claimed that this allegation against Nyiramasuhuko was untrue because as a mother, a married Rwandan woman, and a Minister of a high post, Nyiramasuhuko would not risk distributing condoms for fear of being labelled an "uneducated person".<sup>13139</sup>

4976. Witness WZNA stated that, due to her ministerial position, Nyiramasuhuko would not have had the time to complete such tasks.<sup>13140</sup> However, Witness WNMN recognised that he was not in a position to report as to Nyiramasuhuko's actions or words from April to 4 July 1994.<sup>13141</sup>

4977. Defence Witnesses MNW, WZNA and WNMN testified as to when they saw Witness FAE between April and June 1994. Witness MNW stated that she did not see Witness FAE in June 1994.<sup>13142</sup> Witness WZNA testified that between April and July 1994 he visited Witness

FAE's house on multiple occasions and confirmed that both Witness FAE and her children were inside the house on these occasions.<sup>13143</sup> Witness WNMN stated that he saw Witness FAE twice in May 1994 and again towards the end of June 1994, at his sister's home.<sup>13144</sup> The Defence witnesses are not consistent as to when they saw Witness FAE. However, the Chamber notes that they may have seen her at different times and on different occasions. Witness FAE testified that she was only away from her house from 23 April 1994 to early June 1994.<sup>13145</sup> Nonetheless, the Chamber finds it unbelievable that during that time, Witness FAE would be openly at home with her children or that she would be visiting Witness WNMN's sister, who was a Hutu. Witness FAE testified that between April and July 1994, Tutsis were being pursued and she was hiding in various locations.<sup>13146</sup> The Chamber therefore finds Witnesses WZNA and WNMN not credible on this point.

4978. Nyiramasuhuko admitted she knew Witness FAE, but testified that the present allegation was implausible.<sup>13147</sup> She would not have sat in a vehicle along with Doctor Ndindabahizi, the leader of the PSD Party in Butare, and would not have gone with him to distribute condoms.<sup>13148</sup>

4979. The Chamber notes that Defence Witnesses MNW, WZNA and WNMN all provided hearsay accounts as to why the allegation is implausible, without any convincing and detailed analyses. Indeed, among the Defence witnesses there are inconsistencies as to when they saw Witness FAE. Witness MNW testified that she did not see Witness FAE in June 1994, whereas Witnesses WZNA and WNMN both testified as to seeing Witness FAE in June 1994.<sup>13149</sup> The Chamber considers it impossible to rely on these witnesses to establish that Witness FAE was not in the area in June 1994 or that Nyiramasuhuko did not visit the area at that time.

4980. The Nyiramasuhuko Defence relied on Witness WNMN in submitting that Witness FAE was a "militant" member of the Association of Genocide Survivors, an association run by Ibuka and known for fabricating testimony against accused at the ICTR.<sup>13150</sup>

4981. Prosecution Witness FAE was asked during cross-examination whether the survivors association that she belonged to had a custom of character destruction. She responded: "We are telling you what we saw and we are telling you about things that we heard with our own ears."<sup>13151</sup> When asked whether they denounced people in order to be requited with scholarships for their children, she responded that she, and no one else, paid for her children's studies.<sup>13152</sup>

4982. Taking into account the foregoing, the Chamber finds that Witness WNMN's assertions about Witness FAE were not sufficiently credible or convincing to undermine the veracity of Witness FAE's testimony under oath.

4983. The Chamber recalls that Prosecution Witness FAE is the only Prosecution witness to implicate Nyiramasuhuko in the events at Cyarwa-Sumo secteur. The Chamber recalls that it may rule on the basis of a single testimony if, in its opinion, that testimony is relevant and credible (). It is not disputed that Witness FAE knew Nyiramasuhuko prior to the events and that she identified the Accused clearly in court and as being present at the time of the alleged events.<sup>13153</sup> Although there were slight inconsistencies in her testimony, the Chamber determines that Witness FAE was a reliable witness who provided credible testimony with regard to this allegation. Her proximity to the location where the incident occurred placed her in a strong position to have witnessed the distribution of condoms as specified.

4984. The Chamber recalls Nyiramasuhuko's alibi evidence for early June 1994 (). The Chamber has considered this evidence with regard to the present allegation and finds that the Prosecution has discharged its burden of proof. Regardless of whether Nyiramasuhuko was staying in Murambi, Gitarama préfecture, from 12 April to 5 June 1994, the short distance between Butare and Murambi would have permitted Nyiramasuhuko to be present in Cyarwa-Sumo secteur, for the distribution of condoms at this time (). The Chamber notes that the analysis regarding Nyiramasuhuko's other alibi evidence in relation to June 1994, is equally relevant to this allegation (). Therefore, Nyiramasuhuko's alibi evidence does not raise a reasonable doubt that she was present at Cyarwa-Sumo secteur in early June 1994.

4985. The Chamber finds that the testimony of Prosecution Witness FAE, provides sufficient and unchallenged detail so as to establish beyond a reasonable doubt the allegation that Nyiramasuhuko came to Cyarwa-Sumo secteur, Ngoma commune, in the beginning of June 1994 and distributed condoms for the Interahamwe, to be used in the raping and killing of Tutsi women in that secteur. The Chamber further finds that Nyiramasuhuko ordered the woman to whom she distributed the condoms to “[g]o and distribute these condoms to your young men, so that they use them to rape Tutsi women and to protect themselves from AIDS, and after having raped them they should kill all of them. Let no Tutsi woman survive because they take away our husbands.”

3.6.48 Rango Forest, June 1994

3.6.48.1 Introduction

4986. The Kanyabashi Indictment and the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment allege that “around late April 1994,” Kanyabashi, accompanied by certain members of the commune police, escorted two busloads of Tutsi refugees from the Butare préfecture office to Rango

Forest.<sup>13154</sup> The refugees were confined in an enclosure, deprived of food, beaten and some died.<sup>13155</sup>

4987. The Prosecution submits that Kanyabashi accompanied the convoy of refugees to Rango Forest and upon arrival, he instructed Interahamwe to guard the Tutsi refugees and prevented them from leaving.<sup>13156</sup> Pits were dug and Kanyabashi told the refugees that they would be buried there on 5 July 1994.<sup>13157</sup> The Prosecution also alleges that refugees at Rango Forest were denied food, water or shelter and were beaten and raped.<sup>13158</sup> The survivors did not leave Rango Forest until they were freed by the RPF.<sup>13159</sup> In support of its submissions, the Prosecution relies on the testimony of Witnesses TA, FAP, RE, QBQ, QY, SD, SS, SU, SJ, QBP, TK and Expert Witness Alison Des Forges.

4988. Apart from the preliminary issues that will be addressed in the section below, the Kanyabashi Defence submits that the Prosecution evidence on this allegation was insufficiently precise to support a finding beyond a reasonable doubt.<sup>13160</sup> The Kanyabashi Defence bases its submission on the testimony of Prosecution Witnesses FAP, QBP, RE, SD, SU, SS, TA, TK, Des Forges, Defence Witnesses D-1-4-O and WMKL, Nsabimana and Nteziryayo.<sup>13161</sup>

4990. The Kanyabashi Defence also submits that while at Rango Forest the refugees were not detained or attacked, but “protected”, and that Kanyabashi took care of them, acting in cooperation with religious and humanitarian organisations in order to improve their living conditions and keep them alive.<sup>13164</sup> The only holes dug were for latrines, for which disinfectant was provided, and the three deaths that occurred at Rango Forest were due to natural causes.<sup>13165</sup> In making its submissions, the Kanyabashi Defence relies upon the testimony of Prosecution Witnesses SJ, TA, FAP, SD, SU, RE, TK, SS, QBP, QBQ and QY, Defence Witnesses WMKL, D-1-4-0, D-2-10-Y and Nteziryayo.

<sup>13154</sup> The Chamber notes that the Prosecution, the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Defence, and their respective witnesses have referred to “Rango Forest”, “Rango compound”, and “Rango” interchangeably. For ease of reference, the Chamber will refer to “Rango Forest” throughout the Judgement.

4991. In addition to its preliminary issues on the vagueness of the Indictment, which will be addressed below, the Nsabimana Defence submits that the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment is vague and therefore the responsibility of Nsabimana cannot be assessed with regard to the events at Rango Forest.<sup>13166</sup>

4992. The Nteziryayo Defence also submits that the factual allegation in relation to the “killing of the refugees at Rango” cannot be considered for the purposes of determining Nteziryayo’s responsibility, since it falls outside the scope of the Indictment.<sup>13167</sup> Alternatively, it submits that the Prosecution witnesses who testified about the events at Rango Forest gave either contradictory or uncorroborated testimony. Although most of these witnesses testified that they left the BPO after Nteziryayo had been appointed préfet, they did not mention Nteziryayo as one of the persons who had authority during the period when they stayed at the BPO, nor did they testify as to any involvement by Nteziryayo with regards to the events at Rango Forest.<sup>13168</sup>

3.6.48.2 Preliminary Issues

Kanyabashi Indictment

Vagueness of Paragraph 6.42

4993. The Kanyabashi Defence contends that Paragraph 6.42 of the Indictment does not adequately plead Article 6 (3) responsibility because it does not specify the involvement of Kanyabashi’s subordinates, their identity, the acts allegedly committed or Kanyabashi’s alleged knowledge in this regard.<sup>13169</sup>

4994. The Chamber notes that Paragraph 6.42 of the Kanyabashi Indictment makes a general accusation that Kanyabashi was involved in the transfer of the refugees from the BPO to Rango Forest. The Indictment does not identify the role either Kanyabashi or his subordinates are alleged to have played in the transfer.

4995. The Chamber recalls that an indictment must be read as a whole (). Thus, the allegation that in April 1994 Kanyabashi escorted Tutsi refugees to Rango Forest must be read in the wider context of the offences alleged in the Indictment against him. Kanyabashi was the bourgmestre of Ngoma commune in Butare préfecture from April 1974 until around 4 July 1994.<sup>13170</sup> A joint reading of Paragraphs 4.3 and 6.32 of the Kanyabashi Indictment indicate that Kanyabashi, in such capacity, exercised authority over his subordinates, notably conseillers de secteur and commune policemen. Paragraph 3.5 of the Kanyabashi Indictment clearly states that the bourgmestre represents the executive power at the commune level and has authority over the civil servants posted in his commune, in addition to policing duties in regard to maintaining order and law enforcement. More generally, Paragraph 1.29 of the Indictment sets out the role of local authorities, including bourgmestres, at the time of the

alleged crimes; this included issuing directives in execution of the plan to exterminate the Tutsis; inciting and ordering their subordinates to perpetrate the massacres; and taking direct part in them.

4996. In light of a contextual and systematic reading of the Indictment, the Chamber considers that the allegation in Paragraph 6.42 of the Indictment, that Kanyabashi “accompanied by members of the communal police” escorted the Tutsi refugees from the BPO to Rango Forest, clearly refers to the involvement of Kanyabashi’s subordinates in the transfer and to Kanyabashi’s supervisory role in it. Accordingly, the Chamber finds the Indictment adequately pled Article 6 (3) responsibility in relation to Kanyabashi, with respect to the events at Rango Forest.

Time of the Transfer

4997. The Kanyabashi Defence submits that Kanyabashi should be acquitted of the allegation concerning the transfer to Rango Forest, because this event took place at the end of June and not “around the end of April” as alleged in the Indictment.<sup>13171</sup>

4998. The Chamber reiterates that an indictment must be read as a whole (). Furthermore, considering that the indictment cannot have the degree of specificity of the evidence underpinning it, if the evidence at trial does not conform to the indictment, the Chamber must determine whether a fair trial requires exclusion of evidence outside the scope of the indictment.<sup>13172</sup> In this regard, the Appeals Chamber held that “in general, minor differences between the indictment and the evidence presented at trial are not such as to prevent the Trial Chamber from considering the indictment in the light of the evidence presented at trial”.<sup>13173</sup> This is to be assessed on a case-by-case basis and taking into account the rights of the accused to be informed of the nature of the charges against him, which entails that he must be able to identify the criminal acts and conduct alleged in the indictment in all circumstances.<sup>13174</sup>

4999. The Chamber notes that the Kanyabashi Indictment covers acts allegedly committed between 1 January and 31 December 1994. More specifically, the crimes alleged in Paragraph 6.42 fall within the framework of allegations set forth by a combined reading of Paragraphs 6.18, 6.44, 6.45 and 6.58, which cover the time period between April and July 1994. Therefore, the allegation in Paragraph 6.42 does not, as such, fall outside the temporal scope of the Indictment.

5000. In any event, as will be outlined in the following paragraphs, a significant amount of evidence establishes beyond a reasonable doubt that the transfer to Rango Forest occurred in June 1994, and not late April as the Indictment alleges. Thus, the Indictment is defective. However, the Chamber first notes that such evidence was adduced by both Prosecution and Defence witnesses, including Kanyabashi Defence Witnesses D-1-4-0 and D-2-10-Y, who testified that the refugees were transferred to Rango Forest in June 1994.<sup>13175</sup> Further, the trial record does not show that Kanyabashi indicated to the Chamber that the evidence at trial fell outside the scope of the Indictment, nor that he requested additional time to prepare for his defence.<sup>13176</sup> Thus, the Chamber is satisfied that Kanyabashi was aware of the time period alleged during the course of the trial in relation to the events at Rango Forest and he suffered no prejudice from the defect in the Indictment.

See Nahimana et al., Judgement (AC), para. 322 (“The indictment is pleaded with sufficient particularity only if it sets out the material facts of the Prosecution case with enough detail to inform a defendant clearly of the charges against him or her so that he or she may prepare his or her defence.”).

5001. Secondly, Kanyabashi never contested the issue of the time of the transfer to Rango Forest prior to his Closing Brief. In light of recent jurisprudence of the Tribunal, the Chamber takes into account Kanyabashi's failure to object to this error earlier in the trial and the lack of any reasonable explanation for it.<sup>13177</sup> Therefore, the Chamber considers Kanyabashi acknowledged that the transfer occurred in June 1994, as demonstrated by the evidence adduced during the proceedings.

5002. The Chamber is thus of the view that, although the discrepancy between the time of the transfer as alleged in the Indictment, and the actual time such transfer was carried out according to the evidence presented, may appear considerable, the error in Paragraph 6.42 of the Indictment did not result in any prejudice to the rights of the Accused.<sup>13178</sup> This inaccuracy did not mislead Kanyabashi as to the nature of the charges against him, nor did it influence or alter the Chamber's approach towards the evaluation of the evidence thereto.<sup>13179</sup> Kanyabashi was able to identify the crime and criminal conduct alleged and had adequate time to prepare his defence. Consequently, the Chamber will consider the allegation at Paragraph 6.42 in relation to Kanyabashi, in light of the evidence presented at trial.

Nsabimana and Nteziryayo

Lack of Notice Concerning Nsabimana's and Nteziryayo's Involvement in the Transfer

5003. Both the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Defences assert that the allegations regarding the transfer to Rango Forest fall outside the scope of the Indictment. The Chamber notes that the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment does not allege Nsabimana's involvement in the transfer of the refugees to Rango Forest and is silent on any specific meeting concerning this issue. With regard to Nteziryayo, the Indictment generally alleges his responsibility in the ongoing massacres from 19 April to July 1994 through his participation in a "strategy adopted and elaborated by political, civil and military authorities in the country" with the aim of

However, an objection raised at trial will not automatically lead to a shift in the burden of proof: the Trial Chamber must consider relevant factors, such as whether the Defence provided a reasonable explanation for its failure to raise the objection earlier in the trial.")).

<sup>13178</sup> See Kunarac et al., Judgement (AC), para. 217 ("minor discrepancies between the dates in the Trial Judgement and the Indictment go to prove the difficulty, in the absence of documentary evidence, of reconstructing events several years after they occurred and not that the events charged in the Indictment did not occur"); see also Rutaganda, Judgement (AC), paras. 302-303.

exterminating the Tutsis.<sup>13180</sup> Paragraph 6.40 of the Indictment mentions the transfer of the refugees to Rango Forest, but solely in connection with Kanyabashi. Thus, the Chamber finds the Indictment is defective, as it did not give any notice to Nsabimana or Nteziryayo of their alleged involvement in the transfer to Rango Forest.

5004. Further, Paragraph 6.40 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment was not pled in support of any count. In light of the Preliminary Issues section contained above (), and considering that Paragraph 6.40 is of no particular background or relevance in the context of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment, the Chamber will not base a conviction on this paragraph.

3.6.48.3 Evidence

Prosecution Witness TA

5005. Witness TA, a Tutsi woman, testified that in mid-June 1994, the refugees who had not been killed and who remained at the BPO were transported in two buses to Rango Forest.<sup>13181</sup> Before leaving towards Rango Forest the refugees were taken towards Nyange, however they got turned back at the roadblock.<sup>13182</sup>

5006. Witness TA testified that the transportation of the refugees was decided during a meeting held at the MRND Palace, where it was said that the refugees that remained there “were ghosts, Tutsi ghosts, and that it was decided that it was out of the question that the international community knew anything about [the refugees’] existence...”.<sup>13183</sup> The witness heard from passersby and from the bus drivers that the bourgmestre of Ngoma commune, Kanyabashi, the préfet and Nyiramasuhuko participated in the meeting and that it was convened upon the request of Kanyabashi.<sup>13184</sup> Witness TA also heard “that place was beginning to stink because of [the] presence [of the refugees] and because of the many dead bodies that were there and there was a lot of flies in that location.”<sup>13185</sup>

5007. Witness TA testified that at this meeting it was further decided that “one day [the refugees] will be killed and that [their] bodies will be laid on the body of Habyarimana after he is buried”. According to the witness, this is the reason why the transport was organised, so that the refugees would be killed at the roadblocks.<sup>13186</sup>

5008. Witness TA testified that the Interahamwe and soldiers came to the BPO and forced the refugees to get onto two buses.<sup>13187</sup> The Interahamwe and soldiers beat the refugees with their guns and with sticks and spat at them.<sup>13188</sup> There was no guard on the buses; however the witness stated that it was not possible to leave the buses “because it was the order issued by the authorities” and they had nowhere to go.<sup>13189</sup> After the buses left for Rango Forest, no surviving refugee remained at the BPO.<sup>13190</sup>

5009. Witness TA testified to staying at Rango Forest for more than three weeks.<sup>13191</sup> There were not many Interahamwe guarding the refugees but they occasionally beat them.<sup>13192</sup> On one occasion, a priest gave food to the refugees. He was attacked by Interahamwe who threatened to kill him, so he fled.<sup>13193</sup>

Prosecution Witness FAP

5012. Witness FAP testified that all the refugees boarded the buses and were taken away from the BPO; some street children were also among them, while others were left behind. Witness FAP did not know what happened to those who were afraid to board the bus; once she got on board, she did not turn around to see if anyone remained in the courtyard.<sup>13199</sup> Witness FAP testified that there was no list drawn up of refugees going to Rango Forest.<sup>13200</sup> The refugees were taken as far as Mukuni, when the driver said he would take the road to the left, via Cyarwa, because considering the state they were in, he could not take them past President Sindikubwabo’s residence in Tumba.<sup>13201</sup>

5013. Witness FAP testified that when she arrived at Rango Forest, the authorities, including Kanyabashi and Grégoire were already there in their Suzuki. When the refugees descended from the bus, they entered the perimeter that was fenced with barbed wire and people, including Fidèle and Alexis, opened the gate upon Kanyabashi’s instruction. The witness did not know who Fidèle and Alexis were.<sup>13202</sup> She stated that she was three and a half metres from Kanyabashi when he spoke to Fidèle, it was not raining and it was still light out.<sup>13203</sup> She stated that the military préfet was not at Rango Forest.<sup>13204</sup> Witness FAP stated that she knew Kanyabashi well enough that she could not confuse him with the new military préfet.<sup>13205</sup>

5014. While Witness FAP could not remember how many days she spent at Rango Forest, she did recall that it was already June when the refugees arrived there.<sup>13206</sup> Witness FAP identified Prosecution Exhibit 36A as a photograph of Rango Forest.<sup>13207</sup> She stated that they never approached the house in the photograph.<sup>13208</sup>

5015. Witness FAP testified that they did not receive any food, nor were they supplied with water. On one occasion, a white man brought provisions, but the provisions were given to the two people responsible for the protection of the refugees and not shared with the refugees. After “white people” came and photographed the refugees, provisions were brought but only maize was distributed. On two occasions, people went with Fidèle to fetch water from the Mukura River, but they discovered larva from rotting corpses so they stopped drawing water from the river. They dug holes to gather rain water which they drank.<sup>13209</sup> Witness FAP was not among the people who went to the river.<sup>13210</sup>

5016. Witness FAP testified that the refugees were told by the Interahamwe guarding them that they would be used as “specimens” to show people what Tutsis looked like. Pits were dug and the refugees were told they would be buried there on 5 July.<sup>13211</sup> The witness did not get close enough to see the pits that were being dug so she did not know how big they were.<sup>13212</sup>

5017. Witness FAP stated that Kanyabashi told the person in charge of the refugees that the Tutsis were government refugees and that their safety should be ensured. Kanyabashi also said that any death would have to be reported, but the fate of the refugees would be sealed on 5 July.<sup>13213</sup> The witness understood this reference to their “fate” to mean that they would be killed.<sup>13214</sup>

5018. Witness FAP testified that she and other refugees were living under the trees and were regularly covered with sacks and beaten on their stomachs at Rango Forest.<sup>13215</sup> Fidèle witnessed the beatings but did nothing to prevent it.<sup>13216</sup> One of the refugees suffered a miscarriage as a result of the beatings.<sup>13217</sup> A white priest brought a consignment of food, but Fidèle and others told him that they were not going to allow the “snakes” to eat.<sup>13218</sup> She saw some orphans being fed but no one else. The refugees lacked cooking or medical facilities at Rango Forest.<sup>13219</sup>

Prosecution Witness RE

5019. Witness RE, a Tutsi woman who was 16 years old in 1994, testified that the departure of the remaining refugees from the BPO to Rango Forest coincided with the new military préfet's appointment. The military préfet said that he no longer wanted to see the “dirt” in that place when he would come back the following day and he sent one of his bodyguards, named Kazungu, to tell the refugees that buses were going to drive them to Rango Forest. Witness RE interpreted the word “dirt” as meaning the Tutsis.<sup>13220</sup>

5020. Witness RE testified that when she and the other refugees left the BPO for Rango Forest, Kanyabashi's vehicle accompanied the convoy. Kanyabashi gave instructions to the Interahamwe who were watching over the refugees to take good care of the Tutsi survivors among them because they were to be presented to the international community, and they were to be killed on 5 July.<sup>13221</sup>

5021. Witness RE testified that the refugees received no food during their stay at Rango Forest. A white man attempted to provide them with food, but it was taken away by the Interahamwe. The witness testified that the Interahamwe beat the refugees during the day and raped women and girls at Rango Forest. She remained at Rango Forest until 4 July 1994, when she and the other refugees were rescued by soldiers of the Inkotanyi.<sup>13222</sup> The witness also stated that her mother died at Rango Forest from cholera.<sup>13223</sup>

Prosecution Witness QBQ

5022. Witness QBQ, a Tutsi woman who was 24 years old in 1994, testified that she arrived at the BPO towards the end of April 1994. The day after arrival, the refugees from the BPO were transported to the EER, but they stayed there only for a week due to the difficult living conditions, and they were brought back to the BPO. The next day, the refugees were transported to Rango Forest by Kanyabashi.<sup>13224</sup> The witness did not know who Kanyabashi was, but other people pointed him out to her.<sup>13225</sup> Upon arrival at Rango Forest, Kanyabashi ordered the Interahamwe, including Fidèle, to protect them. Fidèle made sure that nobody attacked the refugees, however, they continued to live in terrible conditions. Witness QBQ testified that she saw the Interahamwe digging a ditch, but when they finished digging the Inkotanyi arrived and took the refugees away.<sup>13226</sup>

Prosecution Witness QY

5023. Witness QY, a Tutsi woman who was 17 years old in 1994, testified that Kanyabashi accompanied the refugees to Rango Forest.<sup>13227</sup> Upon arrival, two Interahamwe named Alexis and Fidèle took the refugees out of the bus and showed them where they should stay, in the woods. Kanyabashi instructed the two Interahamwe that the refugees were not to be killed and that it should be reported to him if anyone was to die.<sup>13228</sup> Witness QY testified that refugees were not attacked at Rango Forest and were protected by gendarmes; she identified two gendarmes as Alexis and Fidèle.<sup>13229</sup> However, the refugees endured bad conditions and were not fed.<sup>13230</sup> They also had to dig holes in order to collect rain water. The witness saw two pits at Rango Forest.<sup>13231</sup>

Prosecution Witness SD

5024. Witness SD, a Tutsi woman, testified that after the abortive trip to Nyange, she stayed at the BPO for a week, by which time Nteziryayo had been appointed the new préfet. The witness stated that Nteziryayo was introduced to the refugees at the BPO. After less than one week from Nteziryayo's appointment as the new préfet, the refugees were transferred to Rango Forest by bus. Kanyabashi and Grégoire organised the transport.<sup>13232</sup>

5025. Witness SD testified that Grégoire informed the refugees that they would be taken to Rango Forest, but Kanyabashi and Nteziryayo were present as well. The witness had seen Grégoire at the BPO before; this occasion, when he accompanied Kanyabashi to Rango Forest, was the last time she saw him. Witness SD never saw Nteziryayo at Rango Forest.<sup>13233</sup>

5026. Witness SD testified that Kanyabashi told the refugees that they would be protected at Rango Forest. There were very nearly only women and children boarding the two buses to Rango, as all but two of the men had been killed. Some Hutu women whose husbands had been killed were also taken to Rango Forest.<sup>13234</sup> The buses left the BPO at about 3.00 p.m. and it took about 30 minutes to reach Rango Forest.<sup>13235</sup>

5027. Witness SD testified that she arrived at Rango Forest in June.<sup>13236</sup> Witness SD stated that upon arrival, Kanyabashi instructed the Interahamwe to protect the refugees and to inform him if any of the refugees died. Among the Interahamwe was someone called Fidèle, who carried a gun, and two others who carried clubs, knives and grenades.<sup>13237</sup> The witness stated that Fidèle did not respect Kanyabashi's instructions to protect the refugees, and they were beaten. As a result, one woman miscarried.<sup>13238</sup>

5028. Witness SD testified that upon arrival at Rango Forest, the refugees dug a latrine. No food was provided beyond some porridge for the children. At some point, a priest brought some food, but it was not distributed.<sup>13239</sup> Blankets were distributed. A doctor came, but the witness did not see him treat anyone and testified that he stayed in one of the buildings which the refugees were prohibited from approaching. The Interahamwe stayed at the gate of the perimeter during the night and did not mingle with the refugees.<sup>13240</sup>

5029. Witness SD testified that while they were at Rango Forest, two pits, of which the larger was approximately two metres by one and a half metres and the smaller was about half that size, were dug by people from outside, who had been sent there by Kanyabashi.<sup>13241</sup> The Interahamwe told the refugees that they [the refugees] would be buried in those pits on the same day the President of the Republic was going to be buried.<sup>13242</sup> Witness SD testified that the RPF arrived just as the holes were finished being dug at about 9.00 or 10.00 a.m. The Interahamwe left when they heard the RPF gunshots.<sup>13243</sup> Witness SD testified the refugees left Rango Forest on 4 July 1994, when they were found by Inkotanyi of the RPF.<sup>13244</sup>

Prosecution Witness SS

5030. Witness SS, a Tutsi woman, testified that towards the end of June 1994, she left the BPO for Rango.<sup>13245</sup> Witness SS could not remember the exact date of her departure from the BPO, but she testified that this occurred when Alphonse Nteziryayo had just been appointed préfet, replacing Sylvain Nsabimana.<sup>13246</sup> At the BPO, the Tutsi refugees were put in two buses and taken away in the evening under escort.<sup>13247</sup> The Hutu refugees did not board the buses and they left before the vehicles departed to Rango Forest.<sup>13248</sup> The refugees were taken to a fenced forest.<sup>13249</sup> During their stay at Rango Forest, the refugees were supervised regularly by two Interahamwe: Fidèle, who was armed with rifles and wore civilian clothes, and Alexi.<sup>13250</sup>

5031. Witness SS testified that, at some point in time, a white person came with food, but the Interahamwe did not allow him to distribute the food to the refugees. Fidèle accompanied the refugees to go and fetch water in the river called Macura.<sup>13251</sup> Distribution of porridge took

As a result, during the witness' stay at Rango Forest, two or three deaths occurred due to illness.<sup>13253</sup> Witness SS saw people digging pits or graves that were to be used to bury the refugees, but in the meantime the refugees used them as latrines.<sup>13254</sup> The RPF arrived on 4 July 1994 and the refugees who were not wounded were jubilant.<sup>13255</sup>

Prosecution Witness SU

5032. Witness SU, a Tutsi woman, testified that in late June, the refugees were forcibly transferred by buses to a fenced property at Rango Forest.<sup>13256</sup> The witness did not indicate how many refugees were transferred. The refugees boarded the buses under the supervision of Kanyabashi, assisted by a civilian Interahamwe called Fidèle and one other armed man, known to the witness only as Gregwa.<sup>13257</sup> Witness SU stated that Kanyabashi rode in another vehicle and accompanied the convoy of buses to Rango Forest.<sup>13258</sup> The witness also saw Kanyabashi give Fidèle a list with the names of the refugees and tell him, “[i]f the representatives of the international community come here, we will show them these persons and we will tell them that these are the remaining Tutsis in Rwanda. ... If any of these persons die, Fidel, you have to submit a report.”<sup>13259</sup>

5033. Witness SU testified that the living conditions at Rango Forest were just as deplorable as those at the BPO.<sup>13260</sup> After a few days, the refugees were asked to dig pits. Fidèle and another local Interahamwe took over the task because the refugees were too weak to finish it. Witness SU testified that the refugees were asked to go inside the pits to see if they could fit in them.<sup>13261</sup> In early July, RPF soldiers arrived and liberated the refugees from Rango Forest.<sup>13262</sup>

Prosecution Witness SJ

5034. Witness SJ, a Tutsi woman who was 29 in 1994, testified that she was transported by bus from the BPO to Rango Forest with other refugees,<sup>13263</sup> where she stayed for about two weeks.<sup>13264</sup> At Rango Forest, the refugees were guarded by the Interahamwe and the forest was fenced. The refugees were denied food and water.<sup>13265</sup> One night, the Interahamwe left and never came back. Elements of the national army arrived the day after, between 1.00 and 2.00 p.m., and took the refugees to the préfecture.<sup>13266</sup> Witness SJ testified this probably happened at the beginning of July; she testified that Interahamwe “kept referring to the date of the 5th”, however, she could not be sure what exactly they were referring to.<sup>13267</sup>

Prosecution Witness QBP

5035. Witness QBP, a Tutsi woman, testified that in the last week of June, buses were brought to transport refugees to Rango Forest.<sup>13268</sup> The military préfet and the bourgmestre of Ngoma commune, Kanyabashi, were present when the buses were brought to the BPO. When questioned by the Chamber, Witness QBP clarified that the military préfet who was present at the BPO when the buses arrived “was dark skinned and was in military uniform.”<sup>13269</sup> Witness QBP testified that Kanyabashi accompanied the refugees to Rango Forest, but she did not see him there afterwards.<sup>13270</sup> Witness QBP testified that no refugees remained at the BPO after the buses left for Rango Forest.<sup>13271</sup>

5036. Witness QBP testified that the refugees were told they would be taken to Rango Forest because they were hindering the operations of the préfecture and were causing problems at the BPO, and that they were going to be shown where to stay.<sup>13272</sup> Upon arrival at Rango Forest, Kanyabashi gave a document to an Interahamwe carrying a gun and told him to report to him if any of the refugees were to go missing.<sup>13273</sup> At Rango Forest, the Interahamwe told the refugees to dig pits in which they were to be buried. Since the refugees were weak, the Interahamwe dug the pits themselves, however the refugees were told to go in to measure them up. Neither the préfet nor the bourgmestre of Ngoma provided the refugees at Rango Forest with food or water. While a priest attempted to give food to the refugees, he was accused by the Interahamwe of being an accomplice and was chased away.<sup>13274</sup> In the first week of July, the Inkotanyi of the RPF came and liberated the refugees.<sup>13275</sup>

Prosecution Witness TK

5037. Witness TK, a Tutsi woman, testified that the refugees were transferred by bus from the BPO to Rango Forest.<sup>13276</sup> Upon arrival at Rango Forest, Kanyabashi appeared.<sup>13277</sup> Kanyabashi was welcomed by street children as the “Muzehé”, which is a mark of respect.<sup>13278</sup> The witness testified this was the first and only time she saw Kanyabashi.<sup>13279</sup> Kanyabashi told the Interahamwe to let them through, as Rango Forest was fenced.<sup>13280</sup> The Interahamwe present at Rango Forest were the same who were at the BPO, and they “continued their work, which was to kill”. Witness TK only noticed one man disappearing and never saw him afterwards. At the beginning of their stay at Rango Forest, the refugees were assisted by a religious man, but at some point the Interahamwe took away the supplies he had given them.<sup>13281</sup> Some refugee women were forced to marry Interahamwe and were given food by those Interahamwe; these women enabled other refugees to survive by sharing that food with them.<sup>13282</sup> Nevertheless, some of the refugees died from hunger and cholera.<sup>13283</sup>

Prosecution Expert Witness Alison Des Forges

5038. Alison Des Forges testified that, during two conversations she had with Nsabimana,<sup>13284</sup> she learned that the presence of the refugees at the BPO had been a problem for Nsabimana and that he was left alone with it, since no one else would take responsibility. According to Des Forges, Nsabimana also said that the group of refugees was sent away to the EER school where they remained for approximately 10 days, until the authorities in charge sent them back to the BPO. At that point in time, the Interahamwe came to the BPO to kill; “soldiers and others” came to take away and rape women, while other refugees were selected to be killed. From the BPO, the refugees were sent away to Rango Forest.<sup>13285</sup>

5039. Des Forges testified that she heard testimonies that the transfer to Rango Forest was ordered by Nteziryayo on the day he took over as préfet, 20 June 1994, and that Kanyabashi and one of the sous-préfets supervised the move.<sup>13286</sup> Des Forges testified that the transfer to Rango Forest occurred perhaps two weeks after the transfer to Nyange and was carried out with several vehicles, but probably in one despatch. She indicated she was not entirely sure about this, since the sources of such information were people who were transferred both to Rango Forest and to Nyange and therefore might have confused elements of the two trips.<sup>13287</sup> Des Forges testified that some of the refugees boarded the buses voluntarily while others did not want to leave, since they were afraid they were going to be killed; so they were forced onto the buses.<sup>13288</sup>

Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-1-4-0

5040. Witness D-1-4-0, a Hutu who was working as a health assistant at the Rango Holy Cross Centre at Rango Forest,<sup>13289</sup> testified that in June 1994, between 200 and 300 refugees were transferred from the BPO to Rango Forest. Some of them were wounded or sick, while others suffered from diarrhea.<sup>13290</sup>

<sup>13289</sup> In light of all the evidence, the Chamber is satisfied that the Holy Cross Centre was a health centre located at Rango Forest and notes, inter alia, that this was referred to also as the “Frères de la Sainte Croix”. For ease of reference, the Chamber will refer to the “Holy Cross Centre”.

5041. Witness D-1-4-0 testified that he learned from Patrick Kayiranga – Kanyabashi’s son, who also worked at the health centre as a lab technician – that refugees arrived at Rango Forest between 15 and 17 June 1994. The witness was assigned to provide medical care to those refugees following a message from Kanyabashi relayed by Kayiranga.<sup>13291</sup> Witness D-1-4-0 was the only health attendant who was on duty at the Rango health centre during the events.<sup>13292</sup> The witness stated that he first went to see the refugees on the day after their arrival, and that he went to the Rango Holy Cross Centre to provide medical attention to them on five occasions in total.<sup>13293</sup>

5042. Witness D-1-4-0 testified that the refugees were comprised mainly of children and women.<sup>13294</sup> He indicated that he knew many of those refugees were native of Gishamvu, while others hailed from Runyinya and Nyakizu communes, or from Gikongoro préfecture.<sup>13295</sup> Witness D-1-4-0 testified there were fewer than 30 men among the refugees.<sup>13296</sup> The number of refugees at Rango Holy Cross Centre did not increase during the time he went there to provide medical care.<sup>13297</sup> Witness D-1-4-0 stated that he treated more than 30 people during the time he was assigned to the Rango Holy Cross Centre,<sup>13298</sup> and he was the only person who provided medical attention to the refugees that were brought there. Father Danielo and a nun also took care of the refugees by supplying them with foods, pots, blankets and soap.<sup>13299</sup> The witness testified that at Rango Forest, the refugees cooked for themselves and could also fetch firewood in the vicinity.<sup>13300</sup>

5043. Witness D-1-4-0 testified that other foodstuffs like maize were also brought from the Ngoma commune office by Anicet, who was reported to be Kanyabashi’s son.<sup>13301</sup> Witness D-1-4-0 saw Anicet arrive aboard a green Toyota pickup belonging to Ngoma commune.<sup>13302</sup> This vehicle was known to people in Ngoma who called it “ruhumbengegare” in Kinyarwanda, meaning “the car that picks up hoodlums.”<sup>13303</sup> The witness pointed out that he often saw that vehicle before April 1994, but just once between April and July 1994.<sup>13304</sup> He testified that he knew very few members of the commune staff of Ngoma, citing as examples Rutayisire, the person in charge of the finances and who often came to the health centre, Kanyabashi and policeman Cassien, who lived near the health centre.<sup>13305</sup>

5044. Witness D-1-4-0 testified that at Rango Forest the people in charge of security were Fidèle, who assisted in the distribution of supplies, and another person named Gashirabake.<sup>13306</sup> Witness D-1-4-0 testified that Fidèle was not an Interahamwe.<sup>13307</sup>

5045. Witness D-1-4-0 testified that he never witnessed any assault on the refugees,<sup>13308</sup> nor heard any of them complaining that they had been beaten up during the time he treated them at the Rango Holy Cross Centre.<sup>13309</sup> The witness learned that on one occasion, people from outside the centre attempted to get in to assault the refugees, but they were repelled by Fidèle.<sup>13310</sup> The assailants were called Abatomba, referring to a community that lived in the vicinity.<sup>13311</sup>

5046. Witness D-1-4-0 testified that the refugees had access to clean water, which they fetched from a place called Mpazi. Water was stored in gallons supplied by Ngoma commune.<sup>13312</sup> The refugees stayed outside in the verandas and corridors as the buildings were locked up.<sup>13313</sup> Witness D-1-4-0 testified that three toilet facilities were put up for the refugees at Rango Forest and their construction was supervised by the witness himself, who also provided disinfectant so that the facilities could be better maintained. The refugees dug the latrine pits, assisted by Fidèle and Gashirabake.<sup>13314</sup>

5047. Witness D-1-4-0 testified that he went to the health centre for the last time on 1 or 2 July 1994, just before he left Rwanda. At that time, the refugees were still present at Rango Forest.<sup>13315</sup>

5048. Witness D-1-4-0 testified that the refugees talked about Kanyabashi; they said that Kanyabashi had been of service to them because he had transported them from the préfecture offices where they were living under poor conditions and that Kanyabashi had even accompanied them in the buses.<sup>13316</sup> On cross-examination, the witness stated that he had not asked the refugees if it was Kanyabashi who ordered them to board the buses.<sup>13317</sup> The witness testified that the refugees never told him if they had received any assistance from Ngoma commune while they were at the préfecture office.<sup>13318</sup>

5049. Witness D-1-4-0 testified that the only Interahamwe he saw at Rango Forest was called Cyiza. Cyiza was married to one of his colleagues at the health centre and never went to Rango Holy Cross Centre during the time the refugees settled there. Witness D-1-4-0 remembered

Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-2-10-Y

5050. Witness D-2-10-Y, a Tutsi who worked as a gardener at the congregation of Salesiens de Rango in 1994,<sup>13320</sup> testified that he arrived at the BPO towards the end of May 1994.<sup>13321</sup> Kanyabashi told the witness and other refugees at the BPO that they were to be transferred to Rango Forest where they would be better protected.<sup>13322</sup> Witness D-2-10-Y testified that he spent two weeks at the BPO<sup>13323</sup> and was transferred to Rango Forest in June.<sup>13324</sup>

5051. Witness D-2-10-Y testified that, while at the BPO, the Interahamwe asked the refugees to gather because Kanyabashi would speak to them.<sup>13325</sup> The witness could not recall when exactly this happened. The witness testified that Kanyabashi was the first to inform the refugees about their travel to Rango Forest.<sup>13326</sup> Kanyabashi told them for the first time on one morning, when he came alone to the BPO; and on a second occasion, when he returned to the BPO at about 12.00 p.m. on the departure date. This time, Kanyabashi was accompanied by a police officer who was on board his vehicle.<sup>13327</sup> The witness said that he saw Kanyabashi at the BPO only on these two occasions, which occurred on different days.<sup>13328</sup>

5052. Witness D-2-10-Y testified that after being informed about their transfer to Rango Forest, the refugees were afraid, but Kanyabashi told them that he would provide policemen for their security.<sup>13329</sup> In the presence of Kanyabashi, around 300 refugees boarded two buses belonging to ONATRACOM and were transported to Rango Forest.<sup>13330</sup> When questioned if there could have been up to 1,000 refugees involved in the transfer, the witness said this was unrealistic. The witness testified that he did not see any refugee being forced to board the buses, nor did he see people using machetes to wound the refugees before they boarded the buses.<sup>13331</sup>

cross the roadblocks on their way to Rango Forest.<sup>13334</sup> Witness D-2-10-Y did not see any soldiers or Interahamwe on the buses.<sup>13335</sup>

5054. Witness D-2-10-Y testified that they arrived at Rango Forest past 2.00 p.m. but before nightfall,<sup>13336</sup> and that Kanyabashi was present.<sup>13337</sup> Kanyabashi indicated to the refugees the person in charge of their security, Fidèle, who had been an employee at the Holy Cross Centre at Rango Forest prior to 6 April 1994.<sup>13338</sup> Kanyabashi spoke with Fidèle, standing at a certain distance to the witness and other refugees. Kanyabashi greeted and waved at the refugees, asking them to be patient.<sup>13339</sup> Kanyabashi told Fidèle that he had to ensure the refugees' security and that he should not allow anyone to disturb them.<sup>13340</sup> Witness D-2-10-Y testified that Fidèle carried a firearm but did not wear military attire.<sup>13341</sup> Fidèle obeyed Kanyabashi's orders.<sup>13342</sup>

5055. Witness D-2-10-Y testified that refugees at Rango Forest were spread out into the forest surrounding the Holy Cross Centre.<sup>13343</sup> The witness stated that the Reverend Brothers were not present when the refugees were staying at Rango Forest.<sup>13344</sup> The witness did not see any gendarmes at the premises of Rango Forest.<sup>13345</sup>

5056. Witness D-2-10-Y testified that during his stay at Rango Forest, Fidèle led the refugees to the Mpazi stream to fetch water.<sup>13346</sup> The witness testified that they did not go to Mukura River to fetch water, nor did he hear that other refugees did. The witness did not hear that Mukura River contained decomposed bodies and, therefore, was "liver borne" (sic). Witness D-2-10-Y testified that they had to fetch water because the water supply was not sufficient to cater to the refugees.<sup>13347</sup> In cross-examination, Witness D-2-10-Y testified that when he went to fetch water, he saw a roadblock on a small road linking Rango market to Butare town.<sup>13348</sup>

5057. Witness D-2-10-Y testified that at one time, Father Danello supplied the refugees with food. The food was brought in a green vehicle called "Ruhumbangegera", normally used to transport offenders. That vehicle belonged to the commune and was driven by the son of Kanyabashi's wife, Anicet. Witness D-2-10-Y testified that Danello and Fidèle distributed food supplies to the refugees.<sup>13349</sup> The witness denied that persons in charge of the refugees' security or anybody else took the food away. Witness D-2-10-Y added that the refugees also received buckets, blankets and some rice.<sup>13350</sup> Witness D-2-10-Y testified that a nun, accompanied by a person called Murokore, visited the Holy Cross Centre at Rango Forest three times to provide health services to the refugees. They treated wounded persons and provided them with drugs and medication.<sup>13351</sup> The witness testified that three persons died of illness during their stay at Rango Forest, but he was not aware that any other person died during that time.<sup>13352</sup>

5058. Witness D-2-10-Y testified that, while at Rango Forest, the refugees dug two pits to serve as toilets, on the instruction of Murokore. He was not aware that any pits were dug in order for the refugees to be buried in.<sup>13353</sup>

5059. Witness D-2-10-Y testified that no Interahamwe stayed at Rango Forest with the refugees,<sup>13354</sup> but at some point two Interahamwe, known as Gikongoro and Ngoma, arrived.<sup>13355</sup> The witness also testified that when Fidèle went back home, the Interahamwe and persons from a specific Hutu ethnic group known as Abakomba arrived to kill the refugees. Fidèle heard the cries of the refugees and returned immediately to the premises; the assailants fled.<sup>13356</sup>

5060. Witness D-2-10-Y testified that when some refugees went to Rudandi to buy provisions, an Interahamwe known as Gashirabake, who was the other person in charge of the security of the refugees beside Fidèle, put several persons in a bag and beat them up at Rango Forest. According to the witness, such an incident happened only once during his stay at Rango Forest.<sup>13357</sup> Gashirabake obeyed Kanyabashi's orders together with Fidèle.<sup>13358</sup> Witness D-2-10-Y testified that at the time of his testimony, the man who was with Fidèle, Gashirabake, was being prosecuted by the national court for having taken part in killings.<sup>13359</sup>

5061. Witness D-2-10-Y testified that two weeks after his arrival at Rango Forest, the RPF arrived in the area and released the refugees.<sup>13360</sup> In cross-examination, the witness said that the RPF arrested the population – Hutus as well as Tutsis – and sent them to Rango town for their safety. His father and his five brothers remained in town, while the witness and his sister Alphonsine went to Gikongoro; since then, the witness has not seen his family members.<sup>13361</sup> Witness D-2-10-Y testified that he decided to go to Gikongoro even though the RPF had told the refugees that they were safe in Rango, because there were also Tutsis at Gikongoro.<sup>13362</sup>

The witness testified that, beside his twin sister who was killed in Kabakobwa, all the family members who had taken refuge at the BPO had survived.<sup>13363</sup>

Nyiramasuhuko Defence Witness WMKL

5062. Witness WMKL, a Hutu teacher at one of the Butare schools in 1994, testified that there were no longer refugees at the BPO during the first week of June 1994.<sup>13364</sup> The witness testified that in June the refugees were moved from the BPO to the Holy Cross Centre at Rango Forest. Witness WMKL attended a meeting during which Kanyabashi stated that the refugees were transferred from the BPO so that they could not be the object of any intimidation by members of the population.<sup>13365</sup> Witness WMKL further testified that he never heard that those refugees were maltreated during their stay at Rango Forest.<sup>13366</sup>

Nteziryayo

5063. Nteziryayo testified that about 250 persons were transferred to Rango Forest either on 19 or 20 June 1994. He learned this from the sous-préfet in charge of social affairs, Everest Bicamumpaka. Nteziryayo testified that the refugees were transferred before he started working as préfet. His first day at work as the new préfet was 21 June 1994; therefore, he was not at the BPO when the transfer occurred.<sup>13367</sup> Nteziryayo further testified that he did not take part in the decision to transfer them to Rango Forest.<sup>13368</sup> Nteziryayo denied the portion of Prosecution Witness FAP's testimony, where Witness FAP stated that he was transferred to Rango Forest after Nteziryayo's appointment and that he was told by Grégoire that Nteziryayo "no longer wanted garbage in front of his office".<sup>13369</sup>

5064. Nteziryayo testified that the plan to move the refugees from the BPO to Rango Forest had been initiated during the tenure of Préfet Nsabimana,<sup>13370</sup> between humanitarian organisations and the préfecture authorities.<sup>13371</sup> Nteziryayo agreed with the plan to transfer the refugees, vis-à-vis the sous-préfets, Hakizamungu and Bicamumpaka, as discussed at a meeting he had with them on 19 June, because it did not entail any problems and the refugees would be better off at Rango Forest.<sup>13372</sup> Clergymen of Rango had provided their convent for accommodating the refugees so they could live in better conditions than in Butare, where they had been living in the open, in front of the offices or behind the BPO, exposed to all passersby and open for everyone to come in.<sup>13373</sup> Nteziryayo could not recall whether, by the time of the said meeting, the refugees had already been transported to Rango Forest.<sup>13374</sup>

5065. Nteziryayo testified that Bicumumpaka personally participated in moving the refugees to Rango Forest, working together with Kanyabashi. Upon arrival at Rango Forest, the refugees were taken care of by Kanyabashi, by Caritas, the clergymen in Rango, Bicumumpaka and other persons connected to the various officials who sought to improve on the living conditions of those refugees.<sup>13375</sup> Nteziryayo testified that the préfecture authorities had contacted Caritas, a humanitarian service belonging to the Butare diocese, as well as Father Vieckoslav, a cleric from Rango, and another religious personality, called Daniello. All of these people and organisations were called upon to supply the refugees with food, health care, clothing and other items.<sup>13376</sup>

5066. Nteziryayo testified that he was informed by Bicumumpaka that the refugees were receiving considerable aid from humanitarian organisations and that Ngoma commune was also working hard to sustain the refugees. Nteziryayo stated that he instructed Bicumumpaka to follow up the situation of those refugees and to remain in touch with the humanitarian organisations that were assisting the refugees.<sup>13377</sup>

5067. Nteziryayo testified that on one occasion, he went to Rango Forest and inspected the site where the refugees stayed; he was satisfied that their situation was better there than the préfecture courtyard.<sup>13378</sup> Nteziryayo testified that the refugees were still under “minimal living conditions”, but at least they were in a fenced place, with shade, and Ngoma commune had provided guards for their safety. The “religious” looked after them and some persons provided them with health care. Caritas provided food; other humanitarian organisations had given them blankets, cooking utensils and other useful items and medical care. Bicumumpaka went there regularly, if not on a daily basis, to reassure the refugees.<sup>13379</sup>

5068. Nteziryayo testified that refugees at Rango Forest were not beaten up. The persons who took care of the refugees were in good faith. Otherwise, according to Nteziryayo, the refugees would have complained vis-à-vis the préfet or other authorities. Bicumumpaka did not report any cases of maltreatment.<sup>13380</sup> Nteziryayo denied that the authorities who tried to improve the living conditions of those refugees refused to let a white person distribute food among the refugees.<sup>13381</sup> Nteziryayo further stated that the refugees were not thrown into mass graves; none of the refugees were ever killed; there were no attacks or threats against those refugees;<sup>13382</sup> and the refugees were not waiting to be buried in mass graves on 5 July 1994.<sup>13383</sup> Nteziryayo testified that Witness FAM’s testimony that Nteziryayo had led Tutsi refugees from Muganza to Rango Forest, first to the house of Ruhashyankiko and later to the house of Pierre Rwakayonza to kill them, was false.<sup>13384</sup>

5069. Nteziryayo testified that as the préfet he received an update of the situation at Rango Forest on a daily basis and was personally satisfied that the transfer to Rango Forest was aimed at improving the situation of those refugees and making it “more humane”. Therefore, it would have been contradictory if people had maltreated them at the same time.<sup>13385</sup> Nteziryayo testified that after 28 June 1994, he contacted humanitarian organisations to assist in looking after the refugees in the Mubumbano or the Rango Forest refugee camp. Nteziryayo testified that he had to take care that the refugees would not be attacked by other persons, and that he had to look for supplies and means of transport.<sup>13386</sup> The refugees remained at Rango Forest until the arrival of the RPF in Butare town.<sup>13387</sup>

3.6.48.4 Deliberations

5070. It is undisputed that refugees were transferred from the BPO to Rango Forest. Both Prosecution and Defence witnesses presented compelling evidence in this regard, as indicated below.<sup>13388</sup> The issues for the Chamber to determine are: when the transfer occurred; the number of refugees involved; and whether criminal acts were perpetrated against the refugees throughout and/or as a consequence of the transfer. Further, the Chamber must assess whether Kanyabashi was involved in the transfer and the extent of his involvement. As stated above, the Chamber will not consider the allegation concerning the transfer to Rango Forest in relation to Nteziryayo and Nsabimana.

3.6.48.4.1 Time Period of the Transfer

5071. The Chamber heard consistent evidence from Prosecution Witnesses TA, SS, SU, QBP and Des Forges to the effect that the transfer of the refugees to Rango Forest occurred in June 1994.<sup>13389</sup> In addition Prosecution Witness SD testified the transfer was carried out about one week after the appointment of Nteziryayo as the new préfet.<sup>13390</sup> Prosecution Witness FAP corroborated this evidence, testifying that at the time of the transfer to Rango Forest, Nteziryayo had already taken over his duties as the new préfet.<sup>13391</sup> The Chamber has previously found that Nteziryayo was appointed préfet of Butare by the Interim Government on 17 June 1994 (). In light of this evidence and the testimony of Witnesses SD and FAP, the transfer to Rango Forest occurred in the second half of June 1994. The Chamber has also considered the testimony of Prosecution Witness SJ, who was not able to give a precise indication of the time period she was transferred to Rango Forest. Nevertheless, she testified that the refugees were rescued probably at the beginning of July, about two weeks after their arrival at Rango Forest. She therefore also places the transfer as occurring sometime in late June 1994.<sup>13392</sup> Defence Witnesses D-1-4-0, D-2-10-Y and WMKL corroborated this testimony, stating that the transfer to Rango Forest occurred in June 1994.<sup>13393</sup> Nteziryayo gave evidence that the transfer to Rango Forest was carried out either on 19 or 20 June 1994.<sup>13394</sup>

5072. Witness QBQ's testimony conflicts with the accounts that the refugees were transferred in late June 1994. She testified that she arrived at the BPO towards the end of April, and the day after her arrival she was transported with the other refugees to the EER. She stayed at the EER for one week only, after which she and the other refugees were brought back to the BPO. The following day, they were immediately transported to Rango Forest.<sup>13395</sup> According to this evidence, between the witness' arrival at the BPO and her departure to Rango Forest, just over a week had passed. The Chamber observes that this account appears contradictory with Witness QBQ's subsequent testimony in cross-examination, where she stated that she arrived at the BPO at the end of April and she departed to Rango Forest about one month later.<sup>13396</sup> Therefore, the Chamber does not find Witness QBQ credible as to the time frame when the refugees were transferred to Rango Forest.

3.6.48.4.2 Number of Refugees Transported to Rango Forest

5074. Prosecution Witnesses TA, FAP, SU, SS, QBP and Des Forges testified that the transfer was carried out with two or more buses.<sup>13397</sup> This account is consistent with the Chamber's previous finding, in the context of the transport of the refugees from the BPO to Nyange, which was carried out by way of two or more buses (). Defence Witness D-2-10-Y corroborated this account.<sup>13398</sup> Defence Witnesses D-1-4-0 and D-2-10-Y gave figures ranging from 200 to slightly more than 300 refugees being transported from the BPO to Rango Forest.<sup>13399</sup>

5075. Witness TA was not able to indicate a precise number of refugees, but testified that there were less than 1,000 people in the two buses.<sup>13400</sup> The Chamber recalls that the Ntahobali Defence challenged the credibility of Witness TA during cross-examination, on the grounds that the witness lacked precision in some answers with respect to time and date, but was able to give very specific details about other facts.<sup>13401</sup> The Chamber has already assessed this aspect of Witness TA's testimony with respect to the incidents at the BPO and has come to the conclusion that Witness TA's testimony is credible with respect to the time of her arrival and her experience at the BPO (). However, in relation to the number of refugees present at Rango Forest, the Chamber cannot rely on Witness TA's testimony, for the reasons explained below.

5076. The testimony by Prosecution witnesses that there were two or more buses supports Defence Witnesses D-1-4-0 and D-2-10-Y's account on the number of refugees involved (250 to 300). The Chamber is of the opinion that, it is reasonable that a few hundred people were transferred by means of two or more buses.

5078. Regarding the composition of the group of refugees, Witness SD testified that only women, children, and two old men boarded the two buses to Rango Forest, as all the rest of the men had been killed.<sup>13402</sup> This conflicts with other testimonies which, although not entirely consistent with each other, indicate that there were some men among the refugees. Defence Witness D-1-4-0 testified that fewer than 30 of the refugees who settled at Rango Forest were men.<sup>13403</sup> Defence Witness D-2-10-Y testified that there were around 100 men among the refugees, around a third of the refugee population.<sup>13404</sup> Prosecution Witness TK testified that, at some point during her stay at Rango Forest she noticed one male refugee disappearing.<sup>13405</sup> In addition, Defence Exhibit 473, which shows some of the refugees prior to the transfer to Rango Forest, captured images of several men. In light of the foregoing, the Chamber is convinced that both men and women were transferred to Rango Forest, but the number of men had diminished significantly due to the killings at the BPO and EER ().

5079. Regarding the ethnicity of the refugees, the Chamber notes discrepancies between the testimonies of Witnesses SD and SS. Prosecution Witness SD stated that there were some Hutu women among the refugees,<sup>13406</sup> whereas Prosecution Witness SS testified that, prior to being put on the buses the Tutsi refugees were separated from the Hutus and only the Tutsis were taken away.<sup>13407</sup> The Chamber recalls its finding that Hutu refugees were separated from Tutsi refugees and taken to Mubumbano refugee camp (). Therefore, most if not all Hutu refugees had been taken from the BPO to Mubumbano by 15 June 1994. The Chamber considers that although there may have been some Hutus among the refugees, the majority of refugees were Tutsis.

5080. In sum, the Chamber concludes that approximately 250 to 300 mainly Tutsi refugees were transported to Rango Forest, by a convoy which comprised at least two buses.

3.6.48.4.3 Whether the Transfer Was Forceful

5081. Witness TA testified that at the BPO the refugees were forced onto the buses by the Interahamwe, who beat them.<sup>13408</sup> Witness TA further stated that, although there was no guard onboard, it was not possible to leave the buses “because it was the order issued by the authorities”, and they had nowhere to go.<sup>13409</sup> This evidence is corroborated by Prosecution Witness SU, who also testified that the refugees were forced onto the buses under Kanyabashi’s supervision.<sup>13410</sup> Witness SU further stated that a civilian Interahamwe called Fidèle and one other armed man known as Grégoire were present during the transfer.<sup>13411</sup> Witnesses FAP and SD testified that the refugees were told in the presence of Kanyabashi, Laurent Kubwimana and Grégoire, that they had to leave the BPO.<sup>13412</sup> Grégoire told them that those who refused to go to Rango Forest would be killed; instead, they would be given provisions and safety at Rango Forest.<sup>13413</sup> According to Witness RE, the transfer of the refugees occurred under the supervision of Interahamwe.<sup>13414</sup> According to Des Forges, some of the refugees boarded the buses voluntarily while others did not want to leave, since they were afraid they were going to be killed. They were therefore forced onto the buses.<sup>13415</sup>

5082. Defence Witness D-1-4-0 disagreed with Witness SU and testified that Fidèle was not an Interahamwe.<sup>13416</sup> Likewise, Defence Witness D-2-10-Y testified that he did not see any soldiers or Interahamwe on the buses, and that Fidèle carried a firearm but did not wear military attire.<sup>13417</sup> Further, Witness D-2-10-Y testified that no force was used to board the refugees onto the buses and that there were policemen on board of each of the buses, who helped them to cross the roadblocks on their way to Rango Forest.<sup>13418</sup>

5083. The Chamber believes there are some credibility issues with regard to Defence Witness D-1-4-0. This witness was added to the Kanyabashi Defence witnesses’ list at a late stage of the trial on 24 April 2008.<sup>13419</sup> The Chamber notes that Witness D-1-4-0 was a Hutu and that he was chosen to be the health attendant at Rango Forest directly by Kanyabashi. This indicates the witness might have had a prior relationship with Kanyabashi.<sup>13420</sup> Further, in the Chamber’s view, Witness D-1-4-0 might have had personal reasons to lie since he was involved in the transfer. The Chamber considers these factors impact the witness’ credibility and will therefore not rely on his evidence. This leaves the testimony of Witness D-2-10-Y alone supporting the assertion that the transfer was not forceful. However, considering that his evidence is uncorroborated, and having weighed all the evidence by Prosecution witnesses as outlined above, the Chamber does not find the testimony of Witness D-2-10-Y credible in relation to this issue.

5084. In light of the foregoing, the Chamber is convinced that “guards”, including members of the Interahamwe, supervised the boarding of the buses. Further, the Chamber finds the evidence sufficient to establish beyond a reasonable doubt that the environment in which the transfer was carried out was coercive and the refugees had no other choice than to board the buses.

3.6.48.4.4 Events at Rango

5085. Prosecution Witnesses SS and SJ testified that the refugees were taken to a fenced forest where they were guarded by the Interahamwe.<sup>13421</sup> Witness SS further stated that during their stay at Rango Forest the refugees were supervised regularly by two Interahamwe in civilian clothes: Fidèle, who was armed with rifles, and Alexi.<sup>13422</sup> They were assisted by other Interahamwe at night.<sup>13423</sup> Likewise, Prosecution Witness SD testified that upon arrival at Rango Forest, Kanyabashi instructed the Interahamwe to protect the refugees and to inform him if any of the refugees died. Among the Interahamwe was Fidèle, who carried a gun and two others who carried clubs, knives and grenades.<sup>13424</sup>

5086. Nteziryayo’s account corroborates these testimonies in part, stating that the refugees were provided guards for their safety.<sup>13425</sup> Further corroboration came from the testimony of Defence Witness D-1-4-0, who stated that Fidèle was a guard on duty at Rango Forest, who was in charge of security and assisted in the distribution of supplies, along with another person, Gashirabake.<sup>13426</sup> The Chamber recalls there are some credibility concerns in relation to Witness D-1-4-0 and it will therefore not rely on his testimony with regard to this issue. The Chamber further notes that only one Defence witness, Witness D-2-10-Y, challenged the testimony of the Prosecution witnesses in relation to the presence of the Interahamwe at Rango Forest.<sup>13427</sup> Witness D-2-10-Y testified that there was no Interahamwe staying at Rango Forest with the refugees,<sup>13428</sup> but at some point two Interahamwe, known as Gikongoro and Ngoma, came.<sup>13429</sup> This testimony is uncorroborated and therefore the Chamber will not rely on it.

5087. In light of all the evidence presented, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that members of the Interahamwe guarded the refugees at Rango Forest.

5088. Prosecution Witness SU testified that refugees were put in a shed and confined within a fenced area at Rango Forest.<sup>13430</sup> Defence Witness D-1-4-0 disagreed with Witness SU and testified that the refugees stayed outside on the verandas and corridors as the buildings were locked up.<sup>13431</sup> These testimonies are not corroborated and therefore the Chamber cannot make a determination on this issue. However, having considered all the evidence before it, the Chamber is convinced that the refugees, whether in a shed or outdoors, were confined in an enclosure and prevented from crossing the fence.<sup>13432</sup>

5089. Several Prosecution witnesses gave congruent testimony with regard to beatings taking place at Rango Forest. Witness TA testified that during the time spent at Rango Forest the few Interahamwe present beat the refugees.<sup>13433</sup> Witness RE testified that the Interahamwe beat the refugees during the day and raped women and girls at Rango Forest.<sup>13434</sup> Similarly, Witness FAP testified that she and other refugees were living under the trees and were regularly covered with sacks and beaten on their stomachs at Rango Forest.<sup>13435</sup> Additionally, the Chamber observes that Defence Witness D-2-10-Y corroborated Witness FAP's testimony, stating that he witnessed one incident in which an Interahamwe known as Gashirabake (who was the other person in charge of the security of the refugees beside Fidèle) put several persons in a bag and beat them up.<sup>13436</sup> Prosecution Witness FAP further stated that Fidèle witnessed the beatings but did nothing to prevent them.<sup>13437</sup> One of the refugees suffered a miscarriage as a result of the beatings.<sup>13438</sup> Witness SD corroborated this evidence, testifying that Fidèle did not respect Kanyabashi's instructions to protect the refugees. She said that they were beaten and one woman miscarried.<sup>13439</sup> Finally, Witness TK testified that the Interahamwe present at Rango Forest were the same who were at the BPO and they "continued their work, which was to kill."<sup>13440</sup> However, the witness only noticed one man disappearing and she never saw him afterwards.<sup>13441</sup>

5090. Only one Prosecution witness, Witness QY, testified that refugees at Rango Forest were not attacked, but instead stated that the gendarmes, including Alexis and Fidèle, were instructed not to attack the refugees and to report any deaths.<sup>13442</sup> The Chamber does not discount Witness QY's testimony and believes that she might not have witnessed or experienced any maltreatment herself. However, in light of the consistency among the testimony of Prosecution Witnesses FAP, RE, TA, TK and SD, the Chamber finds their account credible, that refugees were beaten by Interahamwe at Rango Forest and that one woman miscarried.

5091. The Chamber also heard evidence from numerous Prosecution witnesses to the effect that the refugees at Rango Forest endured deplorable conditions, were not given food or water, and lacked sanitary and medical care.<sup>13443</sup> Prosecution Witnesses FAP, RE, QBP, SD, SS, TA and TK testified that the only attempt by a white priest to feed them was stopped by some members of the Interahamwe.<sup>13444</sup> Prosecution Witnesses SS and SD testified that blankets were distributed, but the Interahamwe took them back.<sup>13445</sup> Witness SS further stated that at some point in time, doctors had come, however they did not give medical attention to anyone.<sup>13446</sup> Prosecution Witnesses SS and FAP also testified that, on a couple of occasions, the refugees were accompanied by Fidèle to fetch water from the Mukura River, but they had to stop because they discovered rotting corpses being eaten by maggots there. Thereafter, they dug holes to gather rain water for drinking.<sup>13447</sup>

5092. The Chamber notes that a significant amount of congruent evidence from Prosecution witnesses exists concerning the maltreatment to which the refugees at Rango Forest were subject, even in relation to details and specific events. Thus, the Chamber finds their account credible.

5093. The Chamber also heard from Prosecution Witnesses FAP and SD that some orphans or sick children among the refugees were fed.<sup>13448</sup> The Chamber considers their evidence credible, particularly in light of the fact that Witnesses FAP and SD were refugees themselves. They did not have any reason to lie about the fact that some refugees were provided with care. In light of all the evidence, the Chamber believes that some orphans or sick children among the refugees at Rango Forest were fed.

5094. The Chamber further notes that Prosecution Witness TK testified that during their stay at Rango Forest, the refugees only survived due to the help of refugee women who had been forced to marry Interahamwe and who shared the food they received from them [Interahamwe].<sup>13449</sup> Nonetheless, she testified that some of the refugees died from hunger and cholera.<sup>13450</sup> Likewise, according to Prosecution Witness SS, two or three deaths occurred due to illness.<sup>13451</sup> This evidence was corroborated by Defence Witness D-2-10-Y's account that three persons died of illness during their stay at Rango Forest; the witness was not aware that any other person died during that time.<sup>13452</sup>

5095. Nteziryayo challenged the testimony of several Prosecution witnesses, including Witnesses SD, TK and RE. He testified that refugees at Rango Forest were not beaten up, there were no cases of maltreatment reported by the sous-préfet in charge of social affairs, and none of the refugees were killed.<sup>13453</sup> Nteziryayo further testified that as the préfet he received an update of the situation at Rango Forest on a daily basis and was personally satisfied that the transfer to Rango Forest was aimed at improving the situation of those refugees and making it “more humane”. Therefore, it would have been contradictory if people had maltreated them at the same time.<sup>13454</sup> In addition, while challenging the testimony of Prosecution Witnesses RE, QBP, SS and TK specifically, Nteziryayo testified that the refugees were looked after by the “religious” as well as humanitarian organisations. Nteziryayo said the refugees were provided with health care and food. He denied that the authorities refused to let a white person distribute food among the refugees.<sup>13455</sup> According to Nteziryayo, the situation of the refugees at Rango Forest was better than at the BPO courtyard.<sup>13456</sup> Nteziryayo testified that the refugees were still living under “minimal living conditions”, but at least they were in a fenced place with shade and were protected.<sup>13457</sup>

5096. Defence Witness D-1-4-0 supported Nteziryayo’s account, stating that he never witnessed any assault on the refugees,<sup>13458</sup> and did not hear any of them complaining that they had been beaten up at Rango Forest during the time he treated them at the Rango Holy Cross Centre.<sup>13459</sup> Witness D-1-4-0 only learned that on one occasion people coming from outside attempted to get in to assault the refugees, but they were repelled by Fidèle.<sup>13460</sup> This evidence is corroborated by Witness D-2-10-Y’s testimony.<sup>13461</sup> Defence Witnesses D-1-4-0 and D-2-10-Y further testified that food supplies, blankets, soap and medical attention were provided to the refugees.<sup>13462</sup> They also stated that the refugees had access to clean water which they fetched from a place called Mpazi, led by Fidèle.<sup>13463</sup> Witness D-1-4-0 also testified that the refugees cooked for themselves and they could also fetch firewood in the vicinity.<sup>13464</sup>

5097. The Chamber notes the consistency between the testimony of Witnesses D-1-4-0 and D-2-10-Y. However, in relation to their evidence that Fidèle was a guard in charge of security at Rango Forest and that he also repelled an attack by Interahamwe coming from outside, the Chamber notes that it was not presented with any evidence indicative of acts of violence on behalf of Fidèle himself towards the refugees. On the other hand, sufficient evidence established that members of the Interahamwe beat the refugees, whether or not Fidèle was aware of it. In addition, the Chamber recalls there are credibility issues in relation to Witness D-1-4-0 concerning the events at Rango Forest, and observes that Nteziryayo’s account on this matter, which only partially corroborates the testimony of Witnesses D-1-4-0 and D-2-10-Y, is hearsay.

5098. Thus, having weighed all the evidence before it, the Chamber finds the Prosecution has proven beyond a reasonable doubt that, during their stay at Rango Forest some refugees were subject to physical violence, including beatings, on behalf of members of the Interahamwe. In light of the totality of the evidence, the Chamber also finds beyond a reasonable doubt that the refugees at Rango Forest endured deplorable living conditions. Although there had been occasions when humanitarian organisations or refugee women married to Interahamwe distributed food to the refugees, they were nevertheless deprived of food by the authorities. As a result of these conditions of mistreatment and violence, some of the refugees died.

5099. In relation to the purpose of the transfer of the refugees to Rango Forest, the Chamber recalls Witness TA's testimony that the transportation was decided upon during a meeting held at the MRND Palace, on the grounds that "that place was beginning to stink because of [the] presence [of the refugees]." <sup>13465</sup> She also testified that the refugees were going to be killed and that their bodies "will be laid on the body of Habyarimana after he is buried". <sup>13466</sup> The Chamber also heard from Prosecution Witness QBP, who testified that the refugees were told they would be taken to Rango Forest because they were hindering the operations of the préfecture and were causing problems at the BPO. <sup>13467</sup> Similarly, Des Forges testified that she learned from Nsabimana that the refugees had been a problem and no one wanted to take responsibility, so they were sent away from the BPO. <sup>13468</sup>

5100. Prosecution Witnesses FAP and RE partly corroborate this account. They testified that they were informed that Nteziryayo did not want "dirt" in front of his office, and they understood this as referring to the "Tutsi". <sup>13469</sup> Prosecution Witness RE stated that Kanyabashi gave instructions to the Interahamwe to take good care of the refugees, because they were going to be presented to the international community, but that they would be killed on 5 July. <sup>13470</sup> Nteziryayo challenged this testimony, <sup>13471</sup> and stated that he had to take care of the refugees at Rango Forest and make sure they would not be attacked by anyone; for this, he sought support of humanitarian organisations. <sup>13472</sup> Defence Witness WMKL supported Nteziryayo's account, stating that he heard from Kanyabashi that the refugees were to be transferred away, so that they could not be the object of any intimidation. <sup>13473</sup> Also Prosecution Witness QY testified that, once at Rango, Kanyabashi instructed the two Interahamwe that the refugees were not to be killed and that it should be reported to him if anyone was to die. <sup>13474</sup>

5101. The Chamber notes the consistency between the testimonies of Prosecution Witnesses FAP and RE, and finds their account credible, namely that the refugees were informed they would be killed shortly. The Chamber also believes the testimonies of Witnesses QY and WMKL to the extent that what was made public to the eyes of the international community was that the refugees would be transferred for their own safety. However, having weighed all the evidence, the Chamber considers this might have been part of the strategy to improve the international community's perception of the authorities in Rwanda and hide their true intentions, which were to get rid of the Tutsi refugees.

5102. In this regard, the Chamber has also considered that several Prosecution witnesses, in particular Witnesses SS, FAP, SD, SU and QBP, testified that pits were dug at Rango Forest in order to bury the refugees.<sup>13475</sup> Witness SU even stated that the refugees were asked to go inside the pits to see if they could fit in them.<sup>13476</sup> This account is partly corroborated by the testimony of Witnesses D-2-10-Y and Witness D-1-4-0, who also testified that refugees dug three latrine pits, assisted by Fidèle and Gashirabake,<sup>13477</sup> however, he stated he was not aware that any pits were dug in order to bury the refugees.<sup>13478</sup> Similarly, Nteziryayo testified that the refugees were not thrown into mass graves nor was there a plan to do so.<sup>13479</sup> The Chamber however recalls that Nteziryayo gave hearsay evidence on this issue.

5103. As to the ultimate fate of the refugees at Rango Forest, the Chamber notes that several Prosecution witnesses testified that the Inkotanyi of the RPF rescued the refugees at the beginning of July 1994.<sup>13480</sup> This was corroborated by Nteziryayo and Defence Witness D-2-10-Y, although they did not indicate a precise time frame.<sup>13481</sup> The Chamber notes these testimonies were not challenged.

5104. Having considered all the evidence before it, the Chamber is convinced that at least two pits were dug at Rango Forest, and that the refugees were told they would be buried in them, in early July 1994. In relation to the transport to Rango Forest, the Chamber finds the Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that the ultimate purpose of this transfer was to kill the Tutsi refugees. Further, in light of all the evidence the Chamber is satisfied that the refugees were rescued by the Inkotanyi of the RPF in early July 1994.

3.6.48.4.5 Involvement of the Accused

5105. The Prosecution presented compelling evidence indicating that Kanyabashi was involved in the transfer of the refugees to Rango Forest. Witnesses RE, QY, QBP and QBQ testified that Kanyabashi accompanied the convoy of refugees to Rango Forest.<sup>13482</sup> Similarly,

Witness SD testified that Kanyabashi was present at the BPO when the transfer was organised and that he accompanied the convoy of refugees all the way to Rango Forest.<sup>13483</sup> Des Forges stated that Kanyabashi supervised the move.<sup>13484</sup> Witness FAP testified that Kanyabashi was already present at Rango Forest when the refugees arrived.<sup>13485</sup>

5106. Defence Witness D-1-4-0's testimony corroborated this evidence. He testified that he heard refugees saying that Kanyabashi "had been of service to them because he had transported them from the préfecture ... and he had even accompanied them in the buses".<sup>13486</sup> Similarly, Defence Witness D-2-10-Y stated that the refugees boarded the buses in Kanyabashi's presence and that, upon arrival at Rango Forest, Kanyabashi was there.<sup>13487</sup> Nteziryayo testified that Kanyabashi was involved in the transport of the refugees to Rango Forest, along with the sous-préfet in charge of social affairs.<sup>13488</sup> The Chamber recalls the credibility issues in relation to Witness D-1-4-0, and it is also mindful that Nteziryayo's testimony on this issue is hearsay and that he is a co-Accused in this case. However, in light of the considerable amount of corroborating evidence by Prosecution witnesses, the Chamber finds Witness D-1-4-0's and Nteziryayo's accounts credible with respect to Kanyabashi's involvement in the transfer of the refugees to Rango Forest.

5107. Having considered all the evidence before it, the Chamber is satisfied that Kanyabashi carried out the transfer of the refugees, from the departure from the BPO up until their arrival at Rango Forest, with the assistance of the Interahamwe. The Chamber further observes that, as found above, crimes at Rango Forest were committed by the Interahamwe. However, the Chamber notes that the evidence has demonstrated Kanyabashi's presence at Rango Forest only on the day of the transfer, or otherwise for a short while afterwards; the length of Kanyabashi's stay at Rango Forest was not established. Therefore, the Prosecution did not prove that he witnessed or otherwise knew of the beatings and mistreatment of the refugees at Rango Forest by the Interahamwe.

5108. In addition to Kanyabashi's role in coordinating and supervising the transfer as found above, the Chamber heard from Prosecution Witness RE that once at Rango Forest, Kanyabashi gave instructions to the Interahamwe to watch over the refugees, stating that this was only for the purpose of showing them to the international community, whereas they were going to be killed on 5 July.<sup>13489</sup> Similarly, Prosecution Witness FAP testified that at Rango Forest, Kanyabashi gave instructions to the person in charge of the refugees, in order to ensure their safety, although their fate was sealed on 5 July.<sup>13490</sup> Prosecution Witness SD also testified that upon arrival at Rango Forest, Kanyabashi instructed the Interahamwe to protect the refugees and to inform him if any of the refugees died.<sup>13491</sup> The Chamber finds these testimonies reliable and concludes it has been established that upon arrival at Rango Forest, Kanyabashi gave orders to the Interahamwe as to how to deal with the refugees.

3.7 Training and Arming the Population, Roadblocks and Civil Defence

3.7.1 Training by Kanyabashi

3.7.1.1 Introduction

5109. Paragraphs 5.1, 5.12 and 6.31 of the Kanyabashi Indictment allege that between March and June 1994, Kanyabashi facilitated and assisted the military training of militiamen and certain members of the civilian population in Ngoma commune.<sup>13492</sup>

5110. As part of the charge of conspiracy to commit genocide against Kanyabashi, the Prosecution submits that between February and July 1994, Kanyabashi used his position and power to provide and participate in training civilians and militia groups, namely young Hutu men under the age of 40. They were trained in the use of weapons at the commune stadium in Ngoma commune. In doing so, Kanyabashi exercised effective control over those persons.<sup>13493</sup> These individuals went on to carry out attacks against Tutsi civilians, and thus participated in the preparation of the genocide.<sup>13494</sup> In support of these submissions, the Prosecution relies on the testimony of Prosecution Witnesses QAH, FAI, QG, FAM and Expert Witness Des Forges.

5111. The Kanyabashi Defence submits that Paragraphs 5.12 and 6.31 of the Kanyabashi Indictment do not allege a crime, as the training of civilians is not a crime.<sup>13495</sup> It asserts that Kanyabashi did not participate or instigate the military training of civilians in Ngoma commune. The Kanyabashi Defence asserts that the training of civilians took place in June 1994 and was a legitimate exercise in self-defence in light of the RPF's advance into Butare.<sup>13496</sup> In support of its submissions the Kanyabashi Defence relies on the testimony of Kanyabashi Defence Expert Witness Reyntjens.

5112. The Kanyabashi Defence further submits that the Kanyabashi Indictment is vague and fails to identify Kanyabashi's alleged subordinates and the dates and circumstances of the alleged training.<sup>13497</sup> The Chamber recalls that the Kanyabashi Defence first raised this issue in its Preliminary Motion for Defects in the Form of the Indictment on 9 October 1999. The Kanyabashi Defence requested that Paragraphs 5.1, 5.12 and 6.31 among others, be deleted on account of their imprecision and vagueness and, in particular, due to the failure to identify his alleged subordinates and provide specific time references.<sup>13498</sup>

5113. The Kanyabashi Defence further submits that the evidence presented by the Prosecution lacks credibility.<sup>13499</sup> It asserts that Witness QG is part of a group of persons who fabricated testimony,<sup>13500</sup> and that Witnesses QAH and FAM incited their co-detainees to implicate Kanyabashi.<sup>13501</sup> In addition, the testimonies of Prosecution Expert Witnesses Des Forges and Guichaoua fail to establish the criminal involvement of Kanyabashi in training civilians.<sup>13502</sup>

5114. In support of these submissions, the Kanyabashi Defence relies on the testimony of Kanyabashi Defence Expert Witness Reyntjens, Kanyabashi Defence Witnesses D-2-YYY, D-2-13-D, D-2-21-T, Ntahobali and Nteziryayo.

3.7.1.2 Preliminary Issues

5115. The Kanyabashi Defence submits that the Kanyabashi Indictment is vague, fails to identify Kanyabashi's alleged role in the training, his subordinates and the dates and circumstances of the alleged military training.<sup>13503</sup> Paragraphs 5.1, 5.12 and 6.31 do not specify dates, places, nor identify the people whom Kanyabashi is alleged to have trained.

5116. The Chamber notes that Paragraphs 5.1, 5.12 and 6.31 of the Kanyabashi Indictment make a general accusation that Kanyabashi facilitated the training of certain members of the civilian population in Ngoma commune between March and June 1994. The relevant paragraphs contain a broad date range, vague reference to venue, and fail to specify the nature of Kanyabashi's participation in the training. The Chamber therefore finds that the Indictment is defective.

5118. In the summary of his anticipated testimony in the Appendix to the Pre-Trial Brief, Witness QG stated that after seeing Kanyabashi's visit to the conseiller in his secteur, the conseiller said that he had been ordered by Kanyabashi to select Hutus to be sent for training in the use of rifles and traditional weapons. Neither the location of the training nor the time frame is specified in Witness QG's summary. The summary further stated that Witness QG would testify that he heard from people who were trained that Kanyabashi asked for the training to be done by military trainers from the École des Sous Officiers ("ESO").<sup>13504</sup>

5119. Witness QG's previous statement of 12 June 1996, disclosed to the Defence on 13 December 2001, over three years prior to his testimony, contains further details of the allegation. Witness QG stated that the visit by Kanyabashi to the conseiller took place at the end of March 1994 in Ngoma commune and that the training took place in Huye Stadium by

ESO trainers before being moved to Kamena Stadium.<sup>13505</sup> The Chamber finds that the substance of Witness QG's previous statement is consistent with the summary of its anticipated testimony contained in the Appendix to the Pre-Trial Brief with regard to a location and time frame for the alleged training allegation.

5120. Furthermore, the summary of Witness QAH's anticipated testimony mentions that the cellule conseiller came to see civilians with a list of those to train at Kamena Stadium. The summary does not specify in which cellule or commune the recruitment is alleged to have taken place. The summary further states that five days later, those who underwent the training met Kanyabashi. The Chamber observes that while the site of the training is contained in the summary, the identity of the trainees and the recruiters is not specified, nor is the month of the alleged training. Furthermore, Kanyabashi's alleged role in the training is not specified. The Chamber observes that the Prosecution provided the Defence with additional information in Witness QAH's previous statements of 28 October 1997, disclosed to the Defence on 4 December 2000.<sup>13506</sup> In this statement, Witness QAH stated that in April 1994, the cellule conseiller recruited civilians for military training at Kamena Stadium. In his subsequent statement of 11 April 2001, disclosed to the Defence on 23 May 2001, almost three months before his testimony before the Tribunal, Witness QAH stated that he underwent training at the end of May 1994 after Kanyabashi had instructed that all members of the cellules and all men under the age of 40 receive weapons training.

5121. Taking into consideration the contents of the Pre-Trial Brief and previous statements of Witnesses QG and QAH, the Chamber concludes that the Kanyabashi Defence was provided with timely, clear and consistent notice of his alleged role in facilitating the training of civilians in Ngoma commune such that the Accused suffered no prejudice in the preparation of his defence.

5122. The Kanyabashi Defence submits that Prosecution Witness FAI was not expected to testify against Kanyabashi insofar as the summary of Witness FAI's testimony in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief does not mention Kanyabashi.<sup>13507</sup> The Chamber recalls the Kanyabashi Defence was first informed of Witness FAI's intention to testify against Kanyabashi through his statement of 28 January 2001, disclosed to the Defence on 6 June 2002.<sup>13508</sup> In its Decision on Kanyabashi's motion to exclude Witness FAI's testimony, dated 6 July 2002, the Chamber ruled that, since the information on which FAI was going to testify was additional information discovered during the course of further investigations by the Prosecution, no basis existed to bar Witness FAI from giving evidence in court. The Chamber further ruled that, although the Prosecution had made late disclosure of Witness FAI's 28 January 2001 statement, the Kanyabashi Defence had three months to prepare for cross-examination of Witness FAI, and therefore Kanyabashi had adequate notice of the charges against him and suffered no prejudice from such late disclosure.<sup>13509</sup> In the present circumstances, the Chamber sees no reason to depart from its earlier ruling.<sup>13510</sup>

5123. The Chamber observes that the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief did not mention Witness FAM's intention to testify regarding Kanyabashi's alleged role in facilitating training.<sup>13511</sup> FAM did not mention Kanyabashi in relation to military training in his previous statement of 24 February 2000. He testified that this was because he was detained with Kanyabashi's children at the time.<sup>13512</sup> However, he mentions Kanyabashi in relation to other allegations, including the erection of roadblocks and the murder of Tutsis, in his previous statement of 24 February 2000.<sup>13513</sup>

5124. The Chamber finds that the material facts to which Witness FAM testified regarding the present allegation were set out in the Pre-Trial Brief and the witness statements as set out above. Furthermore, the Defence cross-examined Witness FAM over the course of four days. The Chamber notes that Witness FAM is illiterate but gave detailed testimony regarding the site, circumstances and identification of those who allegedly underwent training. The Chamber therefore finds the fact that he testified that the training took place in February 1994 will not preclude the Chamber from considering his testimony on this allegation, insofar as it may lend weight to credible witness testimony regarding Kanyabashi's role in training between March and June 1994.

5125. The Chamber finds that the Kanyabashi Defence had adequate notice of the training allegation and did not suffer prejudice from the testimony of Witnesses FAI and FAM on this allegation.

3.7.1.3 Evidence

Prosecution Witness QAH

5126. Witness QAH, a Hutu farmer from Ngoma commune and detainee in Rwanda at the time of his testimony, testified that before April 1994, when recruitment was planned for the Rwandan army, the bourgmestre received applications for recruitment.<sup>13514</sup> In May 1994, Bourgmestre Kanyabashi sent written instructions to Conseiller Pascal Habyarimana, ordering men under the age of 40 years to learn how to manipulate weapons.<sup>13515</sup> Witness QAH confirmed that such instructions would ordinarily be in writing and that in his capacity, he personally saw this letter.<sup>13516</sup>

5127. The civil defence training programme in Ngoma commune did not start until the end of May 1994 and continued until mid-June 1994.<sup>13517</sup> The criteria for selecting those who were to attend the training were age and ethnicity.<sup>13518</sup> He recollected that his conseiller told the group that no Tutsis could participate in the training.<sup>13519</sup> On receipt of the conseiller's instructions, the witness recruited 35 young men from his secteur and they walked to the Ngoma commune office to undergo military training.<sup>13520</sup> On arrival at about 7.30 a.m., they found Kanyabashi and some policemen who directed them to Kamena Stadium where the training was to take place.<sup>13521</sup> The training lasted nine or 10 days in total. There were also other training centres at Huye Stadium and the ESO.<sup>13522</sup>

5128. Witness QAH testified that he had known Kanyabashi since 1975.<sup>13523</sup> Before 1994, he saw Kanyabashi regularly even though he never spoke to him, because he considered Kanyabashi to be a person of authority, namely the bourgmestre of the witness' commune.<sup>13524</sup> The witness identified Kanyabashi in court.<sup>13525</sup>

Prosecution Witness FAI

5129. Witness FAI, a Hutu former civil servant currently detained in Rwanda testified that during the genocide, the bourgmestres received instructions to encourage youths to undergo training and that these youths volunteered for training in Ngoma commune.<sup>13526</sup> The training took part in an old building in Ngoma commune opposite the Court of First Instance.<sup>13527</sup> He saw approximately 60 youths who were undergoing or had undergone training.<sup>13528</sup> The responsibilities of the bourgmestres included following up on the youths who had gone to be trained to see how they were doing in their training, and encouraging them and boosting their morale.<sup>13529</sup>

5130. The training centre was under the responsibility of Jean Baptise Ruzindaza, the President of the Court of First Instance, and the training exercises were supervised by instructors from the ESO military college.<sup>13530</sup> The training was military in nature and involved physical fitness and the handling of weapons.<sup>13531</sup> The youths were taught how to assemble, disassemble and aim guns.<sup>13532</sup> Those who received training were not civilians, as they carried weapons, but they were not soldiers either.<sup>13533</sup> They were Ibisumizi and there was no difference between them and the Interahamwe.<sup>13534</sup>

Prosecution Witness QG

5131. Witness QG, a Tutsi from Ngoma commune, testified that two to four days after the death of Habyarimana, Kanyabashi came to meet with the conseiller at the secteur office.<sup>13535</sup> The witness did not attend this meeting, he learned about it from Joseph and Safari.<sup>13536</sup> He learned that after the meeting, the conseiller went to the cellule leaders and the cellule committee and told them to teach young Hutus how to use weapons.<sup>13537</sup> The weapons training took place at Huye Stadium and Kamena Stadium in Butare.<sup>13538</sup> Witness QG could not say precisely when the training took place, just that he learned about the training from Joseph and Safari who, along with Mingoti, Antoine, Edouard and Pierre Nsimiyeyezu, were among the youths who received the training.<sup>13539</sup> Some of those recruited, like Safari and Mingoti, later took part in attacks against Tutsis.<sup>13540</sup>

5132. Witness QG testified before the Tribunal that he knew Kanyabashi before April 1994; he recalled seeing Kanyabashi on two occasions after 6 April 1994.<sup>13541</sup> He identified Kanyabashi in court.<sup>13542</sup> Witness QG testified that he was told that “nothing was going to happen in Ngoma commune because Joseph Kanyabashi was liked by the Tutsi”.<sup>13543</sup> The witness confirmed that he said something similar in a prior statement.<sup>13544</sup>

Prosecution Witness FAM

5133. Witness FAM, a Hutu labourer and detainee in Rwanda, testified that he saw a document from the commune office, signed by Kanyabashi, instructing all young men to register for training.<sup>13545</sup> The training took place in February 1994.<sup>13546</sup> On cross-examination, Witness FAM rejected Defence Counsel’s suggestion that the training took place at the end of May 1994, reiterating that those who were trained in the handling of weapons received them in February 1994.<sup>13547</sup> According to the witness, the recruits had to be between 18 and 20 years old.<sup>13548</sup> He did not enroll because he was above the required age and he had a scar on his arm. The training that took place in February 1994 was not related to recruitment for the Rwandan army. He identified the young people who went through the training as Mutakirwa, Anastas, Hitimana, Joseph, Jean Bosco and Dumel, among others.<sup>13549</sup>

5134. Witness FAM testified that when the group arrived at the commune office they were boarded on the commune vehicle, known as Ruhumbangeera. The vehicle was driven by the commune's driver, Mathias Nsanzabahizi, and was authorised to move around by a permit signed by the commune authorities. This demonstrated that it was the commune authorities who had organised the transportation for the training.<sup>13550</sup>

5135. Confronted with the fact that he did not mention Kanyabashi in relation to military training or the distribution of weapons in his previous statement of 3 August 1998, the witness explained that he did so because he feared for his own safety and that of his family as he was detained with Kanyabashi's children at the time.<sup>13551</sup>

5136. Witness FAM testified that he had known Kanyabashi since 1985.<sup>13552</sup> He identified him as the bourgmestre of Ngoma commune and identified him in court.<sup>13553</sup>

Prosecution Expert Witness Alison Des Forges

5137. Alison Des Forges testified that she had found a letter in the Butare préfecture office from Tharcisse Muvunyi, dated 21 April 1994, asking the bourgmestres to recruit 10 young men per secteur for self-defence training.<sup>13554</sup> Training for civil defence differed from training for the military.<sup>13555</sup>

5138. She referred to Prosecution Exhibit 123, a letter from the director of the ISAR to the préfet of Butare and three bourgmestres, including the bourgmestre of Ngoma, regarding training and weapons, dated 25 May 1994, which, in her view, indicated a functioning administrative hierarchy responsible for the recruitment and training of civilians.<sup>13556</sup>

Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-2-YYYY

5139. Witness D-2-YYYY agreed with the Prosecution's suggestion that he was aware of young people in Butare town learning how to handle weapons during April and May 1994. The training took place at Kamena Stadium. Kanyabashi did not play any part in the recruitment of youths for this training.<sup>13557</sup>

5140. The witness stated that he had known Kanyabashi since 1974 or 1975 which was about when he became the bourgmestre of Ngoma commune.<sup>13558</sup> The witness stated that he was not friends with Kanyabashi and knew him only as the bourgmestre.<sup>13559</sup> However, he stated that he was a fair person who worked hard and did not discriminate against people.<sup>13560</sup> The witness identified Kanyabashi in court.<sup>13561</sup>

Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-2-13-D

5141. Witness D-2-13-D, a Hutu mill owner from Rango, testified that during his time at the Butare prison there was a group of people who were trying to incriminate Kanyabashi.<sup>13562</sup> The group included Witnesses FAM and QAH together with a certain Ruvugabigwi from Ruhengeri commune, and Mageza from Gikongoro.<sup>13563</sup>

5142. According to the witness, Mageza, together with Witness FAM, found Witness D-2-13-D in his cell and told him that they that they wanted to recruit him into their community. They said that there was a group that was going to testify against Kanyabashi in Arusha. The witness testified that he told them that he did not know anything about Kanyabashi and asked them to leave.<sup>13564</sup>

5143. The witness testified that he had known the bourgmestre, Kanyabashi, for a very long time since Kanyabashi worked at the university teaching hospital in 1974 or 1976.<sup>13565</sup> Kanyabashi was from Mpare secteur, Huye commune.<sup>13566</sup> In 1994, Kanyabashi had been bourgmestre of Ngoma commune for approximately 17 years. The witness clarified that in April 1994, he only saw Kanyabashi on two occasions.<sup>13567</sup> He stated that before the President's accident, he had never attended a meeting with Kanyabashi, but then stated that there were meetings in Tumba, Nkubi, Sahera and Rango. The witness identified Kanyabashi in court.<sup>13568</sup>

Ntahobali

5144. Ntahobali testified that at a meeting at Huye Stadium on 26 April 1994, members of the public requested that the authorities should train them in the use of firearms. Kanyabashi told the audience that he was going to consider the matter of training and firearms with the soldiers, and that he thought that it was the soldiers who were supposed to organise and establish a plan.<sup>13569</sup>

Nteziryayo

5145. Nteziryayo was referred to Prosecution Exhibit 115A (Letter from Tharcisse Muvunyi titled: “Recrutement des jeunes pour l’autodéfense populaire”, 21 April 1994).<sup>13570</sup> The letter requested that the recruitment be done immediately by the bourgmestre and the commune conseillers and would take place in the commune offices and the training would be provided by commune policemen.<sup>13571</sup> Nteziryayo testified that on reading that document when he was préfet of Butare, he understood that the recruitment had been requested by the Minister of Defence through the secteur commander who spoke to the bourgmestre telling him to immediately recruit the persons.<sup>13572</sup> The area commander was responsible for supervising the recruitment.<sup>13573</sup>

5146. Nteziryayo testified that the person responsible for training in Ngoma commune was Chief Warrant Officer Pierre Claver Ntirigira.<sup>13574</sup> Nteziryayo testified that shortly after he had assumed his duties as préfet, he read a letter addressed to the conseiller de secteur signed by Kanyabashi dated 20 June 1994.<sup>13575</sup> The letter invited the conseillers to select youngsters for training as part of the civil defence programme and informing them of an upcoming meeting with those who had undergone firearms training at Huye Stadium on 24 June 1994.<sup>13576</sup> Nteziryayo testified that he saw this letter at the préfecture office in mid- to late June 1994.<sup>13577</sup>

Kanyabashi Defence Expert Witness Filip Reyntjens

5147. Reyntjens testified that Kanyabashi played a role in the civil defence programme in Butare.<sup>13578</sup> He stated that in Butare, the recruitment of young people for civil defence started around the end of May 1994.<sup>13579</sup> According to him, it is likely that Kanyabashi participated in the recruitment of young people for training in weapons handling in May or June 1994. He testified that by 28 May 1994, Ntyazo commune had already been occupied by the RPF.<sup>13580</sup>

5148. Having been shown a letter from the director of the ISAR to the préfet of Butare and three bourgmestres, including the bourgmestre of Ngoma, regarding training and weapons, dated 25 May 1994, Reyntjens agreed that the letter was a request from the director of the ISAR asking the bourgmestres to consider a number of ISAR staff members in the training of civil defence.<sup>13581</sup> He disagreed, however, that this letter indicated that Kanyabashi was involved in the selection process for the civil defence training.<sup>13582</sup> ISAR was an agricultural research institute, based in Rubona which was not situated in Ngoma commune.<sup>13583</sup> He stated that he did not know why this letter was nevertheless directed to Kanyabashi.<sup>13584</sup>

5149. Reyntjens was shown a letter dated 20 June 1994 in which Kanyabashi instructed all his conseillers to identify individuals for civil defence training.<sup>13585</sup> The letter mentioned that Kanyabashi would hold a meeting with the trainees on 24 June 1994 at Huye Stadium from 8.00 a.m. and that those who were trained in the handling of weapons should leave their firearms at roadblocks with their colleagues who had not received training.<sup>13586</sup>

3.7.1.4 Deliberations

5150. It is not disputed that training of civilians took place in Ngoma commune in June 1994.<sup>13587</sup> It is disputed whether military training took place in Ngoma commune in April and May 1994 and whether Kanyabashi played any role in facilitating the training between April and June 1994.

5153. With respect to the sites of military training in Ngoma commune, Witness QAH testified that he personally attended military training at Kamena Stadium.<sup>13595</sup> This evidence is corroborated by the hearsay testimony of Prosecution Witness QG and Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-2-YYYY.<sup>13596</sup> The Chamber accepts the hearsay testimony of Witness QAH and QG that Huye Stadium was another site of military training; Witness QAH's testimony is corroborated by Witness QG's hearsay testimony.<sup>13597</sup> In addition, Defence Exhibit 539 (Letter from Kanyabashi to the conseillers of Ngoma commune regarding Civil Defence Training, 20 June 1994) states Kanyabashi's intention to hold a meeting with the trainees on 24 June 1994 at Huye Stadium at 8.00 a.m.<sup>13598</sup> The Chamber considers that the Prosecution has established beyond a reasonable doubt that weapons training also took place at Huye Stadium in Ngoma commune in May and June 1994.

5154. The Chamber observes that Witness QAH gave hearsay testimony that military training of civilians also took place at the ESO and that Witness FAI gave hearsay testimony that the training was supervised by instructors from the ESO military college.<sup>13599</sup> The Chamber notes that the hearsay testimony of FAI does not establish whether training took place at the ESO. The Chamber therefore concludes that the hearsay testimony of QAH is not sufficient to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that training took place at the ESO between March and June 1994.

5155. The Chamber notes that Ntahobali testified that at a meeting at Huye Stadium on 26 April 1994, Kanyabashi responded to the requests of members of the public to be trained in the use of firearms by telling those present that he was going to consider the matter of training and firearms with the soldiers.<sup>13600</sup> The Chamber notes that as a co-Accused, Ntahobali may be motivated to shift blame by attributing responsibility for acts committed during the genocide as being authorised by Kanyabashi. The Chamber will therefore give limited weight to the uncorroborated testimony of Ntahobali on this point (). The Chamber therefore finds that it is not established beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi stated that he would discuss the training of civilians with soldiers at the meeting of 26 April 1994.

5156. With regard to Kanyabashi's alleged role in facilitating the training of civilians in May and June 1994, Witness QAH testified that he personally recruited 35 young men from his secteur to undergo military training and that Kanyabashi directed them to Kamena Stadium where the training took place.<sup>13601</sup> Witness QAH also testified that in May 1994, Kanyabashi sent written instructions to Conseiller Pascal Habyarimana ordering men under the age of 40 to learn how to manipulate weapons and that he personally saw this letter.<sup>13602</sup>

5157. The Chamber finds the testimony of Witness QAH, that Kanyabashi instructed his conseillers to recruit young men for training, to be credible. The Chamber observes that QAH's testimony regarding the role of bourgmestres in recruiting and encouraging youths to undergo training from May to June 1994 is corroborated by Witness FAI who testified that the bourgmestres received instructions to encourage youths to undergo training and that it was the bourgmestres' responsibility to follow up on their progress.<sup>13603</sup>

5158. Witness QAH's testimony on Kanyabashi's role in training in his capacity as bourgmestre is further corroborated by the testimony of Witness FAM who testified that he saw a letter signed by Kanyabashi instructing young men to register for training and by Nteziryayo who testified to seeing a letter signed by Kanyabashi containing similar content to that seen by Witness QAH.<sup>13604</sup>

5159. The Chamber observes that Witness FAM did not mention Kanyabashi in relation to military training or the distribution of weapons in his previous statement of 3 August 1998. He stated that this was because he feared for his own safety and that of his family as he was detained with Kanyabashi's children at the time.<sup>13605</sup> However, the Chamber notes that he mentioned Kanyabashi in relation to other allegations in his previous statement of 24 February 2000 including the erection of roadblocks and the massacre of Tutsis.<sup>13606</sup> Therefore, the Chamber does not accept his explanation to be credible. Nonetheless, the Chamber finds that Witness FAM's testimony regarding the role of the commune authorities in the training is credible and reliable, despite his insistence that the training took place in February 1994, and lends weight to the eyewitness testimony of Witness FAI. Expert Witness Des Forges gave evidence that a functioning administrative hierarchy which included Kanyabashi was responsible for the training of civilians.<sup>13607</sup> Her testimony further lends weight to the eyewitness testimony of Witness FAI.

5161. Witness D-2-13-D also testified that Witness QAH was a member of the group that approached him in jail and asked him to join in testifying against Kanyabashi.<sup>13610</sup> Defence Witness D-2-13-D testified that Witness QAH told him that he wished to falsely incriminate

Kanyabashi because he had a long-standing grudge against him.<sup>13611</sup> The Chamber recalls Witness QAH testified that many years before the genocide he had been employed as a civil servant for several years. He testified that he resigned after a dispute with some colleagues and denies that he was sacked for professional misconduct.<sup>13612</sup> Witness QAH, however, testified that he had never spoken to Kanyabashi and only knew him as an authority.<sup>13613</sup> The Chamber attaches more weight to Witness QAH's testimony under oath than hearsay statements attributed to him by another witness. The Chamber recalls Witness D-2-13-D's testimony that when he asked the group to leave him because he knew nothing about Kanyabashi's alleged involvement, they apparently did so. The Chamber finds that Witness D-2-13-D's testimony does not impact the credibility of Witness QAH.

5162. The Defence also adduced evidence through Witnesses D-2-21-T to support the assertion that Prosecution Witness QG was an Ibuka member who participated in meetings where they were asked to falsely accuse Kanyabashi regarding events about which the witness had no personal knowledge.<sup>13614</sup> The Chamber finds that because Witness D-2-21-T lacked credibility, as discussed above (), her testimony does not undermine the testimony of Witness QG.

5163. Considering the evidence, the Chamber finds that the Prosecution has proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi, in his capacity as bourgmestre, was responsible for recruiting men for civil defence training in Ngoma commune in May and June 1994.

5164. With respect to the purpose of the training in Ngoma commune, the Chamber recalls the testimony of Witness FAI who testified that those who underwent military training were not civilians but not soldiers either.<sup>13615</sup> According to his testimony, those trained were Ibisumizi: there was no difference between them and the Interahamwe.<sup>13616</sup> Witness QAH gave hearsay testimony that he was told by the conseiller that no Tutsis could participate in the training.<sup>13617</sup> Witness QG gave hearsay evidence that some individuals who underwent the training later took part in attacks against Tutsis.<sup>13618</sup> The Kanyabashi Defence asserts that the training of civilians took place in May and June 1994 and was a legitimate exercise in self-defence in light of the RPF's advance into Butare.<sup>13619</sup> Expert Witness Reyntjens gave expert evidence that by 28 May 1994, Ntyazo commune had already been occupied by the RPF and the RPF was advancing on Butare.<sup>13620</sup>

5165. The Chamber declines to make a finding at this stage with respect to the purpose of the military training of civilians in Ngoma commune during May and June 1994. The Chamber will determine the purpose of the training, taking into consideration all the evidence with

3.7.2 Training by Nteziryayo

3.7.2.1 Introduction

5166. Paragraph 5.1 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment alleges that Nteziryayo facilitated and assisted the military training of militiamen.<sup>13621</sup> Paragraph 6.29 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment further alleges that between April and June 1994, Nteziryayo, the official in charge of civil defence for Butare préfecture, supervised the training of militiamen, at least once with the assistance of Ndayambaje.<sup>13622</sup> Paragraph 5.12 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment further alleges that Nteziryayo facilitated and assisted the military training of certain members of the civilian population in Ngoma and Nyakizu communes between March and June 1994.<sup>13623</sup> The Prosecution submits that Nteziryayo was directly involved in facilitating military training in an official capacity to give effect to the genocidal plan.<sup>13624</sup> In support of its submissions, the Prosecution relies on the testimony of Prosecution Witnesses QAH, FAM, FAI, RV, TO and QAL.

5167. The Nteziryayo Defence submits that the Prosecution failed to adequately inform Nteziryayo of the material facts of the allegations against him. The Nteziryayo Defence submits that all evidence implicating Nteziryayo in the weapons training in Ngoma commune, Ntyazo commune and Butare town should be excluded since it is outside the scope of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment.<sup>13625</sup> In the alternative, the Nteziryayo Defence submits that the evidence presented by the Prosecution lacks credibility. The Nteziryayo Defence relies on Defence Witness WUNBJ, Ndayambaje and Nteziryayo.

3.7.2.2 Preliminary Issues

5168. The Nteziryayo Defence submits that the evidence relating to Nteziryayo's alleged role in training constituted new material facts not pled in the Indictment.<sup>13626</sup> It submits the Prosecution failed to adequately set out Nteziryayo's alleged role in the training exercises or the acts or omissions alleged to have been committed by his subordinates.<sup>13627</sup>

5169. The Chamber recalls that the Nteziryayo Defence raised this submission in its Motion for Exclusion of Evidence filed on 23 January 2009. The Chamber further recalls that in its Decision of 25 February 2009, it denied Nteziryayo's Motion and noted that it would address issues relating to alleged defects in the Indictment, vagueness, credibility and the evaluation of evidence in its final deliberations.<sup>13628</sup> The Chamber will now address the Indictment paragraphs alleging that Nteziryayo conducted military training.

Training in Muganza Commune

5170. Paragraph 5.1 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment contains a general allegation that Nteziryayo facilitated the training of militiamen in the context of a conspiracy to commit genocide. Paragraph 6.29 of the Indictment alleges that between April and June 1994, Nteziryayo supervised the training of militiamen. The Chamber notes that Paragraphs 5.1 and 6.29 of the Indictment generally allege that Nteziryayo, along with others, facilitated the training of militiamen but does not identify those that Nteziryayo is alleged to have trained, nor the dates and circumstances of the alleged training. The Chamber therefore finds that Paragraphs 5.1 and 6.29 of the Indictment are unduly vague. Accordingly, the Chamber will proceed to determine whether Paragraphs 5.1 and 6.29 of the Indictment were cured of their defects through subsequent Prosecution disclosure.

5171. The Chamber observes that information regarding the circumstances of Nteziryayo's alleged role in facilitating the training of militiamen is contained in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief through the summary of Prosecution Witness SM's anticipated testimony. Witness SM's expected testimony stated that Nteziryayo was responsible for the training of militiamen with traditional weapons.<sup>13629</sup> Witness SM's previous statement of 19 June 1995, disclosed to the Defence on 16 October 2001, stated that Nteziryayo came to Muganza commune and taught the men and youth how to handle traditional weapons and organise themselves into ranks in order to attack. In his previous statement of 25 September 1997, disclosed to the Defence on 4 December 2000, Witness SM stated that Nteziryayo attended a meeting with commune authorities at which Nteziryayo explained to the militiamen how to use traditional weapons and what to do in case of an attack by the Inyenzi. A banana tree trunk had been stuck in the ground a few metres from the militiamen, who were trained with spears and arrows. He showed them how to aim at the banana trunk, which he compared to an Inyenzi.<sup>13630</sup>

5172. The Chamber notes that the summary of Witness SM's testimony and his previous statements fail to identify the month or months of the alleged training, stating broadly that the training occurred during the genocide. The Chamber considers that as a result, the Nteziryayo Defence did not have sufficient notice of this allegation to enable it to mount an effective defence. The Chamber therefore finds that the defect in the Indictment with regard to this allegation was not cured of its defect. In any event, the Chamber considers that the evidence is not sufficient to support a finding that Nteziryayo facilitated training at the Muganza commune office.

<sup>13630</sup> 19 June 1995, Statement of Witness SM, disclosed 16 October 2001; 16 April 1997, Statement of Witness SM, disclosed 23 May 2001; 25 September 1997, Statement of Witness SM, disclosed 4 December 2000. Witness SM did not mention Nteziryayo in his statement of 16 April 1997.

5173. The Chamber observes that there is no mention of Nteziryayo facilitating training at Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony and two weeks later at the Muganza commune office in the Indictment, the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief or the Prosecution opening statement. The summary of Witness TO's anticipated testimony in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief does not mention the witness' intention to testify to this allegation.<sup>13631</sup> Furthermore, TO's previous statements of 8 October 1995, 11 June 1997 and 16 October 1997, disclosed to the Defence on 1 October 2001 do not mention training.<sup>13632</sup> In the present case, the Chamber considers that the information regarding Ndayambaje's alleged facilitation of training at his swearing-in ceremony, and at a meeting at the Muganza commune office two weeks later, amount to new material facts. The Nteziryayo Defence did not have sufficient notice of this allegation to enable it to mount an effective defence. As a result, the Chamber finds that it would prejudice the Defence to consider the evidence of Witness TO on these allegations. In any event, the Chamber considers that the evidence is not sufficient to support this allegation.

5174. The Chamber recalls that in the summary of Witness QAL's anticipated testimony in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief, Witness QAL stated that she attended a meeting at the Muganza commune office in May 1994 at which Nteziryayo spoke to ask those present if they had prepared their weapons as Nteziryayo had advised. According to the summary, Nteziryayo then told them to sharpen their weapons so that they would be able to kill in one stroke. The people present at the meeting were advised to secure the nails properly in their clubs, and those with bows were advised to pull the strings well so that the arrows could travel further.<sup>13633</sup>

5175. No mention was made in the summary that Witness QAL intended to testify that Nteziryayo facilitated or participated in training at the Muganza commune office. Therefore, the Chamber does not find that the summary of Witness QAL's anticipated testimony provided the Nteziryayo Defence with adequate notice that he was alleged to have facilitated training at the Muganza commune office in late June or early July 1994. Furthermore, none of Witness QAL's previous statements disclosed to the Defence indicated his intention to do so. The Chamber therefore concludes that it would prejudice the Defence to consider the evidence of Witness QAL on this allegation. In any event, the Chamber considers that the evidence is not sufficient to support a finding that Nteziryayo facilitated training at the Muganza commune office at the end of June or beginning of July 1994.

Training in Ngoma and Nyakizu Communes

5176. Paragraph 5.12 of the Indictment alleges that Nteziryayo facilitated and assisted the military training of certain members of the civilian population between March and June 1994 in Ngoma and Nyakizu communes. The Chamber notes that while the Indictment specifies the specific communes in which Nteziryayo is alleged to have facilitated training and a period of four months, it does not identify the members of the civilian population Nteziryayo is alleged to have trained, nor the specific dates or circumstances of the alleged training. The Chamber therefore finds that Paragraph 5.12 of the Indictment is unduly vague and insufficient to enable Nteziryayo to prepare his defence. Accordingly, the Chamber will proceed to determine whether Paragraph 5.12 of the Indictment was cured of its defects through subsequent Prosecution disclosure.

5177. The Chamber observes that the summary of Witness QAH's anticipated testimony contained in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief stated that Witness QAH intended to testify that he completed his military training under the supervision of Nteziryayo at Kamena Stadium in Ngoma commune and that Nteziryayo taught the men how to dismantle and assemble guns.<sup>13634</sup> Furthermore, the Prosecution provided the Nteziryayo Defence with additional substantive information of the allegation through Witness QAH's previous statements of 28 October 1997 disclosed to the Defence on 4 December 2000, and 11 April 2001 disclosed to the Defence on 1 October 2001, three years before Witness QAH testified in April 2004.<sup>13635</sup>

5178. In his previous statement of 28 October 1997, Witness QAH stated that: (1) he underwent training at Kamena Stadium; (2) Nteziryayo and Chief Warrant Officer Ntirigira were the instructors; (3) the recruits were taught to handle guns, grenades and camouflage technique; (4) Nteziryayo taught the recruits how to assemble and disassemble gun parts; and (5) weapons were distributed to the trainees and five days later the trainees were introduced to General Gatsinzi at a ceremony at the Ngoma commune office.<sup>13636</sup>

5179. In his previous statement of 11 April 2001, Witness QAH stated that Nteziryayo trained him in the use of weapons in early June 1994 at Kamena Stadium in Ngoma commune.<sup>13637</sup> Witness QAH's previous statement provided that sometime at the end of May 1994, the conseiller, Pascal Habyarimana, acting on the orders of Bourgmestre Kanyabashi ordered all men under the age of 40 years to go for training in guns so that they would be able to protect themselves. Witness QAH stated that he was one of the recruits, that the recruits went to Kamena Stadium where they found Nteziryayo, Warrant Officer Ntirigira and two commune policemen. The training started on 28 May 1994. The trainers had FAL automatic rifles and showed the trainees how to dismantle and assemble the guns and how to use grenades. The trainees were taken to a firing range in a forest near the ESO where they practiced firing guns. The training ended in early June 1994.

5181. The Nteziryayo Defence submits that at the time of filing its Closing Brief, its motion requesting the exclusion of portions of evidence of several Prosecution witnesses, including Witness QAH, filed on 23 January 2009, was pending.<sup>13638</sup> The Chamber observes that on 25 February 2009 the Chamber denied that motion in its entirety. The Chamber considered it was inappropriate to deal with the motion during trial, and chose to decide such issues in its final deliberations.<sup>13639</sup>

5182. Having regard to the Chamber's finding that the Nteziryayo Defence received sufficient notice of the current allegation, the Chamber considers there is no reason to exclude the evidence of Witness QAH. Witness QAH's statements were disclosed two and a half years before Witness QAH testified. For this reason the Chamber considers the Defence had sufficient time to prepare Nteziryayo's defence with regard to this allegation. For the foregoing reasons the Chamber concludes that the evidence on training given by Witness QAH was properly adduced by the Prosecution and thus denies the Defence's request to exclude his testimony.

5183. Witness RV testified that he attended a meeting in Kirarambogo at which Nteziryayo explained that he was responsible for sensitising the population about how to manipulate traditional weapons and for encouraging youths to join the army.<sup>13640</sup> The Chamber notes that it may consider Witness RV's evidence insofar as it may lend weight to Nteziryayo's alleged role in facilitating military training in Ngoma commune, since the Chamber has found that the Defence had sufficient notice of this allegation. It will not consider Witness RV's evidence in respect of any other allegation that Nteziryayo facilitated training.

Other Individual Allegations of Training

5184. In his previous statement of 24 February 2000, disclosed to the Defence on 15 November 2000, Witness FAI mentions Nteziryayo's encouragement of youths to sign up for training at the Butare préfecture office. With regard to the Butare préfecture office as a location at which Nteziryayo facilitated training, the Chamber finds that Witness FAI's mention of Nteziryayo in relation to training in a single previous statement does not constitute clear notice of the allegation. The Chamber therefore concludes that Witness FAI's previous statement did not constitute clear and consistent notice of the allegation that Nteziryayo facilitated training at the Butare préfecture office.

5185. The Nteziryayo Defence also submits that the evidence from Prosecution Witness FAI in respect of the training in the use of weapons opposite the Court of First Instance in Ngoma commune should be excluded since it is outside the scope of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment.<sup>13641</sup> The Chamber observes that neither the summary of anticipated evidence for Witness FAI in the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief, nor any of Witness FAI's previous statements, mentioned that Witness FAI would testify that Nteziryayo was responsible for military training opposite the Court of First Instance in Ngoma commune during the genocide. The Nteziryayo Defence was therefore not given sufficient notice that Nteziryayo was alleged to have facilitated training in this location. The Chamber will not consider the evidence brought by this witness in its deliberations. In any event, the Chamber considers that the evidence is not sufficient to support a finding that Nteziryayo facilitated training opposite the Court of First Instance in Ngoma commune.

5186. The Chamber also notes that in view of the absence of any mention of training that took place in Nyanza or Ntyazo communes in the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment, the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief, or the Prosecution opening statement, the Chamber will not consider evidence led at trial relating to these allegations. In any event, the evidence is not sufficient to support a finding that Nteziryayo facilitated training in Nyanza or Ntyazo communes.

3.7.2.3 Evidence

Prosecution Witness QAH

5188. The civil defence training programme in Ngoma commune did not start until the end of May 1994 and continued until mid-June 1994.<sup>13645</sup> The criteria for selecting those who were to attend the training were age and ethnicity.<sup>13646</sup> He recollected that his conseiller told the group that no Tutsis could participate in the training.<sup>13647</sup> On receipt of the conseiller's instructions, the witness recruited 35 young men from his secteur and they walked to the Ngoma commune office to undergo military training.<sup>13648</sup> On arrival at about 7.30 a.m., the recruits found Kanyabashi and some policemen who directed them to Kamena Stadium where the training was to take place.<sup>13649</sup> The training lasted nine or 10 days in total.<sup>13650</sup>

5189. Witness QAH testified that the first time he ever saw Nteziryayo was at Kamena Stadium when he went there for training. The witness, who in 1994 was a military recruit under Nteziryayo, positively identified Nteziryayo in court.<sup>13651</sup> There were approximately 250

recruits in total.<sup>13652</sup> Nteziryayo and Senior Warrant Officer Ntirigira were in charge of the training and were assisted by two policemen; Canisius and Cassien.<sup>13653</sup>

5190. Nteziryayo addressed the group and asked them to make sure that there were no Tutsis among them before they began the training.<sup>13654</sup> Nteziryayo told the recruits that the purpose of the training was to counter the enemy.<sup>13655</sup> The training began at 7.30 or 8.00 a.m. and went on until 3.00 p.m. each day.<sup>13656</sup> Nteziryayo came every day to teach the trainees.<sup>13657</sup> Nteziryayo and Chief Warrant Officer Ntirigira taught them how to dismantle and re-assemble weapons, how to shoot and how to use grenades.<sup>13658</sup> One day the recruits were taken below the Ngoma military camp to the firing range where they were taught how to throw grenades and how to identify targets.<sup>13659</sup>

5191. Witness QAH testified that Nteziryayo's role at Kamena Stadium was twofold: he taught them how to operate arms and incited them to hate the Tutsis.<sup>13660</sup> On the first day of training, the witness heard Nteziryayo tell them, "[I]et us look around and make sure there is no Tutsi among us before we begin the training proper".<sup>13661</sup> Two days later, Nteziryayo told them again about the wickedness of the Tutsis who were living both in the country and abroad and that the Tutsis living in the country had cattle and money and had made their children available to fight them.<sup>13662</sup>

5192. Witness QAH testified that in early June, as they were being trained, Colonel Cyriaque Habyarabatura of the gendarmarie arrived at Kamena Stadium with a military soldier named Tharcisse Muvunyi. They spoke to Nteziryayo who told them that the Gitarama – Kigali road had been cut off by the RPF. According to Witness QAH, this was the first time he heard that the RPF was going to take over their town. Witness QAH testified that the recruits requested Nteziryayo that they be given guns so they could go fight and he responded that they would be given guns so that they could replace the soldiers who would then go to fight.<sup>13663</sup>

Prosecution Witness RV

5193. Witness RV, a Hutu civil servant in Rwanda and a detainee at the time of his testimony, testified that he attended a meeting in Kirarambogo chaired by Nteziryayo, who was head of civil defence in the region.<sup>13664</sup> Nteziryayo explained that he was responsible for educating the population to manipulate traditional weapons such as bows, arrows and spears and for encouraging youths to join the army.<sup>13665</sup>

5194. Witness RV had not heard of civil defence before May 1994.<sup>13666</sup> He stated that in June 1994 soldiers started to desert the army and he heard of the advance of the RPF over the radio. People were encouraged to train in the use of traditional weapons so that they could assist the soldiers. They told the population they would distribute weapons.<sup>13667</sup> The witness stated that Nteziryayo had some relationship with the civil defence force. He saw Nteziryayo at meetings dealing with the issue of personnel for the civil defence force.<sup>13668</sup>

Defence Witness WUNBJ

5196. Witness WUNBJ was in the second group of trainees.<sup>13674</sup> Candidates for training were chosen by criteria of physical appearance and good moral reputation.<sup>13675</sup> The training was provided by a soldier.<sup>13676</sup> The witness could not specify whether the candidates were Tutsis or Hutus.<sup>13677</sup> He testified that after the training firearms were distributed to the candidates by a warrant officer, whose name the witness cannot recall.<sup>13678</sup> General Marcel Gatsinzi did not come to Kamena Stadium; however the witness met him after the training outside the commune office.<sup>13679</sup> Along with other participants of the training he was waiting for Gatsinzi because they were told that the general wanted to ask them about the training they had received.<sup>13680</sup> The witness testified that to the best of his knowledge Nteziryayo never attended civil self-defence training.<sup>13681</sup>

Defence Witness D-2-YYYY

Nteziryayo

5198. Nteziryayo testified that he did not aid, facilitate or encourage youths to receive military training in order to facilitate the killing of Tutsis.<sup>13687</sup> He was never involved in any way with the recruitment of youth; he never asked anybody to recruit youths to be trained for the civil defence in Rwanda.<sup>13688</sup> He was not in a position to give instructions for training, particularly weapons training.<sup>13689</sup> Nteziryayo testified he did not attend any training sessions in weapons handling between April and July 1994.<sup>13690</sup> He never trained members of the population in the handling of arms in Kamena Stadium in Ngoma commune nor did he train recruits for Gikongoro and Butare préfectures under the authority of Colonel Simba and Senior Warrant Officers Rekeraho and Ntarugera.<sup>13691</sup>

5199. Nteziryayo testified that the bourgmestre was responsible for the recruitment of youths for training.<sup>13692</sup> Nteziryayo testified that when he became préfet he saw a document dated April 1994 from the area commander to the commune authorities and the bourgmestre requesting the recruitment of youths.<sup>13693</sup>

5200. With respect to the alleged military training of civilians at Kamena Stadium in Ngoma commune, the Prosecution relied on the testimony of Witness QAH. The Chamber notes that Witness QAH was a detainee in Rwanda at the time of his testimony and had been sentenced to death at his trial for his participation in the genocide. The Chamber will therefore approach his testimony with appropriate caution.

5201. Witness QAH testified that, on the conseiller's instructions, he personally recruited 35 young men from his secteur and attended military training at Kamena Stadium at the end of May 1994 with the other recruits.<sup>13694</sup> The Chamber observes that Witness QAH's testimony on this allegation is clear and detailed and finds his testimony on this allegation to be credible. Furthermore, his testimony is corroborated by the first hand testimony of Witness WUNBJ who spent one to two weeks undergoing weapons training at the stadium in mid- to late May 1994, and the hearsay testimony of Witness D-2-YYYY who heard that civilians were undergoing weapons training at Kamena Stadium at this time.<sup>13695</sup> Taking the evidence into consideration, the Chamber finds that the testimony of Prosecution Witness QAH, corroborated by the testimony of Defence Witness WUNBJ and the hearsay testimony of Defence Witness D-2-YYYY establishes, beyond a reasonable doubt, that the training of civilians took place at Kamena Stadium in Ngoma commune in May 1994.<sup>13696</sup>

5202. Witness QAH testified that Nteziryayo was responsible for the training of civilians at Kamena Stadium at the end of May 1994. The Chamber observes that Defence Witness WUNBJ underwent training at the same location over the course of one or two weeks between the middle and end of May 1994. Witness QAH's and Witness WUNBJ's testimony regarding the length of the training and its content were generally consistent. Both witnesses testified that the training consisted of learning to assemble, disassemble and shoot firearms and both witnesses agreed that the training was provided by soldiers. The witnesses differed, however, on the involvement of Nteziryayo in the training. Witness QAH testified that Nteziryayo personally trained the recruits in the handling of firearms while Witness WUNBJ denied that Nteziryayo was involved in the training.

5203. The Chamber finds, however, that Witness WUNBJ's account does not contradict that of Witness QAH. Witness QAH testified that he underwent training at Kamena Stadium at the end of May 1994, while Witness WUNBJ testified that he attended training at the stadium between the middle and end of May 1994.<sup>13697</sup>

5204. Witness QAH testified that there were a large number of trainees; approximately 250 recruits in total, while Witness WUNBJ testified that he was in the second group of trainees.<sup>13698</sup> More than one group of trainees was undergoing training at Kamena Stadium and Witness WUNBJ's testimony that Nteziryayo was not involved in his training does not vitiate Witness QAH's testimony that Nteziryayo participated in the training of the recruits that he himself attended. The Chamber considers Witness QAH's testimony that Nteziryayo trained recruits at Kamena Stadium to be clear and detailed and the Chamber finds him credible with regard to this allegation. The Chamber therefore finds that, through the testimony of Witness QAH, the Prosecution has proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Nteziryayo facilitated the training of civilians at Kamena Stadium in May 1994.

5205. The Chamber declines to make a finding at this stage on the purpose of the military training of civilians which took place at Kamena Stadium in Ngoma commune during May and June 1994. The Chamber will reserve judgement on this issue until a later stage in its

3.7.3 Nteziryayo's Words to Recruits at Kamena Stadium in Ngoma Commune

3.7.3.1 Introduction

5206. Paragraph 5.3 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment alleges that the incitement to ethnic hatred and violence was a fundamental part of the plan put in place. The Indictment alleges that the incitement was articulated before and during the genocide by members of the Government and local authorities.<sup>13699</sup> Paragraph 5.8 further alleges that from April to July 1994, Nteziryayo propagated incitement to hatred and violence and publicly incited the people to exterminate the Tutsi population and its "accomplices".<sup>13700</sup> Paragraph 6.31 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment alleges that Nteziryayo, as official in charge of civil defence for Butare préfecture, incited the population to slaughter the Tutsis in Butare préfecture.<sup>13701</sup> The Indictment alleges that between April and June 1994 Nteziryayo incited and also aided and abetted the population, including his subordinates, to slaughter the Tutsis in Butare préfecture.<sup>13702</sup>

5207. The Prosecution submits that in June 1994 at Kamena Stadium, Nteziryayo said to the newly trained recruits: "Go and exterminate, go and exterminate, thereafter you can then go to the battle front. . . You do not sweep dirt and leave it inside the house, you must take it outside of the house".<sup>13703</sup>

5208. The Prosecution contends that Nteziryayo employed these statements as incitement to find and kill Tutsis, and that they resulted in subsequent killings.<sup>13704</sup> The Prosecution further submits that Nteziryayo told these recruits to stop people at roadblocks and check their identity papers because there could be Inyenzi, namely Tutsis, who were to be killed.<sup>13705</sup> The Prosecution relies on the testimony of Prosecution Witness QAH.

5209. The Nteziryayo Defence submits that the evidence presented by the Prosecution lacks credibility, and that Witness QAH's identification of Nteziryayo was flawed.<sup>13706</sup>

3.7.3.2 Preliminary Issues

5210. Paragraphs 5.8, 6.31, 6.32 and 6.53 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment relate to incitement and were pled in support of counts. These paragraphs generally allege that Nteziryayo incited the population to kill Tutsis and further indicate that the incitement occurred in Butare préfecture. While these paragraphs allege that Nteziryayo publicly incited people to exterminate Tutsis over a four-month period in Butare préfecture, these paragraphs fail to provide any details of specific incidents of incitement. In particular, no reference is made to incitement occurring at Kamena Stadium or to the fact that this incitement was directed at the recruits trained there. The Chamber therefore finds each of these paragraphs to be defective.

<sup>13702</sup> Para. 6.32 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment (in support of all counts against Nteziryayo); Para. 6.53 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment (in support of all counts against Nteziryayo); Para. 6.59 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment (in support of all counts against Nteziryayo).

5211. The Chamber must then determine whether Paragraphs 5.8, 6.31, 6.32 and 6.53 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment relating to incitement were cured of their respective defects through subsequent Prosecution disclosures.

5212. Recalling the principles of notice previously articulated in this Judgement (), the Chamber observes that the witness summary grid in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief lists one witness, Witness QAH, who refers to Nteziryayo's presence at Kamena Stadium in Butare préfecture, during the military training exercises at that location. The summary for Witness QAH further indicates that Nteziryayo taught the men how to dismantle and assemble gun parts, that these men were given weapons in the presence of Nteziryayo, and that these men were later summoned and introduced to Marcel Gatsinzi, Nsabimana and Kanyabashi.<sup>13707</sup>

5213. The Chamber notes that this summary does not refer to the alleged statements made by Nteziryayo. While it does refer to Nteziryayo's presence at Kamena Stadium and links him to the training of these recruits, it does not specify as to any alleged inflammatory statements by Nteziryayo at this location, nor does it offer any time frame for this alleged incitement. The Chamber notes that the summary of the intended evidence of Witness QAH provided in the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief was listed as being brought in support of Counts 1 (Conspiracy to Commit Genocide) and 3 (Complicity in Genocide) against Nteziryayo, but not Direct and Public Incitement to Commit Genocide. The Chamber therefore considers that the Nteziryayo Defence was not provided with adequate notice of the Prosecution's intention to lead evidence of incitement at Kamena Stadium, and finds that the defects in Paragraphs 5.8, 6.31, 6.32 and 6.53 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment were not cured by subsequent Prosecution disclosures. Accordingly, the Chamber will not consider the Prosecution evidence insofar as it relates to this allegation.

3.7.4 Training by Ndayambaje

3.7.4.1 Introduction

5214. The Ndayambaje Indictment alleges that from late 1990 to July 1994, Ndayambaje conspired with others to devise a plan to exterminate the civilian Tutsi population and members of the opposition. The plan was alleged to consist of, inter alia, the training of and distribution of weapons to militiamen. The Ndayambaje Indictment alleges that Ndayambaje, together with others, adhered to and executed this plan and in doing so, organised, ordered and participated in massacres against Tutsis and moderate Hutus.<sup>13708</sup> Each of the Indictments further alleges that Ndayambaje assisted Nteziryayo, the official in charge of civil defence for

Butare préfecture, at least once with the training of the militiamen between April and June 1994.<sup>13709</sup>

3.7.4.2 Preliminary Issues

5219. The Chamber notes that Ndayambaje's preliminary motion alleged that Paragraph 5.1 of the Ndayambaje Indictment lacked clarity and precision. In particular, it alleged that the time frame was too imprecise, there was no specific mention of the identities of those with whom the Accused allegedly conspired or the capacity in which he acted, and there was no specification as to the components of the conspiracy.<sup>13718</sup> The Chamber dismissed the motion on the basis that the Defence had failed to show good cause warranting waiver of the time-bar and did not consider the merits of the application.<sup>13719</sup> Regarding Ndayambaje's motion for acquittal under Rule 98 bis, the Defence submitted, inter alia, that Ndayambaje should be acquitted of conspiracy to commit genocide because the Prosecution had failed to adduce evidence that Ndayambaje met, discussed or even knew his alleged co-conspirators.<sup>13720</sup> The Chamber dismissed Ndayambaje's motion on this point as it considered that the evidence adduced, if believed, could be sufficient for a reasonable trier of fact to find beyond reasonable doubt Ndayambaje's responsibility on the facts pled in Paragraph 5.1 of the Indictment.<sup>13721</sup> Furthermore, in Ndayambaje's motion on exclusion of evidence, the Defence sought the exclusion of the testimonies or parts of testimonies of 14 Prosecution witnesses because they concerned facts or elements not pled in the Indictment and because it did not have timely notification of those allegations.<sup>13722</sup> The Chamber denied the motion in its entirety, but observed that some of the matters raised could be considered at a later stage of the proceedings and that issues relating to the credibility and evaluation of testimony should be considered with the totality of the evidence.<sup>13723</sup> The Chamber finds that there is no ground to revisit its decision and will address the matters raised in the motion as they arise in the Chamber's deliberations.

5220. The Chamber finds that Paragraph 5.1 of the Indictment does not specify the individuals who are alleged to have received the training, the location, date or time, or Ndayambaje's alleged role in facilitating training. For these reasons, the Chamber considers that the Ndayambaje Indictment is defective.

5221. The Chamber will determine whether the Ndayambaje Indictment was cured of its defects through subsequent Prosecution disclosure. The Chamber notes that in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief, the summary of Witness FAU's anticipated testimony states that Witness FAU saw Ndayambaje and Nteziryayo participating in arms distribution and the training of youths.<sup>13724</sup> The Prosecution provided the Defence with further details of the allegation through Witness FAU's previous statements of 10 October 1999 and 22 February 2001 which were disclosed to the Defence on 14 March 2001. These statements contained the allegation that Ndayambaje facilitated the training of the witness at the commune office and at Ngoma military camp shortly before the RPF arrived.<sup>13725</sup> The Chamber considers that the information contained in the statements of Witness FAU was timely, clear and consistent, and therefore sufficient to inform Ndayambaje of the nature of the charges against him and to enable him to prepare his defence. The Chamber therefore finds that the defects in the Indictment were cured through the Prosecution's subsequent disclosure with regard to this allegation, and the Defence suffered no prejudice in the preparation of its case.

5222. The Chamber observes, however, that the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief does not mention the allegation of Ndayambaje facilitating training at his swearing-in ceremony or afterwards at the commune office. The summary of Witness TO's testimony in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief does not mention the witness' intention to testify to this allegation. Furthermore, there was no mention of training in Witness TO's previous statements of 8 October 1995, 11 June 1997 or 16 October 1997, disclosed to the Defence on 1 October 2001. The Chamber recalls that in its Decision of 1 September 2006, it denied the Ndayambaje Defence's motion for exclusion of the testimony of Witness TO. The Chamber stated that it was not satisfied that there was a basis to exclude the concerned testimony at that stage of the proceedings but that the matter may be considered at a later stage.<sup>13726</sup>

5223. At this stage, the Chamber considers that the information regarding Ndayambaje's alleged facilitation of training at his swearing-in ceremony, and at a meeting two weeks later, amount to new material facts. The Chamber further considers that the Ndayambaje Defence did not have sufficient notice of this allegation to enable the Defence to mount an effective defence. As a result, the Chamber finds that it would unduly prejudice the Accused to consider the evidence of Witness TO on these allegations. Therefore, the Chamber will not make a finding on whether Ndayambaje facilitated training at his swearing-in ceremony, and at the commune office two weeks later. In any event, the Chamber notes that the evidence was not sufficient to prove these allegations beyond a reasonable doubt.

3.7.4.3 Evidence

Prosecution Witness FAU

5224. Witness FAU, a Hutu farmer from Muganza commune and a detainee in Rwanda at the time of his testimony, testified that he joined the army at Ngoma military camp<sup>13727</sup> at the end of May or beginning of June 1994.<sup>13728</sup> Ndayambaje told the witness that if he refused to spill his blood for his country, dogs would drink his blood for free. For this reason, the witness joined the army and went for training to Ngoma military camp in a vehicle with Ndayambaje.<sup>13729</sup> At Ngoma military camp, soldiers taught the recruits to manipulate firearms. Prime Minister Kambanda and a priest called Martin came for some celebrations during which a competition was held. The winner received 5,000 francs and the others 2,000 francs. The trainees sang and danced and there were demonstrations in the dismantling and the assembling of guns.<sup>13730</sup>

5225. The training took 12 days but was not completed because the country fell to the RPF.<sup>13731</sup> The witness was told that he had to fight to prevent the country from being run over. He was not sure if the training was to make the recruits into soldiers.<sup>13732</sup> The witness did not fight in the battles of Butare and Ntyazo on 4 and 6 June 1994 since he had not finished his military training to become a soldier. He wore a military shirt and he participated in some fighting with advancing RPF soldiers until he was chased out of Butare. He subsequently fled to Zaire.<sup>13733</sup>

5226. The Chamber notes that Witness FAU was a detained witness at the time of his testimony, awaiting trial in Rwanda for crimes of extermination and genocide and will treat his evidence with appropriate caution.<sup>13734</sup>

5227. The Chamber notes the existence of numerous discrepancies between Witness FAU's previous statements and his testimony before the Tribunal regarding his participation in military training and subsequent fighting. In his 22 November 2001 previous statement, Witness FAU stated Kambanda visited those undergoing military training on 23 May 1994. In his testimony, he did not say this occurred in May.<sup>13735</sup> In his previous statement of 30 October 2001, Witness FAU stated that he was a soldier at Ngoma military camp in April 1994. However he testified he was a soldier at Ngoma military camp in June 1994, not April.<sup>13736</sup> The witness also testified that a number of incidents which his previous statements place as occurring in May, had in fact taken place in June 1994.<sup>13737</sup> He disavowed the portion of his 30 October 2001 previous statement which indicated that he had killed many people during the war, namely during the battle of Ntyazo on 4 and 6 June 1994. Instead, he testified that he was not present at Ntyazo in June 1994 but that he participated in fighting with the RPF as he fled Butare. He could not say how many people he may have killed.<sup>13738</sup>

5228. The witness explained the discrepancies between his previous statements and his testimony at trial by stating that the investigators had made mistakes in recording his statements.<sup>13739</sup> In re-examination, the witness stated that his confessions were given in different formats; in some he told the story of the events, while others were a question and answer format, which could explain the differences.<sup>13740</sup> While the Chamber accepts that the dates may have been wrongly recorded by Tribunal investigators, it does not accept the witness' explanation for the substantive discrepancies between his previous statements and his testimony at trial, in particular the witness' indecision over whether or not he participated in the battle of Ntyazo in June 1994 and whether or not he killed anyone during his flight from Butare.

5229. The Chamber also finds that Witness FAU's testimony contained internal discrepancies with respect to this allegation. The witness testified that he was not sure if the military training was for the army, and also that the training went on for about 12 days. On cross-examination he specified that he joined the army and underwent military training for a few days.<sup>13741</sup> Perhaps most pertinently, the witness testified that Ndayambaje persuaded him to go for training, whereas on cross-examination he stated that he was enrolled in the army through the secteur conseiller.<sup>13742</sup>

5230. Taking these discrepancies into account, the Chamber finds that Witness FAU is not credible on this allegation and that the Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Ndayambaje facilitated military training at Ngoma military barracks at the end of May or beginning of June 1994.

3.7.5 Weapons Distribution by Kanyabashi

3.7.5.1 Introduction

5231. The Kanyabashi Indictment alleges that Kanyabashi, along with other persons, was responsible for distributing weapons to militiamen and other members of the civilian population between March and July 1994.<sup>13743</sup> The Indictment alleges that the purpose of distributing weapons was to exterminate the Tutsi population and eliminate its "accomplices".<sup>13744</sup>

5232. The Prosecution submits that in the context of the killings that were already taking place in which the conseillers were involved, Kanyabashi was distributing weapons and ammunition in order to facilitate the killing of Tutsis.<sup>13745</sup> The Prosecution relies on the testimony of Prosecution Witnesses FAM and QAH, Defence Witness WUNBJ and Expert Witness Des Forges.

5233. The Kanyabashi Defence submits that the Kanyabashi Indictment is vague and fails to identify Kanyabashi's alleged subordinates or the dates and circumstances of the alleged distribution of weapons.<sup>13746</sup> In the alternative, the Kanyabashi Defence submits that the evidence presented by the Prosecution witnesses lacks credibility, and that the Prosecution failed to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi's distribution of weapons formed part of a criminal enterprise.<sup>13747</sup> The Kanyabashi Defence submits that the events must be placed in context. The Kanyabashi Defence submits that defending one's country when it is at war is not a reprehensible act and that weapons were distributed to conseillers of the secteurs on 28 May 1994 when the RPF was just 30 kilometres from Butare.<sup>13748</sup> The Kanyabashi Defence relies on the testimony of Defence Witnesses D-2-YYY, D-2-5-I, D-2-5-W, Innocent Rutayisire and Defence Expert Witness Filip Reyntjens.

3.7.5.2 Preliminary Issues

5234. The Kanyabashi Defence submits that Paragraph 5.1 of the Indictment does not specify the dates, places or circumstances, or identify the people to whom Kanyabashi is alleged to have distributed weapons. The Defence submits that the Indictment is therefore defective and has not been cured.<sup>13749</sup> The Chamber recalls that the Kanyabashi Defence first raised this issue in its preliminary motion for defects in the form of the Indictment on 9 October 1999. The Kanyabashi Defence requested that Paragraphs 5.1 and 5.13, among others, be deleted on account of their imprecision and vagueness and, in particular, due to the failure to identify his alleged subordinates and provide specific time references.<sup>13750</sup> In its Decision of 31 May 2000, the Chamber dismissed the Defence's request to set aside the Indictment for vagueness, but held that the Prosecution must clearly distinguish the acts for which the Accused incurs criminal responsibility under Article 6 (1) of the Statute from those for which he incurs criminal responsibility under Article 6 (3).<sup>13751</sup>

5235. The Chamber notes the Prosecution's allegation that Kanyabashi distributed weapons forms part of its case in relation to the count of conspiracy to commit genocide. The Chamber considers Kanyabashi's alleged distribution of weapons to be material to the count of conspiracy to commit genocide because it is a key element of the conduct imputed to Kanyabashi and forms the basis of the conspiracy charge. While the Indictment indicates the identities of those to whom Kanyabashi is alleged to have distributed weapons, it does not specify the dates and circumstances of the alleged distribution. The Chamber therefore finds that the information contained in Paragraph 5.1 of the Indictment did not provide adequate details to enable Kanyabashi to prepare his defence, and therefore considers Paragraph 5.1 of the Kanyabashi Indictment to be defective.

5236. The Chamber notes that Paragraph 5.13 of the Indictment makes a general accusation that Kanyabashi, along with others, distributed weapons to militiamen and certain members of the civilian population with the intent to exterminate the Tutsi population and its “accomplices”. The Indictment identifies the individuals to whom Kanyabashi is alleged to have distributed weapons, but does not indicate the dates or circumstances of the alleged distribution. The Chamber considers that Paragraph 5.13 of the Indictment is unduly vague and insufficient to enable Kanyabashi to prepare his defence. Accordingly, the Chamber will proceed to determine whether Paragraphs 5.1 and 5.13 of the Indictment were cured of their defects through subsequent Prosecution disclosure.

5237. The Chamber notes that the summary of the anticipated testimony of Witness QAH contained in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief did not mention Kanyabashi’s alleged role in distributing weapons.<sup>13752</sup> However, the Prosecution later disclosed Witness QAH’s prior statement of 11 April 2001 which stated that Kanyabashi was aware of the distribution of weapons in Ngoma commune.<sup>13753</sup> This statement was disclosed to the Defence on 15 June 2001, almost three years before Witness QAH testified before the Tribunal in April 2004. The Chamber therefore concludes that the Kanyabashi Defence was provided with timely, clear and consistent notice of his alleged role in distributing weapons in Ngoma commune, ensuring that Kanyabashi suffered no undue prejudice in the preparation of his defence.

5238. In addition, further information regarding Kanyabashi’s alleged role in distributing weapons is contained in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief which provided notice that Kanyabashi would be accused of distributing weapons through the summaries of evidence of four witnesses who did not testify at trial: Prosecution Witnesses FAT, QC, QE and RM.

5239. The summary of Witness FAT’s anticipated testimony stated that Kanyabashi participated in the distribution of arms to the conseillers, including in May 1994.<sup>13754</sup> The summary does not identify in which commune this distribution took place. The Chamber therefore finds that the summary in the Pre-Trial Brief was not sufficient to inform the Defence of the allegation against him. However, Witness FAT’s previous statement of 21 February 2001, disclosed to the Defence on 14 March 2001, stated that the distribution of weapons to the conseillers de secteurs took place in May and June 1994 in Ngoma commune and Butare town. The weapons distributed in May were given to Kanyabashi in order to be distributed to the conseillers.<sup>13755</sup>

5240. Witness QC’s summary in the Pre-Trial Brief stated that Kanyabashi was part of the Butare Security Council, which was responsible for civil defence and the distribution of weapons in his commune. Witness QC learned that Kanyabashi was in charge of the weapons in his commune and that he had written to all the secteur chiefs in his commune asking them to designate young Hutus for military training. He saw a Kalashnikov and grenades that a friend got from the commune office.<sup>13756</sup> In addition, the Chamber observes that in his previous statement of 13 June 1996, disclosed to the Defence on 4 December 2000, prior to the filing of the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief, it was apparent that these events took place in Ngoma commune.<sup>13757</sup> His statement reveals that at the height of the war, Kanyabashi was part of Butare's Security Council and that he had requested the secteur chiefs to designate young Hutus for military training. The time frame clearly fits within April to June 1994, as set out in the Indictment.

5241. Witness QE's summary in the Pre-Trial Brief stated that Kanyabashi regularly visited the home of Habimana, the conseiller of Ngoma commune, and that Witness QE heard Habimana giving instructions to killers. He stated that guns were given to Ngoma secteur for training and that the commune vehicle was used for transporting those being taught to use rifles.<sup>13758</sup> Witness QE's statement of 28 September 1994, disclosed to the Defence on 4 December 2000, prior to the filing of the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief, stated that six guns were given to Ngoma secteur to use for weapons training.<sup>13759</sup>

5242. Finally, Witness RM's summary in the Appendix to the Pre-Trial Brief stated that one night, he saw Kanyabashi distribute two rifles to the head of the night patrol and his deputy. He understood that Kanyabashi intended that they be used to kill Tutsis.<sup>13760</sup> Witness RM's statement of 18 June 1996, disclosed to the Defence on 13 December 2001, stated that he participated in night patrols in Butare town. One night in June 1994, Kanyabashi came about 6.30 p.m. and distributed two rifles to the head of the patrol and his deputy. During the patrols, Tutsis were killed.<sup>13761</sup>

5243. Taking into consideration the information contained in the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief and the disclosure of the previous statements of Witness QAH who testified, and Witnesses FAT, QC, QE and RM who did not testify, the Chamber considers that the Defence had timely, clear and consistent notice that Kanyabashi was alleged to have been responsible for the distribution of weapons in Ngoma commune and Butare town, that he distributed weapons to the conseillers and to others and that the commune office was used to store weapons and the commune vehicle to transport those learning to train individuals to use them. Kanyabashi was thereby informed of the material facts that the Prosecution intended to prove at trial and was able to prepare his defence. The Indictment defect was thereby cured and there was no prejudice in the preparation of his defence case.

5244. With respect to the alleged distribution of traditional weapons by Kanyabashi at Kabakobwa in April 1994, the Chamber observes that this allegation was not pled in the Indictment. The Chamber notes that Prosecution Witness FAM did not mention his intention to testify on this issue in the summary of his anticipated evidence in the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief.<sup>13762</sup> Furthermore, there was no mention of Kanyabashi's alleged distribution of traditional weapons at Kabakobwa in Witness FAM's prior statements of 3 August 1998, 18 August 1998 and 24 February 2000 or in subsequent disclosures by the Prosecution. Witness FAM was the only witness to testify to Kanyabashi's alleged distribution of traditional weapons at Kabakobwa. In the circumstances, the Chamber considers that the Kanyabashi Defence did not have notice of this allegation to enable him to mount an effective defence. The Chamber observes that the Kanyabashi Defence objected to Witness FAM testifying to alleged events at Kabakobwa during trial. This matter is considered by the Chamber elsewhere in the Judgement (). As a result, the Chamber will not consider the evidence of Witness FAM relating to the alleged distribution of traditional weapons by Kanyabashi at Kabakobwa in April 1994.

5245. The Chamber notes that Witness FAM also provided testimony regarding the distribution of firearms at the Ngoma commune office in February 1994. The Chamber considers that the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief makes no mention of the alleged distribution of weapons by Kanyabashi in February 1994. The Chamber therefore concludes that the Kanyabashi Defence was not provided with sufficient notice of this allegation.

3.7.5.3 Evidence

Prosecution Witness QAH

5246. Witness QAH, a Hutu farmer from Ngoma commune and detainee in Rwanda convicted of genocide at the time of his testimony, testified that he underwent training at Kamena Stadium at the end of May 1994.<sup>13763</sup> Guns were distributed among the recruits in early June 1994.<sup>13764</sup> About 35 people from the witness' secteur attended the training.<sup>13765</sup> Alphonse Nteziryayo distributed Kalashnikovs to those present, assisted by police officers and Chief Warrant Officer Ntirigira.<sup>13766</sup> Witness QAH stated that there were about 250 to 260 recruits when the weapons were distributed. They were given the weapons so that they could man the roadblocks as replacements for the regular soldiers who were deployed to fight the RPF.<sup>13767</sup>

5247. Witness QAH was employed by Kanyabashi as a tax collector in Ngoma commune between 1975 and 1979. He testified that he resigned after a dispute with some colleagues and denied Defence Counsel's suggestion that he was sacked for misappropriating funds. Witness QAH testified that he had personally never spoken to Kanyabashi and only knew him as an authority in the commune.<sup>13768</sup>

Prosecution Witness FAI

5248. Witness FAI, a Hutu former civil servant who was detained in Rwanda at the time of his testimony, testified that during the genocide, the bourgmestres received instructions to encourage youths to undergo training and that these youths volunteered for training in Ngoma

5249. Colonel Muvunyi carried out the weapons distribution at the end of the training, handing the weapons over to the soldiers responsible for the training for subsequent distribution.<sup>13771</sup>

Prosecution Expert Witness Alison Des Forges

5250. Relying on Prosecution Exhibit 124 (record of handing over of firearms issued by Kanyabashi to the conseillers de secteur in his commune, 28 May 1994), Alison Des Forges indicated in her Expert Report that Kanyabashi had 68 firearms, which he handed out to conseillers de secteurs on 28 May 1994, requiring each to sign a receipt noting the registration numbers of the weapons.<sup>13772</sup>

Ntahobali Defence Witness WUNBJ

5251. Witness WUNBJ, a detainee in Rwanda at the time of his testimony, testified that after undertaking weapons training at Kamena Stadium in the middle to end of May 1994, firearms were distributed to the recruits.<sup>13773</sup> Major Habyarabatura, Bourgmestre Kanyabashi and a warrant officer were present when the arms were distributed. The arms were generally distributed at the secteur level and received by the conseiller, or in his absence, by a distinguished person of the commune.<sup>13774</sup>

Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-2-5-I

5252. Witness D-2-5-I, a Hutu civil servant, testified that Kanyabashi's signature is on the bottom right corner of Prosecution Exhibit 124.<sup>13775</sup> He testified that the guns in question transited through Ngoma commune, but were distributed not by the bourgmestre but by soldiers. The soldiers brought the weapons to the commune for the purpose of distribution. He did not know whether Conseiller Uwizeye in turn distributed the weapons to the youth in his secteur.<sup>13776</sup>

Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-2-YYYY

5253. Witness D-2-YYYY, a Hutu civil servant,<sup>13777</sup> testified that he heard that the brigadier had distributed firearms outside the commune office at the end of May 1994, and was told that at least each secteur conseiller received three firearms.<sup>13778</sup>

Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-2-15-N

5254. Witness D-2-15-N, a Hutu trader, testified that there were many firearms at the commune office and when the order to go and hunt down people was issued, firearms were distributed. Shyirambere, the commune brigadier, was the commune authority who had handed the firearms to those manning the roadblock.<sup>13779</sup>

Nsabimana Defence Witness Innocent Rutayisire

5255. Innocent Rutayisire, a Hutu trader from Butare town, testified that Kanyabashi was not involved in civil defence nor was he involved in the distribution of weapons.<sup>13780</sup>

Kanyabashi Defence Expert Witness Filip Reyntjens

5256. Referring to Prosecution Exhibit 124, Expert Witness Reyntjens testified that Kanyabashi's role in distributing the weapons listed was limited to passing on instructions from the authorities.<sup>13781</sup> Reyntjens testified that within the framework of civil defence, traditional weapons such as bows, arrows, machetes and spears, as well as firearms, mainly Kalashnikovs, were distributed. The witness added that traditional weapons were useless in fighting the advance of the RPF and therefore appeared to be distributed at least in part for the genocide. On the other hand, the firearms may have been distributed with the aim of sending people to the front to stop the advance of the RPF. Reyntjens stated that some officers of the Rwandan army, who were aware that civilians were being armed for the purpose of sending them to the front, expressed their disagreement because those civilians could not fight against the RPF effectively.<sup>13782</sup>

5257. Nyiramasuhuko testified that during a Butare Security Council meeting held on 31 May 1994, she learned that firearms had been distributed in Butare urban commune on Kanyabashi's request. The bourgmestre wanted guns to defend himself because it was a time of war.<sup>13783</sup>

Ntahobali

5258. Ntahobali testified that following the meeting of 26 April 1994, weapons were distributed to members of the public who had undergone weapons training.<sup>13784</sup> He learned this from the conseiller at the end of May 1994.<sup>13785</sup> During his conversation with the conseiller he learned that the conseiller had received numerous firearms and that he had distributed them to the various places that it had been decided that roadblocks would be erected. The conseiller told him that this was in line with the wishes of the people expressed at the meeting on 25 April 1994.<sup>13786</sup>

5259. Ntahobali testified that there was a document admitted as an exhibit that shows who received and who distributed the weapons. All secteur conseillers in Ngoma commune received firearms according to that document, which states that they received the firearms on 28 May 1994.<sup>13787</sup>

5260. Ntahobali further testified that on 6 June 1994, his birthday, Grégoire Ngendahimana and Padiri requested him to go to a roadblock because instructions had been given for the erection of a roadblock by the conseiller.<sup>13788</sup> They told him that they had received a gun to be used in manning that roadblock. They also said that the conseiller had received weapons for distribution to the other roadblocks and that the weapons were being carried by men who had been trained for that purpose.<sup>13789</sup>

3.7.5.4 Deliberations

5261. It is disputed whether Kanyabashi played any role in the distribution of traditional weapons and whether he distributed weapons to militiamen between April and July 1994. It is also disputed whether firearms were distributed in April 1994. It is undisputed that firearms were distributed in late May and June 1994 when the RPF was advancing on Butare. It is disputed, however, whether Kanyabashi played any role in the distribution.

5262. The Chamber recalls that Ntahobali was the only witness to testify that following the public meeting of 26 April 1994 at Huye Stadium at which Kanyabashi spoke, weapons were distributed to members of the public who had undergone weapons training.<sup>13790</sup> finds that it is not established beyond a reasonable doubt that the conseillers distributed weapons at the end of April 1994.

5264. Through Prosecution Exhibit 124 (record of handing over of firearms issued by Kanyabashi to the conseillers de secteurs in his commune, 28 May 1994), the Prosecution introduced evidence of Kanyabashi's distribution of weapons to conseillers in Ngoma commune in May 1994. Defence Witness D-2-5-I, a civil servant who worked closely with Kanyabashi during the events in 1994 (), testified that Kanyabashi's signature was on the bottom of Prosecution Exhibit 124. Expert Witnesses Des Forges and Reyntjens also testified that Prosecution Exhibit 124 displayed Kanyabashi's role in distributing weapons. In light of the foregoing, the Chamber finds that the Prosecution has established beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi distributed weapons to the conseillers in Ngoma commune in May 1994.

5265. The Chamber observes that Witness FAI testified that weapons were distributed by soldiers after training took place opposite the Court of First Instance in Ngoma commune.<sup>13791</sup> Witness FAI pled guilty to genocide in Rwanda in 1997.<sup>13792</sup> The Chamber observes that as an accomplice witness, Witness FAI may have had an interest in attributing responsibility for acts he committed during the genocide as being authorised by the authorities and therefore officially sanctioned. Accordingly, the Chamber will treat his evidence with appropriate caution. Furthermore, the Chamber notes that Witness FAI's testimony on this point is uncorroborated. While the Chamber has discretion to rely on the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice witness, in the present case the Chamber retains reservations over the credibility of his testimony in this respect. The Chamber therefore finds that the Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that weapons were distributed by soldiers after training opposite the Court of First Instance in Ngoma commune in May and/or June 1994.

5266. The Chamber observes that Prosecution Witness QAH and Ntahobali Defence Witness WUNBJ testified that weapons were distributed to trainees at Kamena Stadium in Ngoma commune at the end of May and beginning of June 1994. Witness QAH was a detainee in Rwanda at the time of his testimony.<sup>13793</sup> The Chamber will therefore consider his testimony with appropriate caution.

5267. The Chamber also notes that Witness QAH is alleged to be part of a group of individuals who wish to falsely incriminate Kanyabashi.<sup>13794</sup> Defence Witness D-2-13-D testified that QAH told him in prison that he wished to falsely incriminate Kanyabashi because he had a long-standing grudge against him.<sup>13795</sup> The Chamber notes its previous observation that it will treat the testimony of Witness D-2-13-D with appropriate caution (). With respect to Defence Counsel's suggestion that Witness QAH harboured a grudge against Kanyabashi because he was sacked from his job in 1979 for misappropriating funds,<sup>13796</sup> the Chamber accepts Witness QAH's explanation that he did not know Kanyabashi personally, only in his capacity as a commune authority and finds that there is no merit to this assertion. The Chamber observes that Witness QAH stopped working as a tax collector in Ngoma commune 25 years before he testified at trial and the Defence's assertion that he held a grudge does not affect his credibility on this allegation. The Chamber thus considers that Defence Witness D-2-13-D's account is not substantiated.

5268. Witness QAH does not allege that Kanyabashi played a specific role in the distribution of weapons at Kamena Stadium, merely that the distribution took place in his commune. Witness QAH testified that Alphonse Nteziryayo distributed Kalashnikovs among those who had undergone training at Kamena Stadium in early June 1994, assisted by police officers and Chief Warrant Officer Ntirigira.<sup>13797</sup> Witness QAH stated that there were about 250 to 260 recruits when the weapons were distributed and they were given the weapons so that they could man the roadblocks as replacements for the regular soldiers who were deployed to fight the RPF.<sup>13798</sup> The Chamber finds Witness QAH's eyewitness testimony regarding this allegation to be detailed, credible and consistent.

5269. Furthermore, Witness QAH's testimony is corroborated by Witness WUNBJ's eyewitness account that after undertaking weapons training at Kamena Stadium in the middle to end of May 1994, firearms were distributed to the recruits.<sup>13799</sup> The Chamber therefore finds that the Prosecution has proven beyond a reasonable doubt that firearms were distributed by soldiers at Kamena Stadium at the end of May and/or early June 1994.

5270. The Chamber observes that the Prosecution did not bring any evidence to support the allegation that Kanyabashi had knowledge of the weapons distribution at Kamena Stadium in May or June 1994. Ntahobali Defence Witness WUNBJ testified that Kanyabashi was present when the arms were distributed.<sup>13800</sup> The Chamber observes that no other witness corroborates Witness WUNBJ's assertion that Kanyabashi had knowledge of the distribution of weapons by soldiers at Kamena Stadium in May and June 1994 and will not rely on the evidence of this witness in this respect. The Chamber therefore finds that the Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi had knowledge of the weapons distribution at Kamena Stadium.

5271. The Chamber declines to make a finding at this stage with respect to the purpose of the weapons distribution at Kamena Stadium in May or June 1994. The Chamber will determine the purpose of the weapons distribution, taking into consideration all the evidence with respect to military training and the civil defence system, at a later stage of the Judgement.

3.7.6 Weapons Distribution by Nteziryayo

3.7.6.1 Introduction

5272. The Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment alleges that Nteziryayo was responsible for distributing weapons to militiamen between late 1990 and July 1994.<sup>13801</sup> The Indictment further alleges that Nteziryayo distributed weapons to militiamen and certain carefully selected members of the civilian population with the intent to exterminate the Tutsi population and eliminate its “accomplices”.<sup>13802</sup> Between April and June 1994, Nteziryayo, the official in charge of civil defence for Butare préfecture, distributed weapons to militiamen, at least once with the assistance of Ndayambaje.<sup>13803</sup> Each of the Indictments alleges that from April to July 1994, in the course of the massacres, some soldiers gave assistance to militiamen, notably by providing them with weapons.<sup>13804</sup> In support of these submissions, the Prosecution relies on the testimony of Prosecution Witnesses QAH, FAI, FAM and QBV.<sup>13805</sup>

5273. In addition to its submissions on defects in the Nteziryayo and Nsabimana Indictment considered below, the Nteziryayo Defence submits that Nteziryayo was not responsible, and did not participate in, the distribution of weapons to civilians and/or militiamen. The Nteziryayo Defence relies on Defence Witnesses WUNBJ, AND-16, AND-50 and Nteziryayo.

3.7.6.2 Preliminary Issues

5274. The Nteziryayo Defence submits that the allegation that Nteziryayo distributed weapons is unduly vague and was not sufficiently pled in the Indictment.<sup>13806</sup> The Prosecution failed to adequately set out Nteziryayo’s alleged role in the distribution of weapons or the acts or omissions alleged to have been committed by his subordinates. The Chamber recalls that in its Decision of 25 February 2009, it denied Nteziryayo’s Motion for Exclusion of Evidence and stated that it would address issues relating to alleged defects in the Indictment, vagueness, credibility and evaluation of evidence in its final deliberations.<sup>13807</sup>

5275. The Chamber notes that Paragraphs 5.1, 5.13 and 6.29 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment make a general accusation that Nteziryayo, along with others, distributed weapons to militiamen and certain carefully selected members of the civilian population but do not specify the dates or locations of the alleged distributions.

5276. The Chamber notes that Paragraph 5.1 of the Indictment sets forth a four year time span and states that, in general, as part of a conspiracy of which Nteziryayo was a part, militiamen were trained and distributed weapons. This paragraph lacks crucial details, including any location, specific date or indication as to who distributed weapons. Paragraph 5.13 states that Nteziryayo and others distributed weapons to militiamen in Butare préfecture. However, this paragraph is not in support of counts, and the identification of Butare préfecture is insufficiently specific to allow the Defence to properly investigate such a charge. Finally, Paragraph 6.29 alleges that Nteziryayo went to Butare préfecture and that between April and June 1994, Nteziryayo supervised the training of militiamen and distributed weapons to them. Again, the paragraph does not specify a location other than Butare préfecture and sets forth a period of three months.

5277. The Chamber therefore finds that Paragraphs 5.1, 5.13 and 6.29 of the Indictment are unduly vague, insufficient to enable Nteziryayo to adequately prepare his defence and therefore defective. Bearing in mind the principles of notice previously articulated in this Judgement (), the Chamber will consider whether the specific Prosecution allegations were cured by subsequent disclosures.

5278. The Nteziryayo Defence submits that the following allegations were not sufficiently pled in the Indictment: (1) Nteziryayo's alleged distribution of weapons in February 1994; (2) Nteziryayo's alleged distribution of weapons at Kabakobwa in April 1994; (3) Nteziryayo's alleged role in the distribution of weapons at a roadblock in Kibilizi secteur on 23 April 1994; and (4) Nteziryayo's alleged distribution of weapons at Kamena Stadium in early June 1994. The Chamber will review these submissions in turn.

5279. The Chamber notes that the summary of Witness FAM's anticipated testimony contained in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief states that Nteziryayo was the most senior military official in Butare and he supervised the recruitment and training of youths. When the training was over, Nteziryayo distributed guns to those who had participated.<sup>13808</sup>

5280. Witness FAM did not mention Nteziryayo in his three confessional statements of 18 August 1998. In his previous statement of 24 February 2000, Witness FAM stated that Nteziryayo was the most senior military official in Butare and in February 1994 recruitment and training of youths was done under his supervision. Nteziryayo refused to recruit the witness for training in the handling of weapons, because he had a scar on his left arm. In mid-March, when the training was over, Nteziryayo distributed guns to those who had participated. These were the same youths who later came to be in charge of roadblocks during the genocide, together with the local population.<sup>13809</sup> The Chamber observes that this previous statement was disclosed to the Defence on 1 October 2001.

5281. Witness FAM's statement fails to provide additional details such as the location of the alleged training and distribution of weapons, which the Chamber considers is a material detail necessary for allowing Nteziryayo to prepare a defence. As such, the information provided in Witness FAM's statement did not suffice to cure the defect in Indictment Paragraphs 5.1, 5.13 and 6.29. For this reason, the Chamber will not make a finding against Nteziryayo with respect to this allegation.

5282. As concerns the alleged distribution of weapons at Kabakobwa, the Chamber notes that the only reference linking Nteziryayo to the Kabakobwa massacre is found in the summary of Prosecution Witness FAM's anticipated testimony in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief, which states that Nteziryayo brought soldiers to kill the Tutsis gathered at Kabakobwa.<sup>13810</sup> No mention is made of distribution of weapons. Furthermore, no mention is made of Nteziryayo's alleged distribution of weapons in Witness FAM's subsequent statement of 24 February 2000. The summary of Witness FAM's anticipated evidence states that one Friday in April 1994, Nteziryayo arrived at Kabakobwa onboard a white Pajero followed by a military truck full of soldiers and that on the same Friday, the Tutsis who had gathered at Kabakobwa were killed by soldiers brought there by Nteziryayo.<sup>13811</sup>

5283. The Chamber considers that the disclosure provided by the Prosecution in the form of Witness FAM's summary of anticipated testimony and Witness FAM's previous statements is inconsistent, and thus did not cure the defect in the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment with regard to the alleged distribution of weapons by Nteziryayo at Kabakobwa. Thus, the Chamber will not consider evidence presented on the alleged distribution of weapons by Nteziryayo at Kabakobwa in support of counts against Nteziryayo.

5284. Turning to the alleged distribution of weapons at a roadblock in Kibilizi secteur, the Chamber observes that Witness QBV's anticipated testimony in the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief mentioned that Muvunyi distributed 20 grenades to attackers in Kibilizi secteur. It did not mention, however, the distribution of any other types of weapons or a roadblock. In his previous statement of 11 October 1998, Witness QBV stated that on 23 April 1994, Nteziryayo and Muvunyi were passing through Kibilizi secteur in Mugusa commune. Muvunyi distributed grenades to the youths who had undergone training. Muvunyi handed over the grenades to an influential trader who was in charge of the roadblocks in the commune.<sup>13812</sup> In his second statement of 11 May 2000, Witness QBV stated that on 23 April 1994, Nteziryayo incited the Hutu youth to kill Tutsis and Muvunyi distributed grenades to those that had undergone training, including the trader Ndayisaba.<sup>13813</sup> In a third statement of 30 March 2001, Witness QBV stated that on 23 April 1994, Muvunyi and Nteziryayo brought firearms intended for the commune which were distributed on the same day by Brigadier Athanase.<sup>13814</sup>

5285. The Chamber finds that the summary of Witness QBV's anticipated testimony in the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief was sufficient to put Nteziryayo on notice that he was alleged to have been present with Muvunyi while grenades were distributed to Hutu youths in Mugusa commune on 22 or 23 April 1994. Witness QBV's previous statements of 11 October 1999, 11 May 2000 and 30 March 2001 are clear and consistent in their assertion that Nteziryayo was present during the distribution of weapons in Kibilizi secteur on 23 April 1994 and were disclosed to the Defence between 15 November 2000 and 20 September 2001, the last disclosure taking place approximately six months before Witness QBV testified at trial. As such, disclosure occurred in a timely manner. The Chamber therefore concludes that the Nteziryayo Defence was provided with sufficient notice that the Prosecution intended to bring evidence regarding the alleged distribution of weapons in Kibilizi secteur, Mugusa commune, on 23 April 1994,<sup>13815</sup> such that Paragraphs 5.1, 5.13 and 6.29 of the Indictment were cured of their defect.

5286. Information regarding the allegation that Nteziryayo distributed weapons to civilians who had undergone military training at Kamena Stadium is contained in the summary of Witness QAH's anticipated testimony in the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief.<sup>13816</sup> In a previous statement of 28 October 1997, Witness QAH stated that Nteziryayo and Chief Warrant Officer Ntirigira instructed recruits in military training at Kamena Stadium and weapons were distributed after the training in their presence by Chief Warrant Officer Ntirigira and Colonel Habyarabatura.<sup>13817</sup>

5287. In his previous statement of 11 April 2001, Witness QAH stated that in early June 1994, when the witness was undergoing training at Kamena Stadium, Nteziryayo was about to provide the recruits with guns so that they could kill the Tutsis. At this time, the RPF were controlling the route from Gitarama to Kigali. The recruits requested that Nteziryayo take them to the battlefield but he refused, stating that they would be provided with guns but would replace the soldiers in Butare town who were maintaining security, while the soldiers would go to the front. After Nteziryayo addressed the recruits, Muvunyi and Major Habyarabatura went away in a jeep, returning 30 minutes later with Kalashnikovs which they gave to Nteziryayo to distribute to the recruits. Nteziryayo and two commune policemen distributed the guns according to the recruits' secteurs and each of the eight secteurs of Ngoma commune received eight or nine guns.<sup>13818</sup>

5288. The Prosecution disclosed to the Nteziryayo Defence Witness QAH's first statement of 28 October 1997 in November 1998, and the second statement of 11 April 2001 in June 2001, thus well before Witness QAH testified before the Tribunal in April 2004.

5289. The Chamber finds that the information contained in the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief and Witness QAH's previous statements is clear and consistent and was disclosed to the Defence in a timely fashion. Each statement places Nteziryayo in Kamena Stadium during the military training and describes him taking an active role in the distribution: physically handing guns to the recruits, or simply being present while his colleagues distributed them. The Chamber is of the view that these sources of information sufficiently informed the Defence of the Prosecution's intention to lead evidence that Nteziryayo was involved in the distribution of weapons following the military training of recruits at Kamena Stadium in Ngoma commune in June 1994. The Chamber therefore concludes that the evidence on the alleged distribution of weapons by Nteziryayo, given by Witness QAH, was properly adduced by the Prosecution and it will consider this evidence in support of the Prosecution's submissions.

3.7.6.3 Weapons Distribution at Kibilizi Secteur, Mugusa Commune

3.7.6.3.1 Evidence

Prosecution Witness QBV

5290. Witness QBV, a Hutu farmer from Mugusa commune and detainee who had confessed but not yet been sentenced at the time of his testimony,<sup>13819</sup> testified that he had participated in Interahamwe training from 7 April 1994 at the Mugusa commune office on six occasions, but he fell ill and did not complete the training.<sup>13820</sup>

5291. Nteziryayo arrived at a roadblock on the Butare-Mugusa road in Kibilizi secteur at about 2.00 p.m. on 22 April 1994.<sup>13821</sup> He was travelling with Muvunyi in a red double-cabin pickup, carrying guns, grenades and other tools in the back.<sup>13822</sup> They were both wearing military uniforms.<sup>13823</sup> The witness was two to three metres away from Nteziryayo when Nteziryayo introduced himself and Muvunyi to the crowd of approximately 200 people assembled at the roadblock.<sup>13824</sup> Nteziryayo saw that Witness QBV was carrying an axe and asked the witness his ethnicity and how he came to be in possession of the axe. Witness QBV told him that it had been given to him by soldiers from the Gikonko barracks.<sup>13825</sup> Conseiller Gasana told Nteziryayo that Witness QBV had undergone weapons training and that he was in charge of the roadblock.<sup>13826</sup>

5292. Witness QBV testified that Muvunyi took three rifles, two Kalashnikovs, an M16 and a box of cartridges from the back of the red pickup, which he gave to Nteziryayo and who in turn passed them to the conseiller. Muvunyi then gave a box of 30 Chinese-type grenades to Nteziryayo which he gave to the businessman Ndayisaba.<sup>13827</sup> Muvunyi gave a carton of matches to Nteziryayo who handed them over to Leodomir Mwimbanzu, the secteur President of the MRND Party.<sup>13828</sup>

5294. In cross-examination, when it was put to Witness QBV that his prior statements only discussed the distribution of grenades, but not other weapons such as Kalashnikovs, M16s or matches, Witness QBV testified that perhaps the writer of his statements did not properly follow the order of his statements, and that his statements were just provisional documents.<sup>13833</sup>

5295. Witness QBV testified that at the time of giving his statements he was detained with some of Nteziryayo's relatives, including one Nshimabarezi, Nteziryayo's brother-in-law, who pressured him not to give the Tribunal investigators many details that would incriminate Nteziryayo, but rather to say that only Muvunyi distributed weapons.<sup>13834</sup>

Prosecution Witness FAM

5296. Witness FAM testified that Nteziryayo was involved in the distribution of weapons and ammunition at roadblocks during the massacres.<sup>13835</sup> The weapons were made available by Nteziryayo, but it was the driver of the commune office, Nsanzabahizi, who was in charge of the weapons and ammunition.<sup>13836</sup>

Nteziryayo Defence Witness AND-16

5297. Witness AND-16, a Hutu businessman from Mugusa commune testified that roadblocks were erected in his commune around 21 or 22 April 1994, on the orders of the conseiller, Gasana.<sup>13837</sup> The main roadblock was in Sakindi, Kibilizi secteur, and it was under the responsibility of Witness QBV.<sup>13838</sup> Witness QBV controlled that roadblock.<sup>13839</sup> Witness AND-16 never saw any soldiers at the roadblocks; only civilians were involved.<sup>13840</sup>

5298. Weapons were not distributed at the roadblock manned by Witness QBV on 22 April 1994, or prior to this date in the secteur. Those present at the roadblock had traditional weapons including clubs, and those that had weapons had obtained them from elsewhere.<sup>13841</sup> People killed at the roadblock were killed with traditional weapons such as clubs and hoes, and not with guns or other modern weapons. Witness AND-16 denied that Nteziryayo gave grenades to him at the roadblock manned by Witness QBV. Witness AND-16 denied that Nteziryayo had given weapons to him, the conseiller and other authorities at the roadblock that Witness QBV was manning and also denied that he was told that those weapons were to be used to kill Tutsis.<sup>13842</sup>

5299. Witness AND-16 had three grenades in his possession but he had not received them from Nteziryayo.<sup>13843</sup> Witness AND-16 bought the grenades from a cousin<sup>13844</sup> on 15 April 1994 in order to provide for the safety of his family and his property.<sup>13845</sup> Otherwise, he said members of the population made traditional weapons such as clubs, machetes and other traditional weapons.<sup>13846</sup> Witness AND-16 testified that he believed that his cousin obtained the grenades from a soldier, Antoine Ngwije, who lived in Akabanga cellule, in Kibilizi secteur. The witness said he saw him carrying grenades but he did not know where he obtained them. The witness also said that a certain person by the name Emmanuel also had grenades but he did not know how he had obtained them.<sup>13847</sup> Witness AND-16 testified that Nteziryayo did not go to Mugusa commune between April and July 1994.<sup>13848</sup>

5300. Witness AND-5, a Hutu policeman from Mugusa commune and a detainee appealing a life sentence for crimes committed during the 1994 genocide at the time of his testimony, testified that Nteziryayo could not have distributed weapons at a roadblock in Kibilizi secteur on 22 April 1994, since Nteziryayo did not visit Mugusa commune between April and June 1994.<sup>13849</sup>

5301. Witness AND-5 testified that in early June 1994 the commune received a consignment of weapons from the ESO camp.<sup>13850</sup> These weapons were distributed at roadblocks, after the massacres.<sup>13851</sup> Witness AND-5 believed that Colonel Aloys Simba was in charge of civilian defence in the Butare and Gikongoro préfectures at this time.<sup>13852</sup>

5302. On cross-examination, the Prosecution suggested to Witness AND-5 that some of the guns that Witness AND-5 handed out to those manning the roadblocks were used to kill Tutsis. Defence Witness AND-5 responded that this was impossible because he did not distribute any guns until after Ntyazo had been taken by the RPF; no distribution was made during the killings.<sup>13853</sup>

5303. Witness AND-5 rejected the Prosecution's suggestion that he was denying that Nteziryayo came to Mugusa commune between April and June 1994 to distribute arms and attend meetings in order to downplay his own involvement in such events in Mugusa commune.<sup>13854</sup>

5304. Witness AND-72, a Hutu civil servant and a detainee convicted of crimes committed during the 1994 genocide, testified that the commune authorities distributed guns to the conseillers and to other people in Mugusa commune after the RPF took control of Ntyazo commune, in June 1994.<sup>13855</sup> These weapons were the ones that commune policemen used to protect the commune office.<sup>13856</sup> The witness testified that he himself received one gun to ensure security in his secteur.<sup>13857</sup> Witness AND-72 testified that he never saw Nteziryayo come to the commune office between April and July 1994.<sup>13858</sup>

3.7.6.3.2 Deliberations

5305. Witness QBV is the only witness to testify that Nteziryayo distributed weapons to individuals present at a roadblock in Kibilizi secteur, Mugusa commune on 22 April 1994. The Chamber notes that Witness QBV was a detainee in Rwanda at the time of his testimony who had confessed but had not yet been sentenced for crimes committed during the genocide and is an accomplice witness.<sup>13859</sup> The Chamber will therefore approach his testimony with appropriate caution.

5306. Witness QBV testified that the distribution of weapons took place on 22 April 1994.<sup>13860</sup> On cross-examination, Witness QBV was referred to his previous statement of 11 October 1999, which stated that on 23 April 1994, Muvunyi distributed grenades to the youths who had undergone training. According to this statement, Muvunyi handed over the grenades to an influential trader who was in charge of the roadblocks in the commune.<sup>13861</sup> He was also referred to his second statement of 11 May 2000 that also stated that Muvunyi distributed grenades to those who had undergone training on 23 April 1994, including the trader Ndayisaba.<sup>13862</sup> Witness QBV testified that when his previous statements were read back to him by the Tribunal's investigators he noticed that the date was wrongly recorded. He attributed this to an error in translation.<sup>13863</sup> The Chamber accepts his explanation on this point and finds that it does not materially affect his testimony on this allegation.

previous statements of 11 May 2000 and 30 March 2001, he did not mention that he had undergone training, despite describing the training that others had undergone in his latter statement.<sup>13866</sup> On cross-examination it was pointed out by the Nteziryayo Defence that no mention was made in his previous statements regarding the distribution of rifles, Kalashnikovs, an M16 and a box of cartridges at the roadblock on 23 April 1994.<sup>13867</sup>

5308. Witness QBV testified that he did not tell the whole truth in his statements to the Tribunal's investigators because he was detained with relatives of Nteziryayo, including his brother-in-law and he was afraid for his safety.<sup>13868</sup> Nteziryayo's relatives put pressure on him to talk about events in a way which did not incriminate Nteziryayo; to deny having seen Nteziryayo and to testify before the Tribunal that Muvunyi, and not Nteziryayo, distributed weapons.<sup>13869</sup> He received letters to this effect but did not have a copy of any of the letters he claimed to have received while in prison.<sup>13870</sup> Witness QBV testified that he informed the Prosecutor's office of the pressure he was being put under and these individuals were transferred to another prison yard.<sup>13871</sup> Witness QBV explained that in his subsequent statements, he gave further details and that he told the whole truth in his testimony before the Tribunal.<sup>13872</sup>

5309. The Chamber accepts that Witness QBV may have been under pressure from his co-detainees not to testify against Nteziryayo, but to attribute the distribution of weapons solely to Muvunyi. This does not, however, explain why no mention was made in his previous statements of the distribution of rifles, Kalashnikovs, an M16 and a box of cartridges at the roadblock in addition to the distribution of 20 grenades.<sup>13873</sup> Having already implicated Nteziryayo, it does not make sense that he would fail to mention the other weapons in order to protect himself from retribution from Nteziryayo's family or friends.

5310. The Chamber observes that Witness AND-16's testimony corroborates that of Witness QBV with regard to the existence of the roadblock and the presence of Witness QBV at the roadblock on 22 April 1994. However, the witnesses' testimonies diverge at this point. Witness QBV testified to the presence of Witness AND-16 at the roadblock and his role in the distribution by Nteziryayo and Muvunyi. Witness QBV testified that Nteziryayo personally distributed weapons, while Witness AND-16 denied that Nteziryayo played any part in the distribution.<sup>13874</sup>

5311. Witness AND-16 testified that Nteziryayo never went to Mugusa commune between April and June 1994.<sup>13875</sup> Similarly, Witness AND-5 testified that Nteziryayo could not have distributed weapons at the roadblock in Kibilizi secteur on 22 April 1994, since Nteziryayo did not visit Mugusa commune between April and July 1994.<sup>13876</sup> The Chamber finds the assertions by Witnesses AND-16 and AND-5 that Nteziryayo did not go to Mugusa commune between April and June 1994 not to be credible; neither witness was in a position to make such an expansive statement and their testimonies do not cast doubt on the testimony of Prosecution Witness QBV.

5312. Nonetheless, the Chamber recalls that Witness QBV is an accomplice witness who confessed to killing a large number of Tutsis the day after the alleged distribution at the roadblock.<sup>13877</sup> The Chamber observes that while it may rely on a single accomplice witness to establish a fact, in the present case there are a number of factors which cast doubt on his testimony in respect of this allegation. Witness QBV had not been sentenced for crimes committed during the genocide at the time of his testimony and he may have been motivated to attribute responsibility to Nteziryayo in order to obtain a more lenient sentence. Furthermore, as the Chamber has observed above, there are inconsistencies in his prior statements and between his previous statements and his testimony at trial that were not adequately explained by the witness. In the absence of corroboration, the Chamber therefore finds that the Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Nteziryayo distributed weapons at a roadblock in Kibilizi secteur, Mugusa commune on 22 April 1994.

3.7.6.4 Weapons Distribution at Kamena Stadium in Ngoma Commune, Early June 1994

3.7.6.4.1 Evidence

Prosecution Witness QAH

5313. Witness QAH, a Hutu farmer and official from Ngoma commune and detainee in Rwanda convicted of genocide at the time of his testimony, testified that the first time he ever saw Nteziryayo was at Kamena Stadium when he went there for training. The witness, who in 1994 was a military recruit under Nteziryayo, positively identified Nteziryayo in court.<sup>13878</sup> The criteria for selecting those who were to attend the training were age and ethnicity.<sup>13879</sup> Witness QAH testified that his conseiller told the group that no Tutsis could participate in the training.<sup>13880</sup> There were approximately 250 recruits in total.<sup>13881</sup> Nteziryayo and Senior Warrant Officer Ntirigira were in charge of the training and were assisted by two policemen, Canisius and Cassien.<sup>13882</sup>

5314. Nteziryayo addressed the group and asked them to make sure that there were no Tutsis among them before they began the training.<sup>13883</sup> Nteziryayo told the recruits that the purpose of the training was to counter the enemy.<sup>13884</sup> The training began at 7.30 or 8.00 a.m. and went on until 3.00 p.m. each day.<sup>13885</sup> Nteziryayo came every day to teach the trainees.<sup>13886</sup> Nteziryayo and Chief Warrant Officer Ntirigira taught them how to dismantle and re-assemble weapons, how to shoot and how to use grenades.<sup>13887</sup> One day the recruits were taken below the Ngoma military camp to the firing range where they were taught how to throw grenades and how to identify targets.<sup>13888</sup>

5315. Witness QAH testified that Nteziryayo's role at Kamena Stadium was twofold: he taught them how to operate arms and incited them to hate the Tutsis.<sup>13889</sup> On the first day of training, the witness heard Nteziryayo tell them, "[I]et us look around and make sure there is no Tutsi among us before we begin the training proper".<sup>13890</sup> Two days later, Nteziryayo told them again about the wickedness of the Tutsis who were living both in the country and abroad and that the Tutsis living in the country had cattle and money and had made their children available to fight them.<sup>13891</sup>

5316. The civil defence training programme in Ngoma commune did not start until the end of May 1994.<sup>13892</sup>

5317. In early June 1994, Colonel Habyarabatuma, Cyriaque and a soldier called Tharcisse, came to Kamena Stadium. After speaking with them Nteziryayo told the trainees that Gitarama-Kigali road had been cut off by the RPF.<sup>13893</sup> The recruits who were undergoing the training asked Nteziryayo to be given guns in order to fight against the RPF. Nteziryayo told them that they would be given guns in order to replace the soldiers at the roadblock so that they could go to fight along the main road.<sup>13894</sup> Shortly afterwards Tharcisse Muvunyi and Colonel Habyarabatuma gave guns to Nteziryayo who distributed them to the various secteurs who had sent people for the training.<sup>13895</sup> About 35 people from the witness' secteur attended the training.<sup>13896</sup> Kalashnikovs were distributed by Nteziryayo who was assisted by the police officers and the Chief Warrant Officer, Ntirigira.<sup>13897</sup> Nteziryayo told the group to exterminate Tutsis, after which he distributed Kalashnikovs to the recruits.<sup>13898</sup>

5318. Witness QAH testified that there were about 250 to 260 recruits present when the weapons were distributed in early June 1994. They were given the weapons so that they could man the roadblocks to replace the soldiers who were deployed to fight the RPF.<sup>13899</sup> When Muvunyi and Habyarabatuma brought the guns to Kamena Stadium in the evening, the recruits assembled themselves according to their secteur. One person from each secteur was selected to

His responsibility was to provide the secteur with weapons.<sup>13900</sup> Each secteur received seven guns plus one for the conseiller and ammunition.<sup>13901</sup> Witness QAH's brother was in charge of the guns in his secteur. No list was prepared to show who had received the guns. The witness received a gun from his brother who had received it from Nteziryayo.<sup>13902</sup> The responsable de cellule distributed the guns and appointed each recruit to a particular roadblock. After receiving the Kalashnikovs, the witness and the other recruits returned to their secteur. He testified that when the recruits stopped a Tutsi at the roadblock they would either kill him or take him to the authorities.<sup>13903</sup> Witness QAH shot three persons at a roadblock.<sup>13904</sup>

Prosecution Witness FAI

5319. Witness FAI, a Hutu civil servant and detainee in Rwanda at the time of his testimony, testified that Nteziryayo, in his capacity as head of civil defence, was responsible for giving weapons to Hutu youths so that they could assist the military at the front and participate in the killings of the Tutsis.<sup>13905</sup> Weapons training took place during the genocide in an old building in Ngoma secteur, opposite the Court of First Instance.<sup>13906</sup> Jean-Baptiste Ruzindaza, President of the Court of First Instance, was in charge of the training. Training exercises were supervised by instructors who came from the ESO Military College. After the training, people who had just undergone the training received guns, so that they could go and help the army at the front or go and help the inhabitants to kill the Tutsis who were still alive.<sup>13907</sup>

5320. Witness FAI testified that the guns that were distributed after the training in Butare came from the Officers' College and that it was Colonel Muvunyi who distributed them to the soldiers responsible for the training in Ngoma commune.<sup>13908</sup>

Ntahobali Defence Witness WUNBJ

5322. Witness WUNBJ testified that after the training, firearms were distributed to the recruits by a warrant officer, whose name the witness could not recall.<sup>13914</sup> The firearms were generally distributed at the secteur level and received by the conseiller, or in his absence, by a distinguished person of the commune.<sup>13915</sup> Witness WUNBJ did not see Nteziryayo between April and June 1994.<sup>13916</sup> To his knowledge, Nteziryayo never attended civil self-defence training nor distributed weapons there.<sup>13917</sup>

Nteziryayo Defence Witness AND-50

5323. Witness AND-50, a Hutu teacher from Kigali, testified that Nteziryayo never distributed any weapons. He was not able to do so as he had left the army.<sup>13918</sup> Nteziryayo was not responsible for civil defence in Butare between April and July 1994.<sup>13919</sup> Colonel Aloys Simba was responsible for civil defence.<sup>13920</sup>

Nteziryayo

5324. Nteziryayo testified that he did not distribute firearms to the population of Ngoma commune as part of the civil defence programme between January 1994 and July 1994, nor did he distribute weapons to recruits trained in a stadium in Ngoma commune.<sup>13921</sup> However, Nteziryayo testified that the area commander distributed firearms to people between April and July 1994 for the civil defence in Butare préfecture.<sup>13922</sup>

5325. Nteziryayo testified that between April and July 1994, and in his role as préfet, he did not receive or possess any stock of weapons for civil defence distribution, and he did not know whether there was such a stock of weapons in the préfecture.<sup>13923</sup> Nteziryayo testified that he never received any weapons for distribution in the communes of Butare préfecture. The officials of Ngoma commune did not request any weapons of him or ask him to train members of the population in the handling of weapons; he had no contact with authorities of the Ngoma commune. Nteziryayo denied distributing weapons to recruits trained in a stadium in Ngoma commune.<sup>13924</sup> Nteziryayo testified that he did not distribute weapons to militia members and members of the civilian population and he did not actively participate in the massacres in Butare or elsewhere.<sup>13925</sup> detainee in Rwanda at the time of his testimony and had been sentenced to death at his trial for his participation in the genocide. The Chamber will therefore approach his testimony with appropriate caution.

5327. Witness QAH gave eyewitness testimony that Nteziryayo distributed weapons to the secteurs who had sent people for the training.<sup>13926</sup> Nteziryayo distributed Kalashnikovs to those who underwent training at Kamena Stadium in early June 1994.<sup>13927</sup>

5328. The Chamber observes that Defence Witness WUNBJ also underwent training at Kamena Stadium over the course of one or two weeks between the middle and end of May 1994 and was present during the distribution of weapons at the end of the training. The Chamber finds his account to be detailed, credible and consistent. Witness QAH and Witness WUNBJ's accounts of weapons distribution are generally consistent with each other. Both witnesses testified that the distribution among the recruits took place according to their respective secteurs and that a Warrant Officer participated in the distribution.<sup>13928</sup> The witnesses differed, however, on the involvement of Nteziryayo in the distribution of weapons. Witness QAH testified that Nteziryayo personally distributed weapons, while Witness WUNBJ denied that Nteziryayo played any part in the distribution.

5329. The Chamber observes that Witness WUNBJ testified that weapons were distributed at Kamena Stadium in May 1994, while Witness QAH testified that he witnessed a distribution of weapons in June 1994. Witness WUNBJ's testimony that Nteziryayo was not involved in the distribution of weapons at Kamena Stadium in May 1994, does not vitiate Witness QAH's eyewitness testimony that Nteziryayo distributed weapons to the recruits in June 1994. The Chamber observes that his testimony on this allegation is not corroborated with respect to Nteziryayo's involvement in the distribution of weapons. Nonetheless, the Chamber considers Witness QAH's testimony that Nteziryayo distributed weapons at Kamena Stadium to be clear and detailed and the Chamber finds him credible with regard to this allegation. The Chamber therefore finds that, through the testimony of Witness QAH, the Prosecution has proven this allegation beyond a reasonable doubt.

5330. The Chamber declines to make a finding at this stage on whether the distribution of weapons at Kamena Stadium in Ngoma commune in June 1994 constituted preparation for the genocide or self-defence against the advancing RPF. The Chamber will reserve judgement on this issue until a later stage in its deliberations.

3.7.7 Weapons Distribution by Ndayambaje

3.7.7.1 Introduction

5331. Each of the Indictments allege that Ndayambaje was responsible for distributing weapons to militiamen from late 1990 until July 1994.<sup>13929</sup> The Indictments allege that Ndayambaje distributed weapons to militiamen and members of the civilian population with the intent to exterminate the Tutsi population and its “accomplices”.<sup>13930</sup> The Indictments further allege that between April and June 1994, Ndayambaje assisted Nteziryayo, the official in charge of civil defence for Butare préfecture, in the distribution of weapons.<sup>13931</sup> Each of the Indictments also allege that from April to July 1994, in the course of the massacres, some soldiers gave assistance to militiamen, notably by providing them with weapons.<sup>13932</sup>

5332. In support of these submissions, the Prosecution relies on the testimony of Prosecution Witnesses QBZ and TO.

5333. The Ndayambaje Defence submits that the Indictment is unduly vague and does not adequately inform Ndayambaje of the material facts of the allegations brought against him. Specifically, the Ndayambaje Defence submits that the Prosecution failed to plead the allegations that Ndayambaje distributed weapons at the Remera commune office on 7 April 1994; that he assisted Nteziryayo in the distribution of weapons at the Muganza commune office in June 1994; or that he was responsible under Article 6 (3) for the distribution of weapons carried out by soldiers in the course of the massacres.<sup>13933</sup>

5334. In the alternative, the Ndayambaje Defence submits that the Prosecution witnesses lack credibility and that the Prosecution failed to prove the allegations beyond a reasonable doubt.<sup>13934</sup> The Defence relies on the testimonies of Ndayambaje Defence Witnesses GABON, Brother Stan, AND-31, KEPIR and Ndayambaje.

3.7.7.2 Muganza Commune Office in Remera, 7 April 1994

5335. The Chamber observes that the Prosecution did not specifically plead the alleged distribution of weapons at the Remera commune office on 7 April 1994.<sup>13935</sup> According to the Ndayambaje Defence, the Indictment is defective and such defects have not been cured.<sup>13936</sup>

5336. The allegation that Ndayambaje distributed weapons at the Muganza commune office in Remera on 7 April 1994 amounts to a material fact which was not sufficiently pled in the Indictment. The Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief includes no reference to this specific incident. In his previous statement of 30 March 2001, disclosed to the Defence on 23 May 2001, Witness QBZ stated that Ndayambaje distributed a machine gun to a policeman at the commune office which was used to kill Tutsi prisoners.<sup>13937</sup> The alleged distribution of weapons at the commune office was not mentioned in Witness QBZ’s previous statement of 9 October 1999, disclosed on 1 December 1999.<sup>13938</sup> The Chamber finds that the Ndayambaje Defence did not have timely, clear or consistent notice of this allegation. Thus, the Chamber will not make a finding on the alleged distribution of weapons by Ndayambaje at the commune office on 7

April 1994. In any event, the Chamber notes that the evidence was not sufficient to prove this allegation beyond a reasonable doubt.

3.7.7.3 Muganza Commune Office, June 1994

5337. In its Decision on Defence Motions for Acquittal under Rule 98 bis of 16 December 2004, the Chamber previously addressed the submission that no evidence has been adduced by the Prosecution that Ndayambaje assisted Nteziryayo in the distribution of weapons to militiamen.<sup>13939</sup> The Chamber found that the evidence led by Prosecution Witness TO, if believed, could be sufficient to sustain a conviction against Ndayambaje on this paragraph of the Indictment and denied Ndayambaje's request for acquittal regarding this paragraph.<sup>13940</sup>

5338. The Ndayambaje Defence submits that Paragraph 6.34 of the Ndayambaje Indictment is vague.<sup>13941</sup> In the Chamber's view, the Prosecution failed to expressly plead the alleged weapons distribution at the Muganza commune office in June 1994. Therefore the Indictment is defective in this regard.

5339. Recalling the principles of notice previously outlined in this Judgement (), the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief does not mention the allegation that Ndayambaje distributed weapons at the Muganza commune office in June 1994. Furthermore, the summary of Witness TO's testimony in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief does not mention the witness' intention to testify to this allegation.<sup>13942</sup> Furthermore, there was no mention of the distribution of weapons in TO's previous statements of 16 October 1997 or 11 June 1997 which were disclosed to the Defence on 4 November 1998 and 30 March 1999 respectively.<sup>13943</sup> The Chamber recalls that in its Decision of 1 September 2006, the Chamber denied the Ndayambaje Defence's motion for exclusion of the testimony of Witness TO. The Chamber stated that it was not satisfied that there was a basis to exclude the concerned testimony at that stage of the proceedings but that the matter may be considered at a later stage.<sup>13944</sup>

5340. At this stage, the Chamber considers that the information regarding Ndayambaje's alleged distribution of weapons in June 1994 amounts to the pleading of new material facts. The Chamber further considers that the Ndayambaje Defence did not have sufficient notice of this allegation to enable the Defence to mount an effective defence. As a result, the Chamber finds that it would unduly prejudice the Accused to consider the evidence of Witness TO on these allegations. Therefore, the Chamber will not make a finding on whether Ndayambaje distributed weapons at the Muganza commune office in June 1994. In any event, the Chamber notes that the evidence was not sufficient to prove this allegation beyond a reasonable doubt.

3.7.7.4 Weapons Distribution by Soldiers Under the Control of Ndayambaje

5341. The Ndayambaje Defence contends that Paragraph 6.53 of the Ndayambaje Indictment lacks detail, as it does not specify the main offences or the role played by Ndayambaje in the alleged events. It further submits that the Prosecution presented no evidence that from April to July 1994 some soldiers gave assistance to militiamen by providing them with weapons and that Ndayambaje was responsible under Article 6 (3) for this distribution. Consequently, it asserts that the Chamber must not consider this paragraph in its deliberations and findings.<sup>13945</sup> The Chamber finds that the Ndayambaje Defence did not have timely, clear or consistent notice of this allegation and thus will not make a finding on this allegation.

5342. Paragraph 6.53 of the Indictment alleges that Ndayambaje was responsible under Article 6 (3) for the distribution of weapons to militiamen carried out by soldiers under his command.<sup>13946</sup> If the Prosecution intends to rely on the theory of superior responsibility, the subordinates of the Accused must be sufficiently identified and the criminal conduct of those for whom the Accused is alleged to be responsible must be established.<sup>13947</sup> The Chamber considers that Paragraph 6.53 of the Ndayambaje Indictment is therefore defective. Recalling the principles of notice previously defined in this Judgement (), neither the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief, nor the Prosecution opening statement refers to soldiers, subordinate to Ndayambaje, distributing weapons to militiamen.

5343. The Prosecution has also failed to lead any evidence on the identities of the soldiers who allegedly distributed weapons or to establish Ndayambaje's responsibility for the acts of these individuals. The Chamber therefore finds that the Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Ndayambaje was responsible under Article 6 (3) for the distribution of weapons to militiamen carried out by soldiers under his command.

3.7.8 Weapons Distribution by Nsabimana

3.7.8.1 Introduction

5344. Paragraph 5.1 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment alleges that from late 1990 until July 1994, military personnel, members of the government, political leaders, civil servants and other personalities conspired among themselves and with others to work out a plan with the intent to exterminate members of the opposition, so that they could remain in power. The components of this plan consisted of among other things, recourse to hatred and ethnic violence, the training of and distribution of weapons to militiamen as well as the preparation of lists of people to be eliminated. In executing the plan, they organised, ordered and participated in the massacres perpetrated against the Tutsi population and moderate Hutus. Ladislav Ntaganzwa, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, André Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Élie Ndayambaje and Shalom Arsène Ntahobali elaborated, adhered to and executed this plan.<sup>13948</sup>

5345. The Prosecution alleges that Nsabimana distributed weapons to the bourgmestres, his subordinates in the hierarchy of the préfecture, to be used in civilian defence. These weapons were used to kill the Tutsi civilian population. The Prosecution submits that in order to facilitate the massacres, Nsabimana personally signed for and distributed 60 guns to the bourgmestres of Butare préfecture on 16 May 1994, for use in the communes in furtherance of the plan to exterminate the Tutsis.<sup>13949</sup> In support of these submissions, the Prosecution relies on the testimony of Prosecution Expert Witness Des Forges and Defence Witnesses SOLO and AND-5.<sup>13950</sup>

5346. In addition to its submissions on defects in the Nteziryayo and Nsabimana Indictment, the Nsabimana Defence submits that the Prosecution has not proven that Nsabimana distributed weapons to an individual or institutions in Butare préfecture.<sup>13951</sup> It relies on the testimony of Nsabimana.

3.7.8.2 Preliminary Issues

5347. The Nsabimana Defence submits that Paragraph 5.1 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment is unduly vague and fails to specify dates, circumstances and locations of his alleged activities and fails to identify the identities of his alleged subordinates.<sup>13952</sup> The Indictment is therefore defective.

5348. The Nsabimana Defence further submits that Nsabimana is not accused of distributing weapons in Butare préfecture. Paragraph 5.13 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment alleges that Nteziryayo, Ndayambaje, Kanyabashi, Ladislas Ntagwanza and others distributed weapons in Butare préfecture. No mention is made of Nsabimana's alleged role.<sup>13953</sup> The Chamber will not consider the specific allegation of distribution of weapons in Paragraph 5.13 since it is not listed in support of a count against Nsabimana.

5349. The Chamber notes that the Prosecution's allegation that Nsabimana distributed weapons in Paragraph 5.1 of the Indictment supports the count of conspiracy to commit genocide but it does not specify dates, places, nor identify the people whom Nsabimana is alleged to have distributed weapons. Paragraph 5.1 of the Indictment did not give Nsabimana sufficient information to adequately prepare his defence against the charge of distributing weapons as part of a criminal conspiracy. For these reasons, the Chamber considers that the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment is defective.

5350. The Chamber will proceed to determine whether this defect was cured. The Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief stated that from April to July 1994, during the course of the massacres, some soldiers gave assistance to militiamen, notably by providing them with logistical support, i.e. weapons, transport and fuel. The massacres were the result of a strategy planned, adopted and instigated by Nsabimana and others to destroy and exterminate the Tutsi population.<sup>13954</sup> The Chamber notes that no mention is made of Nsabimana's alleged distribution of weapons in Butare between April and July 1994 in the summaries of anticipated Prosecution witnesses' testimony in the Appendix to the Pre-Trial Brief, or in the Prosecution opening statement.

5351. The Chamber considers that the defect in the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment was not cured. Nsabimana was not provided with sufficient information regarding the dates, locations and circumstances of his alleged distribution of weapons in Paragraph 5.1 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment. The Chamber will therefore not make any finding regarding this allegation. The Chamber further observes that the Prosecution did not bring any witnesses to support this allegation.

3.7.9 Roadblocks – Overview

3.7.9.1 Introduction

5352. All of the Indictments allege that in the hours following the crash of President Habyarimana's plane, military and militiamen set up roadblocks where they checked the identity cards of passers-by and killed or summarily executed those or most of those who were identified as Tutsis. As of the night of 6 to 7 April 1994, in the capital, elements of the Presidential Guard and Para-Commando Battalion set up roadblocks on the major roads, controlling people's movements.<sup>13955</sup>

5353. All of the Indictments further allege that on 27 April 1994, the Interim Government ordered that roadblocks be set up, knowing that the roadblocks were being used to identify the Tutsis and their "accomplices" for the purpose of eliminating them.<sup>13956</sup>

5354. The Prosecution submits that roadblocks were in existence before the assassination of President Habyarimana and were a means of controlling people's movements during a time of conflict.<sup>13957</sup> During the genocide more roadblocks were established, becoming an important tool in the commission of the genocide. They were a means of identifying Tutsis in order to kill them, set up under the auspices and with the authorisation of the authorities under the guise of self-defence. They were manned by a combination of soldiers, gendarmes, Interahamwe, other militia, commune police and civilians.<sup>13958</sup> Trained and armed militia were regularly and routinely positioned by the authorities to search and kill Tutsis.<sup>13959</sup>

5355. The Defence did not make specific submissions on the Prosecution's allegation that Tutsis were targeted and killed at roadblocks in Butare préfecture. However, the five Accused

These two paragraphs were not pled in support of counts, and therefore, the Chamber will not make factual findings as to whether such events were proven. However, these paragraphs provide context for the Indictment paragraphs that were pled in support of counts regarding conduct of the Accused related to roadblocks in Butare préfecture.

gave evidence as to the use and purpose of roadblocks.<sup>13960</sup> These will be considered in the evidence section below.

3.7.9.2 Preliminary Issues

5356. The Chamber notes that the allegation that the Interim Government ordered that roadblocks be set up on 27 April 1994 knowing that roadblocks were being used to identify and eliminate Tutsis, was not pled in support of counts against any of the Accused. Recalling the principles previously articulated in this Judgement (), the Chamber observes that it cannot base a conviction of the Accused solely on this Paragraph of the Indictment. However, the Chamber will consider this evidence to the extent that it provides context to the events which occurred in Butare préfecture during the period at issue and to assess whether genocide was committed. The Chamber specifically addresses in this section the allegation that Tutsis were targeted and killed at roadblocks in Butare préfecture.

3.7.9.3 Evidence

Prosecution Witness FAI

5357. Witness FAI, a Hutu civil servant in 1994<sup>13961</sup> and detainee in Rwanda at the time of his testimony,<sup>13962</sup> testified that roadblocks were set up immediately after 19 April 1994 in his secteur to prevent Tutsis from escaping by catching and killing them.<sup>13963</sup> Roadblocks were monitored by the Hutu inhabitants of each cellule. Witness FAI testified that at the beginning of the killings, Tutsis passing by roadblocks were systematically killed.<sup>13964</sup>

Prosecution Witness QJ

5358. Witness QJ, a Tutsi, testified that to pass through the roadblock, one had to present identity papers.<sup>13965</sup> The witness spoke specifically of the roadblock in front of the Hotel Faucon.<sup>13966</sup> Hutus would be allowed to pass through roadblocks and Tutsis were asked to stand aside and sit on the ground next to the roadblock.<sup>13967</sup> The Tutsis at the roadblock were taken to the Kabutare Forest, behind the Hotel Faucon, and killed.<sup>13968</sup> Later, people were taken aside and killed just away from the main road.<sup>13969</sup> Other people were taken from the Hotel Faucon roadblock across the street to a University bookshop and killed by soldiers.<sup>13970</sup>

Prosecution Witness FAU

5359. Witness FAU, a Hutu farmer detained at the time of his testimony,<sup>13971</sup> testified that roadblocks were erected in his area immediately following the death of President Habyarimana.<sup>13972</sup> Witness FAU participated in patrols and worked at a roadblock. Witness FAU was told to check identity cards; if someone did not have an identity card, they were taken for an Inyenzi and were to be killed. He averred that Inyenzi meant Tutsi.<sup>13973</sup>

Prosecution Witness QCB

5360. Witness QCB, a Hutu driver in 1994 and detained witness at the time of testimony,<sup>13974</sup> testified that all the roadblocks that he knew about were set up on the night of 20-21 April 1994.<sup>13975</sup> He testified to a roadblock at the house of Amanda Rugira.<sup>13976</sup> The Interahamwe and two soldiers armed with knives and Kalashnikov guns manned the roadblock.<sup>13977</sup> Interahamwe were checking people's identity cards to determine whether they were Tutsis or Hutus, detaining the Tutsis and allowing the Hutus to move on towards town.<sup>13978</sup> A woman was asked to produce her identification card, and did so reluctantly; she was killed with knives.<sup>13979</sup>

5361. Witness QCB also testified as to a roadblock located in front of the home of Maurice Ntahobali.<sup>13980</sup> Witness QCB arrived at this roadblock in the morning of 21 April 1994 with Léopold Ruvurajabo, a Tutsi.<sup>13981</sup> He testified as to the killing of Ruvurajabo. He said Interahamwe asked Ruvurajabo, who was a Tutsi, for his identification, but he refused to provide it. The Interahamwe told Ruvurajabo to step aside at a nearby school. He again refused and was then ordered to be killed.<sup>13982</sup>

Prosecution Witness FAK

witness manned two roadblocks in his secteur.<sup>13985</sup> The man in charge of one roadblock gave instructions that the roadblock was set up for the purpose of checking the Inkotanyi so that they would not enter the commune.<sup>13986</sup> The witness and others were later made to understand that Inkotanyi were Tutsis.<sup>13987</sup> People checked identity cards, which were used to identify the “Inkotanyi”, as the cards bore the ethnic origin of the individual; if the identity card read Tutsi, the Tutsis were to be killed.<sup>13988</sup> Roadblocks were manned by Hutu civilians.<sup>13989</sup> On the evening of 19 April 1994, some people brought a Tutsi couple to the roadblock and killed them; they were buried down the hill from the roadblock.<sup>13990</sup>

5363. After a meeting in Kibayi commune at a football field, Witness FAK went to a roadblock with Augustin Rwabuhungu and one Laurent, where they encountered the conseiller de secteur.<sup>13991</sup> Augustin said that he had a Tutsi girl in his home and the conseiller directed that she be brought to the roadblock. Witness FAK testified that they then killed the Tutsi girl with a club.<sup>13992</sup> The Tutsi woman had a child with her, who was killed by Rwabuhungu on the same day.<sup>13993</sup>

Prosecution Witness QBV

5364. Witness QBV, a Hutu farmer and detained witness at the time of testimony,<sup>13994</sup> testified that every civilian pedestrian or motorist would be checked at the roadblocks for firearms and verification of ethnicity by checking their identification cards. If the civilian was a Tutsi, he would be asked to step aside and be reported to the conseiller.<sup>13995</sup>

Prosecution Witness TB

5365. Witness TB, a Tutsi teacher, testified that she saw a roadblock located on the road that went to the school centre in front of what is called économat [bursary] near the Catholic cathedral of Butare, where people were killed with traditional weapons.<sup>13996</sup>

Nsabimana Defence Witness TWW

5366. Witness TWW, a Hutu, testified that the authorities decided to set up roadblocks in order to maintain the peace and safety within the population.<sup>13997</sup> He stated that in 1994, identity cards displayed a person’s ethnic identity. Witness TWW did not see if identity cards were checked at roadblocks; he was not asked to show his. The witness did not know if Tutsis were crossing roadblocks.<sup>13998</sup>

Nsabimana Defence Witness SOLO

5367. Witness SOLO, a Hutu judicial police inspector in 1994,<sup>13999</sup> testified that there were roadblocks in Rusatiro commune; at each of the roadblocks, he was made to show his identity card, without knowing the reason for it, after which he was ordered to go on his way.<sup>14000</sup>

Nsabimana Defence Witness Patrick Fergal Keane

5368. Patrick Fergal Keane, a journalist for the BBC,<sup>14001</sup> testified that he saw people checking for identity cards at the roadblocks, and remembered being told by the people at the roadblocks that they were checking for infiltrators who could be men, women or children.<sup>14002</sup> Referring to a video, Keane described what he saw as a soldier of the Rwandan army checking the identities of the people in a mini-bus, and a prisoner standing beside the soldier, wearing a pink uniform.<sup>14003</sup> From his experience of roadblocks in Rwanda, the witness said that people were stopped at the roadblocks to ascertain their identity.<sup>14004</sup> Keane testified that the people at the roadblocks spoke about their fear that they were going to be colonised by the Tutsis again; one man said he did not feel the Tutsis regarded them as human beings. This was the general tenor of what the people said at the roadblocks.<sup>14005</sup> Keane said that in the interview, the young man who worked at the roadblock used the phrase “Inyenzi”, which they were led to understand referred to cockroaches, a term used to reflect Tutsis.<sup>14006</sup> He understood the word Inyenzi meant cockroach and was applied to RPF soldiers or Tutsi civilians and Tutsi as an ethnic group in 1994.<sup>14007</sup>

Nsabimana Defence Witness Charles Karemano

5369. Charles Karemano, the National Secretary of the PSD in 1994 and a Hutu, testified that he was in Kigali in April 1994.<sup>14008</sup> At the time of the attack on the President, the préfet of Kigali, the RTL, and the Interim Government, were all asking the population to come out onto the streets to set up roadblocks.<sup>14009</sup> On 7 April 1994, neighbours asked him to man the roadblocks and check on the passage of enemies or traitors.<sup>14010</sup> Everyone was obliged to go, without exception, unless one was part of the enemy.<sup>14011</sup> He was allowed to leave the roadblock around 9 April 1994 as he felt sick from the images of dead bodies and parts of cut-up bodies which were piled up on the road.<sup>14012</sup> He assumed that these bodies were not killed by the RPF, because the bodies were exposed in an area that had not yet been conquered by the RPF.<sup>14013</sup>

5370. Karemano testified that the killings in Butare and Cyarwa began in April 1994. Soldiers began the killings and invited people to loot houses.<sup>14014</sup> The leaders of the roadblocks instigated killings, there were no guidelines provided by the political authorities. The Cyarwa conseiller de secteur, Nicodeme, even told the witness that he was manhandled at roadblocks. After 19 April 1994, those manning the roadblocks were civilians.<sup>14015</sup>

5371. Karemano testified that between 18 April 1994 and 3 July 1994 he went to Mbazi, Ngoma and Ruhashya communes.<sup>14016</sup> At roadblocks, identity cards were often requested; the witness thought that one's physical features and the information on the card would determine whether one was allowed to pass or not.<sup>14017</sup> He was able to move around because he had papers indicating he was Hutu and his facial features made him recognisable as a Hutu.<sup>14018</sup> In addition to an identity card, it was advisable to hold a laissez-passer to present at roadblocks authorising movement between communes.<sup>14019</sup> In normal times this document could be obtained from the commune or bourgmestre, but in those times possibly even a commander could issue them.<sup>14020</sup> He went to the préfecture to ask for one, but was not issued one.<sup>14021</sup>

5372. Nevertheless, a laissez-passer did not necessarily ensure safe passage or that one would not be killed, mistreated or threatened; some people who had documents were stopped and killed, whereas some people who did not have any papers were not affected by any violence. However it was thought to be better to have documents than not to have them.<sup>14022</sup>

5373. In general, those manning the roadblocks were bandits and people escaping from justice.<sup>14023</sup> Those manning the roadblocks were taking power into their own hands and were not people appointed by the bourgmestre, préfet or secteur.<sup>14024</sup> Karemano was also stopped at roadblocks and asked to show his identity card. The witness saw people stopped at other roadblocks.<sup>14025</sup>

5374. Karemano testified that generally the technique at roadblocks was not to kill; leaders of the roadblocks decided that the people to be killed would be taken elsewhere.<sup>14026</sup> The official reason that people would go to roadblocks, was to stop the enemy from infiltrating the population, although other people went there to kill and then loot the person's house.<sup>14027</sup>

5375. Karemano testified that there was a meeting at the University around mid-May 1994 chaired by Prime Minister Kambanda at which academics made heinous speeches saying that Tutsis and, in particular, Tutsi university lecturers should be shot down.<sup>14028</sup> By mid-May 1994, Tutsi professors Karenzi and Rumiya and many others had already been killed.<sup>14029</sup> A professor named Gaetan, whom people considered to be Tutsi, was also killed; to his knowledge all the Tutsi lecturers of the university who were in Butare on the campus, were killed immediately after 19 April 1994.<sup>14030</sup>

Nsabimana Defence Witness BE

5376. Witness BE, a student at the Groupe Scolaire in 1994 and a Hutu,<sup>14031</sup> testified that he passed through roadblocks at Rango and Nkubi manned by civilians; since the people manning these roadblocks knew him well, they let him through.<sup>14032</sup> Local people went to roadblocks at night to carry out night patrols; the witness did not see people of Tutsi ethnicity arrested, killed or mistreated at those roadblocks.<sup>14033</sup>

Nsabimana Defence Witness Alexandre Bararwandika

5377. Alexandre Bararwandika, a Hutu doctor from Burundi, testified that, officially, roadblocks were set up to prevent infiltration of the RPF fighters.<sup>14034</sup> He could not refute that unofficially the roadblocks were used to determine ethnicity.<sup>14035</sup> Bararwandika saw the corpse of a man next to a roadblock behind the MSM garage near a mechanic shop, and the corpses of four women in the compound of the primary school.<sup>14036</sup> The witness also saw people arrested at the roadblocks.<sup>14037</sup>

5378. Bararwandika presented his UNHCR identification card at the roadblocks; he said it was likely that the fact that his identity card indicated his nationality as Burundian satisfied the people at the roadblocks that his ethnicity was Hutu, as most Burundian refugees in Rwanda were Hutus. The witness testified that Rwandans had to show identity cards that displayed their ethnicity, which were asked for at the roadblocks.<sup>14038</sup> Mere mention of one's ethnicity was not enough because, officially, the checks were intended to limit the infiltration of the RPF combatants.<sup>14039</sup>

5379. The witness transported four Tutsi children from Rango and was worried about how to get them across roadblocks. He went to see the bourgmestre who gave him completed identification papers. The secret at the roadblocks was to mention that the children he was evacuating were Hutus, and the strategy worked. In another case this strategy did not work because the person involved was killed before the witness could supply identification papers.<sup>14040</sup>

Nyiramasuhuko Defence Witness Céline Nyiraneza

5380. Céline Nyiraneza, Ntahobali's aunt and Nyiramasuhuko's sister,<sup>14041</sup> testified that she went to Butare town a few days after the assassination of the President and stayed at the Hotel Ihuliro, crossing two roadblocks on the way. The first was located in front of Hotel Faucon and the second in front of the Rector's office. Two young people in civilian attire manned the roadblocks. When her vehicle got to the roadblock, it came to a stop. The witness was with her three children and another child, a niece of her husband. Those manning the roadblock asked people above 16 years of age to show their identity card. She was asked for her identification in order to determine whether the names of the children appeared in the identity card and ensure that the children who accompanied her were her own.<sup>14042</sup> Nyiraneza testified that she and her eldest child had their identity cards, however, her two younger children did not and were therefore characterised as being accomplices. They were still able to get to the Hotel Ihuliro.<sup>14043</sup>

Nyiramasuhuko Defence Witness Maurice Ntahobali

Nyiramasuhuko Defence Witness CEM

5382. Witness CEM, a Hutu teacher,<sup>14047</sup> testified that she did not know the ethnicity of the people who manned the roadblocks.<sup>14048</sup> The witness stated that roadblocks were not erected to kill people; when one got to a roadblock one was asked to present identification papers and were then allowed to go.<sup>14049</sup> She said she never saw anybody killed near a roadblock, and never witnessed anybody killed during the day.<sup>14050</sup> The witness testified that she knew that both Hutus and Tutsis were killed in May 1994.<sup>14051</sup> At the Hotel Faucon and EER roadblocks, she presented her identity card when asked and it was given back to her and she went on her way.<sup>14052</sup> Everyone who passed the roadblock was asked to stop and show their identity card.<sup>14053</sup> She said that when one presented an identity card, it was checked and handed back.<sup>14054</sup> She agreed ethnicity was indicated on identity cards.<sup>14055</sup>

5383. Witness WZNA, a Hutu factory worker,<sup>14056</sup> testified that she had to go through various roadblocks to get to her place of work, including Mukoni, one near the University laboratory, one near the Rector's office, at Hotel Faucon and Rwabuye. At all the roadblocks the situation was the same; the soldiers manning the roadblock asked for identity papers and then let the vehicle through.<sup>14057</sup>

Nyiramasuhuko Defence Witness WKNKI

5384. Witness WKNKI, a Hutu trader, testified that towards the end of May 1994 roadblocks were mounted throughout the country, and there was at least one in each secteur. They were mounted as part of the civil defence operation in order to check infiltrations.<sup>14058</sup> Witness WKNKI manned a roadblock; they were not intended to prevent people from fleeing. They checked for infiltrators by asking for identity cards; roadblocks aimed to find out who was coming from out of the country and attacking Rwanda, not to single out Tutsis.<sup>14059</sup>

Ntahobali Defence Witness WKNMJ

5385. Witness WKNMJ, a Hutu farmer, testified that she saw roadblocks at Mukoni, near the University and at the IPN (National Pedagogic Institute). Identification cards were checked at roadblocks. She agreed that her identity card bore her ethnicity. She said soldiers were present at the roadblocks and she saw no dead bodies near the roadblocks.<sup>14060</sup>

Ntahobali Defence Witness WCNMC

5386. Witness WCNMC, a Hutu student in 1994, testified that when she got to a particular roadblock, people would be stopped, show their identity card and then be allowed to continue.<sup>14061</sup> One morning, when she was on her way to Butare, she saw three people being arrested at the Mukoni roadblock for not having any identity cards but she did not witness any killings at the roadblocks.<sup>14062</sup> She confirmed that her ethnicity was indicated on her identity card and that she was allowed to pass through the roadblocks.<sup>14063</sup>

Ntahobali Defence Witness WUNBJ

5387. Witness WUNBJ, a préfecture employee, manned a roadblock in his cellule; between April and July 1994 all able-bodied men were expected to man roadblocks.<sup>14064</sup> Witness WUNBJ was told that the enemy was the RPF, who carried guns. As such, the witness, with others, checked those carrying luggage to see if they carried guns because the RPF infiltrated the members of the population who were fleeing.<sup>14065</sup> He did not see any RPF carrying firearms at the roadblock, nor did they ever arrest anyone.<sup>14066</sup>

5388. Witness WUNBJ stated that the second page of identity cards showed a photograph of the bearer under which was the bearer's ethnic origin, Tutsi, Parmehutu or Twa.<sup>14067</sup> One's ethnic group was clearly visible under the photo, and not hidden.<sup>14068</sup> Witness WUNBJ testified that he never witnessed any killings or crimes at roadblocks.<sup>14069</sup> At roadblocks manned by civilians, people who did not carry bags or luggage could pass through without being checked. He did not ask people without luggage to show identity cards. He explained that people were only asked to present their identity cards at roadblocks manned by soldiers.<sup>14070</sup> The witness testified that if people did not have identity papers, they could also provide their professional service card, and if they were simple peasants, they could provide an authorisation or paper given by the conseiller de secteur.<sup>14071</sup> People who went through roadblocks were questioned as to where they came from and where they were going, their cars and bicycles were searched and people's possessions were unloaded and checked.<sup>14072</sup>

Ntahobali Defence Witness H1B6

5389. Witness H1B6, a Hutu student at the National University in 1994, testified that they were asked to show their identity cards at the roadblocks. They produced their student cards, which did not contain any reference to their ethnic origin, and were allowed to pass. He did not see people sitting or killed, and did not see any blood at the roadblocks.<sup>14073</sup>

Ntahobali Defence Witness WCMNA

roadblocks were killed by Hutus.<sup>14074</sup> He did not see anyone being killed at a roadblock in Butare between April and July 1994.<sup>14075</sup> Towards the beginning of June 1994, other roadblocks were mounted in Butare town, due to the massive influx of persons displaced by the war, which rendered it necessary to see if there were infiltrators among the displaced persons.<sup>14076</sup> At the time it was considered that since the infiltrators were alleged to have come from outside the country, they therefore would not have identity papers, and those who came to roadblocks without Rwandan or internationally-recognised identity papers could be the enemy. In general, people with papers were able to pass roadblocks, but that was not always the case.<sup>14077</sup>

Witness WCKJ, a Hutu trainer at the CFP in 1994, often passed the roadblocks at Kangoma, Groupe Scolaire and the one in front of Hotel Faucon; each time he went through the roadblock near the Hotel Faucon he was asked to provide his identity card.<sup>14078</sup> He stated that when a person passed a roadblock, the person was asked to show his papers and if the person was carrying a bag, their bag was checked, and then the person continued on his way.<sup>14079</sup> Although he heard people saying so, he never saw anyone killed at those roadblocks, or dead bodies, although he did not know if people were killed at the roadblock and then moved.<sup>14080</sup>

5392. Witness AND-72, a Hutu government official, testified that the population agreed to set up roadblocks in order to make sure that no one, or rather no RPF soldiers, would infiltrate the commune, and in order to ensure security in the different secteurs of the commune.<sup>14081</sup> Persons in charge of roadblocks were instructed to check foreigners who intended to enter the secteur, inspect their identity cards, arrest wrong-doers and hand them over to the commune authorities.<sup>14082</sup> Commune security ordered the conseiller to set up roadblocks.<sup>14083</sup> Identity cards were checked at roadblocks in order to determine the persons' ethnic origin. Civilians, including women and children, were killed at the roadblocks.<sup>14084</sup>

Nteziryayo Defence Witness AND-60

5393. Witness AND-60, a Hutu accountant in 1994, stated that he went through a roadblock in Mamba secteur, but was not required to show his identity card as the persons manning the

Nteziryayo Defence Witness AND-53

5394. Witness AND-53, a Hutu farmer, testified that civilians armed with sticks manned the roadblock at Kanga Junction.<sup>14086</sup> A roadblock was set up there to monitor the passage of persons who did not have identity cards, to make sure those passing were not RPF troops. If people refused to show their identification papers, those manning the roadblocks were to blow whistles to alert the population to come to their rescue. At no time did RPF soldiers pass by.<sup>14087</sup> He testified he never heard that people had been killed at the roadblock.<sup>14088</sup>

Nteziryayo Defence Witness AND-30

5395. Witness AND-30, a Hutu teacher, testified that people thought the RPF was about to invade Ndora commune and in the aftermath roadblocks were set up to identify those who passed through their commune.<sup>14089</sup> He heard that those who manned the roadblocks examined identity cards and baggage to identify who was an enemy or an accomplice of the enemy. The roadblocks had to be manned by men from the commune, and they were manned 24 hours a day.<sup>14090</sup> He never saw or heard that people had been killed at a roadblock in his area.<sup>14091</sup>

Nteziryayo Defence Witness AND-16

5396. Witness AND-16, a Hutu trader, testified that a roadblock erected at Sakindi on 22 April 1994, was intended to stop members of the population from fleeing. In the evening he saw corpses at the roadblock and learned that the roadblock was erected to control the migration of displaced persons.<sup>14092</sup> He was told that Semunkima and Kagewje had stopped the people and killed them after having asked them to show their identification cards.<sup>14093</sup>

5397. On 22 April 1994 about seven Tutsi women and girls who had escaped an attack sought refuge in his house. He said that members of their families had been killed and their houses had been destroyed. When those women wanted to flee towards the Mugogwe secteur, they were prevented from crossing the roadblock.<sup>14094</sup>

5399. Witness D-2-YYYY, a Hutu civil servant,<sup>14099</sup> stated that he had to pass through a given roadblock each time he went to and from work.<sup>14100</sup> Each time he had to produce his identification because those manning the roadblock said that Inyenzi could disguise themselves dressing in a similar manner.<sup>14101</sup> At the Hotel Faucon roadblock he saw the body of the university lecturer, Karenzi.<sup>14102</sup>

Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-2-20-F

5400. Witness D-2-20-F, a Hutu cook at Groupe Scolaire, testified that around 14 or 15 May 1994, 13 Hutu persons were arrested for having perpetrated killings against Tutsis. He saw people with firearms, bows, arrows and spears arresting his elder brother and taking him away. The witness said the conseiller tried to bring the arrested persons to the authorities, but soldiers intervened and shot the persons down at the roadblock at the University Laboratory.<sup>14103</sup>

Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-2-13-O

5401. Witness D-2-13-O, a Hutu driver in 1994,<sup>14104</sup> testified that Kanyabashi issued a Hutu identity card to his Tutsi wife that enabled them to cross several roadblocks.<sup>14105</sup> At each roadblock the witness was asked to show his identity card and was then allowed to pass.<sup>14106</sup>

Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-2-13-D

5402. Witness D-2-13-D, a Hutu mechanic, stated that on about 10 April 1994 the Interahamwe were at the Butare MSM garage roadblock and asked for his identification papers.<sup>14107</sup> On another occasion, at the Hotel Faucon roadblock, he saw Cassien Nkundumeremye, a commune policeman, being asked for his identification. Those at the roadblock checked Cassien's card and gave it back to him but said that he had a wife that was a Tutsi. He also saw other people crossing the roadblocks having their identity documents checked.<sup>14108</sup> Witness D-2-13-D also testified that Jean Semwiza ordered people to set up roadblocks in mid-May in his secteur.<sup>14109</sup>

Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-2-11-D

5403. Witness D-2-11-D, a Hutu farmer, testified that he was asked to show his identity card at a roadblock at the Ngoma/Huye commune border. The roadblock was manned by about 10 local people from Huye, dressed in civilian attire and armed with firearms.<sup>14110</sup> Those manning the roadblock also had traditional weapons like machetes, swords and bows.<sup>14111</sup>

Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-2-5-I

5404. Witness D-2-5-I, a Hutu civil servant, testified that at the Hotel Faucon roadblock, which was manned by soldiers, he saw the body of university lecturer, Claver Karenzi.<sup>14112</sup> He said it was obvious the soldiers had killed Karenzi. He did not see bodies at this roadblock on other days.<sup>14113</sup>

Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-1-4-O

5405. Witness D-1-4-O, a Hutu working at a health clinic in 1994, testified that while crossing some roadblocks in May 1994, he was required to produce his identification card, while at others he was let through without producing any document or having to answer any questions. Children who accompanied him were allowed to cross without difficulties.<sup>14114</sup>

Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-13-D

5406. Witness D-13-D, a Hutu driver for a government agency, testified that he was let through roadblocks by showing a pass signed by Gatsinzi to the persons manning the roadblock.<sup>14115</sup> He also showed his identity card which identified him as a Hutu.<sup>14116</sup>

Nyiramasuhuko

5407. Having regard to Kambanda's instructions of 27 April 1994 concerning the establishment of roadblocks, Nyiramasuhuko testified that the government insisted on officially recognised roadblocks because there was information that some people were taking it upon themselves to mount roadblocks.<sup>14117</sup> Nyiramasuhuko testified that those who were looting or stealing were to be arrested and punished.<sup>14118</sup> Nyiramasuhuko stated that between 20 and 30 April 1994, the Cabinet learned there were killings in Butare préfecture.<sup>14119</sup> In June 1994, massacres were gradually coming to an end and there were sporadic killings perpetrated by bandits or infiltrators.<sup>14120</sup> Identity cards were checked because Rwanda was being attacked by the Inkotanyi who were coming from Uganda, along with Ugandans, Sudanese, Burundians, and some people from Tanzania; luggage was searched because the RPF carried bullets in their luggage.<sup>14121</sup>

Ntahobali

5408. Ntahobali testified that roadblocks and night patrols were necessary to search for and keep an eye on foreigners.<sup>14122</sup> At a meeting at Huye Stadium on 26 April 1994, the authorities told the population that acts of violence and killings were perpetrated by thugs, gangsters or hoodlums, who were working for the enemy. Roadblocks were set up to prevent these hoodlums from killing.<sup>14123</sup>

Nteziryayo

5409. Nteziryayo testified that the main reason for the establishment of civil defence was to protect and defend the population, and not to kill Tutsis.<sup>14124</sup>

Nsabimana

5410. Nsabimana testified that he closed down several roadblocks erected by civilians. He also urged Colonel Muvunyi to close other unjustified roadblocks but only soldiers could do something at the roadblocks manned by soldiers; a lay-person could not interfere with roadblocks manned by soldiers.<sup>14125</sup>

Ndayambaje

5411. Ndayambaje testified that RPF propaganda claimed that roadblocks were set up with a view to facilitating massacres, such that any person at a roadblock was regarded as a killer and came to be known as an Interahamwe.<sup>14126</sup> He said the mounting of roadblocks was a reflex which had occurred even before 1990, they were not mounted in a bid to attack anyone.<sup>14127</sup>

3.7.9.4 Deliberations

3.7.9.4.1 Location of Roadblocks and Presence of Soldiers, Interahamwe and Civilians

5412. The Parties agreed as to the existence of roadblocks in Butare préfecture during the period in question. Although some roadblocks existed prior to 6 April 1994 in Butare préfecture, the number of roadblocks increased substantially after that date.<sup>14128</sup> The Chamber accepts that some roadblocks were set up in Butare town starting in 1990.

5413. After 6 April 1994, roadblocks existed at major intersections in Butare town.<sup>14129</sup> The Chamber has already noted that it was uncontested that the number of roadblocks in Butare in May 1994 was considerable, restricting ease of movement (). The Chamber recalls its finding, for example, regarding the existence of the roadblock which existed near Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali's house, located at a distance of approximately 50-100 metres from the Hotel Ihuliro ().

5414. Although some witnesses referred to these roadblocks by differing names, the Chamber has considered maps and photographs of the intersections as well as witness testimony and is

3.7.9.4.2 Targeting and Killing at Roadblocks

5417. The Parties contested whether Tutsis were targeted and killed at roadblocks. The Prosecution contends that the roadblocks were used to identify Tutsis. The Defence argues the roadblocks were used to identify the RPF and that identification was checked to determine whether a person was a foreigner, which may indicate membership in the RPF or an accomplice from another country,<sup>14136</sup> who might be carrying guns or bullets.<sup>14137</sup>

5418. The evidence presented at trial established that identification cards were verified at the roadblocks. Witness FAI testified that the roadblocks were set up to prevent Tutsis from escaping by catching and killing them.<sup>14138</sup> At one roadblock mounted near the witness' place of work, anyone who came upon the roadblock was to show identity papers,<sup>14139</sup> and Tutsis were killed.<sup>14140</sup>

5419. Witness QJ provided eyewitness testimony as to the search for and killing of Tutsis at roadblocks. Witness QJ testified that to pass through the Hotel Faucon roadblock, one had to present identity papers.<sup>14141</sup> Tutsis were asked to stand aside and sit on the ground next to the Hotel Faucon roadblock.<sup>14142</sup> He specified that in April, May and June 1994, those stopped at the roadblock were taken to Kabutare and shot, but that in June they were thrown everywhere on the streets.<sup>14143</sup> As time went by, Tutsis were shot next to roadblocks and their bodies would be strewn by the roadside.<sup>14144</sup> People were taken from the Hotel Faucon roadblock across the street to a University bookshop and killed by soldiers.<sup>14145</sup> The whole town stank and it was impossible to go to a roadblock without seeing a dead body.<sup>14146</sup>

5420. Witness QCB testified as to a roadblock manned by Interahamwe near the house of Amanda Rugira; the Interahamwe checked people's identity cards to determine whether they were Tutsis or Hutus, detaining the Tutsis and allowing the Hutus to move on towards town.<sup>14147</sup> Witness QCB further testified that a woman was asked to produce her identity card, and was subsequently killed at the Rugira roadblock.<sup>14148</sup> Witness QCB also testified as to the killing of a Tutsi man named Léopold Ruvurajabo at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock.<sup>14149</sup> Witness QCB further testified that at the roadblock close to the mosque, he saw that Tutsis kept there were being held at the EER School and were subsequently killed.<sup>14150</sup>

5422. Witness FA testified that in April 1994, she saw a man beaten and detained at a roadblock after producing his identity card.<sup>14156</sup> Witness SX testified that identity cards were checked and Tutsis massacred at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock.<sup>14157</sup> Witness TB testified to a vehicle being stopped at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock. The people in the vehicle were made to show their identity cards, after which some were beaten and detained.<sup>14158</sup> Witness TQ testified that he and a Tutsi woman were stopped at Hotel Ihuliro roadblock.<sup>14159</sup> The witness, who knew the woman to be a Tutsi, instructed her not to show her identity card because according to the witness, the woman could not have gone beyond the roadblock if she had been identified as Tutsi<sup>14160</sup> (). Witness TQ also testified that at the Kigembe roadblock, on asking people to show their identification papers, members of civil defence would beat the people and call them Inyenzi/ Inkotanyi<sup>14161</sup> ().

5423. Witness FAU testified that he searched for and killed Tutsis at a roadblock; he testified that if someone did not have an identity card, they were taken for an Inyenzi and were to be killed.<sup>14162</sup> Defence Expert Witness Reyntjens was referred to the minutes of a Security Council meeting of 20 April 1994 which provided that “[p]eople who do not have identity papers or identification papers should be careful so that no one should suffer injustice.”<sup>14163</sup> He was also referred to Des Forges’ report which concluded that “no one” meant Hutus who had fled their homes without the necessary documents.<sup>14164</sup> Reyntjens remarked that while Des Forges referred to “innocent people”, the text of the Security Council meeting said that “no one”, not only innocent people, should suffer injustice [at roadblocks].<sup>14165</sup> Given the credible and consistent accounts of the above Prosecution witnesses, as to what happened at roadblocks in April, May and June 1994 in Butare préfecture, the Chamber does not find Reyntjens’ interpretation of the Security Council Minutes to be credible.

5424. Defence witnesses provided testimony consistent with that of Prosecution witnesses regarding the targeting and killing of Tutsis at roadblocks. Defence witness Charles Karemano testified that one's physical features and identity card determined whether one could pass a roadblock.<sup>14166</sup> The witness was able to move around because he had papers indicating he was Hutu and his facial features made him recognisable as a Hutu.<sup>14167</sup> Defence Witness Bararwandika also testified that he presented his UNHCR identification card at the roadblocks, which indicated his nationality to be Burundian thus satisfying the people at the roadblocks that his ethnicity was Hutu, as most Burundian refugees in Rwanda were Hutus.<sup>14168</sup> Bararwandika also testified that Rwandans had to show identity cards that displayed their ethnicity at roadblocks; mere mention of one's ethnicity was not enough because officially, the checks were intended to limit the infiltration of the RPF combatants, although unofficially the roadblocks were used to determine ethnicity.<sup>14169</sup> The Chamber considers that both Witnesses Karemano and Bararwandika had no reason to give false testimony in this regard. They were able to provide detailed testimony corroborating the evidence that those manning roadblocks checked identity cards in order to ascertain the ethnicity of individuals. The Chamber finds these two witnesses to be highly credible.

5425. Other Defence witnesses provided consistent testimony that Tutsis were targeted and killed at roadblocks. Witnesses D-2-5-I and D-2-YYYY testified that they saw the dead body of the Tutsi lecturer Karenzi at the Hotel Faucon roadblock.<sup>14170</sup> Witness D-2-5-I said the soldiers had killed Karenzi.<sup>14171</sup> Maurice Ntahobali testified that Karenzi had been murdered at the Hotel Faucon roadblock.<sup>14172</sup> Charles Karemano testified that all the Tutsis lecturers who were on the university campus in Butare were killed immediately after 19 April 1994.<sup>14173</sup> Witness AND-72 testified that Tutsi civilians, including women and children, were killed at the roadblocks.<sup>14174</sup> Witness AND-16 averred that a roadblock erected at Sakindi was intended to stop members of the population from fleeing; one evening he saw corpses at that roadblock.<sup>14175</sup> The witness knew the perpetrators of those killings; he was told that Semunkima and Kagewje had stopped the people and killed them after having asked them to show them their identification cards.<sup>14176</sup> Reyntjens testified that most of the time people were not handed over to authorities but were killed on the spot.<sup>14177</sup> Witness D-2-20-F said that on one occasion where the conseiller tried to bring persons they had arrested to the authorities, soldiers intervened and shot persons down at the roadblock at the University Laboratory.<sup>14178</sup>

5426. Considering the strong evidence that roadblocks were used to identify and kill Tutsis, the Chamber is convinced that those who were unable to produce identification were sometimes killed because they were thought to be Tutsis. The Chamber considers that these accounts from Defence witnesses buttress the evidence that those manning roadblocks were in fact looking for Tutsis, and not just the RPF.

5427. Some Defence witnesses testified that identification cards were checked at roadblocks but no one was harmed and all were allowed to pass.<sup>14179</sup> The Chamber however notes that the Defence witnesses who testified that they were not harmed or harassed at roadblocks were Hutus. If those at the roadblocks were looking for Tutsis, it is logical that Hutus would be permitted to pass. It is also plausible that some of these Defence witnesses did not see any dead bodies at roadblocks, as the evidence supported the fact that Tutsis were identified at roadblocks, but were sometimes taken to be killed elsewhere.<sup>14180</sup> The Chamber further considers that many of these Defence witnesses were not truthful and turned a blind eye to violence against Tutsis at roadblocks. For example, Witness CEM testified that she had no idea of the ethnicity of those manning roadblocks and had not observed any killings during the day or at roadblocks.<sup>14181</sup> The Chamber does not find it credible that she could have lived through the events of April to July 1994 in Butare préfecture and not seen evidence of killings.

5429. Contrary to Prosecution evidence that Tutsis were selected and killed at roadblocks, Witness QBV testified that if he encountered Tutsis at his roadblock, he should report them to the authorities.<sup>14183</sup> In this regard, Witness WCNMC also testified that she did not witness any killings at the roadblocks, but that, one morning she saw three people being arrested at the Mukoni roadblock for not having any identity cards.<sup>14184</sup> Having considered the foregoing evidence, the Chamber is convinced that this was not the policy followed at roadblocks.

5430. In this regard, the Chamber notes the evidence of Witness AND-72, who testified that persons in charge of roadblocks were instructed to check foreigners who intended to enter the secteur, inspect their identity cards, and arrest wrong-doers and hand them over to the commune authorities.<sup>14185</sup> Nonetheless, he testified Tutsi civilians, including women and children, were killed at the roadblocks.<sup>14186</sup> Expert Witness Reyntjens also testified that most of the time people were not handed over to authorities but were killed on the spot.<sup>14187</sup> Moreover, the Chamber recalls the substantial evidence that Tutsis were killed at or near roadblocks and then transported elsewhere. The Chamber finds that Tutsis, once identified, were not handed over to authorities.

5431. In sum, the Chamber finds it established beyond a reasonable doubt that Tutsis were targeted and killed at roadblocks in Butare préfecture.

3.7.10 Civil Defence

3.7.10.1 Introduction

5432. The Nteziryayo Indictment alleges that from late 1990 until July 1994, military personnel, members of Government, political leaders and civil servants conspired among themselves to work out a plan with the intent to exterminate the civilian Tutsi population and eliminate members of the opposition so they could remain in power. The components of this plan included recourse to hatred and ethnic violence, the training of and distribution of weapons to militiamen, as well as the preparation of lists of people to be eliminated. Nsabimana, Nteziryayo, Nyiramasuhuko, Kanyabashi, Ndayambaje and Ntahobali elaborated, adhered to and executed this plan.<sup>14188</sup>

5433. The Nteziryayo Indictment further alleges that on 25 May 1994, the Interim Government adopted directives concerning the civil defence programme.<sup>14189</sup> Its purpose was to legalise the distribution of weapons to militiamen and to legitimise the massacres of the civilian population. The Interim Government appointed several military officers to lead “self-defence committees” established in each préfecture, some of which took an active part in the massacres, including Nteziryayo in Butare.<sup>14190</sup>

5434. The Prosecution submits that the 25 May 1994 Directives of the Interim Government on civil defence demonstrate that the Interim Government was fully functioning and was reinforcing the actions needed to carry out civil defence against the enemy.<sup>14191</sup> It submits Nteziryayo actively trained and armed civilians while giving them orders to kill Tutsis under the guise of civil defence.<sup>14192</sup> Civil defence entailed organising as large a section of the population as possible to hunt down Tutsis, either to kill them on the spot or to hand them over to local authorities for execution, and Nteziryayo was de facto in charge of the programme.<sup>14193</sup>

5435. It submits that Nteziryayo, as the authority figure in charge of civil defence for Butare, conspired with other government officials at a 20 May 1994 meeting to get the public more involved in the killing of Tutsis and that he spoke at a series of meetings along the communes bordering Burundi to spread this information, where he promulgated genocide under the guise of the civil self-defence programme.<sup>14194</sup> The Nteziryayo Defence submits that the Prosecution case against Nteziryayo is premised almost entirely on his functions as the head of civil defence in Butare préfecture.<sup>14195</sup> It submits that the Prosecution failed to establish that a superior-subordinate relationship existed between Nteziryayo and the members of civil defence and/or other members of the population in Butare. It submits the Prosecution failed to identify the alleged subordinates of Nteziryayo, failed to show Nteziryayo was in a position of command, failed to show that he had the power to issue orders, and failed to show Nteziryayo was capable of taking disciplinary action against the perpetrators.<sup>14196</sup>

5436. In particular, it argues the Prosecution failed to prove that despite Colonel Simba's evident position as the de jure head of civil defence in Butare and Gikongoro préfectures, Nteziryayo was the de facto head of civil defence in Butare.<sup>14197</sup>

Failure to Plead Time Frame of Civil Defence

5437. The Nteziryayo Defence submits Paragraphs 4.5, 4.6, 6.16, 6.29 and 6.31 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment are defective because they do not identify with specificity the time frame during which Nteziryayo was allegedly in charge of civil defence.<sup>14198</sup> It asserts the only paragraph to identify a time frame in relation to civil defence is Paragraph 6.16 which states that on 25 May 1994 the Interim Government adopted directives concerning civil defence. It argues that any factual evidence as to events prior to 25 May 1994 falls outside the temporal scope of this paragraph and should not be considered against Nteziryayo.<sup>14199</sup>

5438. The Chamber recalls that an indictment must be read as a whole. Paragraph 4.5 states: "Nteziryayo held the office of Préfet of Butare from 17 June 1994 until he left Rwanda in July 1994. Before that, he was responsible for the Civil Defence of the préfecture of Butare." Paragraph 6.29 states: "In the days following the death of the President Habyarimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo went to Butare to take over his new assignment. Between April and June 1994, Alphonse Nteziryayo, the official in charge of civil defence for Butare préfecture, supervised the training of the militiamen and distributed weapons to them, at least once with the assistance by Élie Ndayambaje.” When read together, these paragraphs make clear the Prosecution’s allegation that Nteziryayo was in charge of civil defence starting after the death of the President and until Nteziryayo became préfet of Butare. Although Paragraph 6.16 alleges the Interim Government adopted civil defence directives on 25 May 1994, this does not exclude the possibility that civil defence existed prior to that date. Therefore, the Chamber finds that the Nteziryayo and Nsabimana Indictment did not limit the scope of Nteziryayo’s alleged criminal conduct under the rubric of civil defence to conduct after 25 May 1994.

Transcript of 14 May 1994 University Meeting Speeches

5439. The Chamber admitted into evidence the transcripts of two audio recordings of speeches allegedly made at a 14 May 1994 meeting at the University attended by Prime Minister Kambanda and University authorities, including Maurice Ntahobali. These exhibits are Defence Exhibit 552 and Prosecution Exhibit 171.<sup>14200</sup>

5440. As to Defence Exhibit 552, the speech of Prime Minister Kambanda, adduced by the Nteziryayo Defence, Nteziryayo testified that he heard only the latter portion of Kambanda’s speech as it was broadcast on Radio Rwanda.<sup>14201</sup> Nteziryayo however did not testify as to the authenticity of the remainder of the audio recording. The Chamber made an oral ruling that Counsel had not established a sufficient basis to warrant the admission of the speech in its entirety into evidence. The Chamber disallowed questions as to earlier portions of the speech which were not in evidence.<sup>14202</sup> Therefore, the Chamber will only consider portions of the speech authenticated by Nteziryayo.

5441. As to Prosecution Exhibit 171, Nyiramasuhuko Defence Witness Maurice Ntahobali testified that he recognised his own voice in an audio-recorded speech he made in response to Kambanda’s remarks on 14 May 1994. Several other speeches of University lecturers were also on the same recording, admitted as Prosecution Exhibit 171.<sup>14203</sup> Maurice Ntahobali did not attest to the authenticity of those portions of the recording. Considering those portions of the recording were not authenticated and that no questions were posed thereon, the Chamber will not consider the substance of those subsequent responses to Kambanda’s speech.

Disclosure and Reliance on Evidence Adduced Through Des Forges

5443. The Chamber recalls the Nyiramasuhuko Defence filed a motion on 11 April 2000 seeking the disclosure of certain documents, including: (1) copies of all documents seized at the Butare préfecture office; and (2) the transcript of Nsabimana's interview with Human Rights Watch and Nsabimana's manuscript, The Truth About the Massacres in Butare.<sup>14205</sup> In its Decision of 1 November 2000, the Chamber ordered the Prosecution to permit the Nyiramasuhuko Defence to inspect the documents seized at the Butare préfecture office. The Chamber held that all the interviews with Nsabimana and his manuscript entitled The Truth About the Massacres in Butare were given by Nsabimana to Human Rights Watch. Therefore, it held that the Nyiramasuhuko Defence must seek those items from Nsabimana himself.<sup>14206</sup>

5444. In its Decision of 8 June 2001, the Chamber granted Nyiramasuhuko's renewed request seeking discovery of the documents seized at the Butare préfecture office and ordered the Prosecutor to report back in 10 days on compliance with the order.<sup>14207</sup> On 18 June 2001, the Prosecutor reported to the Chamber that the Legal Assistant to the Nyiramasuhuko Defence team conducted an inspection of the Butare préfecture documents on 16 June 2001 and that it had provided a courtesy copy of Exhibit 5 ("Butare Préfecture Documents") from the Prosecutor's list of Exhibits as filed on 30 April 2001.<sup>14208</sup> The Nyiramasuhuko Defence did not object to this representation.

5446. In a related matter, the Nyiramasuhuko Defence asserts the exhibits introduced through Des Forges were not admitted for the truth of their contents, but for the support they offer to Des Forges' report and evidence.<sup>14210</sup>

5447. In this case, Des Forges testified that in conducting her research she found several documents at the Butare préfecture office which pertained to the Government's civil defence programme.<sup>14211</sup> These included Prosecution Exhibits 115, 118, 119, 120, 121 and 122. In an oral ruling of 9 June 2004, the Chamber held that certain documents adduced through Des

<sup>14209</sup> The Nyiramasuhuko Defence argued that Nsabimana's prior statements, Prosecution Exhibit 113, could not be introduced as evidence against Nyiramasuhuko because the alleged conspiracy was complete at the time of the statement. It further argued, as to Exhibit 114, that document was not authenticated because it was not signed and because the chain of custody was not established: T. 8 June 2004 pp. 55, 65; T. 9 June 2004 p. 8 (Des Forges).

Forges were admissible for limited purposes only.<sup>14212</sup> The Chamber held that this evidence was admissible as evidence relied upon by Des Forges in forming her expert opinion and the weight to be accorded to these exhibits would be determined at the end of the trial taking into account all of the circumstances.<sup>14213</sup> The Chamber admitted these Exhibits to help substantiate Des Forges' opinion. The Chamber's deliberations on these matters necessarily implicate the weight and probative value to be attributed to Des Forges' opinion as well as the materials upon which she relied. The Exhibits were therefore admitted for their content. Furthermore, Nyiramasuhuko, Nsabimana, Nteziryayo and Maurice Ntahobali acknowledged the authenticity of these documents in their testimony.

3.7.10.3 Evidence

Prosecution Witness FAI

5448. Witness FAI, a Hutu civil servant in 1994, testified that towards the middle of May 1994, on the day before Ndahimana's swearing-in ceremony [22 May 1994],<sup>14214</sup> Prime Minister Jean Kambanda issued a communiqué addressed to the nation, saying that it was necessary to put an end to the killing, that it was necessary that Rwandans stop killing one another, that the enemy was the RPF, that the accomplices were not all Tutsis, but only those who were associated with the RPF. However, Witness FAI testified that the policy communicated by Kambanda was intended to mislead the public because the massacres continued and people in power were aware of it.<sup>14215</sup> The announcement was put on the radio and documents containing the substance of the communiqué were circulated in secteurs and communes. Witness FAI testified that the words were not sincere because people who were hiding in the bushes came out in broad daylight and were eventually killed.<sup>14216</sup>

5449. Witness FAI testified that in the afternoon of 22 May 1994, he attended the swearing-in ceremony of Mathieu Ndahimana, the new bourgmestre of Ntyazo commune.<sup>14217</sup> Witness FAI testified that Nteziryayo was introduced as the person responsible for civil defence.<sup>14218</sup> Witness FAI stated that he learned on the day of Ndahimana's swearing-in ceremony that Lieutenant Colonel Nteziryayo was a subordinate of Colonels Muvunyi and Simba.<sup>14219</sup> Colonel Simba was actually in charge of civil defence in both Butare and Gikongoro, but he

The weight to be made out of that is – will be done at the end after the parties had been heard, cross-examination had been done. And for that reason, we are of the view that this document which is indicated to her has come from and obtained from a source known, is admissible for that limited extent. And as to weight, as we said in our previous decision, will have to be weighed and be determined at the end. was assisted in Butare préfecture by Nteziryayo.<sup>14220</sup> Colonel Simba introduced himself to the population as the person responsible for civil defence for Butare and Gikongoro préfectures.<sup>14221</sup>

5450. Civil defence was the strategy put in place during the genocide, aimed at providing military training to youth and giving them weapons so that they could assist the military at the front and participate in the killing of Tutsis. There was no difference between these trained youths and the Interahamwe.<sup>14222</sup> The civil defence programme was strengthened by intensifying training with the intent of providing more importance to the army.<sup>14223</sup> The offices of the civil defence programme were located in a social centre in Ngoma secteur.<sup>14224</sup>

5451. Witness FAI further testified that at a meeting at the BPO in early June 1994, Nteziryayo answered the call of two bourgmestres from Kibayi and Kigembe communes who requested help in controlling the influx of Tutsi refugees into their communes. Nteziryayo said that he had at his disposal youths who had undergone their training and that he would send them as soon as possible.<sup>14225</sup> Witness FAI testified that Nteziryayo sent some Ibisumizi to Kibayi to kill those Tutsis.<sup>14226</sup> Witness FAI testified that he was present when Nteziryayo gave Célestin Harindintwari directives to transport the Ibisumizi to the Kibayi commune, so that they could help the Hutu inhabitants as requested.<sup>14227</sup>

Prosecution Witness RV

5452. Witness RV, a Hutu civil servant in Rwanda and a detainee at the time of his testimony, testified that on about 5 May 1994, he attended a meeting in Kirarambogo chaired by Alphonse Nteziryayo.<sup>14228</sup> It was attended, among others, by Colonel Muvunyi, the Butare commander, Jean Baptiste Ruzindaza, the Chairman of the Tribunal de Première Instance, and Dominique Ntawukuliyayo, the former sous-préfet of Gisagara sous-préfecture.<sup>14229</sup> The witness testified that during this period, Nteziryayo was the chairman of the civil defence committee in the region.<sup>14230</sup> According to Nteziryayo's speech during that meeting, Nteziryayo was responsible for sensitising the people about their training in the use of traditional weapons, i.e. bows and arrows, spears and other traditional weapons. Nteziryayo was also responsible for sensitising youth to get them to enrol in the army. He reminded the people that they should exterminate all the accomplices so that the Tutsis who had gone into exile would not have any witnesses to tell them what happened upon their return to the country.<sup>14231</sup>

5453. In order to obtain petrol from April to June 1994, one had to ask Nsabimana for a fuel voucher. The fuel was stored at the BPO and the use of fuel was controlled by the army.<sup>14232</sup> Sometime in May 1994, Witness RV encountered Nsabimana at the BPO and asked for a fuel voucher. Nsabimana told Witness RV that Witness RV was no longer interested in security as he no longer participated in the programme of assaults against the Tutsis.<sup>14233</sup>

5454. Witness RV stated that he had not heard of civil defence before May 1994.<sup>14234</sup> In June 1994, soldiers started to desert and they heard of the advance of the RPF over the radio. People were encouraged to train in the use of traditional weapons so that they could assist the soldiers. They told the population they would distribute weapons.<sup>14235</sup> Nteziryayo had some relationship with the civil defence force; even if Nteziryayo was not responsible for this particular programme, he saw Nteziryayo at meetings dealing with the issue of personnel for the civil defence force.<sup>14236</sup> The witness acknowledged his signature on a letter to the commander of the area, Colonel Muvunyi, dated 27 April 1994.<sup>14237</sup> It listed the names of 14 candidates who had come forward to join the Rwandan army, including their dates of birth, secteurs of origin and levels of education.<sup>14238</sup>

5455. Witness TQ testified that Nteziryayo was de facto head of civil defence in Butare préfecture.<sup>14239</sup> He collaborated with Colonel Simba in training and in maintaining civil defence, which included manning and executing the roadblock system.<sup>14240</sup>

5456. Witness TQ testified that around 20 April 1994, teachers from the Groupe Scolaire at Butare, such as Faustin Twagirayezu and Faustin Niyomzima and a person called Jean-Marie Diogene joined the civil defence group.<sup>14241</sup> Members of civil defence had guns and sometimes traditional weapons; civil defence was a well organised and hierarchical group with a leader and a deputy. According to the witness, they could be distinguished from Interahamwe, because members of Interahamwe were young people wearing MRND uniforms.<sup>14242</sup>

5457. Witness TQ was shown Prosecution Exhibit 115, a document dated 21 April 1994, signed by Colonel Muvunyi with the topic “recruitment of youths for popular defence.”<sup>14243</sup> The witness confirmed that the document referred to a request from higher officials, the ministry, to train young people for civil defence and that Area Commander Muvunyi suggested the organisation of a meeting with other officials, to organise that training programme.<sup>14244</sup> The witness stated that civil defence existed long before 21 April 1994, organised by high Rwandan authorities; the training referred to in the letter only sought to reinforce the group that already existed.<sup>14245</sup>

5458. According to Witness TQ, among the perpetrators of the Groupe Scolaire attacks were “soldiers wearing a military uniform of the national army”, and civilians wearing civilian clothing or MRND uniforms. There were about 50 assailants.<sup>14246</sup> He testified that he recognised among the attackers several members of the civil defence, namely Faustin Niyonzima, Faustin Twagirayezu and André Bandora. He also recognised Jean-Marie, also known as Ovibar who carried a firearm, and a man called Mutereye.<sup>14247</sup>

5459. Witness TQ testified that he assisted with the evacuation of orphans from the Groupe Scolaire on 5 June 1994.<sup>14248</sup> The convoy evacuating the orphans was stopped at the roadblock at Nyakibanda Major Seminary by members of the civil defence group.<sup>14249</sup> The witness said that he could differentiate between members of the population and members of the civil defence group at that roadblock, because civil defence was armed and more brutal. On asking people to show their identification papers, members of civil defence beat the people and called them Inkotanyi.<sup>14250</sup>

5460. Colonel Munyengango, whose family was also in the convoy,<sup>14251</sup> went to the front of the convoy so that the convoy would be let through, but members of the civil defence group refused to open the roadblock. Nteziryayo arrived and spoke to those who were at the roadblock.<sup>14252</sup> The witness added that they talked in an ordinary manner as if they knew each other.<sup>14253</sup> Following a discussion with Nteziryayo, the civil defence group indicated that the children were to disembark from the vehicles and walk through the roadblock “one after the other”.<sup>14254</sup>

Prosecution Expert Witness Alison Des Forges

5461. Alison Des Forges testified civil defence saw a single enemy to be attacked. This enemy was the RPF and Tutsis who were defined as part of the enemy because of their ethnicity and because of their presumed association with the RPF. Persons who did civil defence training were regularly deployed at the barriers, where they participated in selecting Tutsis from among those who attempted to pass and prevented their passage. The selected Tutsis were then either killed or delivered to authorities, who then participated in killing them. This effort worked under the guise of protecting civilians but was in fact a military organisation designed to attack other civilians, to make no distinction between combatants and non-combatants, and to identify the civilian targets by their ethnicity.<sup>14255</sup>

5462. October 1993 marked the official implementation of the civil defence system.<sup>14256</sup> Aloys Simba was the head of civil defence for Butare and Gikongoro préfectures but Nteziryayo, whether formally ordered to or not, acted in some capacity in relation to civil defence.<sup>14257</sup> In her interview with Nsabimana, Des Forges determined that Nsabimana did not have a concrete sense of Nteziryayo's role in Butare.<sup>14258</sup>

5463. Des Forges was told by Nsabimana that Nteziryayo was a fund-raiser for the civil defence programme, although she did not include this in her Report as she could not confirm its veracity.<sup>14259</sup> Nsabimana and Simba gave pacification speeches at Nyakizu on 21 May 1994.<sup>14260</sup> Despite a lack of documentation, Des Forges affirmed that Nteziryayo was "heavily involved" in the civil defence programme.<sup>14261</sup> Des Forges stressed that authorities wanting to hinder the genocide were not powerless; they had military guards and could have verified the information they were receiving at the time.<sup>14262</sup>

5464. Given Nteziryayo was director of commune police and was seconded from the Ministry of Defence to the Ministry of Interior and was the direct subordinate of Kalimanzira, Des Forges confirmed the statement contained in her Report that Nteziryayo was in charge of coordination with the civilian authorities regarding civilian defence.<sup>14263</sup>

5465. Colonel Simba was commonly spoken of as the head of the civil defence for both Butare and Gikongoro préfectures although his activities were more in the préfecture of Gikongoro. According to Simba's statement obtained by Des Forges, he did not wish to be involved in Butare because he found he had too much work to do in Gikongoro.<sup>14264</sup>

5466. Nteziryayo was in a position of power even before he became préfet since he continued to be attached to the Ministry of Interior and under the direct orders of Kalimanzira, who completely identified with the programme of the genocide and its implementation through civil defence.<sup>14265</sup>

Prosecution Exhibits 120 and 122

5467. Des Forges testified as to Prosecution Exhibit 120, a 15 May 1994 letter from the Minister of Defence, Augustin Bizimana, to Lieutenant Colonel Aloys Simba. The letter appoints Simba as conseiller for civil defence in Butare and Gikongoro préfectures and directs him to work with the préfets, bourgmestres and conseillers of all the secteurs to carry out the plan through the chain of command. The letter directs Simba to train 10 men from each secteur to organise civil defence. Simba appointed Emmanuel Rekeraho as his immediate subordinate. Des Forges testified that in her opinion, this document showed that the military was working together with the administrative hierarchy, including the préfet, bourgmestres and conseillers de secteur.<sup>14266</sup>

5468. As to Prosecution Exhibit 122, a letter dated 25 May 1994 from Édouard Karemera to the préfets of Rwanda on implementing the civil defence system, Des Forges noted that the personnel changes over time within the government administration indicated a continued commitment to eliminating the enemy Tutsi. This document indicates that they must keep an eye out for those people who are handicapping the programme. The real objective could be seen by the people who were hired and fired.<sup>14267</sup>

5469. Des Forges stated that while the army was important, the civil administration was essential for assuming the mobilisation of the civilian population, for the carrying out of massacres, and for organising roadblocks and patrols. Had the civilian administration refused to participate, the resources available to the military would never have sufficed to carry out a killing campaign on this scale.<sup>14268</sup>

5470. Des Forges testified that she spoke with Nsabimana by telephone on 3 April 1996. Nsabimana explained that civil defence funds were established in all the préfectures by a Directive from the Ministry of Interior. The funds were intended to provide refreshments “for the militia”: the funds paid for arms and petrol, and provided beer and drugs to militia manning the barriers to keep them aggressive and reward them for their activities. In Butare, the fund was administered by Nteziryayo and Nyiramasuhuko.<sup>14269</sup>

5471. Des Forges testified that she received two documents from Nsabimana, including a manuscript drafted by Nsabimana entitled The Truth About the Massacres in Butare, introduced as Prosecution Exhibit 113, and the transcript of a journalist’s interview of Nsabimana taken in October 1994, introduced into evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 114.

5472. Prosecution Exhibit 113, The Truth About the Massacres in Butare, was signed and attributed to Nsabimana. With regard to civil defence and roadblocks, Nsabimana stated:

While I [Nsabimana] struggled to restore order in town, while I chaired meetings in the communes to restore calm, there were meetings whose agenda I did not know taking place without my knowledge. Such meetings were convened and chaired by the Director of the Cabinet [and] Minister of the Interior and Community Development, Calleste [sic] Kalimanzira.

His ministry was responsible for the spreading of MRND propaganda, the erection of roadblocks and the establishment and operation of the so called Civilian Defence Force.

There were many roadblocks, especially in the communes and in town. Their purpose was evil (theft, injustices .... All the youth were converted into militiamen mainly [out] of fear. In the countryside, the roadblocks gave occasion for robberies.

In town, there were some killings at the roadblocks.<sup>14270</sup>

5473. Des Forges also testified as to the transcript of an interview sent to her by Nsabimana. The transcript of that interview was introduced into evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 114A and provided:

Already before April, maybe around January, we were aware of people being trained by the military. We were thinking that these militias had to be for use against the opposition. That was my feeling, that the militias were to be used against all the opposition parties. After the plane crash, of course, the Presidential Guard had already killed people from the opposition, then 2-3 days later began to kill people from the Tutsi group. At that time there were many people from the Presidential Guard and the militia. But my feeling at the time was that the militia was trained to kill people from the opposition first. Then when people from the opposition were eliminated, it was already out of human understanding but it was also very easy to determine who had done the killing. I think it was a strategy to kill Tutsis.

There were roadblocks. At the roadblocks, they decided if you would go through or not. Of course, if you were a Tutsi, you couldn't go. They checked identity cards. If you looked like a Tutsi, then they could kill you. I had to go to the roadblocks to tell people not to do that. The people on the roadblocks, I did not know them. Most of the time they were not from Butare. Maybe one or two from Butare, but most I think from Kigali. Trained people of course.

Militia and military, especially the Presidential Guard came to kill people at the churches. The plan was to kill Tutsis no matter where they were, in churches, the countryside, it didn't matter, anywhere, they must be killed.<sup>14271</sup>

5474. Des Forges agreed that the RPF used agents behind the lines. They sent soldiers behind the lines to gather information and received information of a civilian nature rather than military nature from civilian supporters of the RPF political movement within the country.<sup>14272</sup>

She said an entire civil population defined by its ethnicity is not a reasonable definition of accomplices. Accomplices would have been perhaps numbered in the dozens, in the entire country. They could have been identified and arrested and tried according to legitimate legal procedures. They did not require the mobilisation of an entire population to unmask this group.<sup>14273</sup>

Prosecution Expert Witness André Guichaoua

5475. André Guichaoua testified that the civil defence programme included an awareness campaign, recruitment and training, distribution and making of modern or traditional weapons and finding sources of finance.<sup>14274</sup> Patrols and roadblocks had to be organised and monitored and searches, seizures and umuganda were to be carried out under the auspices of the civil defence programme.<sup>14275</sup> All of these operations were monitored by the bourgmestres and the préfet, who were in charge of organising the meetings regarding civil defence around 25 April 1994.<sup>14276</sup> The civil defence programme was a pretext for what Guichaoua called the “killing machine” through which the organisers of the genocide mobilised individuals to take part in the killings under the auspices of “security”. He pointed to the various benefits to be gained by individuals participating in the activities of the civil defence programme. In his view, robberies and rapes at roadblocks, occupation of lands, the stealing of tiles or of door or window frames before burning houses and the provision of alcohol were payments in kind for those participating in the killings.<sup>14277</sup>

5476. Guichaoua referred to some neighbourhoods of Ngoma commune where inhabitants had set up self-organised civilian defence groups in early May 1994 in order to protect themselves from any external attacks. This type of civilian defence group was non-political, was not in charge of roadblocks, and was not involved in matters of identification of the enemy. According to Guichaoua, those systems of civilian self-defence needed to be distinguished from the civil defence programme which was implemented by the authorities in Butare at the end of April 1994.<sup>14278</sup>

5477. Guichaoua testified that Nteziryayo had ups and downs during his career. He had impressive promotions at the beginning and then was cast aside. Nteziryayo’s reputation was always sterling. On 6 April 1994 and the following days, different people stayed with Nteziryayo who were saved. However, Nteziryayo had a change of attitude when he went to Butare and when he was effectively under the orders of Callixte Kalimanzira. On 16 June 1994, Nteziryayo was chosen to replace Préfet Nsabimana because the Interim Government thought Nteziryayo was in a better position to apply the government’s instructions.<sup>14279</sup>

Callixte Kalimanzira, who, as Minister of Interior Ad Interim, until the appointment of Édouard Karemera, was in charge of civilian self-defence matters in liaison with a group of officers formed around Théoneste Bagosora. Both operationally and hierarchically, the civilian self-defence unit was not under the command of the highest ranking officer in Butare and Gikongoro area, Lieutenant Colonel Tharcisse Muvunyi. It was directly coordinated by the ministry of the interior outside the military chain of command. Even though the texts ... produced late by the Ministry of the Interior states that, the officer in charge of civilian self-defence of the préfectural committee was under the préfet, there was no direct hierarchy relationship between this unit and the préfet at the local level.

Alphonse Nteziryayo directly reported to the authorities in charge of self-defence, both civilian and military at the national level. In view of this, the itinerary followed by Alphonse Nteziryayo to the post of préfet appears to be straight-forward. In his capacity as officer in charge of the civilian popular self-defence program for Butare, he had already been active in the massacres since the end of April. He only added the title of préfet to his prerogatives when civilian self-defence became the very essence of the Ministry of the Interior's security policy. According to several witness testimonies, Alphonse Nteziryayo is said to have accepted the promotion due to the will of and trust from Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, native of a neighbouring commune and of the same generation, and of Callixte Kalimanzira, who wanted to get rid of Sylvain Nsabimana as soon as possible.<sup>14280</sup>

25 May 1994 Directive

5479. Guichaoua commented on a letter dated 25 May 1994 from Prime Minister Jean Kambanda to all the préfets telling them how the civil defence should be organised (Prosecution Exhibit 121). It described the hierarchy and the implementation process for civil defence. It describes the entire hierarchy all the way down to the communes, with one heading that specifies the role of the area commander from the Armed Forces in that programme.<sup>14281</sup> Civil defence was put under the responsibility of the Minister of Interior, whether or not this was his official duty. The civil defence also fell under the Ministry of Defence, who would take care of the training, supply the weapons and even avail the officers or petty officers or troops. In the préfectures all forces were asked to participate to eradicate the enemy from within: soldiers, gendarmes, commune police officers, militiamen, committees set up by the officials, local Government officials and their recruits all worked together in a clear hierarchy.<sup>14282</sup>

Defence Expert Witness Filip Reyntjens

14 May 1994 Meeting with Prime Minister Kambanda

5480. Filip Reyntjens testified that he analysed the transcripts of Prime Minister Kambanda's 14 May 1994 speech at the university campus in Butare, admitted into evidence as Defence

Exhibit 574.<sup>14283</sup> Reyntjens testified that in the speech, the Prime Minister addressed the audience, which included the rector, the préfet, the vice-rector, the sous-préfets, researchers, university employees and inhabitants of Butare; Kanyabashi was not present at that meeting.<sup>14284</sup>

5481. According to Reyntjens, Kambanda associated the commune authorities with the RPF in several passages of his speech. Kambanda stated in the speech:

A conseiller, a member of the cellule committee, a préfet, a sous-préfet or any other official has the right to be an Inkotanyi. However, when we will be fighting the Inkotanyi we will fight him as well. ... Those who support the RPF shall join them and they shall assign him an RPF posts [sic]; they should not unjustly occupy our posts.<sup>14285</sup>

Moreover, we know that some bourgmestres, here in Butare and elsewhere work for the RPF. ... So, do not be surprised if some ... bourgmestres are removed and replaced by others. They have to wait for the RPF and the new Government of national unity, including the RPF, to be put in place and then work with them. For the time being, they have to be removed and replaced by people who work for the good of Rwandans and the Rwandan Government.<sup>14286</sup>

5482. Kambanda announced the implementation of civil defence during his speech, although this programme was already in place.<sup>14287</sup> Reyntjens referred to the following passage of Kambanda's speech: "As we have explained on the air, we are currently looking into ways of setting up a Civil Defence force.... A committee could be set up for that purpose for it will be useful to us at this moment."<sup>14288</sup>

5483. Reyntjens testified that the speech showed that Kambanda wanted the civil defence programme to be formalised and generalised throughout the country in compliance with the instructions he issued on 25 May 1994.<sup>14289</sup> Kambanda blamed the Butare authorities, especially the bourgmestre of Ngoma urban commune, for his lack of commitment, as was evidenced by Kambanda saying "people are thinking that there is no war in Butare, no roadblocks have been set up", with the obvious threat towards those who would refuse to fully commit themselves to the policy.<sup>14290</sup>

Other Exhibits

5484. Reyntjens agreed Prosecution Exhibit 120 indicates that Colonel Simba was appointed as the civilian defence advisor for the préfectures of Butare and Gikongoro.<sup>14291</sup> Reyntjens agreed that the fact that Nsabimana received a civilian defence advisor showed that Nsabimana had some responsibility in civilian defence.<sup>14292</sup> Reyntjens agreed that the letter indicated that the advisor should work in collaboration with préfets, bourgmestres and conseillers to supervise civil defence training on how to prevent “infiltration of the ENI”, which meant the enemy, i.e. the RPF Inkotanyi and its accomplices, or in other words the Tutsi.<sup>14293</sup>

Nyiramasuhuko Defence Witness Maurice Ntahobali

5485. Maurice Ntahobali, the husband of Nyiramasuhuko and father of Shalom Ntahobali, testified that between April and July 1994, he did not learn that there were massacres in Butare préfecture.<sup>14294</sup>

14 May 1994 Meeting with Prime Minister Kambanda

5486. Maurice Ntahobali testified that he did not leave the Hotel Ihuliro in April 1994.<sup>14295</sup> However, he did leave the hotel and moved around in Butare between the end of April and the beginning of July 1994. He recalled Prime Minister Kambanda’s visit at the invitation of MDR members of the university community in mid-May 1994 when his wife was also in Butare.<sup>14296</sup>

5487. The meeting was held at the Butare University campus, and the witness was informed of the meeting by the vice-rector, Jean Bacumas Nshimyumuremyi. The purpose of the meeting was to disseminate information regarding the political situation. The witness agreed that the date of the meeting was around 14 May 1994.<sup>14297</sup> Nyiramasuhuko did not take part in the 14 May 1994 University meeting.<sup>14298</sup> The audio recording of Kambanda’s and Maurice Ntahobali’s speeches broadcast on 15 May 1994 was admitted into evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 171A.<sup>14299</sup>

5488. At this meeting, Prime Minister Kambanda addressed pacification and also alluded to civil defence. Civil defence was a way of ensuring the security of the country. Kambanda did not suggest that those involved in civil defence should try to eliminate the Tutsis within the country.<sup>14300</sup> He said Kambanda’s speech stressed that the university population should cooperate and try to solve the problem relating to the war which Rwanda was waging against the RPF.<sup>14301</sup>

5489. Maurice Ntahobali made a statement at the meeting expressing his and the university community's support for the institutions of the Republic, the President, and for the Government of Jean Kambanda. He talked about the Inkotanyi, who in English are referred to as RPF, and said they were people who sought to take power by force of arms. Maurice Ntahobali's statement also indicated that the university lecturers felt that the Arusha Accords were no longer of any value because the RPF had a lot of benefit from them. The lecturers also felt it necessary to sensitise members of the population so that they could find means to defend themselves, meaning civil defence.<sup>14302</sup>

Civilian Defence

5490. Maurice Ntahobali stated that he did not know before fleeing from Butare that Colonel Aloys Simba was in charge of civilian defence in Butare and Gikongoro.<sup>14303</sup> He never knew that prior to his appointment as préfet, Alphonse Nteziryayo played any role whatsoever in civil defence in Butare.<sup>14304</sup>

5491. Maurice Ntahobali heard about a committee for the funding of civilian defence between April and July 1994. He knew his name was included on the list of members of the committee, but he did not attend the committee's meetings or participate in its mission. It was an ad hoc committee, not a permanent entity, and, therefore, did not have its own premises. Whenever the committee had to meet, it was at the behest of the convener with resources that were made available by the préfecture office. Nobody invited the witness to attend a meeting until the end of June 1994.<sup>14305</sup>

5492. Maurice Ntahobali was shown Tables 14 and 15 in Guichaoua's Report. Table 14 contains a list of purported members of the civil defence supervision committee and the civil defence préfecture committee. Table 15 contains a list of names of purported members of the financial committee of civil defence. The witness could not confirm whether before 3 July 1994, they had indeed been members. The witness also could not state whether the people listed in Table 14 were members of the civil defence supervisory committee or of the civil defence préfecture committee.<sup>14306</sup>

5493. Charles Karemano testified that the University held a meeting around mid-May 1994 to which Prime Minister Kambanda was invited. At that meeting academics made heinous speeches in an effort to please the Government. They said that people from the other ethnic group, i.e. Tutsis, and Tutsi university lecturers should be shot down, although Karemano testified that most of them had already been shot down at that time. It was being said that in the university one should not let any enemies or people from the other race remain.<sup>14307</sup> Tutsi lecturers who had already been killed included Professors Karenzi, Rumiya and Gaétan, but there were many more.<sup>14308</sup>

Nyiramasuhuko Defence Witness Eugène Shimamungu

5494. Eugène Shimamungu testified as to Defence Exhibit 288, a communiqué broadcast on Radio Rwanda and signed by Nsabimana. It stated: “The looting and massacres must cease immediately and the attackers who are armed with all sorts of weapons but who are not assigned to man any roadblock recognised by the authorities, must stop their activities.”<sup>14309</sup>

Civil Defence

5495. Nyiramasuhuko was shown Prosecution Exhibit 120, a document dated 15 May 1994 referring to the appointment of Aloys Simba as civil defence adviser of the préfets of Butare and Gikongoro.<sup>14310</sup> She explained that the Government had decided to set up a civil defence system. The officials implementing the system came under the Ministry of Defence, which appointed them.<sup>14311</sup> She learned about Simba’s appointment during the meeting of the enlarged Security Council, held in Butare on 16 May 1994, based upon what was said by Préfet Nsabimana.<sup>14312</sup> Nyiramasuhuko did not know why Rekeraho attended the council meeting. She noted that he spoke and thought that he was there as a representative of a political party. She later learned that Rekeraho was Simba’s assistant in the civil defence field.<sup>14313</sup>

14 May 1994 Meeting with Prime Minister Kambanda

5496. Nyiramasuhuko testified that she learned about a meeting in Butare on 14 May 1994 after the fact.<sup>14314</sup> She was told that Butare authorities had received the Prime Minister at this meeting. The authorities preparing the reception were the préfet of Butare and the vice-rector, Nshimyumuremyi. She thought that the meeting was held at the faculty of medicine at the National University of Rwanda, but was not sure. Nyiramasuhuko said that the director of the National University of Rwanda, Butare campus, was aware of the meeting with the Prime Minister, as both the vice-rector and préfet had informed him.<sup>14315</sup> The rector, Nyiramasuhuko’s husband, attended the meeting.<sup>14316</sup>

5497. Nyiramasuhuko stated that when she reached Butare, her husband told her that the Prime Minister had visited the Butare intellectuals. She did not take notes in her diary regarding the meeting, as she did not attend it.<sup>14317</sup> Nyiramasuhuko testified that there had been radio coverage of the meeting,<sup>14318</sup> that she had not listened to it, but she read a transcript of it and listened to a recording of it in Arusha.<sup>14319</sup>

5498. Nyiramasuhuko stated that the Prime Minister's trip to Butare on 14 May 1994 had not been discussed previously in a Cabinet meeting, and that the ministers therefore did not know of this trip.<sup>14320</sup>

5499. Nyiramasuhuko testified that she went to Butare on 14 May 1994 because she was not feeling well.<sup>14321</sup> She also wanted to visit her family, and there was a state nurse among them. Given she was in Murambi on 13 May 1994, she had no way of knowing a meeting was going to be held on 14 May 1994 at the University campus in Butare. Her absence from the meeting was borne out by the absence of her name or any other minister's name in the transcripts of the radio broadcast, as well as by a letter from Kalimanzira which stated that she had been with him that evening.<sup>14322</sup>

25 May 1994 Directive from Jean Kambanda

5500. Nyiramasuhuko testified that Prosecution Exhibit 121, the directives and guidelines on the Government's civilian defence of 25 May 1994, had been examined by the Government prior to its issuance.<sup>14323</sup> She did not remember the date on which the Government decided that the document of 25 May 1994 was satisfactory and fit for dissemination. When the ministers who were supposed to determine whether the document was ready did so, they forwarded it to the Prime Minister. He added what he deemed necessary, and signed it on 25 May 1994.<sup>14324</sup>

5501. Nyiramasuhuko testified that when she went to attend a meeting on 31 May 1994, she inquired in passing of Colonel Munyengango about the roadblocks she had seen in Butare town. Colonel Munyengango told her that he had been told that those who were manning roadblocks were people of good character known by the commune administration, and who had received some training. Munyengango further said that the roadblocks were part of the civilian defence and that there was a problem of soldiers, who were in the north of Butare préfecture since the Inkotanyi were already within the vicinity. In addition, she had been told that firearms had been distributed within the framework of civilian defence.<sup>14325</sup>

5502. Nsabimana testified that Prime Minister Kambanda visited Butare National University on 14 May 1994.<sup>14326</sup> He testified that the vice-rector's invitation for this meeting was not sent to the préfet. The préfecture was informed of the visit belatedly, but he along with his sous-préfet in charge of administration attended. Nsabimana said that at the meeting the Prime Minister had discussions with the staff of the University.<sup>14327</sup> He also said that there was no bourgmestre at this meeting.<sup>14328</sup> Nsabimana did not know the speech had been broadcast and could not recall the contents of Kambanda's speech although he testified that Kambanda always had the same belligerent themes in his speeches.<sup>14329</sup>

5503. Nsabimana testified that Prosecution Exhibit 121, the Prime Minister's Directive on civil defence dated 25 May 1994, never got to his hands, though it reached the bourgmestres.<sup>14330</sup> He testified that the Directive was not discussed during the préfets' meeting with the Prime Minister on 28 May 1994, and that he only saw the Directive when Des Forges was tendering her exhibits.<sup>14331</sup> He insisted the document was in the custody of certain persons but did not come from him.<sup>14332</sup>

5504. Nsabimana testified that in late May 1994, Kambanda went to the guest house of the National University of Rwanda, where he met with the vice-rector and there they discussed weapons for civilian defence.<sup>14333</sup>

5505. Nsabimana testified that he did not make any financial transactions with the bank accounts of the préfecture during his tenure as préfet.<sup>14334</sup> Pursuant to a meeting of the Security Council on 15 June 1994, Nsabimana acknowledged that he had signed a letter to the Bank of Kigali to request an account for civil defence.<sup>14335</sup> In his letter of request of 15 June 1994, Nsabimana had designated four account trustees who were required co-signatories for all withdrawals. That same day, Nsabimana received a letter from the vice-rector of the National University of Rwanda informing Nsabimana of the opening of a civil defence bank account with the Rwandan Bank of Commerce of Butare.<sup>14336</sup> The vice-rector subsequently made a deposit in this latter bank. Nsabimana said the trustees of the account in the Rwandan Bank of Commerce into which the vice-rector deposited funds were not designated by Nsabimana.<sup>14337</sup>

5506. Nteziryayo testified that from September 1991 up until he was appointed préfet of Butare, he was director of commune police in the Ministry of Interior.<sup>14338</sup> During that time, his superiors were the Minister of the Interior, Faustin Munyazesa, the Director-General Aloys Ngendahimana and the Director of Political and Administrative Affairs François Harerimana.<sup>14339</sup> He was solely under the authority of the Minister of Interior, despite the fact that the Ministry of Defence still paid his salary.<sup>14340</sup> In April, May and June 1994 he did not receive his salary, although in July 1994 he met the army accountant in Cyanguu and received his salary for all three months.<sup>14341</sup>

5507. Nteziryayo testified that he did not exercise any authority on members of the commune police staff.<sup>14342</sup> He referred to Prosecution Exhibit 189 which contained substantive provisions of the organisation of the commune police. According to Article 104 (4) of the provisions laid down in Prosecution Exhibit 189, only the bourgmestre had powers to exercise authority over commune police staff.<sup>14343</sup> Further, he did not possess the authority to pay the salary, to hire or to dismiss commune police officers.<sup>14344</sup> Defence Exhibit 523, the Rwandan law pertaining to the organisation of commune police, confirmed that commune police were under the authority of the bourgmestre.<sup>14345</sup> He testified that in 1994 there were many reservists of the Rwandan army within the commune police force, because they had priority over civilians in the event of recruitment of members for the commune police force.<sup>14346</sup>

5508. Regarding Defence Exhibit 522 concerning the division of the commune police within the Ministry of the Interior, Nteziryayo stated that even though according to the document the discipline of the commune police in Rwanda also fell under his responsibility as chief of the divisional commune police, Nteziryayo never carried out such controls of discipline because of a lack of information.<sup>14347</sup> In addition, as director of the commune police division it was his responsibility to hand over the weapons – including guns and ammunition – from the Ministry of Defence to the bourgmestres when they came to receive them.<sup>14348</sup>

5509. Nteziryayo testified that his daughter was born on 30 March 1994. He took leave from his work in the Ministry of the Interior on 22 or 23 March 1994 to be of assistance to his pregnant wife.<sup>14349</sup> The leave was to be due on 8 or 9 April 1994, but because fighting started after the events of 6 April 1994, he did not return to work, even though he was still officially serving at the Ministry of the Interior.<sup>14350</sup> Between 5 and 16 April 1994, he did not speak with anyone in the Ministry of the Interior or in army headquarters.<sup>14351</sup> The fighting in Kigali continued until Nteziryayo left on 15 April to Butare; therefore it was impossible for him and for other state civil servants to go to work between 7 and 15 April 1994, such that Nteziryayo stayed permanently at home.<sup>14352</sup> On their arrival in Butare his family went directly to the house of a friend in Ngoma commune and was accommodated there.<sup>14353</sup> Because there was not enough room in the friend's home, Nteziryayo went to the Hotel Ibis.<sup>14354</sup> He visited his family often, sometimes several times a day, and brought food and medical treatment for several sick persons.<sup>14355</sup> On 18 April 1994 he organised the evacuation of Gatera and Gatera's wife to Burundi.<sup>14356</sup>

5510. During the period from 15 April to 21 June 1994, he was not engaged in any state activity or duties; he mainly took care of his family and the other persons lodging at a friend's house.<sup>14357</sup> Despite his high rank in the army and the fact that the army had insufficient qualified staff and was recruiting people, he stayed in Butare because he had no occupation.<sup>14358</sup> Nteziryayo denied that he remained in Butare because he held a position there; the Ministry existed but it was in Gitarama and all civil servants were on holiday.<sup>14359</sup> Contrary to Guichaoua's Report, he did not set up an office as Director of the commune police in Butare and he did not carry out any activity that had to do with his duties as Director of commune police.<sup>14360</sup> He testified that until 17 June 1994, he still considered himself as Chief of commune police in the Ministry of the Interior, which still existed at that period and had moved first to Gitarama and afterwards to Gisenyi.<sup>14361</sup> He did not go to Gitarama to ask the Minister of Interior Édouard Karemera for directives because the communiqué of the Minister of Defence on 7 April 1994 had stated that everyone should stay indoors until further notice so no one felt obliged to go to work.<sup>14362</sup>

5511. He stated that between 15 April and 3 July 1994 in Butare he always wore a military uniform for his security,<sup>14363</sup> and generally carried his pistol with him.<sup>14364</sup> In Butare he had some extra military uniforms.<sup>14365</sup> In addition, members of his family who remained in Kigali brought him some military uniforms but no civilian clothes.<sup>14366</sup>

Appointment as Préfet

5512. Nteziryayo stated that he assumed that the Minister of Interior Édouard Karemera had proposed him as préfet, because he usually proposed names for the position of préfet.<sup>14367</sup> The reason for his appointment was, as he learned later from the Minister of Interior during Nteziryayo's swearing-in ceremony, his position as a soldier. The Government hoped that a soldier could deal with the pressure of the RPF advancing on Butare and that he could cooperate with French and Rwandan soldiers simultaneously, as they intended to ask the French soldiers who were part of the Mission Turquoise to include Butare préfecture in the demilitarised zone. Finally, they thought Nteziryayo would be able to organise a possible necessary evacuation of the population.<sup>14368</sup> He had not expected the appointment and was very surprised. He had spent a long time in Butare without any duties, and he was never asked or contacted by anyone beforehand.<sup>14369</sup>

5513. Nteziryayo confirmed that soldiers were under obligations to accept appointments from the Government in capacities other than that of a soldier.<sup>14370</sup> He had no choice but to accept the post of préfet of Butare, in view of the gravity of the war. In view of his own weak position within the military, he saw it as an opportunity at least to become active after he had not done anything since 1994.<sup>14371</sup> He also wanted to be of service to the population in the difficult period.<sup>14372</sup>

5514. During the handover procedure on 20 June 1994 Nsabimana told him only generally about the financial aspect of civil defence.<sup>14373</sup> Nteziryayo stated that prior to being préfet he did not have any information as to whether the Government, an organisation or citizens had allocated an amount of money for civil defence.<sup>14374</sup> In cross-examination, Nteziryayo testified that during his tenure as préfet he knew only in a general manner about all the bank accounts belonging to Butare préfecture.<sup>14375</sup>

5515. Nteziryayo testified that he had access to the cash deposited in the safe, less than 1,000,000 in cash, but that he was not able to carry out any transactions from the circa 10 different bank accounts which the préfecture possessed at the Banque commerciale du Rwanda, the Rwandan commercial bank, and the Banque de Kigali in Butare.<sup>14376</sup> This was because until the time he went into exile on 3 July 1994, he did not receive the necessary authorisation, i.e. the instrument of appointment, a letter signed by the President of the Republic, and countersigned by the Minister of Interior, announcing officially and in public that Nteziryayo was the new préfet of Butare.<sup>14377</sup> Nteziryayo stated that he still was able to run the préfecture without funds because he was préfet in very extraordinary times when the administration did not function properly; especially from 27 June 1994 onwards, when Butare was flooded by displaced persons, Nteziryayo did not need to rely on funds in the bank to settle problems in the préfecture.<sup>14378</sup>

5516. Nteziryayo confirmed that as préfet his responsibilities also included civilian defence, as had been put down in the directives of the Minister of Interior; civil defence had already been implemented at the time Nsabimana had been préfet and Nteziryayo had discussed this subject with Nsabimana during the handover ceremony.<sup>14379</sup>

5517. Nteziryayo said that as préfet he had no rights to punish any soldiers or members of the gendarmérie who were also soldiers, irrespective of his rank, because the préfet had no such legal authority.<sup>14380</sup>

Civil Defence

5518. Nteziryayo testified that throughout his service in the Ministry of the Interior he was not involved in the organisation or execution of the civil defence project.<sup>14381</sup> Nteziryayo testified that he had heard about the concept referred to as “civil defence”, “popular self-defence” or “civilian defence” in 1992 while working in the Ministry of the Interior.<sup>14382</sup> The Rwandan Armed Forces and the Ministry of Defence had initiated civil defence to back up the Rwandan Armed Forces, to gain a better protection of the population and to defend it against the RPF’s “infiltration techniques.”<sup>14383</sup> The RPF had started this “infiltration technique” around the end of 1991, applying a combination of guerrilla and conventional warfare. They first killed or expelled civilians from a territory to occupy it and to use it strategically for surprise attacks on the Rwandan Armed forces. Due to the attacks the population increasingly lost confidence in the Government.<sup>14384</sup> Nteziryayo testified that around the end May 1994 the Interim Government implemented the “reorganisation of civil defence.”<sup>14385</sup>

14 May 1994 Meeting with Prime Minister Kambanda

5519. Nteziryayo testified that prior to his arrival in Butare he did not know if civil defence existed in Butare. He was told that Prime Minister Kambanda spoke at the National University of Rwanda on 14 May 1994 and said that civil defence was going to be established in Butare préfecture.<sup>14386</sup>

5520. Nteziryayo testified that between 1 January and 21 June 1994 he was not involved in the civil defence system.<sup>14387</sup> Between 21 June and 3 July 1994, as préfet of Butare he was, in accordance with the instructions of the Prime Minister of 25 May 1994, ex-officio in charge of civil defence in that préfecture, but he did not promote civil defence.<sup>14388</sup> Contrary to Des Forges' assertion, he did not get any support from Kalimanzira and Nyiramasuhuko for promoting civil defence.<sup>14389</sup>

5521. Nteziryayo testified that between April and 3 July 1994 Prime Minister Kambanda and his Government requested members of the population to participate in their own security. The Prime Minister issued directives for the Rwandan population and during several speeches and meetings he talked about civil defence, including on one occasion at the National University of Rwanda on 14 May 1994.<sup>14390</sup>

5522. Nteziryayo testified that he did not attend Kambanda's 14 May 1994 speech at the National University of Rwanda but he heard portions of Kambanda's speech on the evening of 14 May 1994 or during the next day over Radio Rwanda delivered in Kinyarwanda.<sup>14391</sup>

5523. Nteziryayo agreed that Kambanda said during the speech that Aloys Simba was going to be in charge of civil defence for Butare and Gikongoro, and Colonel Gasake was in charge at the national level in Rwanda. Kambanda did not mention Nteziryayo in connection with the civil defence structure in his speech.<sup>14392</sup>

5524. Nteziryayo testified that Kambanda spoke about the need for civil defence. He urged the staff of the university to join civil defence and to undergo military training.<sup>14393</sup> He said that the commune authorities of Ngoma commune had to recruit 100 persons, not specifically youth, for each secteur and that the organisation was under the responsibility of the bourgmestre, who would be assisted by commune policemen and reserve officers. The military operations commander of Butare had to draw up and to supervise the programmes.<sup>14394</sup> During his speech, Kambanda said that training for civil defence had started and directives were being formulated.<sup>14395</sup>

5525. Nteziryayo confirmed that the speech of Prime Minister Kambanda contained the following remarks: that according to the intelligence service, the enemy was making attempts to infiltrate into that town, and that they should start to protect that town seriously because there were not enough roadblocks; that no one would have the right to move freely throughout the town by giving directives serving the interest of the enemy, and those who so conducted themselves would also be considered as the enemy; and that someone who tells members of the population not to man roadblocks, not to protect their town, not to check the movements of persons entering into their town and exiting from their town, was an enemy of the country, in general, and in Butare.<sup>14396</sup>

5526. Nteziryayo testified that Kambanda did not say that the Tutsis should be eliminated. The main reason for the establishment of civil defence was to protect and defend the population. Therefore, Nteziryayo did not understand his speech as incitement to eliminate Tutsis.<sup>14397</sup>

5527. Nteziryayo testified that Colonel Simba, whom he met in Butare in 1994, told Nteziryayo that he was in charge of civil defence in Butare and Gikongoro préfectures.<sup>14398</sup> Lieutenant Colonel Simba's appointment had been signed by the defence minister.<sup>14399</sup>

5528. Nteziryayo testified that during a meeting held on 22 May 1994 in Ntyazo commune, Simba told him that he had appointed senior warrant officer Rekeraho as his deputy.<sup>14400</sup> Nteziryayo denied that he was ever the deputy of Lieutenant Colonel Simba in respect of civil defence in Butare and Gikongoro préfectures.<sup>14401</sup> He could not have been appointed because on 15 May 1994, he was not a reserve, non-commissioned or retired officer.<sup>14402</sup>

5529. Nteziryayo was shown Prosecution Exhibit 121 and testified that he had read it shortly after he took office as préfet.<sup>14403</sup> In the Directive dated 25 May 1994 the Prime Minister stated that the objectives of civil defence were to protect the population, to gather information, to defend the population against hostile actions before the intervention of the armed forces and to function as a relay to the armed forces.<sup>14404</sup> Nteziryayo testified that point two of the Directive dealt with the defence of the fatherland. According to point three the enemy was the attacker of Rwanda, i.e. the RPF, and everyone who assisted the attackers.<sup>14405</sup> Nteziryayo said by "accomplices" the document was not referring to Tutsis.<sup>14406</sup> He added that between April and July 1994, he did not hear that the enemy of Rwanda included both Tutsis from inside and Tutsis in the RPF.<sup>14407</sup>

5530. Nteziryayo testified that according to point 8 of Prosecution Exhibit 121 the civil defence committee was planned to function at various levels. Point 8 read: “To ensure better coordination of civil defence operations, the préfecture authorities are requested to point out the rapid putting in place of civil defence committees at the level of the secteurs, communes and préfectures.”<sup>14408</sup>

5531. Nteziryayo was shown Prosecution Exhibit 122 which discussed the implementation of the Prime Minister’s directives and was signed by the Minister of Interior, Édouard Karemera.<sup>14409</sup> He read out paragraph four of Prosecution Exhibit 122, “[i]dentification of people resources, to train as small groups of civil defence members at the political and ideological level”, and testified that this document dealt with the training sessions to be given to youth in different secteurs on civilian self-defence.<sup>14410</sup>

5532. Nteziryayo testified that he learned between 15 April and 3 July 1994 that Faustin Twagirayezu was the chairman of the civil defence committee that was situated in Butare town; he lived in Butare town but operated within the whole of Butare préfecture.<sup>14411</sup> Nteziryayo added that he never met Twagirayezu.<sup>14412</sup> When he took office as préfet, this self-defence committee was already operating. It was chaired by Faustin Twagirayezu.<sup>14413</sup>

5533. Contrary to Guichaoua’s assertions, Nteziryayo had not been relocated into the army as a reserve officer at the request of Théoneste Bagosora to become a member of the civil defence committee. Bagosora, who fell under the Ministry of National Defence, had no authority over Nteziryayo, who had been under the authority of the Ministry of Interior.<sup>14414</sup>

5534. Nteziryayo testified that he had never been in charge of the popular civil defence committee, be it a provisional committee or a fully-fledged committee contrary to the statement in Guichaoua’s Report.<sup>14415</sup> Nteziryayo testified that contrary to Des Forges’ Report he was not in charge of coordinating civil defence with the civilian authorities.<sup>14416</sup>

5535. Nteziryayo testified that when he became préfet, he learned that civil defence in Butare préfecture was funded.<sup>14417</sup> He learned from documents in the préfecture that there were various funds earmarked for civil defence in Butare préfecture, among them funds earmarked by the staff of the National University of Rwanda.<sup>14418</sup> Nteziryayo stated that part of the money was kept in the safe of the préfecture, which he also used to store money, but the substantial part was kept in one of the banks in Butare, as he learned from documents handed over to him when he became préfet.<sup>14419</sup> Around 22 or 23 June 1994, he received 2,000,000 Rwandan

5536. Nteziryayo testified that he did not take part in the funding intended for organising civil defence.<sup>14421</sup> Between 6 April and 21 June 1994 he had no relations with the bank accounts of the civil defence in Butare.<sup>14422</sup> As préfet between 21 June and 3 July 1994 he was in charge of the accounts of civil defence, but he did not actively raise funds for civil defence.<sup>14423</sup>

5537. Nteziryayo testified that after 20 June 1994, the chairman of the civil defence committee in Butare, Faustin Twagirayezu, and the adjutant chef, Pierre Claver Ntirigira, were in charge of training for civil defence.<sup>14424</sup> He added that Pierre Claver Ntirigira supervised the training programme in Ngoma commune.<sup>14425</sup>

5538. Nteziryayo testified that as préfet he saw from several documents that the training programme existed before Kambanda's speech on 14 May 1994.<sup>14426</sup> Nteziryayo was shown Prosecution Exhibit 115, a letter dated from the end of April 1994 authored by the area commander and addressed to the commune authorities, and testified that it contained information about the recruitment and training of people for civilian defence and requested bourgmestres to do the recruitment.<sup>14427</sup>

5539. Nteziryayo testified that he was never concerned in any way with the recruitment of youth and that he never asked anybody to recruit youths to be trained for civil defence in 1994 in Rwanda.<sup>14428</sup>

Nteziryayo Defence Witness AND-5

Nteziryayo Defence Witness AND-44

5541. Witness AND-44, a former Gendarmerie Camp Commander,<sup>14435</sup> testified that towards the end of April 1994 and the beginning of May 1994 he heard a radio announcement by the government inviting soldiers to retreat and come take part in civil defence to identify disguised RPF infiltrators, who had come to kill members of the local population.<sup>14436</sup> A number of retired soldiers were called up on the radio as recruits to the civil defence; the witness heard the names of Barahira from Butare, Aloys Simba from the southern region and Jean Damascene Ukurikiyezi from the centre of the country, all of whom had previously retired from the army; the witness never heard Nteziryayo's name mentioned in relation to the civil defence programme.<sup>14437</sup>

Nteziryayo Defence Witness AND-50

5542. Witness AND-50, a Hutu teacher from Kigali, testified that Nteziryayo was not responsible for civil defence in Butare between April and July 1994. According to the witness, Colonel Aloys Simba was responsible for civil defence.<sup>14438</sup>

Nteziryayo Defence Witness AND-60

5543. Witness AND-60, a Hutu accountant from Muyaga commune, testified that he never heard that Nteziryayo was the chairman of civil defence in Butare, but knew that Colonel Aloys Simba was responsible for civil defence in Butare and Gikongoro. The witness could not say anything as to Colonel Simba's responsibilities in civil defence or what civil defence entailed.<sup>14439</sup>

Nteziryayo Defence Witness AND-74

5544. Witness AND-74, a Hutu civil servant, testified that around 15 or 16 May 1994 there was a radio announcement calling all civil servants and officers to help with civil defence. At this time Jean Damascène Ukurikiyezi had been appointed to coordinate the civil defence activities for Gitarama préfecture and Colonel Aloys Simba had been appointed to coordinate the civil defence of Gikongoro.<sup>14440</sup> The witness testified that civil defence was intended to help the civilian population ensure its own security in the face of RPF infiltration.<sup>14441</sup>

Nteziryayo Defence Witness AND-75

5545. Witness AND-75, a Hutu farmer from Ntyazo commune, testified that he attended Mathieu Ndahimana's swearing-in ceremony on 22 May 1994.<sup>14442</sup> After Nteziryayo, Colonel Simba took the floor and stated that he was the person in charge of civilian defence in Butare and Gikongoro préfectures, and introduced his assistant for this task, Emmanuel Rekeraho. Simba did not introduce Nteziryayo as his assistant during this meeting.<sup>14443</sup> Simba did not call upon the Hutu population to hunt down and kill Tutsis.<sup>14444</sup> Simba stated that he was going to help the population to set up vigilante groups for self-defence.<sup>14445</sup>

Ndayambaje

5546. Ndayambaje testified that there were some RPF fighters who had infiltrated the country. He testified that accomplices included sympathisers who had taken up arms and attacked the country,<sup>14446</sup> people who provided financial support to the RPF, and people who sent young people to swell the ranks of the RPF at the front. Among those, some returned to the hills. Training was given to some members of clandestine brigades of the RPF. These were all accomplices. Ndayambaje stated that innocent Hutu and Tutsi children were killed in the violence although Tutsi children were not accomplices.<sup>14447</sup>

25 May 1994 Directive

5547. Ndayambaje testified that he complied with several measures of civil defence, for example, not to disturb security and not to consider his neighbour as his enemy.<sup>14448</sup> Ndayambaje testified that he respected the security measures that were given by Prime Minister Kambanda in the "Instructions to restore security in the country."<sup>14449</sup> Some of the measures were within his scope and if the occasion were to arise, he might talk about them.<sup>14450</sup>

3.7.10.4 Deliberations

5548. As illustrated by the 25 May 1994 Directive, the objectives of civil defence were to:

- Make the people feel secure and encourage them to defend themselves against RPF attacks rather than abandon their homes;
- Protect infrastructure and other public property;
- Obtain information on the acts or presence of the enemy in the commune, cellule, or neighbourhood;
- Denounce infiltrators and enemy allies;
- Disrupt all enemy action before the intervention of the armed forces;
- Serve as antennae for the army and the Gendarmerie Nationale.<sup>14451</sup>

5549. The objectives were to be achieved by setting up a hierarchy and training certain members of the population in the use of weapons.<sup>14452</sup>

5550. The Prosecution asserts that civil defence was composed of: an awareness campaign, recruitment and training, distribution and making of modern or traditional weapons and finding sources of finance.<sup>14453</sup> Roadblocks were allegedly the essence of the civilian self-defence systems which controlled the movement of people. The policy of the Interim Government to install roadblocks was transmitted by the préfet to the communes.<sup>14454</sup> Guichaoua likewise testified that patrols and roadblocks had to be organised and monitored and searches, seizures and umuganda (or community labour) were to be carried out under the auspices of the civil defence programme.<sup>14455</sup> In short, he said that the civil defence programme was a pretext for what he called the “killing machine”.<sup>14456</sup>

5551. According to Nteziryayo, the main reason for the establishment of civil defence was to protect and defend the population.<sup>14457</sup> He said the RPF “infiltration technique” was a combination of guerrilla and conventional warfare. Nteziryayo stated that they first killed or expelled civilians from a territory to occupy it and to use it strategically for surprise attacks on the Rwandan Armed Forces.<sup>14458</sup> Shalom Ntahobali testified that pacification involved the assistance of the public to set up roadblocks and participate in night patrols to prevent the hoodlums from committing criminal acts.<sup>14459</sup> Maurice Ntahobali agreed that civil defence was a way of ensuring the security of the country.<sup>14460</sup> There was some evidence to support the argument that there was a legitimate military threat of RPF incursions.

5552. In this regard, a 15 May 1994 letter from Minister of Defence Bizimana to Lieutenant Colonel Aloys Simba, appoints Simba to be “Civilian Defence adviser” to the préfets of Butare and Gikongoro préfectures. It charges Simba with training 10 men in each secteur on how to prevent the infiltration of the “ENI,” i.e. the enemy. It also urges him to prioritise the civil defence programme in the communes bordering Burundi to prevent infiltrations from Burundi.<sup>14461</sup> Therefore, the Minister of Defence was evidently concerned about the infiltration of the enemy and saw civil defence as a way to address it.

5553. In addition, Defence Exhibit 537B, a 2 July 1992 memorandum from Lieutenant Colonel Nsengiyumva to the Rwandan Army Chief of Staff regarding internal security, states: “Inyenzi infiltrators are increasingly settling in Kigali and elsewhere in the country.” It recommends: “Measures to track down the Inyenzi infiltrators should be implemented.” In particular, it names several members of the Rwandan army who were allegedly key players in a counterfeiting network and says that such funds were being used to recruit Inyenzi-Inkotanyi in Burundi. The memorandum does not cite any sources and merely recounts unconfirmed suspicions as to RPF infiltrators.<sup>14462</sup> The Chamber considers this only to support the fact that there was a climate of fear from 2 July 1992, within which members of the army suspected their colleagues of materially supporting the RPF.<sup>14463</sup>

5554. Des Forges also acknowledged the existence of RPF infiltrators in Rwanda. However, she said that the number of infiltrators was likely in the dozens and that it was unreasonable for the Interim Government to consider an entire ethnic group to be infiltrators.<sup>14464</sup> In this connection, the Chamber examines the evidence as to the identity of the “accomplices” to the RPF.

3.7.10.4.1 Enemy/Accomplices

5555. The Chamber recalls its earlier finding that the Interim Government, of which Nyiramasuhuko was a member, adopted directives, including the 27 April 1994 Directive, and issued instructions during Cabinet meetings with an intent to encourage the population to hunt down and take action against the enemy and its accomplices, terms which referred to Tutsis in general ().

<sup>14463</sup> Guichaoua stated in his Report that civil defence was the essence of the Ministry of the Interior’s security policy. Kalimanzira helped to elevate Nteziryayo to préfet because he wanted to dismiss Nsabimana: Prosecution Exhibit 136B (Guichaoua Expert Report, Vol. 1) p. 131. Kalimanzira’s supervisory role in civil defence was corroborated by Nsabimana: Prosecution Exhibit 113A (The Truth About the Massacres in Butare, by Nsabimana) p. K0016628. However, Nyiramasuhuko contradicted this account, testifying that the civil defence system came under the Ministry of Defence, which appointed the responsables: T. 10 October 2005 p. 49 (Nyiramasuhuko). The 25 May 1994 Directive indicates that both the Minister of Defence and the Minister of Interior had leadership roles in the civil defence system. It designates that the coordination committee at the national level shall be composed of the Minister of the Interior and Communal Development as its president, and the Minister of Defence as vice-president: Prosecution Exhibit 121B (Prime Minister’s Directive to Préfets on the Organization of Civil Defence, 25 May 1994) p. 5. Therefore, the Chamber is convinced that both Ministries had a role in civil defence.

5556. The 27 April 1994 Kambanda Directive identified the enemy, stating, “[t]he enemy who attacked Rwanda is well known: it is the RPF-INKOTANYI.”<sup>14465</sup> However, as Des Forges noted, this Directive continues, stating: “Nevertheless, the population must remain watchful in order to unmask the enemy and his accomplices and hand them over to the authorities...”.<sup>14466</sup> Therefore, by issuing the 27 April 1994 Kambanda Directive, the public was being asked to be aware of the enemy and his accomplices.

5557. Des Forges testified that the enemy was defined as the RPF and “accomplices”. Thus, the effort under the guise of protecting civilians was, in fact, a military organisation to attack other civilians and to identify the civilian targets by their ethnicity.<sup>14467</sup> According to Des Forges, the proof that someone was a real accomplice was sometimes simply the identity card that said a person was Tutsi.<sup>14468</sup> Although she did not state a basis for this conclusion, the Chamber considers, based upon numerous Prosecution and Defence witnesses, that Tutsis were targeted and killed at roadblocks based upon their ethnicity which was clearly marked on national identification cards ().

5558. Reyntjens testified that in the 27 April 1994 Kambanda Directive, Kambanda said that the enemy was the RPF Inkotanyi; the enemy and accomplices included Tutsis as well as Hutus, although during that time, Tutsis as a whole were considered accomplices of the RPF.<sup>14469</sup> Although Reyntjens’ opinion was that “accomplice” might include some Hutus, the majority were Tutsis. Contrary to the instructions in the Directive, suspected accomplices were not handed over to authorities, but instead were killed on the spot.<sup>14470</sup> Therefore, Reyntjens agreed with Des Forges on this matter. Witness FAI stated in his testimony that he understood “accomplices”, as used in the 27 April 1994 Kambanda Directive, to be all Tutsis.<sup>14471</sup>

5559. Nyiramasuhuko testified that accomplices were RPF infiltrators.<sup>14472</sup> She also said that Radio Muhabura announced regularly that the RPF was present everywhere.<sup>14473</sup> It would have been redundant for the 27 April 1994 Kambanda Directive to name the RPF-Inkotanyi and its accomplices if “accomplice” simply meant RPF. The Chamber does not find Nyiramasuhuko’s testimony convincing on the definition of “accomplice”.

5560. Ndayambaje testified that there were some RPF fighters who had infiltrated the country. He testified that accomplices included sympathisers who had taken up arms and attacked the country,<sup>14474</sup> people who provided financial support to the RPF and people who sent young people to swell the ranks of the RPF at the front.<sup>14475</sup> Among those, some returned to the hills. Training was given to some members of clandestine brigades of the RPF. These were all accomplices. Ndayambaje stated that innocent Hutu and Tutsi children were killed in the violence although Tutsi children were not accomplices.<sup>14476</sup>

5561. Although Nsabimana did not clarify the definition of “accomplice” in his testimony, in his interview, admitted as Prosecution Exhibit 114, Nsabimana asserted:

This time [in 1994] nobody was protected because Interahamwe wanted a massacre and those who wanted a massacre were always in power. If you were a civilian and you decided to protect Tutsis, these people in power said you were working with Tutsis so you also had to be killed, you are an enemy. For them, if you were protecting Tutsis or doing any kind of work with them, you are an enemy to the country.<sup>14477</sup>

5562. Therefore, Nsabimana indicated in this interview, which he acknowledged reflected his own views,<sup>14478</sup> that the Interahamwe considered anyone that helped Tutsi to be an enemy.

5564. As to roadblocks, Kambanda stated: “According to the intelligence unit, the enemy is going to try to infiltrate this town. We request reinforcement for the town for we have come to realise that we do not have enough roadblocks.” This Directive was followed by the population as additional roadblocks were mounted in May 1994 (). Tutsis were targeted and killed at these roadblocks ().

5565. While RPF soldiers may have been legitimate military targets, and there was evidence that some RPF soldiers had infiltrated Rwanda, the Interim Government did not limit itself to RPF soldiers. It vilified accomplices which, according to Ndayambaje, included sympathisers who had taken up arms and attacked the country, and people who provided financial support to the RPF.<sup>14480</sup> Nsabimana acknowledged in his interview (Prosecution Exhibit 114) that the Interahamwe considered all those who helped Tutsis to be the enemy. Des Forges and Witness FAI stated quite plainly that all Tutsis were considered accomplices. As Tutsis were targeted and killed at roadblocks throughout Butare préfecture, it is clear that the civil defence forces understood that Tutsis were to be targeted as accomplices of the enemy.

3.7.10.4.2 Beginning of Civil Defence

5566. The Nteziryayo Defence suggests that 25 May 1994 marked the beginning of the civil defence programme.<sup>14481</sup> However, numerous witnesses testified to the contrary. Witness TQ testified that on 20 April 1994 teachers from Groupe Scolaire joined the civil defence group, but that civil defence had existed long before 21 April 1994.<sup>14482</sup> Prosecution Exhibit 115, a document dated 21 April 1994 and signed by Colonel Muvunyi, refers to a request from higher officials, the ministry, to train young people for civil defence.<sup>14483</sup>

5567. Nteziryayo agreed that this document contained information about the recruitment and training of people for civilian defence and requested bourgmestres to do the recruitment.<sup>14484</sup> Nteziryayo himself admitted that he had heard about civil defence in 1992 while working in the Ministry of the Interior.<sup>14485</sup> He agreed with Reyntjens that there were documents that showed that the training programme existed prior to Kambanda's speech on 14 May 1994.<sup>14486</sup>

5568. Nsabimana stated in his interview, admitted as Prosecution Exhibit 114, that even before 25 May 1994, perhaps around January 1994, he was aware of people being trained by the military, that these militia were trained to kill people from the opposition first and then to continue by killing Tutsis.<sup>14487</sup> Des Forges testified that October 1993 marked the official implementation of the civil defence system.<sup>14488</sup> However she did not present documentary evidence in support of this assertion.

5569. Witness RV stated he had not heard of civil defence before May 1994,<sup>14489</sup> but this does not obviate the existence of civil defence prior to that date.

5571. Based on this evidence, the Chamber is convinced that civil defence was organised long before April 1994. Thereafter, the 25 May 1994 Interim Government Directive solidified a formal hierarchical authority over civil defence.

3.7.10.4.3 Financing of Civil Defence

5572. The Chamber next addresses the issue of the financing of civil defence. Although the Indictment does not include a specific charge of financial support for civil defence, this evidence may be relevant to establish ties between Nteziryayo and the civil defence programme.

5573. Des Forges testified that she was told by Nsabimana that Nteziryayo was a fund-raiser for the civil defence programme.<sup>14490</sup> She indicated the funds were used for arms and petrol, and provided beer and drugs to militia manning the barriers to keep them aggressive and reward them for their activities. She said this fund was administered by Nteziryayo and Nyiramasuhuko in Butare.<sup>14491</sup> Guichaoua corroborated the fact that civilian militiamen needed to be compensated in some way. In his view, robberies and rapes at roadblocks, occupation of lands, the stealing of tiles or of doors or window frames before burning houses and the provision of alcohol were payments in kind for those participating in the killings.<sup>14492</sup>

5574. Maurice Ntahobali testified that he heard about a committee for the funding of civilian defence between April and July 1994. He knew that his name was included on the list of members of that committee, but he did not attend the committee's meetings or participate in its mission.<sup>14493</sup> He was unable to confirm or deny other members of the financing committee as suggested by Guichaoua's Report.<sup>14494</sup>

5575. Nteziryayo testified that he did not take part in the funding intended for organising civil defence.<sup>14495</sup> Nteziryayo testified that between 6 April and 21 June 1994 he had no relations with the bank accounts of the civil defence in Butare.<sup>14496</sup> As préfet between 21 June and 3 July 1994 he was in charge of the accounts of civil defence, but he did not actively raise funds for civil defence.<sup>14497</sup> Nteziryayo testified that when he became préfet, he learned that civil defence in Butare préfecture was funded.<sup>14498</sup> He learned from documents in the préfecture that there were various funds earmarked for civil defence in Butare préfecture, among them funds earmarked by the staff of the National University of Rwanda.<sup>14499</sup> Nteziryayo stated that part of the money was kept in the safe of the préfecture, which he also used to store money in, but the substantial part was kept in one of the banks in Butare, as he learned from documents handed over to him when he became préfet.<sup>14500</sup> Nteziryayo stated that he kept the civil defence money in the vault and left it there when he left the country. He did not know what happened to the money afterwards.<sup>14501</sup>

5576. Based upon this evidence, the Chamber concludes that a committee existed to fund civil defence and that Nteziryayo left civil defence funds in the vault when he left the country.

3.7.10.4.4 Leadership of Civil Defence

5577. The parties do not dispute that Lieutenant Colonel Aloys Simba was formally appointed civil defence adviser to the préfets of Butare and Gikongoro préfectures. However, the parties dispute whether Nteziryayo had a de facto leadership role in civil defence.

5578. The evidence was consistent that Simba had de jure responsibility for civil defence in Gikongoro and Butare préfectures. Prosecution Exhibit 120 is a letter from Minister of Defence Augustin Bizimana to Lieutenant Colonel Aloys Simba, appointing him conseiller for civil defence in Butare and Gikongoro préfectures.<sup>14502</sup> Des Forges, Nyiramasuhuko and Reyntjens all agreed that this document showed that Colonel Simba was in charge of civil defence in Butare préfecture.<sup>14503</sup> Nsabimana acknowledged that Colonel Simba came to his office to tell Nsabimana that Simba had been appointed to the post of responsable for civil defence.<sup>14504</sup>

5579. As to the leader of civil defence, Kambanda stated in his 14 May 1994 speech at the University:

Military leaders in charge of Civil Defence have been appointed; they are mainly retired officers with military experience. Their names will be communicated to you in the next few days but I believe that the Butare-Gikongoro area will be under Colonel Simba's command. At the national level, Colonel Gasake will be in charge of Civil Defence Operations. We are organizing ourselves in order to put in place this Civil Defence structure.<sup>14505</sup>

5580. Likewise, Nteziryayo testified that the only time he had responsibility with regard to civil defence was in accordance with the instructions of the Prime Minister of 25 May 1994 after he became préfet. At that time, he became ex-officio in charge of civil defence in that préfecture, but he did not promote civil defence.<sup>14506</sup> Further he did not get any support from Kalimanzira and Nyiramasuhuko for promoting civil defence. He never spoke to either of them about civil defence.<sup>14507</sup>

for civil defence in Gikongoro and Butare, Des Forges testified that according to Simba's statement, he did not wish to be involved in Butare because he found he had too much work to do in Gikongoro.<sup>14511</sup>

5582. The Chamber notes the testimony of three witnesses who testified as to Nteziryayo's leadership role in civil defence for Butare préfecture. First, Witness FAI testified that Nteziryayo was responsible for civil defence.<sup>14512</sup> He testified that he learned on the day of Bourgmaster Ndahimana's swearing-in ceremony that Colonel Simba was actually in charge of civil defence in both Butare and Gikongoro, but he was assisted in Butare by Lieutenant Colonel Nteziryayo.<sup>14513</sup> He further testified that at a meeting at the BPO in early June 1994, Nteziryayo answered the call of two bourgmestres from Kibayi and Kigembe communes who requested help in controlling the influx of Tutsi refugees into their communes. Nteziryayo said that he had at his disposal youths who had undergone their training and that he would send them as soon as possible.<sup>14514</sup> Witness FAI testified that Nteziryayo sent some Ibizumizi to Kibayi to kill those Tutsis.<sup>14515</sup> Witness FAI testified that he was present when Nteziryayo gave Célestin Harindintwari directives to transport the Ibizumizi to Kibayi commune, so that they could help the Hutu inhabitants as requested.<sup>14516</sup>

5583. Witness RV testified Nteziryayo was the chairman of the civil defence committee in the region.<sup>14517</sup> Nteziryayo had some relationship with the civil defence force; he saw Nteziryayo at meetings dealing with the issue of personnel for the civil defence force.<sup>14518</sup>

5585. The Chamber recalls several findings in other sections of this Judgement which also support a conclusion that Nteziryayo had a leadership role in the civil defence programme. In May 1994 for example, Nteziryayo trained civilians () and distributed weapons () at Kamena

Stadium. Witness QAH stated that Nteziryayo addressed the group and asked them to make sure that there were no Tutsis among them before they began the training.<sup>14523</sup> Nteziryayo told the recruits that the purpose of the training was to counter the enemy.<sup>14524</sup> Nteziryayo taught them how to operate arms and urged them to kill the Tutsis.<sup>14525</sup>

5586. Furthermore, Nteziryayo did not dispute that he made speeches during the swearing-in ceremony of the Ntyazo bourgmestre, at meetings held in Kirarambogo, Muganza commune, and during meetings in Muyaga and Kibayi communes on 22 and 23 May and in mid-June 1994 respectively. Although the Chamber found that it was not proven that Nteziryayo made inciting remarks at the swearing-in ceremony of the bourgmestre of Ntyazo commune on 22 May 1994, nor at a meeting in Kirarambogo, Muganza commune, on 23 May 1994, the Chamber found that Nteziryayo incited the population during meetings held in Muyaga and Kibayi communes around mid-June 1994 ().

5587. Finally, the Chamber has held that Nteziryayo attempted to prevent the evacuation from Butare of about 300 orphans and their adult supervisors. He selected about 30 individuals, whom he believed to be Tutsi adults and forced them to remain in Rwanda. He and Ntahobali segregated and prevented the 30 people from crossing the border ().

5588. Nteziryayo claims that between 15 April and 21 June 1994, when he was sworn-in as préfet of Butare, he was not engaged in any state activities or duties.<sup>14526</sup> It is not contested that Nteziryayo was in Kigali from 6 April 1994 until 15 April 1994. He states that he mainly took care of his family who were residing in a friend's home in Ngoma commune.<sup>14527</sup> However, he chose to live in the Hotel Ibis instead because there was insufficient room for him at the friend's home.<sup>14528</sup> Although Nteziryayo claims to not have worked or to have sought direction from the Minister of the Interior in Gitarama, from April to 17 June 1994,<sup>14529</sup> he accepted his salary for the months of May and June from the army accountant in Cyangugu (albeit belatedly).<sup>14530</sup> He continued to consider himself the Chief of commune police in the Ministry of the Interior.<sup>14531</sup> Despite the fact that the army was understaffed and was recruiting people during this time, and Nteziryayo was, according to him, without an occupation, he claims he served no function in the Government or army in Butare in this time.<sup>14532</sup> Nonetheless, Nteziryayo testified that he always wore his military uniform and generally carried his pistol with him.<sup>14533</sup> The Chamber does not find it credible that Nteziryayo was not serving the Government given that he intentionally separated himself from his family, continued to wear his military uniform, and accepted his salary for the months of May and June 1994.

5589. In sum, the Chamber is convinced beyond a reasonable doubt that the civil defence programme was created before April 1994 in order to protect against the infiltration of RPF agents, but also the enemy and their accomplices, which included Tutsis both within and without the country. From the evidence and from Nteziryayo's own conduct, such as his involvement in weapons distribution and training, and his activities in meetings the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that Nteziryayo had a leadership role in civil defence in Butare préfecture.

CHAPTER IV: LEGAL FINDINGS

4.1 Criminal Responsibility

4.1.1 Article 6 (1) of the Statute

5590. Article 6 (1) of the Statute provides for individual criminal responsibility for anyone who planned, instigated, ordered, committed, or aided and abetted a crime falling within the Tribunal's jurisdiction.

5591. "Planning" requires that one or more persons design the criminal conduct constituting a statutory crime that is later perpetrated. It is sufficient to demonstrate that the planning was a factor substantially contributing to such criminal conduct. The mens rea entails the intent to plan the commission of a crime or, at a minimum, the awareness of the substantial likelihood that a crime will be committed in the execution of the acts or omissions planned.<sup>14534</sup>

5592. "Instigating" implies prompting another person to commit an offence. It is not necessary to prove that the crime would not have been perpetrated without the involvement of the accused; it is sufficient to demonstrate that the instigation was a factor substantially contributing to the conduct of another person committing the crime. The mens rea is the intent to instigate another person to commit a crime or, at a minimum, the awareness of the substantial likelihood that a crime will be committed in the execution of the act or omission instigated.<sup>14535</sup>

5593. A person in a position of authority may incur responsibility for "ordering" another person to commit an offence if the order has a direct and substantial effect on the commission of the illegal act. Responsibility is also incurred when an individual in a position of authority orders an act or omission with the awareness of the substantial likelihood that a crime will be committed in the execution of that order, and if that crime is effectively committed subsequently by the person who received the order. There is no requirement of a formal superior-subordinate relationship between the orderer and the perpetrator; it is sufficient that there is proof of a position of authority on the part of the accused that would compel another person to commit a crime following the accused's order.<sup>14536</sup>

5594. "Committing" covers, primarily, the physical perpetration of a crime (with criminal intent) or a culpable omission.<sup>14537</sup> Physical perpetration can include physical killing, as well as other acts that constitute direct participation in the actus reus of the crime. "The question is whether an accused's conduct 'was as much an integral part of the genocide as were the killings which it enabled.'<sup>14538</sup>

5595. "Aiding and abetting" entails carrying out acts or omissions specifically directed to assist, encourage, or lend moral support to the perpetration of a certain specific crime, which have a substantial effect on the perpetration of the crime. The assistance need not serve as condition precedent for the commission of the crime and may occur before, during or after the principal crime has been perpetrated. The requisite mental element is knowledge that the acts performed assist the commission of the specific crime of the principal perpetrator. Mens rea can also be established if the accused is aware that one of a number of crimes will probably be committed, and one of those crimes is in fact committed. Specific intent crimes, such as genocide, also require that the aider and abettor must know of the principal perpetrator's specific intent.<sup>14539</sup>

5597. Omission proper may lead to individual criminal responsibility under Article 6 (1) of the Statute where there is a legal duty to act. The actus reus of aiding and abetting by omission consists of the failure to discharge a legal duty, where that failure assisted, encouraged or lent moral support to the perpetration of the crime and had a substantial effect on the realisation of that crime. This implicitly requires that the accused had the ability to act, such that means were available to the accused to fulfil his or her duty. As for the mens rea, the aider and abettor must know that his or her omission assists in the commission of the crime of the principal perpetrator and must be aware of the essential elements of the crime which was ultimately committed by the principal.<sup>14542</sup>

5598. The Chamber will discuss these modes of liability, where applicable, in making its legal findings.

4.1.2 Article 6 (3) of the Statute

5599. The Prosecution charges all six Accused in this case with superior responsibility pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute.

4.1.2.1 Notice of Alleged Subordinates

5600. When the Prosecution seeks a conviction under Article 6 (3) of the Statute for superior-subordinate responsibility, the Indictment should plead: (1) that the accused is the superior of subordinates sufficiently identified; (2) the criminal conduct of those others for whom he or she is allegedly responsible; (3) the accused's conduct by which he or she may be found to have known or to have had reason to know that his or her subordinates were about to commit crimes or had committed them; and (4) the accused's conduct by which he or she may be found to have failed to take necessary and reasonable measures to prevent such acts or to punish the persons who committed them.<sup>14543</sup>

5601. Although the Indictment must sufficiently identify the alleged subordinates of the accused, an alleged superior need not necessarily know the exact identity of his or her subordinates who perpetrate crimes in order to incur liability pursuant to Article 6 (3). Physical perpetrators of the crimes may be identified by category in relation to a particular crime site.<sup>14544</sup>

5602. The Chamber has made findings concerning the acts of the six Accused in this case, and of Interahamwe, soldiers, gendarmes, commune police, conseillers of Ngoma commune and civilians.

5603. The Chamber will now assess the extent to which the Prosecution charged each Accused with responsibility as a superior over these persons. In doing so, the Chamber will also determine whether the Accused received sufficient notice of their alleged subordinates.

4.1.2.1.1 Nyiramasuhuko

5605. The Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment charges Nyiramasuhuko with criminal responsibility as a superior in relation to various paragraphs of the Indictment.<sup>14545</sup>

<sup>14545</sup> These Indictment Paragraphs are 5.1, 6.20, 6.27, 6.30, 6.31, 6.33, 6.37, 6.38, 6.39, 6.47, 6.49, 6.50, 6.51, 6.53, 6.54, 6.55, 6.56.

explicitly mention commune police when alleging Nyiramasuhuko's superior responsibility, they could be encompassed as alleged subordinates of préfets and bourgmestres.<sup>14547</sup>

5607. The Nyiramasuhuko Defence refers to the submissions made in the Ntahobali Closing Brief concerning the joint Indictment. That Brief submits that the Indictment fails to specify the requisite elements for superior responsibility, and is thus defective. In particular, the Ntahobali Defence states that the Indictment fails to provide sufficient notice of the identity of alleged perpetrators and accomplices, of dates and places of alleged crimes, and of the factual allegations against the Accused that are capable of sustaining a conviction. These defects have not been cured and have impaired the Defences' ability to prepare themselves adequately, and therefore require an acquittal on all charges of superior responsibility.<sup>14548</sup>

5608. Although the Indictment lacks any paragraph specifically detailing Nyiramasuhuko's alleged subordinates, the Chamber recalls that the Indictment must be read as a whole.

5610. Nyiramasuhuko is also charged as a superior in relation to Paragraphs 6.37, 6.47 and 6.53. Paragraph 6.37 identifies only Ntahobali.<sup>14551</sup> Because Nyiramasuhuko bears alleged responsibility as a superior for the acts alleged in this paragraph, the Chamber considers that she would have known that Ntahobali was pled as one of her subordinates. Paragraph 6.47 alleges that Nyiramasuhuko incited, and aided and abetted, “the population”<sup>14552</sup> which, in the Chamber's view, identifies civilians to be alleged subordinates of Nyiramasuhuko. Similarly, Paragraph 6.53 describes the alleged acts of “soldiers, militiamen and gendarmes”.<sup>14553</sup> When considered alongside Nyiramasuhuko's alleged superior responsibility according to this paragraph, the paragraph provided notice that her alleged subordinates included soldiers, militiamen and gendarmes.<sup>14554</sup>

5611. Accordingly, a holistic reading of the Indictment demonstrates that numerous paragraphs pled in support of Article 6 (3) responsibility identify Nyiramasuhuko's alleged subordinates. These paragraphs provide that Nyiramasuhuko is alleged to be superior to Interahamwe, Ntahobali, soldiers, gendarmes and civilians.<sup>14555</sup>

5612. Even were this not the case, the Chamber notes that the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief, filed after the operative Indictment,<sup>14556</sup> specifically alleges that Nyiramasuhuko supervised Interahamwe, gendarmes and soldiers.<sup>14557</sup> Similarly, the witness summaries appended to the Pre-Trial Brief confirm that Nyiramasuhuko was an alleged superior of Ntahobali and Interahamwe.<sup>14558</sup>

5613. Under these circumstances, the Chamber considers that Nyiramasuhuko received sufficient notice that she was charged with superior responsibility for the alleged acts of Interahamwe, Ntahobali, soldiers, gendarmes and civilians.

5614. The Prosecution also alleges Nyiramasuhuko's responsibility over préfets and bourgmestres. In this regard, the Chamber notes that Paragraph 6.33 is pled in support of superior responsibility.<sup>14559</sup> Because this paragraph alleges that "Nyiramasuhuko asked [Nsabimana] what those people [the Tutsis] were doing at the préfecture offices, and why they had not yet been killed",<sup>14560</sup> the Chamber considers that Nyiramasuhuko would have known the subordinate over whom she was alleged to bear superior responsibility in that paragraph, was Nsabimana. The Chamber therefore finds that the paragraph provides sufficient notice that Nyiramasuhuko was charged as a superior to Nsabimana in regard to this specific allegation.

5615. Other paragraphs pled in support of Article 6 (3) refer to Nteziryayo, Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje, but none allege the sort of relationship that could provide clear notice to

Nyiramasuhuko of an alleged superior-subordinate relationship over these persons.<sup>14561</sup> In this regard, the Indictment is defective. Moreover, the Chamber has not identified any form of timely, clear and consistent notice that would cure this defect, nor has the Prosecution referred to any possibly curative instrument.<sup>14562</sup> Accordingly, the Chamber considers that Nyiramasuhuko did not receive adequate notice that she was being charged with superior responsibility in relation to Nteziryayo, Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje.

5616. Finally, of the Indictment paragraphs pertaining to Nyiramasuhuko's alleged superior responsibility, none mention commune police. The Indictment is defective in omitting this information. While it is possible to remedy vagueness in an indictment, omissions cannot be remedied.<sup>14563</sup> Accordingly, the Chamber concludes that Nyiramasuhuko did not receive adequate notice that she was being charged as a superior to commune police, and will not address any such responsibility below.

5617. The Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment charges Ntahobali with superior responsibility under numerous Indictment paragraphs.<sup>14564</sup>

5618. The Prosecution alleges that Ntahobali bears responsibility as a superior over Interahamwe and soldiers.<sup>14565</sup> Because Interahamwe and soldiers were potentially implicated in numerous factual findings, the Chamber will assess whether sufficient notice was provided to Ntahobali of his alleged responsibility over these categories of persons.

5619. As set out above (), the Ntahobali Defence submits that the Indictment is defective in failing to specify the elements for superior responsibility, and that these defects have not been cured. According to the Ntahobali Defence, these uncured defects have resulted in prejudice to the Ntahobali Defence, and therefore require an acquittal on all charges of superior responsibility.<sup>14566</sup>

<sup>14564</sup> The relevant Indictment Paragraphs are 5.1, 6.27, 6.30, 6.31, 6.34, 6.35, 6.37, 6.39, 6.49, 6.50, 6.51, 6.53, 6.54, 6.55 and 6.56.

pled pursuant to superior responsibility allege a superior-subordinate relationship between the two.<sup>14568</sup> Under these circumstances, the Chamber considers that the Indictment, when read as a whole, provides sufficient notice that Interahamwe and soldiers were among Ntahobali's alleged subordinates.

5621. The Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment charges Nsabimana with responsibility as a superior under numerous Indictment paragraphs.<sup>14569</sup>

5623. The Nsabimana Defence contends that the Indictment was defective in pleading each element of superior responsibility, and that no conviction can be based on this alleged responsibility.<sup>14571</sup>

5624. The Chamber recalls that it has already found that the Indictment sufficiently informed Nsabimana that he was charged with superior responsibility regarding soldiers (). As to the Interahamwe, the Chamber has concluded the Indictment was defective in pleading Article 6 (3) responsibility over them, and this defect was not cured ().

5625. The Indictment alleges that Nsabimana exercised authority over his subordinates in his capacity as préfet of Butare, a post which he held from 19 April to 17 June 1994. According to the Indictment, the préfet “has hierarchical authority over all civil servants and all persons holding public office within the boundaries of the préfecture, including the bourgmestres and conseillers de secteur”.<sup>14572</sup>

5626. As for Nsabimana's alleged superior responsibility over bourgmestres, the Indictment identifies Kanyabashi as a bourgmestre during the time when Nsabimana was préfet.<sup>14573</sup> This suffices to identify Kanyabashi as an alleged subordinate of Nsabimana.

<sup>14569</sup> The relevant Indictment Paragraphs are 5.1, 5.8, 6.21, 6.22, 6.25, 6.26, 6.28, 6.32, 6.33, 6.35, 6.36, 6.37, 6.38, 6.41, 6.51, 6.52, 6.53, 6.54, 6.55, 6.56, 6.57, 6.58 and 6.59. The Chamber recalls that it has already acquitted Nsabimana on the charges found in Para. 6.25; see Nyiramasuhuko et al., Decision on Defence Motions for Acquittal under Rule 98 bis (TC), 16 December 2004, p. 61. However, the Chamber, considers that this is not relevant in determining whether Nsabimana received adequate notice of the allegations against him.

<sup>14570</sup> The Prosecution also alleges that Nsabimana was superior to, or had effective control over, “all the sous-préfets, bourgmestres ... and cell leaders in [Butare] prefecture”, local authorities, and “others who were involved in killings and massacres of Tutsi throughout the Prefecture”: Prosecution Closing Brief, pp. 229-230, 233, 257-258, 262-263, 269-270, 273, 278-279, 282, 285-288, paras. 3-8, 19, 90-91, 102, 107, 127-130, 139, 162, 165-166, 176, 178, 188, 195, 199, 203; Prosecution Closing Argument, T. 20 April 2009 pp. 60-63.

5627. As to Ndayambaje, the Indictment states that Ndayambaje was reappointed as bourgmestre on 20 June 1994, after Nsabimana was replaced as préfet.<sup>14574</sup> Although the Indictment identifies Ndayambaje as the de facto bourgmestre while Nsabimana was préfet,<sup>14575</sup> it gives no indication that Nsabimana's capacity as préfet would have included alleged superior responsibility over non-officeholders like Ndayambaje. The Indictment is thus defective in pleading that Ndayambaje was an alleged subordinate of Nsabimana. Because the Chamber has not identified any form of timely, clear and consistent notice that might have cured this defect, the Chamber will not consider below whether Nsabimana might bear responsibility as an alleged superior to Ndayambaje.

5628. Reading the Indictment as a whole, the Chamber considers that the Prosecution sufficiently pled Nsabimana's superior responsibility over soldiers, and over Kanyabashi and conseillers from the period of 19 April to 17 June 1994.

4.1.2.1.4 Nteziryayo

5629. The Chamber notes that the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment charges Nteziryayo with responsibility as a superior under various Indictment paragraphs.<sup>14576</sup>

5630. The Prosecution identifies various alleged subordinates of Nteziryayo, including bourgmestres, conseillers, Interahamwe, and certain civilians in Butare préfecture.<sup>14577</sup>

5631. The Nteziryayo Defence does not appear to claim that it received insufficient notice of this form of responsibility, though it highlights certain Indictment paragraphs that it considers to be vague and thus inadequately pled.<sup>14578</sup>

5632. The Indictment alleges that Nteziryayo was préfet of Butare from 17 June 1994 until he left Rwanda in July 1994, and that in this capacity he exercised authority over his subordinates, who included "all civil servants and all persons holding public office within the boundaries of the préfecture, including the bourgmestres and conseillers de secteur".<sup>14579</sup> The Chamber considers this to provide sufficient notice to Nteziryayo of his alleged superior responsibility

<sup>14575</sup> Para. 6.43 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment. In its opening statement, the Prosecution also stated that Muganza commune fell under Ndayambaje's jurisdiction, including during the time that Nsabimana was préfet. However, there is no explicit reference to Nsabimana, and it does not appear that this statement was intended to expand the list of Nsabimana's alleged subordinates; see Prosecution Opening Statement, T. 12 June 2001 p. 85.

<sup>14576</sup> The relevant Indictment Paragraphs are 5.1, 5.8, 5.12, 5.13, 6.16, 6.29, 6.30, 6.31, 6.33, 6.41, 6.51, 6.52, 6.53, 6.54, 6.55, 6.56, 6.57, 6.58 and 6.59.

<sup>14577</sup> The Prosecution also alleges that Nteziryayo was a superior to members of the civil defence programme. As the Chamber has not found that these persons participated in any crimes, it will not address Nteziryayo's notice of alleged superior responsibility over them. Prosecution Closing Brief, pp. 306-308, 320, 322, 327-330, 332-334, 337-339, 345, 348-349, 351-352, 365-367, 369, 371-372, 374-375, paras. 2-11, 52, 58, 73, 75-78, 80, 82, 87, 90-91, 100, 102-107, 109, 127, 139-140, 147, 150, 192-193, 197-198, 204, 213, 219, 226-227; Prosecution Closing Argument, T. 20 April 2009 pp. 68-70, 72-74, 77, 79-80; Prosecution Closing Argument, T. 21 April 2009 p. 3; Prosecution Closing Rebuttal Argument, T. 30 April 2009 pp. 54, 57.

over these persons, including Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje while they were bourgmestres, during the indicated time period starting on 17 June 1994.

5633. To the extent that the Prosecution pursues superior responsibility over these persons before 17 June 1994, the Chamber notes that the Indictment, read as a whole, does not provide adequate notice of such responsibility. Moreover, no instrument has been identified that might cure any defect in this regard. The Chamber will thus not consider whether, prior to 17 June 1994, Nteziryayo was superior to bourgmestres such as Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje, or to conseillers.<sup>14580</sup>

5634. The Indictment also alleges that Nteziryayo was responsible for the civil defence of Butare préfecture, and that he thus “exercised authority over Interahamwe militiamen and certain civilians in the préfecture”.<sup>14581</sup> Reading the Indictment as a whole, the Chamber considers that this provided sufficient notice that Nteziryayo was allegedly responsible as a superior for Interahamwe and civilians in Butare préfecture throughout the relevant time period.

4.1.2.1.5 Kanyabashi

5635. Kanyabashi is charged with superior-subordinate responsibility pursuant to numerous paragraphs of his Indictment.<sup>14582</sup>

5636. The Prosecution alleges that various persons were subordinates of Kanyabashi, including soldiers, Interahamwe, commune police, conseillers and civilians.<sup>14583</sup>

5637. The Kanyabashi Defence does not appear to make any submissions concerning notice for 6 (3) responsibility.

5638. The Indictment alleges that Kanyabashi was bourgmestre of Ngoma commune from April 1974 until around 4 July 1994, and that he exercised authority over the civil servants posted in his commune, including conseillers and commune policemen.<sup>14584</sup> Kanyabashi therefore received sufficient notice that he was being charged as a superior in relation to them.

<sup>14582</sup> The relevant Indictment Paragraphs are 5.1, 6.28, 6.29, 6.30, 6.31, 6.32, 6.33, 6.34, 6.35, 6.37, 6.38, 6.41, 6.42, 6.43, 6.44, 6.45, 6.46, 6.57, 6.58, 6.60, 6.63, 6.64 and 6.65. The Chamber recalls that it has already acquitted Kanyabashi on the charges found in Para. 6.38, and has stated that Kanyabashi need not defend against a specific aspect of Para. 6.43: Nyiramasuhuko et al., Decision on Defence Motions for Acquittal under Rule 98 bis (TC), 16 December 2004, p. 62. The Chamber considers, however, that this is not relevant in determining whether Kanyabashi received adequate notice of the allegations against him.

5639. A reading of the Indictment paragraphs pled in support of 6 (3) responsibility demonstrates that Kanyabashi also received sufficient notice that he was charged as a superior to soldiers, Interahamwe and civilians.<sup>14585</sup>

4.1.2.1.6 Ndayambaje

5640. Ndayambaje is charged with criminal responsibility as a superior in relation to various paragraphs of his Indictment.<sup>14586</sup>

5641. The Prosecution alleges that Ndayambaje is responsible as a superior over various groups of people, including soldiers, Interahamwe, gendarmes, conseillers, commune police and civilians.<sup>14587</sup>

5642. The Ndayambaje Defence submits that the Indictment was vague, and that essential information was lacking. This prevented investigations or an adequate rebuttal, and should result in an acquittal on all allegations under Article 6 (3) of the Statute.<sup>14588</sup>

5643. The Indictment alleges that Ndayambaje was bourgmestre of Muganza commune from 1983 to 1992, acted as a de facto bourgmestre starting on 19 April 1994, and was reappointed bourgmestre on 20 June 1994.<sup>14589</sup> The Indictment alleges that as bourgmestre, Ndayambaje had “authority over the civil servants posted in his commune”, and that Ndayambaje continued to exercise this authority even after 1992.<sup>14590</sup>

5644. Reading the Indictment as a whole, it is clear from the paragraphs pled in support of 6 (3) responsibility that Ndayambaje received sufficient notice that he was being charged as a superior to soldiers, Interahamwe, gendarmes and civilians, and to the conseillers and Muganza commune police.<sup>14591</sup>

4.1.2.2 Superior-Subordinate Relationships

5645. For an accused to incur criminal responsibility under Article 6 (3) of the Statute, in addition to establishing beyond a reasonable doubt that his or her subordinate is criminally responsible, the following elements must be established beyond a reasonable doubt: (1) the

<sup>14591</sup> Paras. 5.8, 5.13, 6.30, 6.31, 6.34, 6.37, 6.50, 6.52, 6.53 of the Ndayambaje Indictment; see also Para. 5.1 of the Ndayambaje Indictment. Given the context, the Chamber considers it clear that the “militiamen” referenced in this Indictment would have been understood as Interahamwe, and that Ndayambaje received sufficient notice of these alleged subordinates in this regard; see, e.g., Paras. 1.17 (conflating the militia and the Interahamwe), 3.10 (same), 6.20 (same), 6.44 (same) of the Ndayambaje Indictment.

existence of a superior-subordinate relationship and that the superior had effective control over this subordinate; (2) that the superior knew or had reason to know that his or her subordinate was about to commit a crime or had done so; and (3) that the superior failed to take necessary and reasonable measures to prevent or punish the commission of the crime by his or her subordinate. The accused need not have the same intent as the perpetrator of the criminal act.<sup>14592</sup>

5647. The threshold for a superior-subordinate relationship is established by showing that the accused had effective control over a subordinate at the time the offence was committed. Effective control requires that the accused had the material ability to prevent or punish criminal conduct. The superior must also have possessed power or authority over subordinates either de jure or de facto. The superior-subordinate relationship entails that the accused, by virtue of his or her position, is senior to the perpetrator in a formal or informal hierarchy.<sup>14594</sup>

5648. The Trial Chambers of the ICTY have established that a superior-subordinate relationship need not be of a permanent nature, but instead could arise on an ad hoc or temporary basis.<sup>14595</sup> "To be held liable for the acts of [persons] who operated under [the Accused] on an ad hoc or temporary basis, it must be shown that, at the time when the acts charged in the Indictment were committed, these persons were under the effective control of that particular individual."<sup>14596</sup>

5649. A direct and individualised superior-subordinate relationship is not required for responsibility pursuant to Article 6 (3). Effective control may descend from the superior to the subordinate culpable of the crime through intermediary subordinates.<sup>14597</sup>

5650. The Chamber recalls that although the possession of de jure powers may suggest a material ability to prevent or punish criminal acts of subordinates, it is not sufficient to prove such ability. Even where de jure powers have been established, the Prosecution still bears the burden of proving beyond a reasonable doubt that the accused has effective control over his or her subordinates.<sup>14598</sup>

5651. Other factors indicative of effective control include the accused's position, the procedure for appointment, the actual tasks performed, his or her capacity to issue orders, the nature of such orders, and whether any orders were followed.<sup>14599</sup> The Chamber recalls that although the authority to issue orders may be indicative of effective control over subordinates, it does not automatically establish such control.<sup>14600</sup> Effective control can only be determined by looking at the evidence in its entirety on a case-by-case basis.<sup>14601</sup>

4.1.3 Cumulative Convictions

5652. It is not appropriate to convict an accused on a particular count for the same conduct under both Article 6 (1) and Article 6 (3).<sup>14602</sup> Where the conduct of an accused constitutes a violation of both Article 6 (1) and Article 6 (3), the Chamber will enter a conviction on the basis of Article 6 (1) of the Statute alone and consider whether the superior position of the accused is an aggravating factor.<sup>14603</sup> While a position of authority, even at a high level, does not automatically warrant a harsher sentence, it is the abuse of such authority which may serve as an aggravating factor in sentencing.<sup>14604</sup>

4.2 Genocide

4.2.1 Conspiracy to Commit Genocide

4.2.1.1 Introduction

5653. All of the Indictments allege that the military, political leaders and civil servants conspired among themselves to work out a plan with the intent to exterminate the civilian Tutsi population and eliminate members of the opposition so they could remain in power. The components of this plan included recourse to hatred and ethnic violence, the training of and distribution of weapons to militiamen and the preparation of lists of people to be eliminated. Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali, Nsabimana, Nteziryayo, Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje elaborated, adhered to, and executed this plan.<sup>14605</sup>

5654. All of the Indictments also allege that the massacres and assaults were the result of a conspiracy adopted at the national as well as the local level by military and political leaders,

4.2.1.2 Law

5655. Conspiracy to commit genocide is an agreement between two or more persons to commit the crime of genocide. The actus reus of the crime is the existence of such an agreement between individuals to commit genocide. As for mens rea, the individuals involved in the agreement must have the intent to destroy in whole or in part a national, ethnical, racial or religious group as such.<sup>14608</sup>

5656. Regarding the actus reus, the agreement can be proven by establishing the existence of planning meetings for the genocide, but it can also be inferred from circumstantial evidence. The concerted or coordinated action of a group of individuals can constitute evidence of an agreement. The qualifiers “concerted or coordinated” are important; it is not sufficient to show similarity of conduct or guilt by association. In certain cases, the existence of a conspiracy to commit genocide between individuals controlling institutions could be inferred from the interaction between these institutions. When based on circumstantial evidence, the finding of a conspiracy to commit genocide must be the only reasonable inference based on the totality of the evidence.<sup>14609</sup>

4.2.1.3 Preliminary Issues

5657. The Ntahobali Defence submits, on behalf of Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali, that the charge of conspiracy to commit genocide is not adequately pled in their Indictment and that the defects in this respect were not cured.<sup>14610</sup> It submits the Indictment paragraphs that are pled in support of conspiracy are inconsistent as to the identity of the co-conspirators, the applicable form of responsibility, and the time frame of the alleged conspiracy.<sup>14611</sup>

5658. The Nsabimana Defence contends that Paragraphs 5.1, 6.37 and 6.57 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment did not provide sufficient notice to enable it to investigate the allegation of conspiracy.<sup>14612</sup> Paragraph 5.1 of the Ndayambaje Indictment fails to provide the essential elements of the alleged crime, while Paragraph 6.54 does not specify the strategy by which Tutsis were exterminated or the identities of individuals with whom Ndayambaje participated in that strategy.<sup>14613</sup> The Kanyabashi Defence submits that Paragraphs 5.1 and

6.62 of the Kanyabashi Indictment, which are pled in support of the conspiracy charge, are vague and imprecise.<sup>14614</sup>

5659. The Prosecution submits that each of the Accused received notice of the paragraphs that would be relied on for the charge of conspiracy to commit genocide.<sup>14615</sup>

5660. The Chamber notes that Paragraph 5.1 of each Indictment alleges that from late 1990 until July 1994 military personnel, political leaders, and civil servants conspired among themselves to work out a plan with the intent to exterminate the civilian Tutsi population. Each Indictment alleges the conspiracy was on the national as well as the local level,<sup>14616</sup> and that all of the Accused were part of this conspiracy.<sup>14617</sup> The Chamber therefore considers that the basic elements of the alleged conspiracy were set forth in Paragraph 5.1 of the Indictments.

5661. However, the Chamber notes there are a number of ambiguities with regard to the alleged conspiracy. Paragraph 5.1 states the Accused “elaborated, adhered to and executed” the plan. The Indictments later state the Accused planned, prepared, and executed the common scheme.<sup>14618</sup> This presupposes the existence of an agreement between certain individuals, but the Indictments do not identify the specific individuals who entered into this agreement. Nor do the Indictments state when and where the agreement was executed and when the conspiracy ended. For these reasons, the Chamber finds each of the Indictments to be defective in their charge of conspiracy.

5662. In its opening statement, the Prosecution further outlined the charge of conspiracy against the Accused. It referred to a plan that had been masterminded by the government to exterminate the Tutsi ethnic group with the assistance and participation of militiamen.<sup>14619</sup> It also asserted the Accused had clearly laid out functions and roles in this plan.<sup>14620</sup> The Prosecution noted that the part of the plan regarding military authorities was lacking in this case.<sup>14621</sup> According to the Prosecution, the six Accused were civilian authorities who were all involved in the strategy in Butare préfecture.<sup>14622</sup>

It further stated that there was a Hutu plan to exterminate Tutsis through large-scale killings long before 1994: Prosecution Opening Statement, T. 12 June 2001 p. 47. This plan was evidenced by public speeches by extremists inciting hate, including one in November 1992 by the vice-chairman of the MRND and by radio broadcasts on Radio Télévision Libre des Mille Collines (RTLM): Prosecution Opening Statement, T. 12 June 2001 pp. 48-49. The plan was also evidenced by the distribution of weapons and military training of civilians from November 1993 to March 1994: Prosecution Opening Statement, T. 12 June 2001 pp. 49-50.

5663. As to the agreement, the Prosecution argued the Prime Minister and the Ministers of the Interim Government, including Nyiramasuhuko, dismissed Préfet Habyalimana and appointed Nsabimana in order to complete the killings that had started elsewhere. On 19 April 1994, Nsabimana, Nteziryayo, Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje listened to the speech of Sindikubwabo, understood it and expressed their desire to organise in Butare the killings that were occurring elsewhere based on the same strategy.<sup>14623</sup>

5664. The Chamber considers the Prosecution opening statement clarified the charge of conspiracy in the Indictments. The Prosecution alleges the Interim Government, of which Nyiramasuhuko was a member, masterminded a plan to kill Tutsis. The Interim Government, including Nyiramasuhuko, removed the obstacle to killing in Butare, which was Préfet Habyalimana, and replaced him with Nsabimana in order to execute this plan. The agreement originated between the members of the Interim Government, including Nyiramasuhuko. Therefore, the Chamber considers the Prosecution opening statement cured the defects in the Indictment with regard to the charge of conspiracy against Nyiramasuhuko.

5665. The Prosecution alleges Kanyabashi, Nsabimana, Nteziryayo and Ndayambaje were present at the 19 April 1994 swearing-in of Nsabimana. They understood the Interim Government's plan to kill Tutsis and agreed at that time to execute the killings in their respective areas of influence and therefore joined the conspiracy. Ntahobali identified venues where Tutsis would be killed and executed the killings.<sup>14624</sup> Therefore, the Chamber considers the Prosecution opening statement also cured the defects in the Indictments with regard to the charge of conspiracy against each of the other Accused. They suffered no prejudice as a result.

4.2.1.4 Deliberations

4.2.1.4.1 Nyiramasuhuko

5666. The Prosecution submits that the meetings held by the Interim Government, the directives it issued, the words its members used, and its actions or lack of actions, lead to the only reasonable conclusion that there was an agreement to commit genocide through the perpetration of massacres of Tutsis and Hutu moderates.<sup>14625</sup> It further submits that between April and July 1994 many people, including the six Accused, entered into an agreement to commit genocide of Tutsis in Butare. The Accused played a prominent role in implementing a plan that had been masterminded by the Interim Government.<sup>14626</sup> The Prosecution submits there was an ongoing strategy designed to commit genocide which included the Interim

But not only that, they did express their desire to organise in Butare the same activities that occurred in the other pr[é]fectures to comply with the demands of President Sindikubwabo’s government; that is, to comply with their desires, and that is very important.”).

Government's pacification programme, instructions to restore security, roadblocks, civil defence and the distribution of weapons to Hutus.<sup>14627</sup>

5667. The Nyiramasuhuko Defence submits that "pacification" was an attempt by the Interim Government to restore calm to the population and to stop the killings. The Interim Government knew that the population did not distinguish between the enemy RPF and the Tutsis within the country at the time of the hostilities, but it was unable to obtain information which would permit it to follow the development of the massacres.<sup>14628</sup> It submits that the Interim Government, including Nyiramasuhuko, was without the necessary resources, but was looking for solutions to stop the killings at the same time as it defended itself against the RPF.<sup>14629</sup>

Cabinet Meetings ()

5669. Between 9 April and 14 July 1994, numerous Cabinet meetings were held during which ministers, including Nyiramasuhuko, were briefed on the situation vis-à-vis massacres of the civilian population. In particular, on 9 April 1994, Nyiramasuhuko was well aware that massacres of Tutsis were taking place.<sup>14630</sup> During the Cabinet meeting of 21 April 1994, she again recognised the on-going nature of the massacres, stating in her diary: "Situation – Killings continue ... Rivers Mwongo and Nyabarongo strewn with bodies."<sup>14631</sup> Yet the Interim Government, including Nyiramasuhuko, did nothing to stop the massacres. Rather, the Interim Government, of which Nyiramasuhuko was a member, adopted directives and issued instructions which were designed to encourage the population to kill Tutsis. These included the Interim Government Directives of 27 April 1994 regarding the establishment of roadblocks which were used to identify and kill Tutsis.

Removal of Habyalimana and Swearing-in of Nsabimana ()

5670. The Interim Government made the final decision to remove Habyalimana and replace him with Nsabimana at a 16-17 April 1994 Cabinet meeting. Nyiramasuhuko admits that she took part in this meeting and that the decision to remove Préfet Habyalimana was taken there.<sup>14632</sup> For these reasons, the Chamber found that Nyiramasuhuko, as a member of the Interim Government, participated in the decision to remove Préfet Habyalimana from office.

5671. Furthermore, the speeches delivered by Sindikubwabo and Kambanda at Nsabimana's swearing-in ceremony on 19 April 1994 were inflammatory and contained coded language that was understood by the attendees and the public. In particular, the term "enemy," as used in their speeches meant Tutsis and the word "work" (gukora) meant to kill Tutsis.

5672. At this time, Nyiramasuhuko was a member of the Interim Government. Her presence at the ceremony and her failure to dissociate herself from the statements made by the President effectively endorsed the President's inflammatory statements and the directives and instructions to the population contained therein.

5673. Finally, the removal of Préfet Habyalimana and the appointment of Nsabimana as préfet, were two factors that coincided with the commencement of widespread killings and large-scale massacres throughout Butare préfecture in the wake of these events, including in the large number of communes that had resisted such massacres until that time. The speeches of Sindikubwabo and Kambanda, endorsed by Nyiramasuhuko, along with the removal of Préfet Habyalimana and appointment of Nsabimana, contributed significantly in triggering the mass killings in Butare préfecture.

Roadblocks (; )

5674. On 27 April 1994, Prime Minister Kambanda issued a Directive on behalf of the Interim Government, in which he called for commune, secteur and cellule authorities to set up roadblocks "in order to prevent the enemy from infiltrating".<sup>14633</sup> The Chamber has found that language such as this was used to refer to Tutsis.

5675. In late April or May 1994, in response to encouragement from government leaders such as bourgmestres, conseillers de secteur and responsables de cellule, civilians started to mount and man roadblocks in Butare préfecture. Tutsis were targeted and killed at these roadblocks.

Conclusion

5676. From 9 April until 14 July 1994, and in particular between 9 April and 19 April 1994, Nyiramasuhuko agreed with other members of the Interim Government to issue directives to the population to encourage the population to hunt down and kill Tutsis. There was no distinction between the RPF invading force and Tutsis within the country, as the terms "enemy" and "accomplices" encompassed both groups. On 16 or 17 April 1994, Nyiramasuhuko agreed with the other members of the Interim Government to remove Habyalimana who had posed an obstacle to the killing of Tutsis and chose to replace him with Nsabimana. On 19 April 1994, she attended the swearing-in ceremony of Nsabimana, lending further support to the Interim Government's decision. The Interim President and the Prime Minister used coded language to encourage the killing of Tutsis in Butare. Nyiramasuhuko listened to the inflammatory speeches of Sindikubwabo and Kambanda, and effectively endorsed these speeches. These events coincided with the commencement of large-scale killings in Butare préfecture.

5677. Furthermore, the Interim Government, including Nyiramasuhuko, issued a Directive on 27 April 1994, encouraging the population to mount and man roadblocks. The Interim Government's intent in issuing this Directive was to encourage the population to kill Tutsis. In fact, the roadblocks mounted throughout Butare préfecture were used to identify and kill Tutsis throughout Butare préfecture. This further evidences a prior-existing agreement among the members of the Interim Government to organise the killing of Tutsis in Butare préfecture.

5678. Considering all of these elements, the only reasonable conclusion is that Nyiramasuhuko entered into an agreement with members of the Interim Government on or after 9 April 1994 to kill Tutsis within Butare préfecture with the intent to destroy, in whole or in part, the Tutsi ethnic group. As a member of the Interim Government, Nyiramasuhuko participated in many of the Cabinet meetings at which the massacre of Tutsis was discussed, and took part in the decisions which triggered the onslaught of massacres in Butare préfecture. There can be no other inference from these facts than that Nyiramasuhuko conspired with the Interim Government to commit genocide against the Tutsis of Butare préfecture.<sup>14634</sup>

4.2.1.4.2 Ntahobali

5679. The Prosecution submits it can be inferred from the depth and extent of his participation in the killing campaign, combined with evidence that he worked in conjunction with his mother, Nteziryayo and national Interahamwe leaders, that Ntahobali agreed to participate in an effort to consolidate and strengthen the political power of the Interim Government by eliminating the Tutsi ethnic group.<sup>14635</sup>

5680. In its closing argument, the Prosecution submits that Ntahobali acted in concert with his mother. In addition, it submits that Ntahobali conspired with Nsabimana and Nteziryayo to execute a plan to destroy the Tutsis of Rwanda.<sup>14636</sup> It later suggested the agreement was between “Ntahobali and one or more of the accused persons and/or other persons.”<sup>14637</sup> It submits the methodical and systematic nature of the attacks supports the conclusion that they were perpetrated according to a pre-existing plan or agreement.<sup>14638</sup>

5681. The Ntahobali Defence submits the Prosecution did not demonstrate the alleged conspiracy to commit genocide against the Tutsis. The only evidence regarding this allegation came in the form of statements and opinions by those who conceived this theory, namely Prosecution Expert Witnesses Des Forges and Guichaoua. The Ntahobali Defence submits that these witnesses were

<sup>14634</sup> The Chamber notes that there appears to be a split of authority regarding whether convictions may be entered simultaneously for conspiracy to commit genocide and for genocide; see Gatete, Judgement (TC), paras. 654-662 (addressing this split and, after considering that the scenario was similar to that faced by the Trial Chamber in Popović et al., following the approach taken in that case); Popović et al., Judgement (TC), paras. 2117-2127 (discussing this split and concluding that it would be redundant to enter a conviction for conspiracy to commit genocide and for genocide, which had been committed through a joint criminal enterprise). The Chamber considers, however, that it does not need to address this issue because the conduct that serves as the basis for conspiracy to commit genocide (entering into an agreement with members of the Interim Government on or after 9 April 1994) is different from that which is addressed below as the basis for genocide (engaging in acts or omissions on or after 19 April 1994, generally with persons who were not members of the Interim Government). In any event, the Chamber notes its view that, because joint criminal enterprise does not feature as a form of commission in this case, conspiracy to commit genocide and genocide each contain a materially distinct element, and thus a conviction could be entertained on both charges under the present circumstances.

biased and that evidence of conspiracy cannot be based solely on the evidence of expert witnesses unless it is corroborated by other evidence, whether factual or documentary.<sup>14639</sup>

5682. The Chamber notes the apparent disconnect between the Prosecution's opening statement and closing argument. In its opening statement, the Prosecution asserted Ntahobali participated in a conspiracy with the other Accused by identifying venues where Tutsis would be sorted out. In its closing statement, the Prosecution was not clear as to the identity of Ntahobali's co-conspirators. It stated he conspired with his mother, then argued that he conspired with Nteziryayo and Nsabimana, before finally settling on "one or more of the accused and/or other persons." Although there was considerable evidence that Ntahobali participated in raping and killing Tutsis from April to July 1994, e.g. at the Butare préfecture office, there was no credible evidence that he participated in planning meetings, in particular with the co-Accused in this case. Further, it has not been established that, in furtherance of a plan, he identified locations where Tutsis should be killed.

5683. Ntahobali did participate in the attacks at the BPO and these attacks were methodical. Further, Ntahobali co-perpetrated these attacks at the BPO with Nyiramasuhuko, who was a member of the Interim Government which formulated a conspiracy to kill Tutsis in Butare préfecture. However, there was no clear-cut evidence that Ntahobali acceded to Nyiramasuhuko's agreement with the Interim Government. The only evidence that could lead to an inference that Ntahobali agreed to commit genocide was his participation in acts of genocide. However, the co-perpetration of genocide does not equate to a conspiracy to commit genocide. Without some evidence pointing to Ntahobali's awareness of, and accession to, the Interim Government's conspiracy, the inference that Ntahobali joined a pre-existing plan is not the only reasonable one from the evidence.

5684. The Prosecution must be held to the case it formulated, and the facts for which the Ntahobali Defence had notice, prior to trial.<sup>14640</sup> The Prosecution did not allege prior to trial that the proof of Ntahobali's participation in the conspiracy would be based upon his participation in the attacks at the BPO. In any event, the Chamber considers there is no clear evidence to convict Ntahobali for conspiring with Nyiramasuhuko to commit the acts of genocide at the BPO.

5685. Considering the foregoing, as well as the evidence as a whole, the Chamber finds that it was not proven that Ntahobali joined the Interim Government's conspiracy to commit genocide.

4.2.1.4.3 Nsabimana

5686. The Prosecution submits that Nsabimana knew of the genocidal plan before April 1994 and helped carry out the plan by accepting the position of préfet. It argues Nsabimana was aware of a conspiracy to kill Tutsis and agreed to join it on 19 April 1994 when he accepted the appointment as préfet of Butare préfecture.<sup>14641</sup>

5687. The Prosecution submits Nsabimana played a role in the conspiracy to commit genocide against the Tutsi population. The evidence cited by the Prosecution to support this submission includes that Nsabimana convened and attended meetings both at the préfecture office and in the communes, assisted the civil defence effort, supplied fuel to help transport youths, distributed weapons to the communes, encouraged youths to join the army, and encouraged others to join in the genocidal effort to kill the Tutsis. He was one of the persons who gave effect to the plan. By convening and attending meetings regularly, he oversaw the plan to exterminate the Tutsis.<sup>14642</sup>

5688. The Nsabimana Defence submits that the attacks which occurred during the events were not planned, as alleged by the Prosecution. The Defence asserts that everyone made himself a chief in his own area and dictated his own law.<sup>14643</sup> It submits that the 27 April 1994 Directive issued by Nsabimana was a message to the inhabitants of Ngoma commune aimed at controlling the massacres. It clearly indicates that the population was prohibited from carrying out massacres and looting. Even if it is accepted that “accomplices” were Tutsis, the messages were intended to stem assaults on persons of the Tutsi ethnic group and to prevent members of the population from assaulting Tutsis.<sup>14644</sup>

Swearing-in of Nsabimana ()

5690. As noted above, Sindikubwabo and Kambanda’s speeches on 19 April 1994 were inflammatory and encouraged the population to kill Tutsis. The Chamber found that Nsabimana was aware of a plan to kill Tutsis when he accepted the post of préfet.

20 April 1994 Meeting ()

5691. The 20 April meeting primarily dealt with issues of safety, security, displaced persons, and measures to be taken in order to keep the situation under control. It was not established that the furtherance of the massacres was discussed. Furthermore, it was not proven that after the 20 April meeting the bourgmestres returned to their communes and ordered to kill, while those who refused to do so were dismissed. There was no established link between the massacres and this meeting. It was not established that the killings in Butare continued because Nsabimana failed to act during the 20 April meeting.

26-28 April Meetings ()

5692. While both Nsabimana and Prime Minister Kambanda issued a Directive on 27 April 1994,<sup>14645</sup> there is insufficient evidence to find a relationship between the two Directives. It was not established that the purpose of Nsabimana's message to the people of Butare on 27 April 1994 was to implement the Interim Government's national policy on pacification.

Butare Préfecture Office ()

5693. Nsabimana was presented with requests for assistance from the refugees and was aware that they were being abducted and killed at the BPO at night. He only posted soldiers to the BPO around 5-15 June 1994, long after the attacks started in May 1994.

Conclusion

5694. The Chamber notes that several elements cited by the Prosecution in support of the conspiracy charge against Nsabimana were not proven beyond a reasonable doubt. It was not proven that Nsabimana distributed fuel to bourgmestres to assist in the killing of Tutsis. It was not proven that Nsabimana assisted in the training of civilians or militiamen or that he distributed weapons to them. Likewise, there was insufficient evidence that Nsabimana encouraged the youth to join the army. These findings undercut the assertion that Nsabimana had a significant role in civil defence.

5695. The Prosecution's case therefore relies on Nsabimana's acceptance of the post of préfet on 19 April 1994 and his failure to prevent massacres throughout Butare during his tenure as préfet.

5696. It is not clear, however, that Nsabimana, by accepting the appointment as préfet, intended to join the conspiracy to kill Tutsis. In his acceptance speech, Nsabimana merely thanked the people who showed that they had confidence in him and called the bourgmestres and heads of department to attend a meeting which was held the following day on 20 April 1994.<sup>14646</sup> Furthermore, when Nsabimana spoke was not clear from the evidence. Therefore, Nsabimana's address may not have been in direct response to either Sindikubwabo's or Kambanda's statements. It was not proven that Nsabimana discussed the furtherance of massacres at the 20 April 1994 meeting or encouraged bourgmestres to kill. Although the 27 April 1994 Interim Government Directive was issued with an intent to extend the killings, it was not proven that Nsabimana was aware of this Directive when he issued his own Directive of 27 April 1994. It was also not proven that Nsabimana sought to implement the Interim Government's pacification campaign in issuing his own Directive.

5697. The Chamber notes there are a number of other reasonable inferences that might be drawn from Nsabimana accepting the post of préfet and participating in the 19 April 1994 swearing-in ceremony at which Kambanda and Sindikubwabo gave inflammatory speeches. Nsabimana may have accepted the post of préfet out of self-preservation, or for the power it would have given him to protect his own family, and potentially to facilitate their departure from Rwanda. He may also have accepted the position, as he suggested, to prevent a member of the MRND from accepting the post. In short, there is insufficient evidence to conclude that Nsabimana joined an on-going conspiracy to kill Tutsis. Therefore, Nsabimana's actions do not constitute the crime of conspiracy to commit genocide.

4.2.1.4.4 Nteziryayo

5698. The Prosecution submits Nteziryayo's role in the conspiracy was to assist in the planning of the genocide by attending meetings during which the genocidal machinery was fine-tuned, take responsibility for the civil self-defence programme in Butare, train youths in the manipulation of weapons, arm those youths with weapons, encourage the youths to join the army, and encourage others to join in the genocidal effort to kill the Tutsis.<sup>14647</sup>

5699. The Nteziryayo Defence submits that the Prosecution failed to prove that despite Colonel Simba's evident position as the de jure head of civil defence in Butare and Gikongoro préfectures, Nteziryayo was the de facto head of civil defence in Butare.<sup>14648</sup> The Nteziryayo Defence submits that the Prosecution witnesses who testified as to Nteziryayo's authority over civil defence, and to his leadership role in training and the distribution of weapons, were not credible.<sup>14649</sup>

Training and Distribution of Weapons (; )

5701. Nteziryayo trained civilians at Kamena Stadium in May 1994 and distributed weapons at the stadium in early June 1994.

Border Meetings ()

5702. Nteziryayo made speeches during the swearing-in ceremony of the Ntyazo bourgmestre on 22 May 1994, at a meeting held in Muganza commune on 23 May 1994 and at meetings in Muyaga and Kibayi communes around mid-June 1994. The Chamber found that, during the Muyaga and Kibayi commune meetings, Nteziryayo incited people to kill Tutsis.

Evacuation of Orphans ()

5703. Nteziryayo attempted to prevent the evacuation from Butare of about 300 orphans and their adult supervisors. He selected about 30 individuals, whom he believed to be Tutsi adults and forced them to remain in Rwanda. He and Ntahobali segregated and prevented the 30 people from crossing the border.

<sup>14649</sup> Nteziryayo Closing Argument, T. 27 April 2009 pp. 43-45, 51, 60.

Ndayambaje's Swearing-in ()

5704. At Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony on 22 June 1994, Nteziryayo urged the population to "sweep the dirt" and instructed that those hiding Tutsis who refused to hand them over should be killed. Searches for Tutsis took place and killings followed the meeting.

Civil Defence ()

5705. The evidence as a whole points to Nteziryayo's involvement in a programme to educate the population about a plan to identify Tutsis, to train and arm civilians and to locate infiltrators and "accomplices". Nteziryayo had a leadership role in the civil defence programme in Butare préfecture.

Conclusion

5706. The Indictment did not identify a particular moment when Nteziryayo joined a conspiracy to kill Tutsis. It notes that Nteziryayo came to Butare préfecture in April 1994 to take up his new post. However, it did not assert that taking up this new post constitutes agreeing to commit genocide.

5707. The Prosecution relies on Nteziryayo's leadership role in civil defence to show concerted and coordinated action which would support an inference that Nteziryayo joined the Interim Government's conspiracy to commit genocide in Butare préfecture. However, there was no clear-cut evidence that Nteziryayo joined the Interim Government's conspiracy. Although Nteziryayo participated in activities that were set forth in the Interim Government's directives, there was no credible evidence that Nteziryayo met with members of the Interim Government to discuss the killing of Tutsis or the methods by which to complete them. It was not shown that he was present at the 19 April 1994 swearing-in ceremony of Nsabimana. Furthermore, there was evidence to suggest Nteziryayo was in Kigali until 15 April 1994<sup>14650</sup> and would not have had any opportunity to meet with members of the Interim Government in Butare préfecture or in Murambi, Gitarama préfecture during this time period.

5708. Based on the evidence, the Chamber cannot conclude that he must have agreed to join the Interim Government's conspiracy to commit genocide against the Tutsis in Butare préfecture. Because the allegation that Nteziryayo joined the conspiracy is not the only reasonable inference from the evidence, the Chamber finds that the Prosecution has not established this crime beyond a reasonable doubt.

4.2.1.4.5 Kanyabashi

5709. The Prosecution submits that Kanyabashi's role in the conspiracy was to attend meetings, give instructions to clear the bush while being fully cognisant that "clearing the bush" was in fact a clarion call to kill any Tutsis who were in hiding, use his position and power to incite the population to join in the killings, and provide administration support for the training and arming of civilians in the context of the genocide.<sup>14651</sup>

<sup>14650</sup> It was uncontested that Nteziryayo was in Kigali between 5 April and 15 April 1994: T. 15 May 2007 pp. 34, 53-54; T. 4 July 2007 p. 50 (Nteziryayo).

5710. The Kanyabashi Defence submits that there was no credible evidence as to Kanyabashi's involvement in a conspiracy to commit genocide.<sup>14652</sup> It submits that Kanyabashi's name is not found in the organising documents of civil defence and he was not involved in its organisation.<sup>14653</sup> Kanyabashi did not have any semblance of control over what was happening in his commune.<sup>14654</sup> His involvement with civil defence measures was minimal. Des Forges and Guichaoua testified as to the extent to which some may have taken advantage of the civil defence mechanism to kill Tutsis, but gave no concrete indication of any involvement of Kanyabashi in this "criminal" aspect of civil defence.<sup>14655</sup>

Swearing-in of Nsabimana ()

5712. As noted above, Sindikubwabo's and Kambanda's speeches on 19 April 1994 were inflammatory and encouraged the population to kill Tutsis. The presence of Kanyabashi at the ceremony and his failure to dissociate himself from the statements made by the President constituted tacit approval of the President's inflammatory statements and the directives and instructions to the population contained therein.

5713. More importantly, Kanyabashi's speech was in support of Sindikubwabo and Kambanda, and contained a commitment to execute the directives and instructions previously announced by the President and Prime Minister.

Training and Distribution of Weapons (;)

5714. The Chamber found that Kanyabashi distributed weapons to conseillers in Ngoma commune in May 1994. The Chamber also found that Kanyabashi, in his capacity as bourgmestre, was responsible for recruiting men for civil defence training in Ngoma commune in May and June 1994. Lastly, the Chamber also found that firearms were distributed by soldiers at Kamena Stadium at end of May and/or early June 1994, but it was not proven that Kanyabashi was aware of these distributions.

Matyazo Clinic ()

5716. Around late May 1994, Kanyabashi drove through Butare town with a megaphone and instructed the population to search for the enemy among them. Around mid-June 1994, Kanyabashi used a megaphone to tell the population to clear bushes along the road in order to remove potential hiding places for the Inkotanyi, to flush out people who were hiding in the bushes, and to kill those found there, including children, old men, and women. Following Kanyabashi's megaphone announcements in mid-May 1994 and in June 1994, searches were conducted for Tutsis, and consequently, more Tutsis were killed.

Conclusion

5717. The key moment with regard to Kanyabashi's involvement in the Interim Government's conspiracy was his response to the inflammatory speeches of Sindikubwabo and Kambanda at the 19 April 1994 swearing-in ceremony. The Chamber has found that Kanyabashi's speech supported the Interim President and the Prime Minister and committed him to executing the directives and instructions announced by them. However, it was not clear that Kanyabashi intended to join the Interim Government's conspiracy to kill Tutsis. He may have felt pressure to voice support for the Government in order to ensure his own survival, or he may have made this speech in the hope of retaining his position as bourgmestre in order to protect his family.

5718. Kanyabashi made announcements over the megaphone encouraging the population to clear the bush and kill Tutsis. He was also responsible for recruiting men to the civil defence programme. However neither of these findings leads inevitably to the conclusion that Kanyabashi must have entered into an agreement with the Interim Government to kill Tutsis. Because the allegation that Kanyabashi joined the conspiracy is not the only reasonable inference from the evidence, and in the absence of additional evidence, the Chamber cannot conclude beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi conspired with the Interim Government to commit genocide.

4.2.1.4.6 Ndayambaje

5719. The Prosecution submits that Ndayambaje's role in the conspiracy was to gather support for the genocide from 1993 and the early months of 1994, prepare people for the upcoming massacres, incite the population to commit killings, provide them with weapons, and order and supervise the killing of Tutsis.<sup>14656</sup>

5720. The Ndayambaje Defence submits the Prosecution failed to adduce any evidence as to the existence of a plan to kill Tutsis. It did not establish that Ndayambaje knew the military personnel, members of the Interim Government, and the other personalities cited. Lastly, there was no evidence to prove that there were meetings or encounters with these persons with the aim of preparing or executing a plan.<sup>14657</sup>

Swearing-in Ceremony of Nsabimana ()

5722. As noted above, the Chamber has found that Sindikubwabo's and Kambanda's speeches on 19 April 1994 were inflammatory and encouraged the population to kill Tutsis. It was not proven that Ndayambaje was present at the swearing-in ceremony.

Mugombwa Church (), Kabuye Hill () and Ndayambaje's Swearing-in () 5723. The Chamber recalls that Ndayambaje participated in the massacres at Mugombwa Church and Kabuye Hill and that he made inciting statements at his swearing-in ceremony. In particular, a massacre took place at Mugombwa Church on 20 and 21 April 1994 and Ndayambaje was present at the church before the attacks. It further found that Ndayambaje transported attackers to Kabuye Hill, distributed weapons to the attackers and was present during the attacks against Tutsis at Kabuye Hill and that thousands were killed.

Conclusion

5724. In its opening statement, the Prosecution argued that Ndayambaje joined the conspiracy to kill Tutsis at the 19 April 1994 swearing-in ceremony of Nsabimana by expressing a desire to organise in Butare the killings that were occurring elsewhere based on the same strategy.<sup>14658</sup> The Chamber notes that Ndayambaje's presence at this ceremony was not established by the Prosecution. Therefore, it did not prove that Ndayambaje joined the Interim Government conspiracy at the 19 April 1994 meeting.

5725. In its closing brief, the Prosecution instead relies, inter alia, on various allegations, such as that Ndayambaje trained civilians, incited the population to commit killings, and armed militia groups.<sup>14659</sup> In this regard, the Chamber recalls that the Prosecution did not establish that Ndayambaje trained militiamen. Therefore, this aspect of the Prosecution's case in support of the charge of conspiracy against Ndayambaje fails.

5726. The Chamber also notes that there was no direct evidentiary link between Ndayambaje's actions at Mugombwa Church and Kabuye Hill, and the Interim Government's agreement to commit genocide. There are other reasonable inferences other than an inference that he joined the government conspiracy. He may have initiated these killings of his own accord. Because the allegation that Ndayambaje joined the conspiracy is not the only reasonable inference from the evidence, and in the absence of additional evidence, the Chamber cannot conclude beyond a reasonable doubt that Ndayambaje conspired with the Interim Government to commit genocide.

4.2.1.5 Conclusion

5727. In sum, the Chamber finds the only reasonable inference based on the evidence of Nyiramasuhuko's participation in Cabinet meetings and decisions of the Interim Government is that she conspired with the Interim Government to commit genocide against the Tutsi population in Butare préfecture between 9 April 1994 and 14 July 1994. The Chamber therefore finds Nyiramasuhuko guilty of committing conspiracy to commit genocide, pursuant to Article 2 (3)(b) of the Statute.

5728. As to Ntahobali, Nsabimana, Nteziryayo, Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje, the Chamber finds that there are reasonable inferences other than the inference that they joined an Interim Government conspiracy to commit genocide against the Tutsi population in Butare préfecture. The Chamber therefore acquits them of this charge.

4.2.2 Genocide

4.2.2.1 Introduction

5729. The Accused are charged with genocide under Article 2 (3)(a) of the Statute. This charge comprises Count 2 of each Indictment.

4.2.2.2 Law

5730. A person commits the crime of genocide if he or she commits one of the acts enumerated in Article 2 (2) of the Statute with the specific intent to destroy, in whole or in part, a national, ethnical, racial or religious group as such. The existence of a personal motive does not preclude the perpetrator from also having the specific intent to commit genocide.<sup>14660</sup>

5731. The acts enumerated in Article 2 (2) include “[k]illing members of the group”, and “[c]ausing serious bodily or mental harm to members of the group”. For this latter category to support a conviction for genocide, the bodily or mental harm inflicted on members of a group must be of such a serious nature as to threaten its destruction in whole or in part.<sup>14661</sup> The Appeals Chamber has described rape as a “quintessential” example of serious bodily harm,<sup>14662</sup> and has stated that serious mental harm includes “more than a minor or temporary impairment of mental faculties such as the infliction of strong fear or terror, intimidation or threat”.<sup>14663</sup>

<sup>14662</sup> Seromba, Judgement (AC), para. 46; see also Kunarac et al., Judgement (AC), para. 150 (stating, in its discussion of torture, that “[s]exual violence necessarily gives rise to severe pain or suffering, whether physical or mental”); Akayesu, Judgement (TC), para. 731 (with regard to “rape and sexual violence, the Chamber wishes to underscore ... [that] they constitute genocide in the same way as any other act as long as they were committed with the specific intent to destroy, in whole or in part, a particular group, targeted as such. Indeed, rape and sexual violence certainly constitute infliction of serious bodily and mental harm on the victims ....”).

The Appeals Chamber has also noted that “nearly all convictions for the causing of serious bodily or mental harm involve rapes or killings”.<sup>14664</sup>

5732. The jurisprudence accepts that, in most cases, genocidal intent will be proved by circumstantial evidence. Such intent may be inferred from a number of facts and circumstances, including the general context, the perpetration of other culpable acts systematically directed against the same group, the scale of the atrocities committed, the systematic targeting of victims on account of their membership of a particular group, or the repetition of destructive and discriminatory acts. Evidence of limited and selective assistance towards a few individuals does not generally preclude a reasonable finding of the requisite intent to commit genocide. When based on circumstantial evidence, any finding that the accused had genocidal intent must be the only reasonable inference from the totality of the evidence.<sup>14665</sup>

4.2.2.3.1 Cabinet Meetings, 9 April – 14 July 1994

5733. Between 9 April and 14 July 1994, numerous Cabinet meetings were held by the Interim Government, of which Nyiramasuhuko was a member. The Interim Government adopted directives and issued instructions during these meetings, with the intention of encouraging the population to hunt down and take action against Tutsis ().

5734. The Chamber, however, has not found what role, if any, Nyiramasuhuko played at these Cabinet meetings. It has not been established, for instance, that Nyiramasuhuko was assigned responsibility for “pacification” in Butare ().

5735. The Chamber therefore finds that the Prosecution has not established, beyond a reasonable doubt, that Nyiramasuhuko bears criminal responsibility pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute in relation to these Cabinet meetings.

4.2.2.3.2 Removal of Préfet Habyalimana and Swearing-in Ceremony of Préfet Nsabimana, 17-19 April 1994

Nyiramasuhuko

5736. The Chamber has found beyond a reasonable doubt that Nyiramasuhuko, as a member of the Interim Government, participated in the decision to remove Préfet Habyalimana from office for reasons other than maintaining peace (). Habyalimana was a major force in limiting killings within Butare préfecture, and his removal was one of the events that triggered the start of mass-killings in Butare ().

5737. On 19 April 1994, Nsabimana was sworn in as préfet. Due to the political context, the existence of war, and the attendance of high-profile government officials, this was a very important occasion. At the time of this ceremony, the people of Butare were looking for guidance from the Interim Government ()).

5738. The Chamber has found that the speeches made at Nsabimana's swearing-in ceremony by Prime Minister Kambanda and President Sindikubwabo were inflammatory and called on the audience and the public to identify and kill Tutsis and their accomplices (; ).

5739. The Chamber further found that the presence of Nyiramasuhuko, Nsabimana and Kanyabashi at the ceremony, and their failure to dissociate themselves from the statements made by the Prime Minister and President, constituted tacit approval of these inflammatory statements and the directives and instructions to the population contained therein (; ; ; ).

5740. In addition, the Chamber has found that Kanyabashi's speech was in support of Kambanda and Sindikubwabo, and contained a commitment to execute the directives and instructions as set forth in the speeches of Kambanda and Sindikubwabo ()).

5741. Finally, the Chamber has found that widespread killings of Tutsis did not occur in Butare préfecture prior to 18 or 19 April 1994. The Chamber has found that the inflammatory nature of the speeches delivered at the swearing-in ceremony on 19 April 1994 contributed to, and endorsed, the instigation of widespread killings and large-scale massacres in Butare préfecture (; ).

5742. The Chamber recalls its finding that, after the swearing-in ceremony, massacres and attacks took place at various locations in Butare, including Mugombwa Church (), Kabuye Hill (), Kabakobwa Hill () and Matyazo Clinic ()).

Nyiramasuhuko and Nsabimana – Article 6 (1) Responsibility

5743. The Prosecution has charged Nyiramasuhuko and Nsabimana with genocide pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute in relation to this ceremony.

5744. The Chamber has made numerous findings of fact in relation to these events. The Chamber does not consider these facts to be sufficient to conclude beyond a reasonable doubt that Nyiramasuhuko's or Nsabimana's actions constituted the planning, instigating, ordering, or committing of genocide.

5745. The Chamber will assess below whether Nyiramasuhuko's or Nsabimana's actions constitute the aiding and abetting of genocide.

5746. As described above, the Chamber has found that Nyiramasuhuko and Nsabimana tacitly approved of Kambanda's and Sindikubwabo's speeches. As set out above, Nyiramasuhuko's participation in the Interim Government's conspiracy was further evidenced, inter alia, by her presence at the ceremony, and her effective endorsement of the message of the President and the Prime Minister (). However, although Kambanda's and Sindikubwabo's speeches contributed to the instigation of widespread killings and large-scale massacres in Butare préfecture, the Chamber recalls that approval may constitute aiding and abetting of a crime such as genocide only if the Prosecution proves that the Accused's conduct substantially contributed to a crime (). Here, the Prosecution has adduced insufficient evidence to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Nyiramasuhuko's and Nsabimana's conduct contributed to later crimes in a substantial manner.

5747. Accordingly, the Chamber does not find it established beyond a reasonable doubt that Nyiramasuhuko and Nsabimana's tacit approval of the speeches substantially contributed to the killings that followed. The Chamber therefore does not consider it proven that they are responsible for aiding and abetting genocide in relation to these events. The Chamber notes, however, that it will consider Nyiramasuhuko's and Nsabimana's conduct elsewhere in determining whether they possessed the requisite intent for genocide.

Nsabimana – Article 6 (3) Responsibility

5749. It is clear that Nsabimana, under Rwandan law and in his capacity as préfet, was granted authority over bourgmestres in Butare préfecture,<sup>14668</sup> including Kanyabashi. When préfet, Nsabimana thus held de jure authority over Kanyabashi. The Chamber recalls that it has not made a finding as to whether Nsabimana became préfet before or after Kanyabashi's speech (). The Chamber is therefore unable to conclude that Nsabimana exercised de jure authority over Kanyabashi at the time of his speech.

5750. In any event, there is also insufficient evidence that might establish that Nsabimana exercised de facto authority or effective control over Kanyabashi when he spoke on 19 April 1994.

5751. The Chamber therefore finds that the Prosecution has not established a superior-subordinate relationship between Nsabimana and Kanyabashi at the time of Kanyabashi's speech on 19 April 1994. Because this alleged superior relationship has not been established, the Chamber finds that Nsabimana is not responsible as a superior for the events at his swearing-in ceremony.

Kanyabashi

5752. After Kambanda and Sindikubwabo spoke on 19 April 1994 and asked the audience to search for and kill Tutsis, Kanyabashi gave his own speech in which he supported their message and committed to carrying out their instructions.

5753. The Chamber has also found that widespread killings of Tutsis did not occur in Butare préfecture prior to 18 or 19 April 1994. After the ceremony at which Kanyabashi spoke on 19

April 1994, large-scale massacres took place in Butare that constituted genocide (see, e.g., ; ;). The Chamber has found that the inflammatory nature of the speeches contributed to these genocidal killings. While the Chamber has found beyond a reasonable doubt that Kambanda's and Sindikubwabo's speeches were inflammatory, the Chamber has not found that Kanyabashi's speech was inflammatory. In light of these findings and the evidence in its totality, the Chamber does not find that Kanyabashi's speech substantially contributed to the genocide that followed.

4.2.2.3.3 Mugombwa Church Massacres, 20-21 April 1994

5754. The Chamber has found it established beyond a reasonable doubt that on the morning of 20 April 1994 Ndayambaje spoke with various community leaders at Bishya, after which they told members of the population that Ndayambaje was ordering all those present in Bishya to go to Mugombwa Church. At about noon that day Ndayambaje came to Mugombwa Church. Ndayambaje showed the refugees in the church a picture of President Habyarimana and told them that those in the church were going to be killed because they were accomplices of the Inkotanyi who had killed the President. Ndayambaje also spoke to a group of armed people posted outside the church. He told them that since the people in the church were now gathered together, their work would no longer be very difficult. He told the attackers that some of them should stay and watch those in the church and others should go and look for those that were hiding in ditches and in bushes. After this, many people left and some stayed behind at the church. Ndayambaje remained there for about 15 minutes and left. At around 4.00 p.m., the armed people launched an attack against the Tutsis sheltering in the church ().

5755. The following morning, 21 April 1994, Ndayambaje came back at around 10.00 a.m. He addressed the crowd outside the church, stating that he could see they were interested in the Tutsis' cows and asking them what they would pay if the Tutsi owners of the cattle escaped. He then left, but returned to the church for a second time around 10.30 a.m. At about 3.00 p.m., people outside the church threw grenades at the church and set it on fire. Refugees escaping the church were attacked and killed in the courtyard. The attacks on the Mugombwa Church during the two days resulted in the death of hundreds, if not thousands, of Tutsis who sought refuge there ().

Ndayambaje – Article 6 (1) Responsibility

5757. In the circumstances, the Chamber is convinced that the only reasonable inference to be drawn is that Ndayambaje came to Mugombwa Church on 20 and 21 April 1994 to encourage the civilians in their attacks, and in this way substantially contributed to the perpetration of the attacks on the Tutsi refugees at Mugombwa Church. The Chamber notes that Ndayambaje exercised considerable moral authority over the population in Muganza commune at the time.

As such, the Chamber considers that Ndayambaje's presence at Mugombwa Church before each attack encouraged the attacks, and the Chamber is satisfied that Ndayambaje knew that his presence would be considered by the assailants as tacit approval of the attack. Given the circumstances as a whole, the Chamber has no doubt that Ndayambaje knew that the assailants possessed genocidal intent, and that he substantially contributed to their attacks.

Ndayambaje – Article 6 (3) Responsibility

5759. The Chamber next addresses Ndayambaje's potential Article 6 (3) superior responsibility over the civilian perpetrators of the massacre at Mugombwa Church, for possible consideration in sentencing.

5760. The Prosecution alleges that Ndayambaje, as former bourgmestre of Muganza commune for a period of 11 years, was seen as a key authority figure by the population. The Prosecution submits that even after leaving office in 1993, Ndayambaje continued to be respected and obeyed, and was, in effect, a de facto bourgmestre. It alleges that he continued to exercise authority over commune office personnel, such as conseillers and commune police, since they had been appointed during his tenure, and that he continued to play a role in commune administration. Further, the Prosecution submits that Ndayambaje was an active and influential figure within his commune due to the other positions he held on various boards and committees.<sup>14669</sup>

5761. The Ndayambaje Defence denied that Ndayambaje played the role of a de facto bourgmestre after he left office. It submits that Ndayambaje had no authority over commune personnel and policemen after he left office, ceased all activities related to his office as bourgmestre of Muganza commune after his resignation, and did not resume such activities until he was sworn in on 22 June 1994.<sup>14670</sup>

5763. The Chamber accepts that Ndayambaje, as former bourgmestre of Muganza commune for a period of 11 years, and the holder of a number of other offices, was a well-known authority figure and was influential within his commune. However, irrespective of how substantial Ndayambaje's influence in Muganza commune may have been from 6 April 1994

until 22 June 1994, Ndayambaje will not incur responsibility under Article 6 (3) unless he also exercised effective control over any subordinates.<sup>14672</sup>

5764. The Chamber notes that the Prosecution failed to lead sufficient evidence that Ndayambaje had effective control over the civilians who participated in the attacks at Mugombwa Church. The Chamber is of the view that Ndayambaje's influence, if any, over civilians in Muganza commune does not meet the threshold of effective control necessary for the imposition of criminal responsibility for the acts of this group.

5765. The Chamber does not find it established beyond a reasonable doubt that Ndayambaje was in a superior-subordinate relationship over civilians at Mugombwa Church. Accordingly, the Chamber does not find that Ndayambaje bears superior responsibility for their crimes. The Chamber thus will not take Ndayambaje's alleged superior responsibility into account in sentencing.

4.2.2.3.4 Kabuye Hill, 20-24 April 1994

Arrest and Transportation of Tutsis to Kabuye Hill, 20 April 1994

5766. The Chamber has found it established beyond a reasonable doubt that on 20 April 1994, Ndayambaje travelled to Ngiriyi Bridge in Gisagara, Ndora commune, with several armed soldiers and commune policemen where they arrested fleeing Tutsi refugees, fired shots in the air and threatened them with their guns and forced them to return to Gisagara marketplace. Thereafter, soldiers and policemen escorted the refugees on foot to Kabuye Hill ().

5767. The Chamber cannot discern any identifiable act of genocide involved in the arrest and forced movement of the refugees to Kabuye Hill. The Chamber does not find that the interception or forced escorting of the refugees to Kabuye Hill itself constitutes genocide. While the Chamber accepts that their arrest by armed soldiers and commune policemen, the firing of guns and their forced return to Gisagara and Kabuye may have caused them significant fear and mental suffering in view of the context at the time, the Chamber does not consider it proven that the mental harm suffered was more than minor or temporary.<sup>14673</sup>

5768. As such, the Chamber acquits Ndayambaje of any responsibility, under either Article 6 (1) or 6 (3), for the interception and forced movement of the Tutsi refugees from Ngiriyi Bridge to Kabuye Hill under Count 2.

Attack on Kabuye Hill, 22-24 April 1994

5769. The Chamber has found beyond a reasonable doubt that on 22 April 1994, Ndayambaje was present during an attack at Kabuye Hill where soldiers and commune policemen with guns, as well as civilians armed with traditional weapons attacked Tutsi refugees gathered on the hill, resulting in the death of thousands of Tutsis. That night survivors of the attack at Kabuye Hill were guarded and prevented from escaping ().

5770. Considering Ndayambaje, along with armed soldiers and commune policemen arrested the same fleeing Tutsi refugees in Gisagara and escorted them to Kabuye hill two days earlier, on 20 April 1994, in addition to the planned and protracted nature of the attack carried out on 22 April 1994, the Chamber finds that the assailants intentionally killed members of the Tutsi ethnic group at Kabuye Hill.

5772. The Chamber has found it established beyond a reasonable doubt that on 23 April 1994 Ndayambaje distributed weapons including rifles and grenades at both the Muganza commune office and Kabuye Hill, which were later used in the massacres at Kabuye Hill on 23 and 24 April 1994. Ndayambaje further transported soldiers, civilians and commune policemen to Kabuye Hill where they participated in attacks against Tutsis. Finally, Ndayambaje was present during the attacks against Tutsis at Kabuye Hill on 23 and 24 April 1994, and thousands of deaths resulted from these attacks ().

5773. Having regard to the planned nature of the attack, the Chamber finds that the assailants intentionally killed members of the Tutsi ethnic group at Kabuye Hill on 23 and 24 April 1994. As such, the Chamber is of the view that Ndayambaje and the assailants also possessed the requisite intent to destroy, in whole or in substantial part, the Tutsi group at the time of the attacks on 23 and 24 April 1994, and that Ndayambaje again knew of the principal perpetrators' specific intent.

5774. The Chamber has found that Ndayambaje was present during the attack at Kabuye Hill on 22 April 1994 (). The Chamber recalls that Ndayambaje exercised considerable moral authority over the population in his commune at the time (). As such, the Chamber finds that Ndayambaje's presence at Kabuye Hill during the attack encouraged and substantially contributed to the attack at Kabuye Hill, and the Chamber is satisfied that Ndayambaje knew that his presence would be considered by the assailants as tacit approval of the attack.

5775. It is the Chamber's finding that Ndayambaje's acts of distributing weapons at both the Muganza commune office and Kabuye Hill on 23 April 1994, weapons which were used in the subsequent attacks at Kabuye Hill, as well as transporting soldiers, civilians and commune policemen to Kabuye Hill, substantially contributed to the commission of the crimes at Kabuye Hill on 23 and 24 April 1994. Ndayambaje was also present during the attacks at Kabuye Hill on 23 and 24 April 1994, which in the Chamber's view encouraged the same attacks. The Chamber is satisfied that Ndayambaje knew that his positive acts substantially contributed to the commission of the attacks at Kabuye Hill on 23 and 24 April 1994 and knew that his presence would be considered by the assailants as tacit approval of the attack.

5776. The Chamber has also considered whether Ndayambaje crossed the line separating aiding and abetting from committing genocide, and thus whether he became a principal perpetrator of the crime itself.<sup>14674</sup> While Ndayambaje played a role in events surrounding the killings, and substantially contributed to them, the Chamber does not find that his conduct was as much an integral part of the genocide as the killings themselves.<sup>14675</sup> The Chamber therefore considers that aiding and abetting is the mode of responsibility that best captures Ndayambaje's role in the attacks.

5777. The Chamber finds it established, beyond a reasonable doubt, that Ndayambaje is guilty of aiding and abetting genocide for his role in the attacks at Kabuye Hill on 22 through 24 April 1994.

Ndayambaje – Article 6 (3) Responsibility

5778. The Chamber next addresses Ndayambaje's potential 6 (3) superior responsibility over the perpetrators of the massacre at Kabuye Hill, for any possible consideration in sentencing.

5779. Notwithstanding the prominent role that Ndayambaje played in contributing to the attacks at Kabuye Hill, and the fact he was often together with soldiers, commune police, and civilians, the Prosecution failed to lead any evidence that Ndayambaje had effective control over these perpetrators or over Interahamwe. For example, there was no evidence that any of these perpetrators were acting pursuant to Ndayambaje's orders, that soldiers reported back to him, or that Ndayambaje had any authority or ability to prevent or punish offences committed by them.

5780. In the circumstances the Chamber does not find it established beyond a reasonable doubt that Ndayambaje held a de facto superior position as a civilian over soldiers, commune police, civilians, or Interahamwe present and participating in the events preceding, or the attacks at, Kabuye Hill between 22 and 24 April 1994.

5781. As the Prosecution did not prove beyond a reasonable doubt the existence of a superior-subordinate relationship between Ndayambaje and the soldiers, commune policemen, civilians, and Interahamwe at Kabuye Hill, the Chamber will not take this element into account in sentencing.

4.2.2.3.5 IRST Massacre, 21 April 1994

Ntahobali

5782. The Chamber has found beyond a reasonable doubt that on 21 April 1994, Ntahobali participated in the abduction of approximately 40 Tutsis at the "Rugira roadblock", and that he ordered the Interahamwe present to take them to a place between the IRST and the Laboratory. It was further found that once at the IRST, Ntahobali issued orders to the Interahamwe to kill the Tutsis that had been arrested. Ntahobali's orders were followed and approximately 200 Tutsis were killed at the IRST on 21 April 1994 ().

5783. The Chamber has found that genocide was committed in Butare préfecture against the Tutsi population (see, e.g., ; ;). In the present circumstances, the Chamber observes that the victims of the abduction and killings at the IRST were of Tutsi ethnicity. In light of the background and context to this event, the Chamber finds that it constituted the crime of genocide. There is no doubt that the Interahamwe possessed genocidal intent when they killed the Tutsis.

5784. Further, the Chamber is satisfied that the only reasonable inference to be drawn from Ntahobali's actions in this event is that he possessed the specific intent to destroy the Tutsi ethnic group by killing the Tutsis abducted from the "Rugira roadblock", along with the other Tutsis that had already been arrested and transported to the IRST. Ntahobali's instructions in this regard were clear.

5785. The Chamber further considers that the only reasonable inference to be drawn from the fact that Ntahobali's orders to kill were followed by the Interahamwe is that he possessed authority over them.

5786. Therefore, the Chamber finds Ntahobali is responsible as a principal perpetrator, for ordering genocide through the underlying act of killing.

5787. The Chamber recalls that Ntahobali was also charged with superior responsibility in relation to the Interahamwe (), and that he received sufficient notice of his responsibility for the IRST incident ().

5788. In discussing the notice received by Ntahobali for this incident, the Chamber highlighted the curative effect of the summary of Witness QCB's intended testimony, annexed to the Pre-Trial Brief (). The Chamber notes, however, that the summary does not provide that Ntahobali supervised Interahamwe with relation to the events at the IRST.<sup>14676</sup> Accordingly, the Chamber concludes that Ntahobali did not receive sufficient notice of the alleged criminal conduct of the Interahamwe over whom he was allegedly responsible.

Nsabimana and Nteziryayo

5789. The Chamber notes that Nsabimana and Nteziryayo also appear to be charged with 6 (3) responsibility as to these events.<sup>14677</sup> The Chamber further notes that Paragraph 6.51 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment mentions only Ntahobali as the alleged perpetrator. As noted above, in its closing submissions, the Prosecution does not specify Ntahobali as an alleged subordinate of either Nsabimana or Nteziryayo (;). The Chamber therefore concludes that neither Nsabimana nor Nteziryayo is responsible as a superior for these events. The Indictment also charges Nsabimana and Nteziryayo with 6 (1) responsibility as to these events.<sup>14678</sup> The Prosecution has failed to satisfy its burden as to these allegations.

4.2.2.3.6 Kabakobwa Hill, 21-24 April 1994

5790. On the morning of 21 April 1994, Kanyabashi gave a speech at Rango market stating that Tutsis should be “allowed to go through” to Kabakobwa. On the same day various local authorities as well as members of the Interahamwe directed Tutsis to Kabakobwa, while other individuals were directed to go to Kabakobwa to guard the Tutsis. The Chamber has not found it established that Kanyabashi ordered his subordinates to direct Tutsis towards Kabakobwa under the guise of protection ().

5791. On 22 April 1994, 200-250 people from nearby secteurs, armed with traditional weapons, surrounded at least 500 and up to 10,000 mostly Tutsi refugees at Kabakobwa Hill. Hutus present at Kabakobwa were told to leave and one Nsanzabahizi, a commune driver and former commune policeman told the refugees “[y]our hour has come”. Sometime shortly before noon both Interahamwe and soldiers came to Kabakobwa Hill and, upon seeing the number of refugees there, left to report to Kanyabashi and Muvunyi respectively to get reinforcements for the attack. At around 2.00 or 3.00 p.m. soldiers opened fire on the refugees and civilians attacked with traditional weapons. Ngoma commune police and Nsanzabahizi participated in the killings at Kabakobwa on 22 April 1994. At least hundreds, if not thousands, of refugees were killed. Some of the attackers returned to Kabakobwa on 23 April 1994 to finish off the survivors and loot their property. It was not established that Kanyabashi was present at Kabakobwa on 22 or 23 April 1994 ().

5792. Having regard to the planned nature of the attack, the Chamber finds that the assailants intentionally killed members of the Tutsi ethnic group at Kabakobwa Hill. In view of the large number of Tutsi victims at Kabakobwa Hill, the fact that Hutus present were told to leave, and the content of Nsanzabahizi’s words, the Chamber is also satisfied that the assailants possessed the requisite intent to destroy, in whole or in substantial part, the Tutsi group as such.

5793. The Prosecution only charged Kanyabashi with superior responsibility for the attack at Kabakobwa under Article 6 (3).<sup>14679</sup> The perpetrators of the attacks at Kabakobwa Hill included soldiers, civilians/Interahamwe, and Ngoma commune employees, including police officers. The Chamber recalls that it has already found that the Indictment sufficiently informed Kanyabashi that he was charged with superior authority over these categories of persons (), such that the Chamber will consider whether a superior-subordinate relationship existed between Kanyabashi and these groups during the period in question.

Kanyabashi – Soldiers

5794. The Chamber refers to its finding elsewhere that Kanyabashi is responsible as a superior of soldiers for the massacre at Matyazo dispensary (). Although testimony in that instance suggests a certain relationship between Kanyabashi and soldiers, in the Chamber’s view it is not a sufficient basis upon which to conclude Kanyabashi also had de facto authority over soldiers at Kabakobwa.

<sup>14679</sup> Paras. 6.32, 6.33 of the Kanyabashi Indictment (in support of Counts 1-3, 5-9 pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute); see also Para. 6.45 of the Kanyabashi Indictment (same).

5795. Considering the evidence as a whole, and in particular in relation to the events at Kabakobwa, the Chamber cannot conclude beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi exercised effective control over the soldiers at Kabakobwa Hill.

5796. As the Prosecution did not establish the existence of a superior-subordinate relationship between Kanyabashi and the soldiers at Kabakobwa, the Chamber finds Kanyabashi is not responsible as a superior under Article 6 (3) for the acts of soldiers at Kabakobwa.

Kanyabashi – Civilians/Interahamwe

5797. The Chamber did not find it necessary to determine whether the civilian attackers at Kabakobwa were part of the official Interahamwe, namely the MRND's youth wing, although the witnesses' testimony evidenced that the term "Interahamwe" was used to refer to all civilians participating in the attack (). No evidence was led that Kanyabashi had effective control over the official Interahamwe. As such the evidence is insufficient to establish that a de jure superior-subordinate relationship existed between Kanyabashi and the Interahamwe. Similarly, Kanyabashi did not exercise de jure authority over civilians.

5798. The Chamber recalls that a group of Interahamwe came to Kabakobwa and then left, saying that "they were going to announce to the bourgmestre that people at Kabakobwa were sufficient in number". The Interahamwe said they would return to confront those in Kabakobwa, and they later returned armed and with commune police (). Although this testimony suggests a certain relationship between Kanyabashi and the Interahamwe in this instance, it is not a sufficient basis upon which to conclude that Kanyabashi had de facto control over the civilians/Interahamwe in the sense of having the material ability to prevent or punish their criminal conduct.

5799. As such, the Chamber finds that the Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt the alleged superior-subordinate relationship between Kanyabashi and the civilians/Interahamwe. Accordingly, the Chamber finds Kanyabashi is not responsible as a superior under Article 6 (3) for their acts at Kabakobwa.

Kanyabashi – Ngoma Commune Policemen

5800. The Chamber recalls its finding that the evidence established beyond a reasonable doubt that Ngoma commune police were present at and participated in the killings that occurred at Kabakobwa on Friday 22 April 1994.

5801. The Chamber further recalls its earlier finding that Kanyabashi received notice of his alleged superior responsibility over commune police (), and notes that the Indictment clearly pleads their role in relation to the events at Kabakobwa.<sup>14680</sup> The Chamber considers that Kanyabashi received adequate notice of these allegations.

5802. Rwandan law provided that bourgmestres wielded legal authority over commune police. Bourgmestres had power over the hiring, suspension, and termination of commune police officers.<sup>14681</sup> Although it appears that these powers could be exercised only after consultation with the commune counsel and the Minister of the Interior,<sup>14682</sup> Rwandan law also provided that “the bourgmestre has sole authority over the members of the commune police”.<sup>14683</sup> As bourgmestre of Ngoma commune, Kanyabashi enjoyed de jure authority over the commune police of Ngoma.

<sup>14680</sup> Paras. 6.32 and 6.33 of the Kanyabashi Indictment; see also Para. 6.65 of the Kanyabashi Indictment.

5803. The Chamber notes that it has found that Kanyabashi arranged for police officers to force refugees onto a bus to transfer them from the BPO to Nyange ().

5804. The Chamber is satisfied that Kanyabashi exercised effective control over the police within his commune. In addition to his de jure authority, the Chamber is satisfied that Kanyabashi maintained effective control over the commune policemen, in the sense of having the material ability to prevent or punish their criminal conduct.<sup>14684</sup>

5805. The Chamber must now determine whether Bourgmestre Kanyabashi knew or had reason to know that Ngoma commune police were about to or had committed criminal acts at Kabakobwa. The Chamber recalls: the day before the attack, Kanyabashi gave a speech during which he stated that Tutsis should be “allowed to go through” to Kabakobwa, and thus was fully aware of the presence of refugees and of their plight at Kabakobwa; various commune authorities, including a conseiller and a responsable de cellule, and Interahamwe directed Tutsis to Kabakobwa; Interahamwe came to Kabakobwa Hill before noon the next morning and, upon seeing the number of refugees there, left to report to Kanyabashi, before returning to commence the attack that afternoon (; ).

5806. Further, the Chamber recalls Witness D-2-YYYY testified that Kanyabashi chaired a police meeting at the commune office on the very morning of the attack, at 8.30 a.m. where the bourgmestre raised the issue of the killing of Tutsis and in turn the policemen reported what they had seen in relation to the killing of Tutsis, for example, the death of one Karangana at Mukura bridge on 21 April 1994.<sup>14685</sup> Moreover, during the course of 22 April 1994, both Witness D-2-YYYY and Witness D-2-5-I were at the commune office and testified they could hear gunshots from Kabakobwa.<sup>14686</sup> Considering the testimony of Witnesses D-2-5-I,<sup>14687</sup> and D-2-YYYY<sup>14688</sup> that Kanyabashi left the commune office around 4.30 or 5.00 p.m. that day, and the proximity between the commune office and Kabakobwa Hill,<sup>14689</sup> the Chamber concludes Kanyabashi was present at the commune office and should similarly have been able to hear the gunshots. The Chamber also recalls Witness D-2-14-D's description of the attack as "remarkable" and testimony that his conseiller de secteur and Kanyabashi would have heard of it, considering Kabakobwa was within Ngoma commune and under Kanyabashi's jurisdiction.<sup>14690</sup>

5807. Lastly, the Chamber recalls Defence Witness D-2-YYYY's evidence that in April 1994, there were approximately 25 to 30 Ngoma commune police officers.<sup>14691</sup> Given the relatively small number of policemen in Ngoma commune, Kanyabashi's control over the policemen, and the fact that he remained in regular contact with these policemen by regular meetings, several of whom were stationed at his house on the weekend of the Kabakobwa attacks, the Chamber does not accept that Kanyabashi had no knowledge of the participation of any of the Ngoma commune police in such a systematic, large-scale attack. To this end, the Chamber also recalls that Witness D-2-14-W testified about a meeting at Huye Stadium around 25 or 26 April 1994, where Kanyabashi publicly condemned killings that had occurred in Kabakobwa, Butare town, Buye, the Matyazo school centre, and the dispensary and said that the perpetrators of those killings had to be punished.<sup>14692</sup>

5808. Considering the circumstances in which the Kabakobwa attack took place, the Chamber is satisfied that Kanyabashi knew or had reason to know about the attack and the participation of his subordinates therein. Even accepting that one Semwiza was arrested in the days after the Kabakobwa attack for his role in the attacks, the Chamber considers that the totality of the evidence establishes beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi took no steps to prevent the attack or to punish any Ngoma commune policeman for participating in the attack at Kabakobwa on 22 April 1994.

Kanyabashi – Ngoma Commune Personnel

5810. Rwandan law for the period covered by the Indictment provided that the administration of Ngoma commune was under the direct authority of the bourgmestre.<sup>14693</sup> More specifically, after consultation with the commune council and the Minister of the Interior, the bourgmestre had power over the hiring, suspension, and termination of commune personnel.<sup>14694</sup> In light of the bourgmestre's powers to suspend or terminate employment, the Chamber finds that Kanyabashi, as bourgmestre of Ngoma commune, enjoyed a de jure superior-subordinate relationship over Ngoma commune personnel.

5811. With respect to Kanyabashi's de facto control over Ngoma commune personnel,<sup>14695</sup> the Chamber notes that Kanyabashi made no attempt to refute that he had effective control over Ngoma commune personnel. While the burden of proof nonetheless remains on the Prosecution, the Chamber is satisfied that the evidence establishes that in addition to his de jure authority, Kanyabashi maintained effective control over the commune personnel, in the sense of having the material ability to prevent or punish their criminal conduct.<sup>14696</sup>

5812. It was not disputed that Mathias Nsanzabahizi was a driver for Ngoma commune, and former commune policeman, who participated in attacks at Kabakobwa ().

5813. The Kanyabashi Defence acknowledges that a former commune policeman named Nsanzabahizi was a driver for the commune and an attacker at Kabakobwa, but submits Kanyabashi was not driven by this man.<sup>14697</sup> The Chamber considers that as a commune employee, there existed a formal hierarchical relationship between Nsanzabahizi and Kanyabashi from which flowed Kanyabashi's ability to punish Nsanzabahizi.

5814. However, the Prosecution did not adduce sufficient evidence that Kanyabashi knew or had reason to know that commune drivers or Nsanzabahizi were about to, or had, committed criminal acts at Kabakobwa. Similarly, the Chamber cannot conclude that Kanyabashi was informed of these acts at any time. As such, the Chamber finds Kanyabashi is not responsible as a superior under Article 6 (3) for the acts of commune drivers or Nsanzabahizi at Kabakobwa.

4.2.2.3.7 Mutunda Stadium Killings, Around 25-27 April 1994

5815. After about 3,000 Tutsis gathered at Mutunda Stadium, many were killed there around 25 through 27 April 1994. The Chamber has found, however, that the Prosecution has not established Nyiramasuhuko's presence during the attack (). Similarly, the Chamber finds that the Prosecution has not proven that Nyiramasuhuko or Nsabimana bear criminal responsibility for these events, pursuant to either Article 6 (1) or 6 (3) of the Statute.

4.2.2.3.8 Save Roadblock, April 1994

5816. The Chamber has found beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi came to a roadblock in Save in April 1994. He asked the people who manned this roadblock to search for a Tutsi lecturer and offered a reward for whoever found him (). There is no evidence as to what occurred after this request.

5817. As there is insufficient evidence to establish that Kanyabashi's words at the roadblock substantially contributed to any subsequent crime, the Chamber finds Kanyabashi not guilty of genocide with respect to this allegation.

4.2.2.3.9 Matyazo Clinic, Late April 1994

5818. In late April 1994, following an initial attack by soldiers, Kanyabashi went to Matyazo Clinic. He addressed the Tutsis who were sheltering in the clinic and then ordered soldiers to open fire on the Tutsis, resulting in many deaths ().

5819. The Chamber notes that although Paragraph 6.34 of the Kanyabashi Indictment alleges that "Kanyabashi ordered soldiers to open fire on the refugees" at Matyazo clinic, the Prosecution does not charge Kanyabashi with this crime pursuant to ordering or another mode of responsibility under Article 6 (1) of the Statute.<sup>14698</sup> In the Chamber's view, this is a serious omission on the part of the Prosecution.

5820. The Prosecution instead charges Kanyabashi with superior responsibility for the events at Matyazo Clinic.<sup>14699</sup> Accordingly, the Chamber will only consider whether Kanyabashi is responsible as a superior for the role of his alleged subordinates at Matyazo Clinic.

5823. The Chamber recalls, however, that Kanyabashi ordered the soldiers to shoot at the Tutsis sheltering at Matyazo Clinic in late April 1994, and that the soldiers obeyed this order (). Based on this fact, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi exercised effective control over these soldiers on an ad hoc or temporary basis, and that he was in a superior-subordinate relationship over them. The Chamber also considers that Kanyabashi acted with genocidal intent, which was further evidenced by his conduct at the 19 April 1994 swearing-in ceremony ().

5824. The Chamber likewise finds that Kanyabashi's orders demonstrate that he knew that soldiers were about to commit a crime and that he failed to prevent their crimes. Similarly,

Kanyabashi knew afterwards that the soldiers had committed a crime. Based on the evidence, the only reasonable inference is that Kanyabashi also failed to punish them for obeying his order to shoot the Tutsis at Matyazo Clinic.

5825. Given the context and the totality of the evidence, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that the soldiers, in shooting at the Tutsis, possessed the genocidal intent to destroy the Tutsi ethnic group. Many Tutsis died as a result. There is no doubt that the soldiers committed genocide.

5826. Accordingly, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt (J. Ramaroson dissenting), that the soldiers committed genocide of Tutsis at Matyazo Clinic in late April 1994, and that Kanyabashi bears responsibility as a superior for genocide.

4.2.2.3.10 Ngoma Parish Church Massacre, Late April 1994

5827. In relation to the Prosecution allegation that numerous Tutsis were massacred at the Ngoma Parish Church at the end of April 1994, the Chamber has concluded that the Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi played any role in this attack (). The Chamber therefore finds that Kanyabashi does not bear criminal responsibility for this event.

4.2.2.3.11 Hotel Ihuliro Roadblock, Late April 1994

Notice of Rape as Genocide

5828. As a preliminary matter, the Chamber notes that Paragraph 6.27 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment, which pertains to the allegations at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock, and which was pled in support of the count of genocide, does not allege that rape was perpetrated during the abductions and killings of Tutsis at this location. This Indictment paragraph was not pled in support of the count alleging rape as a crime against humanity or outrages upon personal dignity.<sup>14701</sup>

5829. Paragraph 6.53 of the Indictment, pled in support of both genocide and rape as a crime against humanity and outrages upon personal dignity, alleges that rapes were widely committed throughout Rwanda. However this paragraph does not identify any location in Butare préfecture where these alleged rapes occurred.<sup>14702</sup>

5830. The crime of rape features prominently in Paragraph 6.37 of the Indictment, which alleges that Ntahobali kidnapped and raped Tutsi women. Given this allegation, the Chamber considers it significant that it was not pled in support of genocide, but was instead pled in support of rape as a crime against humanity and outrages upon personal dignity.<sup>14703</sup>

5831. Reading the Indictment as a whole, the Chamber cannot conclude that the Prosecution pled rapes in support of genocide. In particular, the Chamber notes that the paragraph concerning the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock omitted any reference to rape. Moreover, the paragraph that explicitly ties Ntahobali to rape was not pled as genocide. The Indictment is therefore defective in failing to plead rape as genocide.

5832. The Chamber recalls that defects in the Indictment can be cured if the Prosecution provides information that is timely, consistent and clear (). Although the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief and opening statement make reference to rape as genocide,<sup>14704</sup> these indications do not clarify whether the Prosecution intended to pursue this allegation against the Accused.

5833. Similarly, the Appendix to the Pre-Trial Brief provides witness summaries that are pled in support of genocide and that allege various rapes and killings, but there is no clear indication of whether the rapes themselves are intended to support this charge in addition to the killings.<sup>14705</sup>

5834. The Chamber also recalls that on 17 August 1998 the Prosecution filed a request for leave to amend the Indictment a second time. In its request, the Prosecution submitted that “[t]he new charges contained in the proposed amended indictment, accurately reflect the totality of the accused[’s] alleged criminal conduct and allows the Prosecutor to present the full scope of available, relevant evidence”.<sup>14706</sup> This proposed Indictment added various charges, including rape as a crime against humanity pled against Nyiramasuhuko. No mention was made of pleading rape as genocide.<sup>14707</sup> The Chamber granted the Prosecution request on 10 August 1999.<sup>14708</sup>

5835. While there is ample notice that Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali were being charged with rapes under the counts of rape as crime against humanity, and of outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto, the Prosecution provided insufficient notice of its intention to pursue rape as genocide.

5836. Under the present circumstances, the Chamber concludes that the Prosecution did not provide sufficient notice that could be capable of curing the defects in the Indictment. Because it would be prejudicial to hold the Accused responsible for a charge of which they had insufficient notice, the Chamber will not enter a conviction for genocide on the basis of any rapes that occurred at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock.

5837. The Chamber notes, however, that it will mention rapes in the course of its legal findings on genocide. This will be done to convey the entire set of facts in a coherent fashion, and will not be taken into account by the Chamber in assessing genocide. Instead, they will be considered when assessing the counts of rape as a crime against humanity, and outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto.<sup>14709</sup>

Ntahobali

Notice of Alleged Responsibility

5838. Regarding Ntahobali's alleged superior responsibility over soldiers and Interahamwe (), the Chamber notes that Paragraph 6.27 of his Indictment is pled in support of such responsibility. This paragraph identifies soldiers as allegedly assisting Ntahobali at the roadblock near Hotel Ihuliro, and the Chamber therefore finds that it pleads Ntahobali's alleged superior responsibility over soldiers in relation to the incidents there.<sup>14710</sup>

5839. This Indictment paragraph, however, makes no mention of Interahamwe as alleged subordinates of Ntahobali. The Indictment is defective in this regard. Notably, however, this paragraph also mentions "other unknown persons".<sup>14711</sup> This phrase lends itself to curing, as an exceptional measure, through the provision of timely, clear and consistent notice.<sup>14712</sup>

5840. The Chamber recalls that the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief contains a summary of Witness QCB's anticipated testimony pertaining to the events at this roadblock (). A review of this summary reveals that Ntahobali was alleged to be in a superior-subordinate relationship with the Interahamwe at the roadblock near Hotel Ihuliro.<sup>14713</sup> Moreover, this witness' statement alleges that the Interahamwe played a role in the attack on Ruvurajabo.<sup>14714</sup> The Chamber finds that the defect in the Indictment was cured and that there was no prejudice to Ntahobali, who received sufficient notice of his alleged superior responsibility over Interahamwe for their actions at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock, including the attack on Ruvurajabo.

5841. Given that Ntahobali was alleged to have been present during the events at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock, and was alleged to have been a superior there, the Chamber finds that Ntahobali received sufficient notice of his alleged superior responsibility pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute.<sup>14715</sup>

<sup>14709</sup> For similar reasons, the Chamber will not address rapes when considering persecution and other inhumane acts as crimes against humanity, and violence to life, health and physical or mental well-being of persons as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto.

The roadblock was opposite Ntahobali's parents' house, The Interahamwe and civilians wearing military vests were checking identification cards ... <sup>14715</sup> See also Para. 6.55 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment.

5842. In April 1994 Ntahobali manned the roadblock near Hotel Ihuliro. With the assistance of soldiers and other unknown persons he utilised the roadblock to abduct and kill members of the Tutsi population. Towards the end of April 1994, Ntahobali personally raped and murdered one Tutsi girl, and instructed the Interahamwe to kill Léopold Ruvurajabo, who was subsequently killed, at the roadblock near Hotel Ihuliro. It was established that various crimes, in particular beatings, rapes and killings, were carried out mostly against Tutsis at this roadblock during the relevant time period ().

5843. The Chamber recalls that it will not take into account rapes when assessing genocide. Instead, they will be considered when assessing the counts of rape as a crime against humanity, and outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto.

5845. The Chamber finds that these events constitute the crime of genocide. It further finds Ntahobali guilty as a principal perpetrator, for committing and ordering genocide, through the underlying acts of murder and causing serious bodily and mental harm. The Chamber will now address Ntahobali's alleged superior responsibility over soldiers and Interahamwe, for possible consideration in sentencing.

5846. The Chamber has found that Ntahobali received assistance from soldiers, but has not concluded that he gave them any orders (). There is insufficient evidence that would permit the Chamber to conclude that Ntahobali exercised a superior-subordinate relationship over the soldiers. The Chamber finds that the Prosecution has not established this alleged relationship beyond a reasonable doubt.

5847. As for the Interahamwe, the Chamber has found that Ntahobali instructed them to kill Ruvurajabo. They subsequently killed him as ordered (). The Chamber considers that the only reasonable inference to be drawn is that Ntahobali exercised effective control over the Interahamwe present at the roadblock. As such, Ntahobali was in a superior-subordinate relationship to them, on an ad hoc or temporary basis, when they killed Ruvurajabo.

5848. Given Ntahobali's presence at the roadblock when this crime took place, the Chamber finds that he knew the crime was being committed and failed to take any measure to stop the Interahamwe or to punish them. Therefore, the Chamber also finds Ntahobali bears superior responsibility over the Interahamwe for the killing of Ruvurajabo.

5849. The Chamber considers that this killing falls within the context of the genocide committed by members of the Interahamwe over whom Ntahobali bears superior responsibility (; ). The Chamber will take this into account in sentencing.

Nyiramasuhuko

5850. Because the Prosecution has not established beyond a reasonable doubt that Nyiramasuhuko was present at the time when any specific crime was actually perpetrated, the Chamber cannot conclude that Nyiramasuhuko played any direct role in relation to the mentioned crimes. Similarly, the Prosecution has adduced insufficient evidence to establish that Nyiramasuhuko was in a superior-subordinate relationship with anyone involved in these crimes at the time they occurred. The Chamber therefore acquits Nyiramasuhuko on this allegation under the Indictment pursuant to Article 6 (1) and 6 (3) of the Statute.

Nsabimana and Nteziryayo

5851. The Chamber notes that Nsabimana and Nteziryayo are charged with Article 6 (3) responsibility for the events at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock.<sup>14716</sup> The Chamber further notes that Paragraph 6.51 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment mentions only Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali as alleged perpetrators. In its closing submissions, however, the Prosecution does not specify either Nyiramasuhuko or Ntahobali as alleged subordinates of Nsabimana or Nteziryayo (; ). The Chamber therefore concludes that neither Nsabimana nor Nteziryayo is responsible as a superior for the events at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock. The Indictment also charges Nsabimana and Nteziryayo with Article 6 (1) responsibility as to these events. The Prosecution has failed to satisfy its burden as to these allegations.

4.2.2.3.12 Rwamukwaya Family, Around 29-30 April 1994

5852. The Chamber has found beyond a reasonable doubt that, given the narrow time frames involved between Ntahobali's threat pronounced against the Rwamukwaya family, the sighting of their bodies, and the first sightings of Ntahobali in Rwamukwaya's vehicle, Ntahobali is responsible for killing Rwamukwaya and his family, on or about 29 or 30 April 1994. The Chamber also found that the Rwamukwaya family was of Tutsi ethnicity ().

5853. It was established that genocide was committed in Rwanda, in this period against members of the Tutsi population (see, e.g., ; ;).

5854. In light of the background to this crime, and considering the totality of the evidence, the Chamber finds that only one reasonable inference is open to it: that the principal perpetrators killed the Rwamukwaya family with genocidal intent, and that Ntahobali was aware of this intent.

5855. Therefore, the Chamber finds this event constitutes the crime of genocide. In view of Ntahobali's announcement of his intention to have the Rwamukwaya family killed, the Chamber considers Ntahobali substantially contributed to the commission of the Rwamukwayas' death. The Chamber therefore finds that Ntahobali is guilty of aiding and abetting the killing of the Rwamukwaya family. As for Ntahobali's alleged superior responsibility, the Chamber does not find this to have been established beyond a reasonable doubt.

Nsabimana and Nteziryayo

5856. The Chamber notes that Nsabimana and Nteziryayo appear to be charged with Article 6 (3) responsibility as to the killing of the Rwamukwaya family.<sup>14717</sup> The Chamber further notes that Paragraph 6.51 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment mentions only Ntahobali as the alleged perpetrator. As noted above, in its closing submissions, the Prosecution does not specify Ntahobali as an alleged subordinate of either Nsabimana or Nteziryayo (; ). The Chamber therefore concludes that neither Nsabimana nor Nteziryayo is responsible as a superior for these events. The Indictment also charges Nsabimana and Nteziryayo with Article 6 (1) responsibility as to the killing of the Rwamukwaya family. The Prosecution has failed to satisfy its burden in this regard.

4.2.2.3.13 Butare Préfecture Office (“BPO”), End of April – First Half of June 1994

Notice of Rape as Genocide

5857. The Chamber notes that Paragraph 6.30 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment which pertains to the allegations at the Butare préfecture office, and which was pled in support of the count of genocide, does not allege that rape was perpetrated during the attacks, abductions, and killings of Tutsis there. This Indictment paragraph was not pled in support of the count alleging rape as a crime against humanity or outrages upon personal dignity.<sup>14718</sup>

5858. As discussed above (), Paragraph 6.53 of the Indictment, pled in support of both genocide and rape as a crime against humanity and or outrages upon personal dignity, alleges that rapes were widely committed throughout Rwanda. However this paragraph does not identify any location in Butare préfecture where these alleged rapes occurred.<sup>14719</sup>

5859. The crime of rape features prominently in Paragraph 6.37 of the Indictment, which alleges that Ntahobali kidnapped and raped Tutsi women. Given this allegation, the Chamber considers it significant that it was not pled in support of genocide, but was instead pled in support of rape as a crime against humanity and outrages upon personal dignity.<sup>14720</sup>

5860. Reading the Indictment as a whole, the Chamber cannot conclude that the Prosecution pled rapes in support of genocide. In particular, the Chamber notes that the paragraphs concerning the Butare préfecture office omitted any reference to rape. Moreover, the paragraph that explicitly ties Ntahobali to rape was not pled as genocide. The Indictment is therefore defective in failing to plead rape as genocide.

Similarly, the Appendix to the Pre-Trial Brief provides witness summaries that are pled in support of genocide and that allege various rapes and killings, but there is no clear indication of whether the rapes themselves are intended to support this charge in addition to the killings.<sup>14722</sup>

5862. The Chamber also recalls that, on 17 August 1998, the Prosecution filed a request for leave to amend the Indictment a second time. In its request, the Prosecution submitted that “[t]he new charges contained in the proposed amended indictment, accurately reflect the totality of the accused[’s] ... alleged criminal conduct and allows the Prosecutor to present the full scope of available, relevant evidence ...”.<sup>14723</sup> This proposed Indictment added various charges, including rape as a crime against humanity pled against Nyiramasuhuko. No mention was made of pleading rape as genocide.<sup>14724</sup> The Chamber granted the Prosecution request on 10 August 1999.<sup>14725</sup>

5863. While there is ample notice that Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali were being charged with rapes under the counts of rape as crime against humanity, and of outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto, the Prosecution provided insufficient notice of its intention to pursue rape as genocide.

5864. Under the present circumstances, the Chamber concludes that the Prosecution did not provide sufficient notice that could be capable of curing the defects in the Indictment. Because it would be prejudicial to hold the Accused responsible for a charge of which they had insufficient notice, the Chamber will not enter a conviction for genocide on the basis of any rapes that occurred.

<sup>14726</sup> For similar reasons, the Chamber will not take rapes into account when considering persecution and other inhumane acts as crimes against humanity, and violence to life, health and physical or mental well-being or persons as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto.

5866. As an introduction, the Chamber notes that, as the violence in other parts of Rwanda pushed people to seek refuge in places they considered safe like churches and government offices, numerous already traumatised, mainly Tutsi, civilians went to the Butare préfecture office seeking refuge. Hoping to find safety and security, they instead found themselves subject to abductions, rapes and murder. The evidence presented by these survivors, and accepted by the Chamber, is among the worst encountered by this Chamber; it paints a clear picture of unfathomable depravity and sadism.

5868. Furthermore, Witness TA and two other women were raped during this mid-May attack. The Chamber notes that rape is one of the quintessential examples of serious bodily or mental harm.<sup>14729</sup> To support a conviction for genocide, the bodily harm or the mental harm inflicted on members of a group must be of such a serious nature as to threaten its destruction in whole or in part.<sup>14730</sup> Witness TA was brutally raped by a gang of about eight Interahamwe in addition to Ntahobali. At least two other Tutsi women were raped on this occasion by the Interahamwe. This was the first of many such attacks from mid-May until mid-June 1994 during which Tutsi women, including Witness TA were raped (; ). Considering the brutality and repetitive nature of these attacks, the vulnerable nature of the population seeking refuge at the BPO and the fact that they were Tutsis, there can be no question that the bodily and mental harm inflicted by Ntahobali and the Interahamwe on the Tutsi women at the BPO was of such a serious nature as to threaten the destruction in whole or in part of the Tutsi ethnic group. The Chamber recalls that it will not take rapes into account in assessing genocide, but instead will consider them for charges that were properly pled.

5869. There was no evidence of Nyiramasuhuko's direct involvement in ordering the rape of Witness TA or the other Tutsi women on this occasion in mid-May 1994. Nonetheless, the Interahamwe were acting under the orders of Ntahobali and Nyiramasuhuko to load the truck with people. The Interahamwe accompanied Ntahobali and Nyiramasuhuko who were in the cabin of the vehicle as it transported the Interahamwe to the BPO. This assisted, encouraged or lent moral support to the perpetration of the rapes and had a substantial effect on the realisation of these crimes. Therefore, Nyiramasuhuko, by her presence and position of authority, is guilty of aiding and abetting the rapes at the BPO.<sup>14731</sup> As discussed above, the Chamber considers the bodily harm or the mental harm inflicted on the Tutsi refugees at the BPO was of such a serious nature as to threaten the destruction in whole or in part of the Tutsi ethnic group.

5870. Moving to the mens rea of genocide, it was clear that those staying at the BPO were Tutsis and this fact was widely known throughout the préfecture. The Interahamwe were armed and forced the defenceless Tutsi refugees to board a Toyota Hilux. Those who refused were killed on the spot. Furthermore, there was a pattern of killing at the BPO itself. There were pits dug which contained those killed at the BPO. The Interahamwe were armed with traditional weapons. Ntahobali instructed them to spare no one. Likewise, Nyiramasuhuko issued instructions to rape the women.

5871. In evaluating Nyiramasuhuko's mens rea at the BPO, the Chamber also considers Nyiramasuhuko's conduct at Nsabimana's swearing-in ceremony on 19 April 1994 (; ), where she tacitly approved of the inflammatory speeches of President Sindikubwabo and Prime Minister Kambanda, and also her distribution of condoms in June 1994 (), where she urged Hutus to rape Tutsi women. These actions can only be understood as intending to eliminate this group of persons. By attacking this group of wounded and sick Tutsi refugees, and in light of the evidence as a whole, the only reasonable conclusion is that Ntahobali, Nyiramasuhuko and the other Interahamwe assailants possessed the intent to destroy, in whole or in substantial part, the Tutsi group.

Last Half of May 1994 Attack

5872. During the last half of May 1994, Ntahobali and Interahamwe came to the BPO on two more occasions. Ntahobali violently raped Witness TA, hitting her on the head. Interahamwe following the orders of Ntahobali raped six other women. In a subsequent attack during this same time period, Ntahobali ordered about seven other Interahamwe to rape Witness TA (). As discussed above, the Chamber considers the bodily harm or the mental harm inflicted on the Tutsi refugees at the BPO in the perpetration of these rapes was of such a serious nature as to threaten the destruction in whole or in part of the Tutsi ethnic group. These Tutsis were entirely helpless and consisted mainly of women and children. The only reasonable conclusion is that Ntahobali and his co-perpetrators possessed genocidal intent in committing these rapes. However, as stated above, the Chamber will not take rapes into account in assessing genocide, but instead will consider them for charges that were properly pled.

End of May/Beginning of June 1994 Attack

5873. Around the end of May to the beginning of June 1994, Ntahobali, Nyiramasuhuko and Interahamwe came to the BPO on board a camouflaged pickup on three occasions in one night.<sup>14732</sup> They abducted Tutsi refugees each time, some of whom were forced to undress, and took them to other sites in Butare préfecture to be killed. Nyiramasuhuko ordered Interahamwe to rape refugees (; ). This evidences Nyiramasuhuko's intent to destroy, in whole or in part, the Tutsi group. The Interahamwe beat, abused and raped many Tutsi women. As discussed above, the Chamber considers the bodily harm or the mental harm inflicted on the Tutsi refugees at the BPO in the perpetration of these rapes was of such a serious nature as to threaten the destruction in whole or in part of the Tutsi ethnic group. They were all committed with genocidal intent. Therefore, the acts of Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali constitute genocide. The Chamber again recalls that it will not take rapes into account in assessing genocide, but instead will consider them for charges that were properly pled.

First Half of June 1994 Attack

5874. In the first half of June 1994, Nyiramasuhuko ordered Interahamwe to rape Tutsi women at the BPO and as a result numerous women were raped at that location.<sup>14733</sup> Ntahobali, injured soldiers, and Interahamwe came to the BPO to rape women and abduct refugees. During at least one of these attacks, Ntahobali again handed Witness TA over to about seven Interahamwe to rape Witness TA (; ). Each of these attacks constitutes the actus reus of genocide. Likewise, as discussed above, the Chamber finds Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali possessed genocidal intent.

5875. Moreover, the Chamber finds that Ntahobali aided and abetted the rapes of Witness TA. The Interahamwe who raped Witness TA on this occasion possessed genocidal intent, and Ntahobali knew of their intent. He specifically acted to assist and encourage their rape of Witness TA, and his actions substantially contributed to these rapes. Regardless of this conclusion, the Chamber recalls that it will not take rapes into account in assessing genocide, but instead will consider them for charges that were properly pled.

Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali – Article 6 (1) Responsibility

5876. Based upon the above, the Chamber finds Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali responsible for ordering killings. The Chamber has no doubt that these killings constituted genocide for which Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali are responsible, pursuant to Article 6 (1).

5877. The Chamber also finds that the evidence establishes that Ntahobali committed rapes, that Nyiramasuhuko aided and abetted rapes, and that they both ordered rapes. However, for the reasons explained above, the Chamber will not take rapes into account in assessing genocide, but instead will consider them for the counts of rape as a crime against humanity and outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto.

Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali – Article 6 (3) Responsibility

5878. The Chamber recalls its earlier finding that Nyiramasuhuko received notice of her alleged superior responsibility over Ntahobali, Interahamwe and soldiers (). The Chamber also finds that pursuant to Paragraph 6.30 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment, Ntahobali received notice that he was being charged as a superior to Interahamwe and soldiers at the BPO. Reading this Indictment Paragraph along with Paragraphs 6.31, 6.53, 6.55 and 6.56, the Chamber finds that Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali received sufficient notice of their alleged superior responsibility.

Nyiramasuhuko – Ntahobali

5879. The Chamber has found that Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali went to the Butare préfecture office together between April and June 1994 (). Witness testimony describes them arriving together in a vehicle with Interahamwe,<sup>14734</sup> but little additional evidence is available concerning any interactions between the two.

5880. In this regard, the Chamber notes that Witness TA, when specifically asked to identify who was superior to whom at the BPO in late April 1994, stated her view that Nyiramasuhuko was in charge. The witness appeared to explain this view by saying that Nyiramasuhuko pointed at three refugees who had been cut up and ordered that they be loaded onto the vehicle, after which they were taken away.<sup>14735</sup> The Chamber notes, however, that Witness TA also testified that Ntahobali ordered Interahamwe to stop killing refugees, as the number of dead people were in excess to what could be loaded in the vehicle. Moreover, the witness testified that Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali did not speak to each other, and that they both led the Interahamwe at the scene.<sup>14736</sup> While the witness' impression that Nyiramasuhuko was in charge of Ntahobali carries some evidential value, it does not suffice to make findings beyond a reasonable doubt.

5881. Witness FAP, by contrast, described the events of late May or early June 1994 at the Butare préfecture office. She ascribed various orders to Nyiramasuhuko, and testified that afterwards, Ntahobali and Interahamwe walked towards their eventual victims. Later that evening, according to the witness, Ntahobali joined the Interahamwe in loading Tutsis onto a vehicle. When asked what prompted this action, Witness FAP said that Nyiramasuhuko had encouraged it.<sup>14737</sup>

5882. The Chamber acknowledges that Witness FAP's testimony gives the impression that Ntahobali was obeying the orders of Nyiramasuhuko, and thus may have been a subordinate of hers. The Chamber recalls, however, that it has not found that Nyiramasuhuko issued any orders to Ntahobali ().

5883. In view of the totality of the evidence, the Chamber considers that the relationship between Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali in 1994 was complex, owing in part to the familial and interpersonal relationship shared by these two Accused. This complexity, however, cannot be confused for a superior-subordinate relationship. Cognisant that the burden of proof falls on the Prosecution to establish this element, the Chamber finds that there is insufficient evidence

In making its factual findings concerning the Butare préfecture office, the Chamber has relied on the testimony of these witnesses for either its substance or its corroborative value.

<sup>14735</sup> The Chamber notes that while the transcripts for 29 October 2001 are equivocal as to whether Nyiramasuhuko saved three people from being taken away or ordered three people be taken away: T. 29 October 2001 p. 48; T. 29 October 2001 p. 53 (Witness TA) (French), the transcripts for two other trial dates indicate that the three people Nyiramasuhuko pointed out were subsequently taken away: T. 6 November 2001 p. 56; T. 8 November 2001 p. 43 (Witness TA).

to enter a finding of a superior-subordinate relationship between Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali beyond a reasonable doubt.

Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali – Interahamwe

5884. As set out above, throughout the events at the BPO, Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali issued orders to Interahamwe and the Interahamwe complied with these orders and perpetrated the acts asked of them, which included abductions, rapes and killings. In view of these findings, and considering the evidence in its entirety, the Chamber has no doubt that Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali wielded effective control over the Interahamwe at the BPO. The only reasonable conclusion is that Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali had a superior-subordinate relationship over these Interahamwe.

5885. The Chamber likewise finds that their orders demonstrate that they knew that the Interahamwe were about to commit a crime and had later done so, and that they failed to prevent the crimes. It is also clear from that evidence that they did not punish the Interahamwe for obeying their orders.

5886. Accordingly, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali bear superior responsibility pursuant to Article 6 (3) for the acts of the Interahamwe at the BPO, including their abductions, rapes and killings. As the Chamber has found that Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali are criminally responsible pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute, their superior responsibility will only be considered in sentencing, and the Chamber will not enter a conviction based on their superior responsibility for these actions.

Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali – Soldiers

5887. Although the Chamber has found that soldiers played a role in the events at the BPO, no evidence has been led to establish any relationship between the soldiers and Nyiramasuhuko or Ntahobali. Accordingly, the Chamber finds that Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali do not bear superior responsibility for the acts of soldiers at the BPO.

Nsabimana

5888. The Chamber recalls its earlier finding that Nsabimana did not have notice that he was being charged with Article 6 (3) responsibility for the crimes perpetrated by Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali and Interahamwe, including at the BPO (; ). Furthermore, as discussed elsewhere in the Legal Findings, Nsabimana did not have a superior-subordinate relationship with soldiers in Butare (). Therefore, the Chamber will restrict its analysis to Article 6 (1) responsibility.

5889. The Chamber further recalls that it will not take rapes into account in assessing genocide.

5890. The evidence does not support an argument that Nsabimana committed, planned, ordered, or instigated the crimes perpetrated at the BPO. The Chamber will therefore address only whether he aided and abetted these crimes. An accused may be responsible for aiding and abetting in two different manners: (1) by positive acts including, providing tacit approval and encouragement; or (2) by omission, namely failing to discharge a legal duty to act.<sup>14738</sup> Aiding and abetting by tacit approval and encouragement appears to require the presence of the accused at or near the scene of the crime.<sup>14739</sup> Here, it was not contested that Nsabimana was absent from the BPO at night when the attacks were perpetrated by Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali and Interahamwe. Therefore, aiding and abetting by tacit approval or encouragement is inapplicable to Nsabimana's conduct.

5891. However, aiding and abetting by omission may serve as a basis for liability even where the accused is not present at or near the scene of the crime.<sup>14740</sup> Pursuant to this form of responsibility, the failure to discharge a legal duty must assist, encourage or lend moral support to the perpetration of a crime and have a substantial effect on the realisation of that crime.<sup>14741</sup> This implicitly requires that the accused had the ability to act, such that the means were available to the accused to fulfil his or her duty.<sup>14742</sup> The aider and abettor must know that his or her omission assists in the commission of the crime of the principal perpetrator and must be aware of the essential elements of the crime which was ultimately committed by the principal perpetrator.<sup>14743</sup>

5892. The Prosecution argues that Nsabimana is responsible for the abductions, rapes and killings at the BPO when those taking refuge there should have been under his protection.<sup>14744</sup> The Prosecution referred to the Rwandan Organic Law which, it argued, gives the préfet a legal duty to ensure the peace, public order and security of persons and property, including those taking refuge at the BPO.<sup>14745</sup>

Legal Duty to Act

5893. A prerequisite of criminal liability for aiding and abetting by omission is a legal duty to act.<sup>14746</sup> The Chamber notes that the Rwandan Penal Code imposes an obligation on every Rwandan citizen to provide assistance to persons in danger where it would not cause risk to oneself, and failure to do so is a criminal offence.<sup>14747</sup> This obligation was considered by the Trial Chamber in Rutaganira at sentencing.<sup>14748</sup> Although the Rwandan Penal Code provides a justification for failure to act, namely where there is risk to oneself, the Rutaganira Trial Chamber held that “[v]iolence to physical well-being suffered by thousands of people during the said events affects the very fundamental interests of Humanity as a whole, and the protection of such interests cannot be counterbalanced by the mere personal risk that may have been faced by any person in a position of authority who failed to act in order to assist people whose lives were in danger.”<sup>14749</sup> In Rutaganira, the Chamber considered that the accused in that case “was under a duty to provide assistance to people in danger.”<sup>14750</sup> Likewise, in the present case, the Chamber finds that Préfet Nsabimana was under a duty to provide assistance to people in danger, pursuant to Article 256 of the Rwandan Penal Code.

5894. Further, under Rwandan domestic law, Nsabimana had an obligation to ensure the tranquillity, public order, and security of people and property within his préfecture.<sup>14751</sup> The Appeals Chamber in the Ntagerura et al. case held that the Blaskić Appeal Judgement did not address, and it had not been settled at that time, whether the legal obligation to act must stem from a rule of criminal law, or whether any legal obligation is sufficient. In the circumstances of that case, the Appeals Chamber found that it was not necessary for it to decide the issue.<sup>14752</sup>

5895. The Chamber further notes that a legal duty to act may also be imposed by the laws and customs of war.<sup>14753</sup> In Mrkšić & Šljivančanin, the ICTY Appeals Chamber held that Article 13 of Geneva Convention III imposes a duty to protect prisoners of war.<sup>14754</sup> Likewise, the

The Chamber notes that the Trial Chamber in the Ntagerura et al. case stated that because this legal duty was not mandated by a rule of criminal law, it would not impose criminal liability; see Ntagerura et al., Judgement (TC), para. 660. The Chamber does not consider this statement to be binding authority, and notes in particular the Appeals Chamber’s similar pronouncements, as detailed in the next footnote. In any event, the Chamber considers that it does not need to resolve this issue, given that Nsabimana enjoyed a legal duty from additional, and distinct, sources of law.

<sup>14752</sup> Ntagerura et al., Judgement (AC), paras. 334-335 (The Appeals Chamber found that even if the failure to fulfil such a duty to protect the population could entail criminal responsibility, the Prosecution had not shown what means were open to Bagambiki to fulfil his duties under the Rwandan domestic law). The Chamber notes the Appeals Chamber in Mrkšić & Šljivančanin did not address this issue, although it was contended by the Parties, since the Appeals Chamber considered that the duties imposed on Šljivančanin arose from the laws and customs of war; see Mrkšić & Šljivančanin, Judgement (AC), paras. 148-151.

<sup>14753</sup> Mrkšić & Šljivančanin, Judgement (AC), para. 151; see also Article 13 of Geneva Convention III (“[P]risoners of war must at all times be protected, particularly against acts of violence or intimidation and against insults and public curiosity.”).

Blaskić Appeals Judgement noted that Article 27 of Geneva Convention IV imposes a legal duty to protect civilians against acts of violence.<sup>14755</sup> More specifically, it held that Blaskić was under a duty imposed by the laws or customs of war to care for protected persons put in danger, and to intervene and alleviate that danger.<sup>14756</sup>

5896. Article 13 of Geneva Convention III and Article 27 of Geneva Convention IV are limited in application to armed conflict of an international nature. However, Additional Protocol II to the Geneva Conventions contains similar obligations and is applicable to non-international armed conflicts.<sup>14757</sup>

5897. The Chamber notes that Article 7 of Additional Protocol II to the Geneva Conventions provides: “All the wounded, sick and shipwrecked, whether or not they have taken part in the armed conflict, shall be respected and protected.”<sup>14758</sup> In addition, Article 13 of Additional Protocol II states:

1. The civilian population and individual civilians shall enjoy general protection against the dangers arising from military operations. To give effect to this protection, the following rules shall be observed in all circumstances.
2. The civilian population as such, as well as individual civilians, shall not be the object of attack. Acts or threats of violence the primary purpose of which is to spread terror among the civilian population are prohibited.<sup>14759</sup>

5898. It was clear that the Tutsis taking refuge at the BPO were civilians and that many of them were sick and injured.

5899. Although these provisions do not explicitly reference individual criminal liability, the Chamber considers they are applicable to the situation prevailing at the BPO from the end of April to mid-June 1994. The Chamber recalls the ICTY Appeals Chamber’s holding that “customary international law imposes criminal liability for serious violations of common Article 3, as supplemented by other general principles and rules of protection on the protection of victims of internal armed conflict”.<sup>14760</sup> The Chamber considers the criminalisation of individual conduct, includes, but is not limited to Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions. As the ICTY Appeals Chamber held in Delalić et al.: “Common Article 1 thus imposes upon State parties, upon ratification, an obligation to implement the provisions of the

Geneva Conventions in their domestic legislation. This obligation clearly covers the Conventions in their entirety and this obligation thus includes common Article 3.”<sup>14761</sup> In the Chamber’s view, the criminalisation of individual conduct encompasses the Geneva Conventions in their entirety, including Articles 7 and 13 of Additional Protocol II. Therefore, these provisions impose a legal duty on the Accused to protect civilians, including the wounded and sick, against acts or threats of violence.

Assistance to, and Substantial Effect on, the Perpetration of Crimes

5900. The Chamber has found that Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali, Interahamwe and soldiers were responsible for raping numerous Tutsi women and for killing hundreds of Tutsi refugees abducted from the BPO from mid-May until mid-June 1994. Nsabimana was the préfet of Butare during this time period. Although many people took refuge at the BPO precisely because they thought the préfet would protect them, Nsabimana refused to help.<sup>14762</sup> His attitude in this respect was evidenced by Witness TQ who approached Nsabimana at the BPO asking for help in burying the bodies of orphans that had been killed at the school complex. Nsabimana told Witness TQ that he was a madman.<sup>14763</sup> By refusing to take action in the midst of the continuing attacks at the BPO, Nsabimana assisted Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali and the Interahamwe in the perpetration of their attacks. Further, his failure to act had a substantial effect on the realisation of these crimes. Witness SS described an incident in which soldiers prevented attacks at the BPO.<sup>14764</sup> Had Nsabimana posted gendarmes or soldiers sometime prior to 5-15 June 1994, he could have prevented the mass killing and rape, at least in part, at the BPO.

Ability to Act

5901. Pursuant to Rwandan Law, the préfet has the power to request the intervention of the Armed Forces to restore public order.<sup>14765</sup> In addition, the préfet may verbally request the intervention of the National Gendarmerie pursuant to the Rwandan Law on the creation of the Gendarmerie.<sup>14766</sup>

The Chamber notes that at least three witnesses testified to persons going to Nsabimana’s office to seek assistance; see T. 14 October 2002 p. 83 (Witness SU) (Three women go to Nsabimana’s office to tell him about the security situation); T. 10 March 2003 p. 15 (ICS) (Witness SS) (same); T. 27 February 2003 pp. 5-7 (Witness RE) (A man and a woman went to see Nsabimana).

5902. Nsabimana in fact requisitioned forces around 5-15 June 1994. At that time, 5-6 soldiers were seconded to the BPO under the command of a female lieutenant. The evidence establishes that these soldiers forestalled attacks against those taking refuge at the Butare préfecture office.<sup>14767</sup> This shows that Nsabimana, pursuant to his powers as préfet, had the ability to requisition forces that could forestall the attacks.

5903. Despite this, Nsabimana failed to take any steps to prevent the ongoing attacks at the BPO for a significant period between the end of April and mid-June 1994. Even if the soldiers' presence may not have been able to stop the attacks altogether, the evidence establishes that their presence would have alleviated the situation of recurring abductions, rapes and killings. These means were available to Nsabimana to fulfil his duty and to forestall these harms, but he did nothing.

Knowledge and Awareness

5904. Nsabimana knew that those taking refuge at the BPO were Tutsis and on multiple occasions, they asked him directly for protection from the ongoing attacks. He knew that they were being abducted, raped and killed. Nsabimana admitted that he was aware of a plan to kill Tutsis, that Tutsis were being killed, and that the militia had been trained for this purpose.<sup>14768</sup> Therefore, he was aware of the perpetrators' genocidal intent.

5905. Furthermore, the Chamber concludes that Nsabimana also knew that his failure to act assisted in the commission of the crimes. Nsabimana knew the attacks were occurring at night when he was not at the BPO and when there were likely to be fewer witnesses. Moreover, he testified that after he learned of the massacres, he would go home at night fearing that the refugees would not be at the BPO when he returned in the morning.<sup>14769</sup> Yet, the perpetrators of these attacks were given free reign to repeatedly attack the BPO for a significant period between the end of April and mid-June 1994.

5906. In sum, Nsabimana failed to take action to stop the massacres at the BPO during his tenure as préfet. Although Nsabimana posted gendarmes or soldiers at the BPO around 5-15 June 1994, he was responsible for aiding and abetting genocide for failing to discharge his

Then when people from the opposition were eliminated, it was already out of human understanding but it was also very easy to determine who had done the killing. I think it was a strategy to kill Tutsis. ...The people planning this were intelligent. But this plan was a bad plan. The planners were specialists. To say people went crazy is false, people were not crazy. I had always thought this kind of killing was a possibility although maybe not on this scale.").

Those were the thoughts that were in my mind at the time....").

Nteziryayo

5907. The Chamber notes that Nteziryayo is charged with Article 6 (1) responsibility for the events at the BPO.<sup>14772</sup> There was no evidence to support a finding implicating Nteziryayo personally in these events. Therefore, the Prosecution has failed to meet its burden of proof.

5908. The Prosecution also charges Nteziryayo with Article 6 (3) responsibility for these events.<sup>14773</sup> Although Paragraph 6.41 of the Indictment mentions Interahamwe and soldiers as perpetrators of this event and Paragraph 4.6 asserts Nteziryayo exercised authority over Interahamwe militiamen, there is insufficient evidence to establish that Nteziryayo had effective control over the perpetrators at the BPO. The Chamber therefore concludes that Nteziryayo does not bear 6 (3) responsibility for the events at BPO, as alleged by the Prosecution.

4.2.2.3.14 École Évangéliste du Rwanda (“EER”), Mid-May – Early June 1994

5909. The Chamber found that Préfet Nsabimana ordered the transfer of the refugees from the BPO to the EER pursuant to a Security Council decision and that soldiers thereafter escorted the refugees to the EER (). Refugees at the BPO were transferred to the EER between 15 and 20 May 1994 (). There were at least 200 refugees at the EER during late-May 1994. Those who took refuge at the EER were predominantly Tutsis ().

5910. During the refugees’ stay at the EER between mid-May and the beginning of June 1994, Ntahobali led Interahamwe in carrying out attacks against the Tutsi refugees at the EER. Ntahobali and Interahamwe abducted refugees from the EER and killed them in the woods near the EER school complex. Soldiers were also present at the EER and participated in the attacks and killings at or near the EER; they also raped women and young girls there ().

Notice of Rape as Genocide

5911. The Chamber notes that the paragraph of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment that concerns the EER, Paragraph 6.30, is the same as that concerning the Butare préfecture office.<sup>14774</sup> For the same reasons as explained above (), the Chamber will not enter a conviction for genocide on the basis of any rapes that occurred at the EER. Instead, these rapes will be considered in the sections addressing rape as a crime against humanity and outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto.

<sup>14770</sup> See Paras. 6.36-6.38, 6.41 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment (pled in support of Counts 1-3, 5-9 against Nsabimana, which include that he was being charged for “the acts or omissions described in paragraphs 5.1 to 6.59”). See generally Mrkšić & Šljivančanin, Judgement (AC), paras. 140-141 (Indictment paragraphs that reference “by these acts and omissions” sufficed to plead the nature of the charges against the Accused with regard to aiding and abetting by omission).

5912. There was no direct evidence that Ntahobali was personally responsible for killing any of the abducted refugees. The Chamber is nevertheless satisfied that his presence alongside Interahamwe and soldiers at the EER amounted to tacit approval and encouragement of the acts of Interahamwe and soldiers at the EER.

5913. The Chamber also recalls Ntahobali's prior conduct in working alongside Interahamwe and soldiers in abducting hundreds of refugees from the BPO who were physically assaulted and raped and thereafter killed in various locations throughout Ngoma commune, and that he personally committed genocide at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock ( ; ; ). As such, Ntahobali's presence at the EER alongside Interahamwe and soldiers, when considered together with his prior conduct, leads the Chamber to conclude that Ntahobali's conduct at the EER amounted to his sanctioning of the acts of the Interahamwe and soldiers, and thereby substantially contributed to the commission of these crimes.<sup>14775</sup> The Chamber recalls that it will not consider rapes when assessing genocide, but will instead take them into account when assessing charges that were properly pled.

5914. Recalling that those who took refuge at the EER were predominantly Tutsis, the Chamber thus finds it proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Ntahobali committed the actus reus of aiding and abetting genocide, through the acts of killing members of the group.

5915. Viewing these attacks in the context of the widespread killing of Tutsis occurring throughout Rwanda, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that the soldiers and Interahamwe who participated in various killings at or near the EER did so with the intent to destroy, in whole or in substantial part, the Tutsi group. Having regard to the events that surrounded the abductions, and the situation in Rwanda generally, the Chamber is also satisfied that Ntahobali must have known of the soldiers' and Interahamwe's intent<sup>14776</sup> and knew that he was substantially assisting them in the commission of their crimes.

5916. As such, the Chamber finds Ntahobali guilty of genocide for aiding and abetting the killing of Tutsi refugees abducted from the EER under Article 6 (1) of the Statute.

5917. The Chamber has already found that Ntahobali had de facto authority over Interahamwe, for which reason the Chamber also finds Ntahobali responsible under Article 6 (3) for these same underlying acts of genocide committed at or near the EER.<sup>14777</sup> Since the Chamber has found Ntahobali guilty under Article 6 (1) of the Statute, it will only consider

Ntahobali's superior position as an aggravating circumstance for the purpose of sentencing.<sup>14778</sup>

5918. The Chamber recalls it declined to make a finding against Nsabimana on the basis of Paragraph 6.39 as it was not charged in support of counts. As noted above (; ), however, the Chamber will consider whether Nsabimana bears superior responsibility for the allegations contained in Paragraph 6.38.

5919. Paragraph 6.38 identifies only Kanyabashi and soldiers as alleged subordinates of Nsabimana. The Chamber recalls that it has already found that the Indictment sufficiently informed Nsabimana that he was charged with superior authority over soldiers (; ). The Chamber also recalls that it has already determined that the Indictment was defective with regard to pleading a superior-subordinate relationship between Nsabimana and Interahamwe (). Further, the Prosecution did not cure the defect in the Indictment for failing to plead a superior-subordinate relationship between Nsabimana and the Interahamwe. As such, the Chamber will only consider Nsabimana's responsibility under Article 6 (3) for the criminal acts of soldiers at or near the EER between mid-May and June 1994.

5920. The Chamber found that Préfet Nsabimana ordered the transfer of the refugees from the BPO to the EER pursuant to a Security Council decision and that soldiers thereafter escorted the refugees to the EER.

5921. A review of Rwandan Organic Law of 11 March 1975, Structure and Functioning of the Préfecture, shows that Article 8 (2) makes the préfet responsible for “[e]nsuring peace, public order and the security of persons and property”. To this end, Article 9 provides that “[i]n the accomplishment of his mission, the Préfet shall be able to draw on the State services within the prefecture.” Article 11 empowers the préfet “to request the intervention of the Armed Forces to restore public order” in accordance with the Legislative Decree on the Creation of the Gendarmerie.<sup>14779</sup> Thus, as préfet at the time of this transfer, Nsabimana exercised policing duties and could request the intervention of the army.<sup>14780</sup> Notwithstanding this power, the Chamber is not satisfied that this law equally gave Nsabimana de jure authority to give orders to soldiers or to discipline soldiers. The Chamber is equally not satisfied that there is sufficient reliable evidence to indicate that Nsabimana had de facto authority over the soldiers in the sense that he either issued orders to or commanded soldiers who obeyed him. While there is evidence that Nsabimana requisitioned soldiers to provide security at various sites, such as the BPO, there is insufficient evidence that he maintained any control over how these soldiers carried out their tasks.

5922. Notwithstanding his ability to request the use of and instruct soldiers, the Chamber is of the view that Nsabimana, even in his position as préfet, did not exercise effective control over soldiers, in the sense of having the material ability to prevent or punish their criminal conduct.<sup>14781</sup>

5923. As the Prosecution did not establish the existence of a superior-subordinate relationship between Nsabimana and the soldiers in Butare, it is unnecessary under Article 6 (3) of the Statute to consider whether he knew or had reason to know about the criminal acts of these principal perpetrators or whether he failed to take the necessary and reasonable measures to prevent such acts or to punish the perpetrators.

5924. As such, the Prosecution did not prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Nsabimana was responsible as a superior under Article 6 (3) for killings carried out by soldiers at or near the EER. Accordingly, the Chamber acquits Nsabimana of genocide on the basis of this allegation.

Nyiramasuhuko

5925. No evidence was led to support Nyiramasuhuko's alleged involvement in events at the EER (). The Chamber therefore finds that the Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Nyiramasuhuko bears responsibility pursuant to Article 6 (1) or 6 (3) of the Statute.

Kanyabashi

5926. The Chamber recalls that no evidence was led with respect to Kanyabashi's involvement in events at the EER (). In the circumstances, the Chamber finds Kanyabashi's alleged involvement in these events, pursuant to Article 6 (1), has not been established beyond a reasonable doubt.

5927. The Chamber also recalls that resulting from the orders he issued to soldiers at Matyazo Clinic, Kanyabashi bears superior responsibility for their actions. The Chamber finds that concerning the events at EER, the Prosecution has failed to adduce sufficient evidence to establish Kanyabashi's superior responsibility over soldiers and Interahamwe.

4.2.2.3.15 Announcements by Megaphone, May and June 1994

5929. The Chamber has found that following Kanyabashi's megaphone announcements in mid-May and June 1994, searches were conducted for Tutsis and, consequently, more Tutsis were killed ().

5930. Notwithstanding evidence led through Witnesses QJ, TK and QI of general searches and killings subsequent to Kanyabashi's megaphone announcements, there is limited evidence of any specific acts committed by members of the population subsequent to Kanyabashi's megaphone announcements. Because there is insufficient evidence to establish that Kanyabashi's announcements substantially contributed to the subsequent killings,<sup>14782</sup> the Chamber finds that Kanyabashi is not guilty of instigating, ordering or aiding and abetting genocide in relation to his announcements.

5931. As such, the Prosecution did not prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi is responsible for genocide as a result of killings committed after his megaphone announcements. The Prosecution also failed to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi was responsible as a superior for the killing of any Tutsis after Kanyabashi's megaphone announcements in mid-May and June 1994. Accordingly, the Chamber acquits Kanyabashi of genocide on the basis of this allegation.

4.2.2.3.16 Transfer of Refugees to Nyange, Early June 1994

5932. In the first few days or week of June 1994, Nsabimana ordered the transfer of Tutsi refugees from the BPO to Nyange, Nyaruhengeri commune. Kanyabashi provided Nsabimana with two commune policemen to help with the transfer. The commune policemen forced the refugees to board the buses, beat them during boarding, and thereafter accompanied them on the bus to Nyange. The transfer was carried out over two consecutive days: Tutsi refugees at the BPO boarded at least two ONATRACOM buses on day one that went to Nyange, and a third bus departed on day two, but did not reach Nyange and returned to the BPO with its passengers on board. The Tutsi refugees who left the BPO on day two aboard the third bus were refused passage by Interahamwe at a roadblock between Kibilizi and Nyange secteurs, who claimed they did not want to bury any more dead bodies, such that the third bus returned to the BPO. The Tutsi refugees who left the BPO by bus on day one were attacked by Interahamwe at Nyange and all but a handful of those refugees were killed ().

5933. Having regard to the organised nature of the attack and the Interahamwe's words, namely that they were tired of killing, the Chamber finds that the assailants intentionally killed members of the Tutsi ethnic group at Nyange. Further, in view of the large number of Tutsi victims at Nyange, the ongoing attacks against Tutsis at the BPO, in addition to the extensive evidence of the targeting of members of this group in Butare préfecture since the swearing-in ceremony of Préfet Nsabimana on 19 April 1994, the Chamber is satisfied that the assailants possessed the requisite intent to destroy, in whole or in substantial part, the Tutsi group.

Nsabimana

5934. The Chamber found Nsabimana ordered the transfer of the refugees from the BPO to Nyange (). Notwithstanding the foregoing findings, the Chamber lacks sufficient reliable evidence to determine that Nsabimana gave orders to, or otherwise directed Interahamwe at Nyange or anyone else, that the refugees on board the buses should be killed.

<sup>14782</sup> See Kalimanzira, Judgement (AC), paras. 76-77; Ndindabahizi, Judgement (AC), para. 116 (stating, before overturning a conviction for instigating and aiding and abetting murder as a crime against humanity, that "it is [also] not established whether the persons who were instigated by the Appellant on 20 May 1994 were those who killed [the victim] on 26 May 1994").

5935. As such, the Chamber does not find Nsabimana responsible pursuant to Article 6 (1) for ordering, instigating, aiding and abetting, or otherwise participating in the killing of Tutsi refugees at Nyange. As the Prosecution did not prove beyond a reasonable doubt the existence of a superior-subordinate relationship between Nsabimana and Interahamwe, the Chamber acquits Nsabimana of responsibility under Article 6 (3) on the basis of the current allegation for the acts committed by Interahamwe at Nyange. Accordingly, the Chamber finds Nsabimana not guilty of genocide on the basis of this allegation.

Kanyabashi

5936. As noted, Kanyabashi provided Nsabimana with two commune policemen to help with the transfer but was not present during the boarding of the buses. The commune policemen beat the refugees, forced them to board the buses, and escorted the refugees to Nyange where they were killed (). However, the Prosecution has failed to adduce sufficient evidence for the Chamber to conclude beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi knew the purpose of the transfer, or that he was aware the refugees on board the buses would be killed at Nyange.

5937. As such, the Chamber does not find Kanyabashi responsible pursuant to Article 6 (1) for aiding and abetting, or otherwise participating in the killing of Tutsi refugees at Nyange. The Chamber will not make any finding as to Kanyabashi's superior responsibility for the crimes of policemen, or other assailants, at Nyange pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute since such charge was neither adequately pled in the Kanyabashi Indictment, nor subsequently cured (). Accordingly, the Chamber acquits Kanyabashi of genocide on the basis of this allegation.

4.2.2.3.17 Distribution of Condoms, Early June 1994

5938. The Chamber has found beyond a reasonable doubt that Nyiramasuhuko came to Cyarwa-Sumo secteur, Ngoma commune, in the beginning of June 1994 and distributed condoms for the Interahamwe, to be used in the raping and killing of Tutsi women in that secteur. The Chamber further found that Nyiramasuhuko ordered the woman to whom she distributed the condoms to: "Go and distribute these condoms to your young men, so that they use them to rape Tutsi women and to protect themselves from AIDS, and after having raped them they should kill all of them. Let no Tutsi woman survive because they take away our husbands" ().

4.2.2.3.18 Rango Forest, June 1994

5941. The Chamber has found beyond a reasonable doubt that in June 1994, approximately 250-300 mainly Tutsi refugees were forcibly transferred to Rango Forest by Kanyabashi with the assistance of the Interahamwe. Upon arrival, the refugees were confined in an enclosure, were subject to mistreatment and deplorable conditions, and as a result some of them died or otherwise suffered severe consequences ( ).

5942. In light of the context and background to this allegation, a reasonable inference may be drawn that the refugees were targeted for transfer on the basis of their Tutsi ethnicity. However, the Prosecution did not establish beyond a reasonable doubt that the transfer to Rango Forest was carried out with the purpose to kill these refugees or otherwise to bring about their destruction. Therefore, the Chamber does not find that these events constitute the crime of genocide.

4.2.2.3.19 Ntahobali and Nteziryayo Prevented the Evacuation of Tutsis, Mid-June 1994

5943. The Chamber has found beyond a reasonable doubt that Ntahobali was present at the Groupe Scolaire on 5 June 1994, accompanied by Interahamwe and civilian militiamen, and together they perpetrated violent acts as an attempt to hinder the evacuation of orphans. Nteziryayo knew of the evacuation prior to 5 June 1994, and he joined Ntahobali in attempting to prevent the evacuation to Burundi of about 300 orphans and their adult supervisors. Nteziryayo and Ntahobali selected about 30 adults, whom they believed to be Tutsis, and forced them to remain in Rwanda ( ).

5944. As there is insufficient evidence as to what happened to the 30 persons who were forced to remain in Rwanda, the Chamber does not find that these events constitute the crime of genocide.

4.2.2.3.20 Border Meetings in Muyaga and Kibayi Communes, Mid- to Late June 1994

5946. Notwithstanding the evidence of killings which occurred after the speeches, there is limited evidence of any specific acts committed by members of the population subsequent to Nteziryayo's speeches. As there is insufficient evidence to establish that Nteziryayo's words at these meetings substantially contributed to any subsequent crime,<sup>14783</sup> the Chamber finds that

<sup>14783</sup> See Kalimanzira, Judgement (AC), paras. 76-77; Ndindabahizi, Judgement (AC), para. 116 (stating, before overturning a conviction for instigating and aiding and abetting murder as a crime against humanity, that "it is [also] not established whether the persons who were instigated by the Appellant on 20 May 1994 were those who killed [the victim] on 26 May 1994").

Nteziryayo is not criminally responsible for genocide, under either Article 6 (1) or 6 (3) of the Statute, with respect to this allegation.

5947. Similarly, the Chamber finds that Nsabimana does not bear criminal responsibility, under either Article 6 (1) or 6 (3), for genocide in relation to this event.

4.2.2.3.21 Ndayambaje's Swearing-In Ceremony and the Ensuing Abduction of Tutsi Girls, 22 June 1994

5948. On 22 June 1994, Nteziryayo and Ndayambaje told the population to continue with their "work" and urged them to "sweep the dirt outside" in reference to the killing of Tutsis. To this end, the Chamber accepted that after the swearing-in ceremony searches for Tutsis took place and killings of Tutsis followed ().

5949. The Chamber found it proven beyond a reasonable doubt that a group of Tutsi women and girls from Mugombwa secteur, Muganza commune, were abducted by assailants from Saga after Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony of 22 June 1994 including one Nambaje who was abducted from a home. During the abduction, Ndayambaje came to the Statue of the Virgin Mary and made it clear that the abductors were free to do what they wanted with the girls, and the abducted women and girls were subsequently taken to a brick factory at Gasenyi where they were killed ().

5950. The abduction and killing of these Tutsi girls was not part of the Prosecution's case against Nteziryayo who did not defend against this allegation. Further, other testimony, to the effect that killings occurred after Ndayambaje's swearing-in, was general and devoid of any detail.

5951. As such, the Chamber finds there is insufficient evidence of any specific acts committed by members of the population subsequent to Nteziryayo's utterances at Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony, for the Chamber to conclude that Nteziryayo's utterances substantially contributed to the subsequent killing of Tutsis.<sup>14784</sup>

5952. The Prosecution did not prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Nteziryayo was responsible, personally or as a superior, for any acts that occurred after Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony on 22 June 1994. Accordingly, the Chamber acquits Nteziryayo of genocide on the basis of this allegation.

5953. Noting that proof is required of a causal connection between the instigation and the actus reus of the crime,<sup>14785</sup> the Chamber recalls its finding that the assailants came to search for the girls because they had attended Ndayambaje's swearing-in where they were told to search for and throw out dirt. As such, the Chamber is satisfied there is a causal connection between Ndayambaje's words at the swearing-in ceremony, and the abduction and killing of these Tutsi girls, including one Nambaje, in the days following the ceremony.

---

<sup>14785</sup> See, e.g., Karera, Judgement (AC), para. 317 ("It is not necessary to prove that the crime would not have been perpetrated without the involvement of the accused; it is sufficient to demonstrate that the instigation was a

5954. In view of the widespread killing of Tutsis throughout Rwanda as well as the fact that the assailants who abducted Nambaje came to a house claiming to look for Tutsis, the Chamber concludes that the assailants participated in the attacks with the intent to destroy, in whole or in substantial part, the Tutsi group.

5955. Because the Chamber also finds that Ndayambaje's words prompted the assailants to perpetrate these crimes, the Chamber finds it proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Ndayambaje committed the actus reus of instigating genocide.

5956. The Chamber has found that by encouraging attendees at the swearing-in ceremony to "sweep the dirt outside" and "to work", Ndayambaje had the requisite intent to destroy, in whole or in part, the Tutsi ethnic group. It is also clear that Ndayambaje intended to prompt others to act. Accordingly, the Chamber also finds it proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Ndayambaje had the requisite mens rea to instigate genocide.

5958. Having regard to the events that preceded the abductions, and the situation in Rwanda generally, considering the assailants asked Ndayambaje what they should do with the abducted Tutsi women, Ndayambaje must have known of the assailants' intent. Further, the Chamber is convinced that Ndayambaje could not have been unaware that his words to the assailants would likely lead them to kill the abducted Tutsi girls and Nambaje. In view of the foregoing, the Chamber is satisfied that the Prosecution has proved beyond a reasonable doubt Ndayambaje knew he was assisting in the deaths of the abducted Tutsi girls and Nambaje.

5959. As such, the Chamber finds Ndayambaje guilty of genocide for instigating the killings of Tutsis, including the girl Nambaje, in Butare under Article 6 (1) of the Statute. However, the Prosecution did not prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Ndayambaje was responsible for the acts of the assailants as a superior under Article 6 (3) for these same killings.

factor substantially contributing to the conduct of another person committing the crime."); Ndindabahizi, Judgement (AC), para. 116.

4.2.2.3.22 Training, Arming and Civil Defence

5960. The Chamber has found beyond a reasonable doubt that civil defence was organised before April 1994 ().

5961. It was also established beyond a reasonable doubt that in May and June 1994, recruitment of men for civil defence training was undergoing in some communes in Butare préfecture. During the same period, when the RPF were advancing on Butare, firearms were distributed to the recruits.

5962. Nteziryayo was an official in charge of civil defence (). It was proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Nteziryayo facilitated the training of civilians at Kamena Stadium in May 1994 (). Nteziryayo also distributed weapons to the recruits ().

5963. Kanyabashi, in his capacity as bourgmestre, was responsible for recruiting men for civil defence training in Ngoma commune, in May and June 1994 (). Kanyabashi also distributed weapons to the conseillers in Ngoma commune in May 1994 ().

5964. The Chamber has further found that the civil defence forces understood that Tutsis were to be targeted as accomplices of the enemy, namely the RPF (). The Chamber notes, however, that it has not found that Nteziryayo or Kanyabashi was responsible for inculcating this understanding among the civil defence forces.

5965. Nonetheless, in the Chamber's view, these facts give rise to an inference that the civil defence forces targeted Tutsis, and that Nteziryayo and Kanyabashi are responsible for any such attacks. The question for the Chamber, however, is whether this is the only reasonable inference under the circumstances.

5966. The Chamber considers it significant that the training of recruits and the distribution of weapons overlapped with the advance of the RPF into Butare. This raises the possibility that Nteziryayo and Kanyabashi trained and armed the civil defence forces in order to forestall the RPF advance. The Chamber finds this possibility to be a reasonable one under the circumstances.

5967. Therefore, the Chamber cannot conclude that the only reasonable inference is that Nteziryayo and Kanyabashi are responsible for any attacks by the civil defence forces that targeted Tutsis. In any event, the Chamber recalls that it has not made any findings that civil defence forces targeted or killed Tutsis.

5968. Cognisant that the burden of proof falls upon the Prosecution to prove its case beyond a reasonable doubt, the Chamber finds that Kanyabashi and Nteziryayo are not responsible for genocide in relation to these allegations.

4.2.2.4 Conclusion

Nyiramasuhuko

5969. Nyiramasuhuko ordered the killings of Tutsis taking refuge at the Butare préfecture office, which constituted genocide.

5970. The Chamber therefore finds Nyiramasuhuko guilty of genocide, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute. Nyiramasuhuko's responsibility as a superior in relation to these events will be taken in account in sentencing.

Ntahobali

5971. Ntahobali killed Tutsis at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock and ordered the killing of a Tutsi named Léopold Ruvurajabo. Ntahobali also ordered the killing of about 200 Tutsis at the IRST and of Tutsis taking refuge at the Butare préfecture office. In addition, Ntahobali aided and abetted both the killing of the Rwamukwaya family and the killing of Tutsis abducted from the EER. All of these acts constituted genocide. The Chamber therefore finds Ntahobali guilty of genocide, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute. His responsibility as a superior at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock, in relation to the Butare préfecture office and at the EER will be considered in sentencing.

Nsabimana

5972. As préfet of Butare, Nsabimana had a legal duty to act, and he failed to discharge his duty. His failure both provided assistance to the perpetration of the crime of genocide, and had a substantial effect on the realisation of this crime. Nsabimana had the ability to act, but he did nothing, despite his awareness of the perpetrator's genocidal intent and his knowledge of the ongoing genocide at the Butare préfecture office. The Chamber therefore finds Nsabimana guilty of aiding and abetting genocide.

Nteziryayo

5973. Because the Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Nteziryayo is responsible for genocide pursuant to either Article 6 (1) or 6 (3) of the Statute, the Chamber acquits him of this charge.

Kanyabashi

5974. Kanyabashi bears superior responsibility for soldiers' genocide of Tutsis at Matyazo clinic in late April 1994 (J. Ramaroson dissenting), and for the genocide committed by Ngoma commune policemen at Kabakobwa Hill on 22 April 1994.

5975. The Chamber therefore finds Kanyabashi guilty of genocide, pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute.

5976. Ndayambaje aided and abetted the killing of Tutsis at Mugombwa Church on 20 and 21 April 1994 and at Kabuye Hill from 22 through 24 April 1994. Ndayambaje also instigated the killing of Tutsis after his swearing-in ceremony on 22 June 1994. All of these acts constituted genocide.

5977. The Chamber therefore finds Ndayambaje guilty of genocide, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute.

4.2.3 Complicity in Genocide

4.2.3.1 Introduction

5978. The Accused are charged with complicity in genocide under Article 2 (3)(e) of the Statute. This charge comprises Count 3 of each Indictment.

5979. According to their Indictments, Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali and Kanyabashi are charged with complicity in genocide as an alternative to genocide.<sup>14786</sup> Nsabimana, Nteziryayo and Ndayambaje are also charged with this crime in the alternative, as clarified by the Prosecution Closing Brief.<sup>14787</sup>

4.2.3.2 Law

5980. The jurisprudence of this Tribunal has treated complicity in genocide as the aiding and abetting, instigating, or procuring of genocide. Complicity in genocide by aiding and abetting requires knowledge of the specific genocidal intent of the principal perpetrators, while the other forms of complicity may require proof that the accomplice shared that specific intent. The accomplice's criminal participation may occur before or after the act of the principal perpetrator, and the accomplice need not be present during the commission of the crime.<sup>14788</sup>

4.2.3.3 Deliberations and Conclusion

5981. The Chamber has found Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali, Nsabimana, Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje guilty of genocide in relation to various allegations. Because the Prosecution pleads complicity in genocide as an alternative to genocide, the Chamber dismisses this count in respect to these allegations.

5982. In respect of the other allegations of genocide which the Prosecution has failed to establish beyond a reasonable doubt, for the same reasons, the Chamber acquits the Accused of complicity in genocide.

5983. The Chamber therefore dismisses this charge in relation to Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali, Nsabimana, Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje, all of whom are guilty of genocide. The Chamber acquits Nteziryayo of complicity in genocide.

4.2.4 Direct and Public Incitement to Commit Genocide

4.2.4.1 Introduction

5984. Nyiramasuhuko, Nsabimana, Nteziryayo, Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje are charged with direct and public incitement to commit genocide under Article 2 (3)(c) of the Statute. This charge comprises Count 4 of each of their Indictments.

4.2.4.2 Law

5985. A person may be found guilty of direct and public incitement to commit genocide if he or she directly and publicly incited the commission of genocide, and had the intent to directly and publicly incite others to commit genocide. Such intent in itself presupposes a genocidal intent.<sup>14789</sup>

5986. “Direct” incitement to commit genocide requires that the speech is a direct appeal to commit an act referred to in Article 2 (2) of the Statute. It must be more than a vague or indirect suggestion, and an accused cannot be held accountable for this crime based on hate speech that does not directly call for the commission of genocide. However, even when a speech contains no explicit appeal to commit genocide, it may still constitute direct incitement to commit genocide in a particular context, so long as the speech is not considered ambiguous within that context. In order to determine the speech’s true meaning, it may be helpful to examine how it was understood by the intended audience. In the context of Rwanda, the culture and nuances of the Kinyarwanda language should be considered when determining what constitutes direct incitement to commit genocide.<sup>14790</sup>

5987. In discussing the “public” element of this crime, the Appeals Chamber has noted that “all convictions before the Tribunal for direct and public incitement to commit genocide involve speeches made to large, fully public assemblies, messages disseminated by the media, and communications made through a public address system over a broad public area”.<sup>14791</sup> Moreover, the Appeals Chamber has taken into account the travaux préparatoires of the Genocide Convention, which confirm that “public” incitement to genocide pertains to mass communications. Conversely, the travaux préparatoires indicate that “private” incitement—understood as more subtle forms of communication such as conversations, private meetings, or messages—was specifically removed from the Convention.<sup>14792</sup>

4.2.4.3.1 Cabinet Meetings, 9 April – 14 July 1994

5988. Between 9 April and 14 July 1994, the Interim Government, of which Nyiramasuhuko was a member, held numerous Cabinet meetings at which it adopted directives and issued instructions. The intention was to encourage the population to hunt down and take action against the Tutsis ().

5989. The Chamber, however, has not been able to determine what role, if any, Nyiramasuhuko played at these Cabinet meetings. Accordingly, the Chamber finds that the Prosecution has not established, beyond a reasonable doubt, that Nyiramasuhuko bears criminal responsibility for any direct and public incitement to commit genocide in relation to these meetings.

4.2.4.3.2 Removal of Préfet Habyalimana and Swearing-in Ceremony of Préfet Nsabimana, 17-19 April 1994

5990. The Chamber has found that the speeches made by Prime Minister Kambanda and President Sindikubwabo at Nsabimana's swearing-in ceremony were inflammatory and called on the population to identify and kill Tutsis. In particular, Kambanda and Sindikubwabo used coded language that was understood by the attendees to refer to the killing of Tutsis (; ; ).

Nyiramasuhuko

5991. The Chamber has found that Nyiramasuhuko does not bear criminal responsibility for genocide in relation to these events (). Similarly, insofar as there was no evidence that her tacit approval/presence at the ceremony substantially contributed to the incitement pronounced by Kambanda and Sindikubwabo, the Chamber does not find it established beyond a reasonable doubt that she bears responsibility for direct and public incitement to commit genocide arising out of this ceremony.

Kanyabashi

5992. After Kambanda's and Sindikubwabo's speeches advocating and inciting genocide, Kanyabashi addressed the audience. He supported their speeches and his address contained a commitment to execute the directives and instructions announced by Kambanda and Sindikubwabo (; ).

5993. The Chamber recalls that "when [an accused] is indicted [for direct and public incitement to commit genocide], he cannot be held accountable for hate speech that does not directly call for the commission of genocide".<sup>14793</sup> Although Kanyabashi stated his support and commitment for the preceding speeches, the Chamber cannot conclude that conduct rose to the level of directly inciting genocide. Nor has the Prosecution adduced sufficient evidence to support that Kanyabashi substantially contributed to any incitement made by Kambanda, Sindikubwabo, or other speakers at this event.

4.2.4.3.3 Mugombwa Church Massacres, 20-21 April 1994

5995. The Chamber has found that on 20 April 1994, Ndayambaje came to Mugombwa Church, showed a picture of President Habyarimana to those taking refuge inside, and told them that they would be killed. He then spoke to a group of armed people outside Mugombwa Church. He told them that since the people in the church were now gathered together, their work would no longer be very difficult. He also told the attackers that some of them should stay and watch those in the church and others should go and look for those that were hiding in ditches and in bushes. After this speech, many people left, whereas some stayed behind at the church. Later that day, the armed people launched an attack against the Tutsis sheltering in the church ().

5996. The next morning, Ndayambaje again addressed the crowd outside the church. He stated that he could see they were interested in the Tutsis' cows, and he asked them what they would pay if the cattle's Tutsi owners escaped. That afternoon, the crowd set the church on fire and, as those taking refuge inside escaped from the church, the crowd attacked and killed them ().

5997. The Chamber has no doubt that Ndayambaje's addresses to the attackers were public and that he intended to make these statements publicly.

5998. The Chamber recalls that even when a speech contains no explicit appeal to commit genocide, it may still constitute direct incitement to commit genocide in a particular context.<sup>14794</sup>

5999. The Chamber considers it significant that before Ndayambaje addressed the crowd on 20 April 1994, he first told those taking refuge inside the church that they would be killed. This context, combined with Ndayambaje's speech that the crowd's work would no longer be difficult, establishes that Ndayambaje possessed the requisite intent to directly incite the commission of genocide.

6000. Moreover, after Ndayambaje spoke to the crowd on both 20 and 21 April 1994, the armed people there attacked the Mugombwa Church. The Chamber considers that this provides circumstantial evidence that Ndayambaje's speeches were understood by his intended audience as direct calls to commit genocide.<sup>14795</sup>

6001. In light of this context, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that Ndayambaje directly incited the commission of genocide at Mugombwa Church, and that he had the requisite intent to do so.

6002. Accordingly, the Chamber finds Ndayambaje guilty of direct and public incitement on the basis of this allegation under Article 6 (1) of the Statute.

<sup>14795</sup> See generally Nahimana et al., Judgement (AC), para. 700 (“[I]t may be helpful to examine how a speech was understood by its intended audience in order to determine its true message.”).

4.2.4.3.4 Kabakobwa Hill, 21-24 April 1994

6003. The Prosecution charged Kanyabashi with responsibility under Article 6 (1) for incitement, presumably before the attack at Kabakobwa.<sup>14796</sup>

6004. The Chamber has already found that Kanyabashi gave a speech at Rango market on the morning of Thursday 21 April 1994, during which he stated that Tutsis should be “allowed to go through” to Kabakobwa. The Chamber accepted those words led Witness QCB to believe that the safety of these refugees would be protected ().

6005. Notwithstanding this finding, the Chamber is not satisfied that these words were such as to incite others to commit the crime of genocide such that they could amount to direct and public incitement. As such, the Prosecution has failed to prove the actus reus of this crime.

6006. As such, the Chamber acquits Kanyabashi of the crime of direct and public incitement to commit genocide on the basis of the speech he gave at Rango market on 21 April 1994.

4.2.4.3.5 Save Roadblock, April 1994

6007. The Chamber has found beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi came to a roadblock in Save in April 1994. He asked the people who manned this roadblock to search for a Tutsi lecturer and offered a reward for whoever found him ().

6008. The evidence establishes that Kanyabashi directed his speech to individuals manning a roadblock, but not that he directed his remarks towards anyone else. The Appeals Chamber has specified that statements made only to individuals manning a roadblock are not sufficiently public to satisfy this element of the crime.<sup>14797</sup> As the Prosecution did not establish that Kanyabashi directed his remarks towards anyone other than the individuals at the roadblock, the Chamber considers that Kanyabashi did not possess the mens rea for direct and public incitement to commit genocide. The Chamber thus acquits Kanyabashi of this charge in relation to this allegation.

4.2.4.3.6 Announcements by Megaphone, May and June 1994

6009. Around late May 1994 Kanyabashi drove through Butare town with a megaphone and instructed the population to search for the enemy among them. Further, around mid-June 1994 Kanyabashi used a megaphone to tell the population to clear bushes along the road in order to remove potential hiding places for the Inkotanyi, to flush out people who were hiding in the bushes, and to kill those found there, including children, old men and women. After both of Kanyabashi’s announcements in mid-May and June 1994 searches were conducted for Tutsis, and consequently, more Tutsis were killed ().

6010. The Chamber recalls that after hearing Kanyabashi’s announcements by megaphone in May and June 1994, the public understood that the “enemy” and “Inkotanyi” were Tutsis and they were to be killed, as further evidenced by the fact that after both megaphone announcements searches were conducted and more Tutsis were killed. The Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that these announcements constituted direct incitement to commit genocide.

6011. Further, because Kanyabashi circulated throughout Butare town addressing the general population, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi's announcements by megaphone in May and June 1994 were "public".

6012. The Chamber also considers Kanyabashi's spoken words encouraging the population to search for the "enemy" and "clear bushes", being references to killing Tutsis, evidences Kanyabashi had the requisite intent to destroy, in whole or in part, the Tutsi ethnic group.

6013. The Chamber finds that in so encouraging the population on two occasions in May and June 1994 Kanyabashi is individually criminally responsible, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute, for inciting the population to cause the death and serious bodily and mental harm of Tutsi refugees in Butare, as provided in Article 2 (3)(c). Accordingly, the Chamber finds Kanyabashi guilty of direct and public incitement to commit genocide.

4.2.4.3.7 Distribution of Condoms, Early June 1994

6014. The Chamber has found beyond a reasonable doubt that Nyiramasuhuko came to Cyarwa-Sumo secteur, Ngoma commune, in the beginning of June 1994 and distributed condoms for the Interahamwe, to be used in the raping and killing of Tutsi women in that secteur. The Chamber further found that Nyiramasuhuko ordered the woman to whom she distributed the condoms to: "Go and distribute these condoms to your young men, so that they use them to rape Tutsi women and to protect themselves from AIDS, and after having raped them they should kill all of them. Let no Tutsi woman survive because they take away our husbands" ().

6015. The Chamber observes that this is not a vague or indirect suggestion and cannot be considered ambiguous within the context of the rapes and parallel large-scale massacres being committed throughout Butare préfecture and Rwanda at this time.<sup>14798</sup>

6016. However, the Chamber is not satisfied that the "public" element of this crime has been established. The evidence shows that Nyiramasuhuko directed her speech to one woman, in the presence of four other men. In order to possess the requisite mens rea for the crime of direct and public incitement, the audience must be much broader than that found in the present circumstance.<sup>14799</sup> Here, Nyiramasuhuko's statements are more akin to a "conversation", consistent with the definition of private incitement found in the travaux préparatoires of the Genocide Convention.<sup>14800</sup> There is no indication in the record that anyone other than those cited was present.

<sup>14799</sup> See generally Kalimanzira, Judgement (AC), paras. 156 ("[A]ll convictions before the Tribunal for direct and public incitement to commit genocide involve speeches made to large, fully public assemblies, messages disseminated by the media, and communications made through a public address system over a broad public area").

6017. The Chamber is therefore not satisfied that the evidence reasonably supports the Prosecution charge of direct and public incitement.

6018. Therefore, the Chamber does not find Nyiramasuhuko guilty of the crime of direct and public incitement to commit genocide for distributing condoms in Cyarwa-Sumo secteur, Ngoma commune, in the beginning of June 1994, to be used in the raping and killing of Tutsi women in that secteur. Accordingly the Chamber acquits Nyiramasuhuko of direct and public incitement to commit genocide. However, the Chamber finds that this circumstantial evidence shows Nyiramasuhuko's intent to destroy, in whole or in substantial part, the Tutsi group.

4.2.4.3.8 Ntahobali and Nteziryayo Prevented the Evacuation of Tutsis, Mid-June 1994

6019. The Chamber has found that Ntahobali and Nteziryayo attempted to prevent the evacuation of about 300 orphans and their adult supervisors and selected about 30 individuals, whom they believed to be Tutsi adults, and forced them to remain in Rwanda ().

6020. There is insufficient evidence, however, that Nteziryayo incited genocide in relation to this event. Accordingly, the Chamber finds that the Prosecution has not discharged its burden of proof as to this charge of the Indictment.

6021. As for Ntahobali, the Chamber recalls that the Prosecution did not charge him with direct and public incitement to commit genocide.

4.2.4.3.9 Border Meetings in Muyaga and Kibayi Communes, Mid- to Late June 1994

6022. The Prosecution charges Nteziryayo with direct and public incitement to commit genocide, based on his speeches at the Muyaga and Kibayi commune meetings. Nteziryayo urged the audience to hunt down, flush out and kill Tutsis without any distinction. At the Kibayi commune meeting, Nteziryayo specifically incited the population to kill the remaining Tutsi survivors in the commune. As a result of the speeches, members of the population carried out searches and killed surviving Tutsis (; ). In light of this evidence, and considering the context of the killings in Butare préfecture at that time, the Chamber considers that Nteziryayo's speeches constituted a direct appeal to kill Tutsis and could not have been considered ambiguous.

6023. Nteziryayo made these speeches to large, fully public assemblies.

6024. The Chamber considers that Nteziryayo intended to directly and publicly incite members of the population in Muyaga commune and Kibayi commune to commit genocide, as confirmed by his encouraging words, spoken at these large gatherings. This in turn establishes Nteziryayo's genocidal intent.<sup>14801</sup>

6025. The Chamber, therefore, finds Nteziryayo guilty of the crime of direct and public incitement to commit genocide, for inciting the killing of Tutsis at the Muyaga commune and Kibayi commune meetings.

4.2.4.3.10 Ndayambaje's Swearing-in Ceremony and the Ensuing Abduction of Tutsi Girls, 22 June 1994

Swearing-in Ceremony

6026. On the occasion of Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony on 22 June 1994, an event attended by the general population, Nteziryayo and Ndayambaje told the population to continue with their "work" and urged them to "sweep the dirt outside", a reference to the killing of Tutsis, after which searches for Tutsis took place and killings followed ().

6027. When considered in the context of the inter-ethnic killings prevalent in Rwanda in 1994, the war between the Tutsi-dominated Rwandan Patriotic Front rebels and the Hutu-dominated Rwandan Army, as well as considering the culture and language of Rwanda, the Chamber is satisfied that the audience understood the words of both Accused, namely "to work" and "sweeping dirt", to mean they needed to kill Tutsis. This was further evidenced by searches conducted and the killing of Tutsis after the ceremony. For this reason, the Chamber finds the Accused's words at Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony were direct incitements to commit genocide. Given that these inciting statements were made at a ceremony attended by the population, the Chamber has no doubt that Nteziryayo and Ndayambaje made them publicly.

6028. In light of the substance of these statements, the context in which they were made, and the evidence as a whole, the Chamber has no doubt that both Nteziryayo and Ndayambaje possessed genocidal intent when they addressed the population. The Chamber is also satisfied that they intended to incite the population to commit genocide.

6029. The Chamber finds that in urging the population "to work" and "to sweep dirt outside" at Ndayambaje's swearing in ceremony, Nteziryayo and Ndayambaje are criminally responsible, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute, for inciting the population to cause the death and serious bodily and mental harm of Tutsi refugees in Butare. Accordingly, the Chamber finds that Nteziryayo and Ndayambaje are guilty of committing direct and public incitement to commit genocide.

Abduction of Tutsi Girls

6030. During the ensuing abduction of Tutsi girls, Ndayambaje came to the Statue of the Virgin Mary during the abduction and made it clear that the abductors were free to do what they wanted with the girls. According to Witness QAR's account, which the Chamber found to be credible, the abductors had waited for some time for Ndayambaje to arrive ().

6031. The Chamber recalls that it has found Ndayambaje's actions at this event to constitute the instigation of genocide ().

6032. The Chamber, however, cannot conclude that Ndayambaje's conduct satisfies the "public" element of the crime of direct and public incitement to commit genocide. In particular, the Chamber notes that Ndayambaje addressed only the abductors and not the general public.<sup>14802</sup> That the abductors specifically waited for Ndayambaje's instructions also provides evidence that they were not members of the general public, and that Ndayambaje would not have perceived them this way.

6033. Because this element of the crime has not been established beyond a reasonable doubt, the Chamber acquits Ndayambaje of direct and public incitement to commit genocide in relation to this event.

4.2.4.4 Conclusion

Nyiramasuhuko

6034. Because the Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Nyiramasuhuko is responsible for direct and public incitement to commit genocide pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute, the Chamber acquits her of this charge.

Nsabimana

6035. The Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Nsabimana is responsible, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute, for direct and public incitement to commit genocide. The Chamber therefore acquits him of this charge.

Nteziryayo

6036. For his speeches at the Muyaga and Kibayi commune meetings in June 1994, as well as for his speech at Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony on 22 June 1994, the Chamber finds Nteziryayo guilty of committing the crime of direct and public incitement to commit genocide, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute.

Kanyabashi

6037. The Chamber has concluded that Kanyabashi's megaphone announcements on two occasions in May and June 1994, constituted direct and public incitement to commit genocide. Accordingly, the Chamber finds him guilty of committing this crime, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute.

Ndayambaje

6038. Ndayambaje directly incited a crowd outside of Mugombwa Church to commit genocide on 20 and 21 April 1994. He also directly and publicly incited genocide at his swearing-in ceremony on 22 June 1994. The Chamber therefore finds Ndayambaje guilty of committing direct and public incitement to commit genocide, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute.

<sup>14802</sup> See Kalimanzira, Judgement (AC), paras. 159-165 (engaging in a conversation with persons at roadblocks did not qualify as "public", even in a circumstance where members of the general public were present); Nahimana et al., Judgement (AC), para. 862 (message intended only for individuals manning roadblocks, instead of for the general public, did not qualify as direct and public incitement to commit genocide).

4.3 Crimes Against Humanity

4.3.1 Introduction

6039. The Accused are charged with extermination, murder, persecution and other inhumane acts as crimes against humanity under Article 3 (a), (b), (h) and (i) of the Statute. In addition, Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali are charged with rape as a crime against humanity under Article 3 (g) of the Statute. These charges comprise Counts 5 to 9 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment, and Counts 5 to 8 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment, the Kanyabashi Indictment and the Ndayambaje Indictment.

4.3.2 Widespread and Systematic Attack

6040. In order to constitute a crime against humanity under Article 3 of the Statute, the acts of an accused must be part of a widespread or systematic attack against any civilian population on national, political, ethnic, racial or religious grounds. An “attack against a civilian population” means the perpetration against a civilian population of a series of acts of violence, or of the kind of mistreatment referred to in subparagraphs (a) to (i) of Article 3. “Widespread” refers to the large-scale nature of the attack and the number of victims, whereas “systematic” refers to the organised nature of the acts of violence and the improbability of their random occurrence.<sup>14803</sup>

6041. Regarding the mens rea, the accused must have acted with knowledge of the broader context of the attack, and with knowledge that his or her act formed part of the widespread and systematic attack against the civilian population. The additional requirement that crimes against humanity have to be committed “on national, political, ethnic, racial or religious grounds” does not necessarily mean that the accused must have a discriminatory intent when committing the act.<sup>14804</sup>

6042. As a preliminary matter, the Chamber recalls that it has taken judicial notice that widespread or systematic attacks directed against a civilian population based on Tutsi ethnic identification occurred in Rwanda between April and July 1994 ().<sup>14805</sup> As mentioned above, however, this does not shift the burden of proof, which remains with the Prosecution.<sup>14806</sup>

6043. The Chamber has considered the evidence in its totality, especially as it relates to the ethnic composition of the persons who sought refuge throughout Butare préfecture, and who were targeted for attack. In the wake of the events of 19 April 1994 (), Tutsis were either separated from Hutus prior to being attacked, or else were singled out and targeted in areas where Hutus were present. This attack continued for more than two months, and overwhelmed large segments of Butare and its inhabitants. The Chamber is convinced beyond a reasonable doubt that, starting on 20 April 1994, there was a widespread and systematic attack in Butare against Tutsis on the basis of their ethnicity.

6044. Given that many of these Tutsis were taking refuge, and considering the evidence as a whole, the Chamber is satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that this attack was directed against the civilian population.

6045. The Chamber also finds beyond a reasonable doubt that the acts perpetrated in relation to the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock, IRST, BPO, Rwamukwaya Family, EER, Matyazo Clinic (J. Ramarason dissenting), Kabakobwa Hill, Mugombwa Church, Kabuye Hill, Ndayambaje's Swearing-in, the abduction of Tutsi girls, and the distribution of condoms constituted part of this widespread and systematic attack.

6046. Finally, taking into account the specific nature and duration of the attack, the Chamber has no doubt that the six Accused and the principal perpetrators of this prolonged attack knew that their acts formed part of this attack.

4.3.3 Extermination

4.3.3.1 Introduction

6047. The Accused are charged with extermination as a crime against humanity under Article 3 (b) of the Statute. This charge comprises Count 6 of each Indictment.

4.3.3.2 Law

6048. The crime of extermination is the act of killing on a large scale. The expression "on a large scale" does not, however, suggest a numerical minimum. The actus reus consists of any act, omission, or combination thereof which contributes directly or indirectly to the killing of a large number of individuals. The mens rea requires that the accused intend, by his or her acts or omissions, to kill or subject a number of people to conditions of living that would inevitably lead to death.<sup>14807</sup>

Nyiramasuhuko

6049. The Chamber has found that between 19 April and late June 1994, Nyiramasuhuko went to the Butare préfecture office to abduct hundreds of Tutsis. Tutsis taking refuge there were later killed in various locations throughout Ngoma commune (). The Chamber considers that these killings occurred on a large scale.

6050. The Chamber has also found Nyiramasuhuko guilty of genocide for ordering the killing of Tutsis taking refuge at the Butare préfecture office (). Based on the same reasoning, the Chamber finds that the principal perpetrators possessed the intent to commit extermination, that Nyiramasuhuko knew of this intent, was in a position of authority when she ordered the killings, and that she intended that extermination be committed.

6052. As for the allegation of superior responsibility in relation to these killings, the Chamber will take this into account in sentencing.

6053. The Chamber has found Ntahobali guilty of genocide for: killing Tutsis at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock, including a Tutsi girl who he had first raped (); ordering the killing of a Tutsi named Léopold Ruvurajabo (); ordering the killing of about 200 Tutsis at the IRST (); ordering the killing of Tutsis taking refuge at the Butare préfecture office (); aiding and abetting the killing of the Rwamukwaya family (); and aiding and abetting the killing of Tutsis abducted from the EER ().

6054. Based on the same reasoning, the Chamber finds that Ntahobali intended to commit extermination, and knew that other principal perpetrators also possessed this intent. The Chamber also considers that these killings, taken by themselves or collectively, occurred on a large scale.

6056. The Chamber will take Ntahobali's alleged superior responsibility into account in sentencing.

6057. The Chamber has found that, after 19 April 1994, Tutsis taking refuge at the Butare préfecture office were abducted by the hundreds and killed (). The Chamber considers that these killings occurred on a large scale.

6058. The Chamber has found Nsabimana guilty of genocide for aiding and abetting by omission the killings that occurred at the Butare préfecture office (). Based on this reasoning, the Chamber finds that the principal perpetrators intended to commit extermination, that Nsabimana knew of this intent, and that he substantially contributed to the extermination that occurred by failing to discharge his duty.

6059. The Chamber therefore finds beyond a reasonable doubt that Nsabimana is guilty of aiding and abetting by omission extermination as a crime against humanity, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute.

6060. The Chamber has acquitted Nteziryayo of genocide (). For the same reasons, the Chamber finds that the Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Nteziryayo is responsible for extermination as a crime against humanity pursuant to either Article 6 (1) or 6 (3) of the Statute. The Chamber therefore acquits Nteziryayo of this crime.

Kanyabashi

6061. The Chamber has found that as a result of Kanyabashi's orders at Matyazo Clinic, many deaths occurred (). Hundreds, if not thousands, of Tutsis were killed in the attack at Kabakobwa Hill (). These killings undoubtedly occurred on a large scale.

6062. In relation to these killings of Tutsis at Matyazo Clinic and at Kabakobwa Hill, the Chamber has found Kanyabashi guilty of genocide pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute (; ). Based on the same reasons, the Chamber finds that Kanyabashi bears superior responsibility over soldiers at Matyazo Clinic in late April, and over Ngoma commune policemen at Kabakobwa Hill on 22 April 1994, and that his subordinates acted with the intent to exterminate Tutsis.

6063. Therefore, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi is guilty of extermination as a crime against humanity, pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute.

6064. The Chamber has found Ndayambaje guilty of genocide for aiding and abetting the killing of Tutsis at Mugombwa Church () and Kabuye Hill (), and instigating the killing of Tutsis after his swearing-in ceremony ().

6065. Based on this reasoning, the Chamber finds that Ndayambaje knew that other principal perpetrators possessed genocidal intent. The Chamber considers that these killings, taken by themselves or collectively, occurred on a large scale.

6066. Therefore, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that Ndayambaje is guilty of instigating and aiding and abetting extermination as a crime against humanity, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute.

4.3.4 Murder

4.3.4.1 Introduction

6067. The Accused are charged with murder as a crime against humanity under Article 3 (a) of the Statute. This charge comprises Count 5 of each Indictment.

4.3.4.2 Law

6068. For the crime of murder to be established, it must be shown that a victim died and that the victim's death was caused by an act or omission. To satisfy the mens rea for murder, it is required that there was an act or omission, with the intention to kill or to inflict grievous bodily harm, in the reasonable knowledge that it might lead to death.<sup>14808</sup>

4.3.4.3 Cumulative Convictions

6069. Multiple criminal convictions based on the same conduct, but entered under different statutory provisions, are permissible only if each statutory provision involved has a materially distinct element not contained in the other.

6070. When comparing the crimes against humanity of murder and of extermination, the Appeals Chamber has found that murder as a crime against humanity does not contain a materially distinct element from extermination as a crime against humanity.<sup>14809</sup> Accordingly, where the Chamber has entered a conviction for extermination as a crime against humanity, it will not consider the same underlying conduct as a basis for a conviction for murder as a crime against humanity.<sup>14810</sup>

4.3.4.4 Deliberations and Conclusion

6071. The Chamber has found Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali, Nsabimana, Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje guilty of extermination as a crime against humanity. In particular, the Chamber has found Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali and Nsabimana guilty of extermination in relation to the killing of Tutsis taking refuge at the Butare préfecture office. The Chamber has also found Ntahobali guilty of extermination for: his role in the killing of Tutsis at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock, including Léopold Ruvurajabo and a Tutsi girl who he first raped; at the IRST; of the Rwamukwaya family; and of Tutsis abducted from the EER. Kanyabashi is guilty of extermination in relation to the killing of Tutsis at Matyazo Clinic and at Kabakobwa Hill. Ndayambaje is guilty of extermination for his role in the killing of Tutsis at Mugombwa Church, at Kabuye Hill, and after his swearing-in ceremony ().

6072. The Chamber therefore considers that Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali, Nsabimana, Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje would also be responsible, in relation to these events, for murder as a crime against humanity. Recalling the law on cumulative convictions, however, the Chamber dismisses this charge as to these five Accused.

6073. As for Nteziryayo, the Chamber has found him not guilty of genocide and extermination as a crime against humanity (). For the same reasons, the Chamber acquits Nteziryayo of murder as a crime against humanity.

<sup>14810</sup> The Chamber has also taken into account the jurisprudence on cumulative convictions for other crimes; see, e.g., Stakić, Judgement (AC), paras. 359, 361-364 (persecution as a crime against humanity is not cumulative of the crimes against humanity of murder, extermination, and other inhumane acts); Semanza, Judgement (AC), paras. 368-369 (convictions for genocide, crimes against humanity, and serious violations of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II, are not cumulative because each has a materially distinct element); Kordić & Čerkez, Judgement (AC), paras. 1032-1033, 1035-1044; Rutaganda, Judgement (AC), paras. 582-583; Musema, Judgement (AC), paras. 366-367; Delalić et al., Judgement (AC), paras. 412-413.

4.3.5 Rape

4.3.5.1 Introduction

6074. Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali are charged with rape as a crime against humanity under Article 3 (g) of the Statute. Although Ntahobali is charged pursuant to both Article 6 (1) and 6 (3) of the Statute, Nyiramasuhuko is charged pursuant only to Article 6 (3) of the Statute. This charge comprises Count 7 of their Indictment.

4.3.5.2 Law

6075. The actus reus of rape involves the non-consensual penetration, however slight, of the vagina or anus of the victim by the penis of the perpetrator or any other object used by the perpetrator, or of the mouth of the victim by the penis of the perpetrator. Consent for this purpose must be given voluntarily, as a result of the victim's free will, assessed in the context of the surrounding circumstances. The mens rea is the intention to effect this sexual penetration, and the knowledge that it occurs without the consent of the victim. Force or threat of force provides clear evidence of non-consent, but force is not an element per se of rape.<sup>14811</sup>

4.3.5.3 Deliberations

4.3.5.3.1 Hotel Ihuliro Roadblock, Late April 1994

6076. The Chamber recalls that it would not consider rapes at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock for the count of genocide, but that it would address them under the counts of rape as a crime against humanity and outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto ().

Ntahobali

6077. The Chamber has found beyond a reasonable doubt that Ntahobali personally raped one Tutsi girl at the roadblock near Hotel Ihuliro, around the end of April 1994 (). The Chamber is satisfied that Ntahobali intentionally committed this crime. Further, the Chamber considers the circumstances surrounding this offence, namely that before perpetrating the rape Ntahobali dragged the girl into the woods. It was also established that her dead body was later found with vaginal injuries.

6078. The Chamber is satisfied this event occurred without the consent of the victim. The Chamber also finds that Ntahobali intended to effect the sexual penetration in the knowledge that it occurred without this consent.

6079. The Chamber has already found that there was a widespread or systematic attack against the civilian population and that the Accused knew that their acts formed part of this attack ().

6080. Therefore, the Chamber finds this offence constitutes rape as a crime against humanity, and that Ntahobali is responsible as a principal perpetrator for committing it.

6081. The Chamber recalls that it was also proven beyond a reasonable doubt that during the time when Ntahobali manned the roadblock, other crimes including rapes were committed against members of the Tutsi population ().

6082. The Chamber has found that Ntahobali bore superior responsibility over the Interahamwe at this roadblock (). However, because there is insufficient evidence to establish beyond a reasonable doubt that the Interahamwe committed rapes at or near this roadblock, the Chamber does not find that Ntahobali is responsible as a superior for the rapes that occurred near this roadblock. This alleged responsibility, therefore, will not be taken into account in sentencing.

Nyiramasuhuko

6083. The Chamber has also found that Nyiramasuhuko was present at the roadblock near Hotel Ihuliro on occasions during the period of time when crimes were carried out, but recalls that she was not found to be present when any crime was perpetrated there (). Moreover, the evidence is insufficient to conclude that she played any role in relation to the rapes there, or that she bears superior responsibility for them.

6084. Therefore, the Chamber finds Nyiramasuhuko not guilty of rape as a crime against humanity, in relation to the rapes carried out at the roadblock near Hotel Ihuliro.

4.3.5.3.2 Butare Préfecture Office (“BPO”), End of April – First Half of June 1994

6085. The Chamber recalls that it would not consider rapes at the Butare préfecture office for the count of genocide, but that it would address them under the counts of rape as a crime against humanity and outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto ().

6086. The Chamber is satisfied that the rapes of Witness TA and many other unnamed Tutsi women at the BPO were conducted on ethnic grounds. The Chamber finds that Ntahobali bears responsibility as a principal perpetrator for committing these acts, for ordering Interahamwe to commit rapes, and also for aiding and abetting rapes. Similarly, the Chamber considers that Ntahobali bears superior responsibility for the rapes committed by the Interahamwe, and will take this into account in sentencing.

6087. Nyiramasuhuko was only charged with rape as a crime against humanity pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute, which the Chamber considers to be a serious omission on the part of the Prosecution. The Chamber has already found that Nyiramasuhuko ordered Interahamwe to rape Tutsi women at the BPO ().

6088. Nyiramasuhuko had a superior-subordinate relationship with the Interahamwe who accompanied her to the BPO. Her effective control over them was evidenced by the fact that she brought them to the BPO with her son Ntahobali and the fact that her orders to rape were obeyed. She knew of, and failed to prevent or punish, these rapes. Therefore, Nyiramasuhuko bears responsibility as a superior for the rapes perpetrated by the Interahamwe at the BPO.

4.3.5.3.3 École Évangéliste du Rwanda (“EER”), Mid-May – Early June 1994

6089. The Chamber recalls that it would not consider rapes at or near the EER for the count of genocide, but that it would address them under the counts of rape as a crime against humanity and outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto ().

6090. The Chamber has found that soldiers raped women and girls at or near the EER (). Although Ntahobali was implicated in some of the attacks at the EER, it has not been established that he is responsible for rapes that occurred during this general time period. The Chamber has also found that Nyiramasuhuko’s alleged involvement in the events at the EER, including rapes, has not been established beyond a reasonable doubt.

4.3.5.3.4 Distribution of Condoms, Early June 1994

6091. The Chamber lacks sufficient reliable evidence to show a link between Nyiramasuhuko’s actions in distributing the condoms, and actual rapes committed against said Tutsi women. Therefore, the requirement of the commission of the actual crime, namely the rapes as a result of this distribution, has not been met in this instance. Therefore, the Chamber is not satisfied that the evidence reasonably supports the Prosecution charge of rape as a crime against humanity.

6092. Therefore, the Chamber does not find that these events constitute rape as a crime against humanity.

4.3.5.4 Conclusion

Nyiramasuhuko

6093. Nyiramasuhuko ordered Interahamwe to rape Tutsis at the Butare préfecture office, and bears responsibility as a superior for their rapes. The Chamber therefore finds her guilty of rape as a crime against humanity, pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute.

Ntahobali

6094. Ntahobali raped a Tutsi girl near the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock. He also raped Tutsi women at the Butare préfecture office, ordered Interahamwe to rape Tutsis, and aided and abetted the rapes of a Tutsi. For these acts, the Chamber finds Ntahobali guilty of committing, ordering, and aiding and abetting rape as a crime against humanity, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute.

4.3.6 Persecution

4.3.6.1 Introduction

6095. The Accused are charged with persecution as a crime against humanity under Article 3 (h) of the Statute. This charge comprises Count 8 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment, and Count 7 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo, Kanyabashi, and Ndayambaje Indictments.

4.3.6.2 Law

6096. Persecution consists of an act or omission which discriminates in fact and which denies or infringes upon a fundamental right laid down in international customary or treaty law, and was carried out deliberately with the intention to discriminate on one of the protected grounds. This discriminatory intent requirement amounts to dolus specialis. But not every act of discrimination will constitute the crime of persecution; the underlying acts, considered in isolation or in conjunction with other acts, must be of gravity equal to the crimes listed under Article 3 of the Statute.<sup>14812</sup>

6097. The enumerated grounds of discrimination for persecution in Article 3 (h) of the Statute do not expressly include ethnic grounds, which is included in the list of discriminatory grounds for the attack contained in the chapeau of Article 3. Notwithstanding, the Appeals Chamber in the Nahimana et al. case held that discrimination on ethnic grounds could constitute persecution if the accompanying violation of rights was sufficiently serious, such as killings, torture and rape. It affirmed a conviction for persecution based on the supervision of roadblocks where Tutsis were killed.<sup>14813</sup>

4.3.6.3 Deliberations

4.3.6.3.1 Killings

Nyiramasuhuko

6098. The Chamber has found that Nyiramasuhuko ordered the killings of Tutsis taking refuge at the Butare préfecture office, which constitutes genocide and extermination as a crime against humanity (; ).

6099. Based on similar reasoning, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that the principal perpetrators carried out their acts with discriminatory intent, and that Nyiramasuhuko knew of their intent. Nyiramasuhuko was in a position of authority when she ordered the killings, and she substantially contributed to them. These killings were serious violations of fundamental rights. The Chamber therefore finds Nyiramasuhuko guilty of persecution as a crime against humanity.

Ntahobali

6100. The Chamber has found that Ntahobali killed Tutsis at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock, including a Tutsi girl who he first raped; that he ordered the killing of a Tutsi named Léopold Ruvurajabo, the killing of about 200 Tutsis at the IRST, and the killing of Tutsis taking refuge at the Butare préfecture office; and that he aided and abetted the killing of the Rwamukwaya family and of Tutsis abducted from the EER. These acts constitute genocide and extermination as a crime against humanity (; ).

6101. Based on this reasoning, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that Ntahobali and the principal perpetrators acted with discriminatory intent, and that the facts establish the various requirements for committing, ordering, and aiding and abetting these serious violations of fundamental rights. The Chamber therefore finds Ntahobali guilty of persecution as a crime against humanity.

6102. The Chamber has found that Nsabimana aided and abetted the killing of Tutsis at the Butare préfecture office by failing to discharge his duty. This constitutes genocide and extermination as a crime against humanity (; ).

6103. Based on its earlier reasoning, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that the principal perpetrators of these crimes acted with discriminatory intent, that Nsabimana knew of their discriminatory intent, and that his failure to discharge his duty substantially contributed to these killings. These crimes were serious violations of fundamental human rights, and the Chamber therefore finds Nsabimana guilty of persecution as a crime against humanity.

6104. Because the Chamber has found that Nteziryayo is not criminally responsible for any killings (; ), it will not consider whether he bears responsibility for persecution for these acts.

Kanyabashi

6105. The Chamber has found that Kanyabashi bears superior responsibility for the killing of Tutsis at Matyazo Clinic by soldiers, and at Kabakobwa Hill by Ngoma commune police. These crimes constitute genocide and extermination as a crime against humanity (; ).

6106. Based on the same reasoning, the Chamber finds that Kanyabashi bears superior responsibility over soldiers at Matyazo clinic in late April, and over Ngoma commune policemen at Kabakobwa Hill on 22 April 1994, and that his subordinates acted with discriminatory intent. These crimes also amount to serious violations of fundamental human rights, and the Chamber therefore finds Kanyabashi guilty of persecution as a crime against humanity.

6107. The Chamber has found that Ndayambaje aided and abetted the killing of Tutsis at Mugombwa Church and Kabuye Hill, and instigated the killing of Tutsis after his swearing-in ceremony. These crimes constitute genocide and extermination as a crime against humanity (; ).

6108. Based on the same reasoning, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that Ndayambaje and the principal perpetrators acted with discriminatory intent, and that the facts establish the various requirements for instigating and aiding and abetting the killings. These killings constitute serious violations of fundamental rights, and the Chamber finds that Ndayambaje is guilty of persecution as a crime against humanity.

4.3.6.3.2 Kabuye Hill, 20-24 April 1994

6109. The Chamber has already taken account of the killings that occurred at Kabuye Hill, and will now address whether Ndayambaje is also criminally responsible for the arrest and transportation of Tutsis to Kabuye Hill that preceded the attack.

6110. The Chamber has found that Ndayambaje, several armed soldiers and commune policemen arrested fleeing Tutsi refugees at Ngiryi Bridge and obliged them to return to Gisagara marketplace, and thereafter soldiers and policemen escorted the refugees on foot to Kabuye Hill (). The Chamber considers that the interception and forced return of the refugees to Gisagara and then Kabuye Hill, when many refugees were trying to flee to Burundi, constitutes a denial of the right to freedom of movement, as cited by the Trial Chamber in Bikindi.<sup>14814</sup> The right to freedom of movement both within one's country, and the right to leave one's country, are basic fundamental rights.<sup>14815</sup> The Chamber is further of the view that the forced return of the fleeing refugees may have violated their right to security.<sup>14816</sup>

6111. While the Chamber recognises the importance of these rights, the Chamber recalls that, to qualify as persecution, their violation must be of similar gravity to other crimes against humanity enumerated in the Statute.

6112. Other crimes against humanity, pursuant to Article 3 of the Statute, include murder, extermination, enslavement, deportation, imprisonment, torture and rape.

6113. The Chamber is unable to conclude that the specific circumstances at issue here rise to a similar gravity as these other crimes against humanity. Because the arrest and later transportation of the Tutsis to Kabuye Hill, while serious, are not of comparable gravity to these enumerated crimes against humanity, the Chamber finds that they do not constitute persecution as a crime against humanity.

6114. In making this finding, the Chamber recalls that it has considered the killings of Tutsis at Kabuye Hill separately, and has found that these killings constitute persecution as a crime against humanity ().

4.3.6.3.3 Rango Forest, June 1994

6115. As outlined above (), the Chamber has determined that Kanyabashi did not possess de facto authority over the Interahamwe and thus a superior-subordinate relationship was not established. Further, the Chamber has found that the Prosecution failed to establish that Kanyabashi knew of the beatings and mistreatment of the refugees at Rango Forest and he was therefore not in a position to take measures to prevent or punish the perpetrators for the commission of such crimes ().

6116. Therefore, the Chamber finds that Kanyabashi does not bear superior responsibility over the Interahamwe for the persecution of the Tutsi refugees at Rango Forest.

4.3.6.3.4 Ntahobali and Nteziryayo Prevented the Evacuation of Tutsis, Mid-June 1994

6117. The Chamber has found that Ntahobali and Nteziryayo attempted to prevent the evacuation of about 300 orphans and their adult supervisors and selected about 30 individuals, whom they believed to be Tutsi adults, and forced them to remain in Rwanda ().

6118. As discussed above (), however, the Chamber has not heard any evidence of killings or other acts that may have been related to this incident.

6119. Without any further evidence, the Chamber cannot conclude that the act of requiring 30 persons to remain in Rwanda is of similar gravity to other crimes against humanity listed in the Statute. Accordingly, the Chamber finds that the Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that this incident qualifies as persecution as a crime against humanity, or that Ntahobali or Nteziryayo are responsible for it.

4.3.6.4 Conclusion

Nyiramasuhuko

6120. The Chamber finds Nyiramasuhuko guilty of ordering persecution as a crime against humanity, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute.

Ntahobali

6121. The Chamber finds Ntahobali guilty of committing, ordering, and aiding and abetting persecution as a crime against humanity, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute.

Nsabimana

6122. For failing to discharge his duty, the Chamber finds Nsabimana guilty of aiding and abetting persecution as a crime against humanity, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute.

Nteziryayo

6123. Because the Prosecution has not proven that Nteziryayo is criminally responsible for persecution as a crime against humanity, the Chamber acquits him of this charge.

Kanyabashi

6124. The Chamber finds Kanyabashi guilty of persecution as a crime against humanity, pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute for superior responsibility.

Ndayambaje

6125. The Chamber finds Ndayambaje guilty of instigating and aiding and abetting persecution as a crime against humanity, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute.

4.3.7 Other Inhumane Acts

4.3.7.1 Introduction

6126. The Accused are charged with other inhumane acts as a crime against humanity under Article 3 (i) of the Statute. This charge comprises Count 9 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment, and Count 8 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo, Kanyabashi, and Ndayambaje Indictments.

4.3.7.2 Law

6127. The crime of other inhumane acts was deliberately designed as a residual category for sufficiently serious acts which are not otherwise enumerated in Article 3 of the Statute. For an act or an omission to be “inhumane” under this Article, the victim must have suffered serious bodily or mental harm or must have been the subject of a serious attack on human dignity. Moreover, the suffering must be the result of an act or omission of the accused or his or her subordinate, and the accused or subordinate must have been motivated by the intent to inflict serious bodily or mental harm upon the victim when the offence was committed.<sup>14817</sup>

4.3.7.3 Deliberations

4.3.7.3.1 Kabuye Hill, 20-24 April 1994

6129. The Chamber has found that on the night of 22 April 1994, after the attack that resulted in the death of a large number of Tutsi refugees, survivors of the attack at Kabuye Hill were guarded and prevented from escaping ().

6131. However the Prosecution failed to lead any evidence as to Ndayambaje’s role in the guarding of the Tutsi refugees on the night of 22 April 1994. As such, the Chamber acquits Ndayambaje of responsibility for the occurrence of other inhumane acts as crimes against humanity under Article 6 (1) on the basis of the current allegation. As the Prosecution did not prove beyond a reasonable doubt the existence of a superior-subordinate relationship between Ndayambaje and the soldiers, commune policemen, civilians and Interahamwe at Kabuye Hill, the Chamber acquits Ndayambaje of responsibility under Article 6 (3) on the basis of the current allegation. In any event, the Prosecution also failed to lead any evidence that Ndayambaje knew or should have known of the acts of his alleged subordinates in this specific instance.

4.3.7.3.2 École Évangéliste du Rwanda (“EER”), Mid-May – Early June 1994

6132. The Chamber has found beyond a reasonable doubt that Ntahobali, soldiers and Interahamwe frequented the EER at night during the period from mid-May to the beginning June 1994, from where they abducted refugees and took them to a nearby forest where they were killed (). Considering that the Interahamwe told the refugees “it was over for the Tutsis” and that very few of the abducted refugees returned to the EER, the Chamber considers the regular nightly visits and abductions inflicted great fear and psychological trauma among the refugees. The Chamber further accepted that at least some of the abducted refugees had been killed with clubs and machetes while they were naked, and that some bodies were decapitated (). The Chamber finds this constituted serious bodily and mental harm.

Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali

6133. The Chamber notes that Paragraph 6.30 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment, pled in support of the charge of other inhumane acts, alleges that “[t]he survivors [of attacks at the préfecture offices] were taken to various locations in the préfecture to be executed, notably in the woods next to the [EER]”.<sup>14818</sup> This paragraph provides no further information about any inhumane acts at the EER.

6134. Paragraph 6.31, also pled in support of other inhumane acts, alleges that Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali “often forced [their victims] to undress completely before forcing them into vehicles and taking them to their deaths”.<sup>14819</sup> In the Chamber’s view, this serves as an example of sufficient notice that would suffice for the charge of other inhumane acts.

6135. Reading the Indictment as a whole, the Chamber concludes that the Indictment provides notice that Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali allegedly forced their victims to undress, and that this constituted another inhumane act. To the extent the Prosecution intended to charge other acts against Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali, the Chamber finds the Indictment to be defective by omitting these charges.

6136. The Chamber recalls that while it is possible to cure the vagueness of an indictment, omitted charges cannot be remedied.<sup>14820</sup>

6137. Therefore, the Chamber considers only the allegation that Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali forced their victims to undress. As the Prosecution has not adduced sufficient evidence to support this allegation, the Chamber finds that Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali do not bear criminal responsibility in relation to these events.

While it is possible, as stated above, to remedy the vagueness of an indictment, omitted charges can be incorporated into the indictment only by a formal amendment pursuant to Rule 50 of the Rules.”) (emphasis added).

Nsabimana

6138. The Chamber recalls Nsabimana is only charged with responsibility for acts that occurred at the EER pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute. As the Prosecution failed to establish beyond a reasonable doubt the existence of a superior-subordinate relationship between Nsabimana and soldiers, the Chamber acquits Nsabimana of other inhumane acts as a crime against humanity on the basis of this allegation.

Kanyabashi

6139. The Chamber has found that the Prosecution failed to establish beyond a reasonable doubt Kanyabashi's involvement, if any, in killings at the EER between mid-May and the beginning of June 1994. Consequently, the Chamber acquits Kanyabashi of any superior responsibility pursuant to Article 6 (1) and 6 (3) on the basis of this allegation.

4.3.7.3.3 Rango Forest, June 1994

6140. As outlined above, the Chamber has determined that Kanyabashi did not possess de facto authority over the Interahamwe and thus a superior-subordinate relationship was not established (). Further, the Chamber has found that the Prosecution failed to establish that Kanyabashi knew of the beatings and mistreatment of the refugees at Rango Forest and he was therefore not in a position to take measures to prevent or punish the perpetrators for the commission of such crimes ().

6141. Therefore, the Chamber finds that Kanyabashi does not bear superior responsibility over the Interahamwe for inhumane acts committed against the Tutsi refugees at Rango Forest.

4.3.7.3.4 Ntahobali and Nteziryayo Prevented the Evacuation of Tutsis, Mid-June 1994

6142. The Chamber has found that Ntahobali and Nteziryayo attempted to prevent the evacuation of about 300 orphans and their adult supervisors and selected about 30 individuals, whom they believed to be Tutsi adults, and forced them to remain in Rwanda ().

6143. As discussed above (), the Chamber has not heard any evidence of killings or other acts that may have been related to this incident.

6144. Without further evidence, the Chamber cannot conclude that the act of requiring 30 persons to remain in Rwanda led to serious bodily or mental harm, or constituted a serious attack on human dignity. Accordingly, the Chamber finds that the Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that this incident qualifies as an inhumane act as a crime against humanity, or that Ntahobali or Nteziryayo are responsible for it.

4.3.7.4 Conclusion

6145. The Chamber finds that the Prosecution has not proven, beyond a reasonable doubt, that any of the Accused bear criminal responsibility for other inhumane acts as a crime against humanity. Accordingly, the Chamber acquits all six Accused of this charge.

4.4 Serious Violations of Article 3 Common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II Thereto

4.4.1 Introduction

6146. The Accused are charged with violence to life, health and physical or mental well-being of persons as a serious violation of Article 3 Common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto, under Article 4 (a) of the Statute. In addition, Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali are charged with outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 Common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto, pursuant to Article 4 (e) of the Statute. These charges comprise Counts 10 and 11 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment, and Count 9 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment, the Kanyabashi Indictment and the Ndayambaje Indictment.

4.4.2 Threshold Elements

6147. In connection with crimes within the scope of Article 4 of the Statute, the Prosecution must prove, as a threshold matter, the following elements: (1) the existence of a non-international armed conflict; (2) the existence of a nexus between the alleged offence and the armed conflict; and (3) that the victims were not taking any active part in the hostilities at the time of the alleged violation, and that the perpetrator knew or should have been aware of this.<sup>14821</sup>

6148. The Ndayambaje Closing Brief, quoting the Akayesu Trial Judgement, contends that the Prosecution must also prove that the Accused acted as “a member of the armed forces under the military command of either of the belligerent parties”.<sup>14822</sup>

6149. The Chamber recalls, however, that the Appeals Chamber disagreed with this statement when the Judgement was appealed.<sup>14823</sup> Accordingly, the Ndayambaje Defence’s contention is unfounded in law, and the Chamber will not consider it below.

4.4.2.1 Non-International Armed Conflict

6150. Preliminarily, the Chamber recalls that it has taken judicial notice that there was an armed conflict not of an international character in Rwanda between 1 January 1994 and 17

July 1994 (). As stated above, the judicial notice of facts does not shift the burden of proof, which remains with the Prosecution.<sup>14824</sup>

6151. The Chamber has also taken judicial notice of the fact that the President of the Republic of Rwanda was killed when his plane was shot down on 6 April 1994 (),<sup>14825</sup> and has found that the Interim Government held numerous Cabinet meetings beginning on 9 April 1994 and lasting through 14 July 1994 ().

4.4.2.2 Nexus

6153. A nexus exists between the alleged offence and the armed conflict when they are closely related. The existence of an armed conflict must, at a minimum, have played a substantial part in the perpetrator's ability to commit the offence, his or her decision to commit it, the manner in which it was committed, or the purpose for which it was committed. If it can be established that the perpetrator acted in furtherance of or under the guise of the armed conflict, it would be sufficient to conclude that his or her acts were closely related to the armed conflict.<sup>14826</sup>

6154. In discussing the nexus requirement, the Appeals Chamber has stated that this element "would not be negated if the crimes were temporarily and geographically remote from the actual fighting. It would be sufficient, for instance, ... that the alleged crimes were closely related to hostilities occurring in other parts of the territories controlled by the parties to the conflict."<sup>14827</sup>

6155. The Chamber has found that widespread killings of Tutsis did not occur in Butare préfecture prior to 19 April 1994, when Nsabimana was sworn in as préfet in a public ceremony (). This ceremony featured inflammatory speeches which underlined the existence of war. In the context of the armed conflict with the RPF, words like "enemy" linked the speeches to the conflict. The speeches urged the people of Butare to take action against the "enemy" and their accomplices, which the Chamber has found referred to Tutsis. These speeches contributed to the commencement of widespread killings and large-scale massacres in Butare (; ). All of the events at issue occurred after this ceremony, and the Chamber considers that they all took place in the context of these inflammatory speeches, which in turn had referred to the armed conflict with the RPF.

6156. The Chamber also notes the near-universal role played by soldiers in the events. Soldiers are implicated in the events at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock (), Matyazo Clinic (), IRST (), Kabakobwa Hill (), Kabuye Hill (), the Butare préfecture office () and the EER (). Soldiers also manned various roadblocks throughout Butare, including the one near the corpses of the Rwamukwaya family (; ; ). The Chamber considers that the implication of soldiers in these events provides further corroboration of the nexus to the armed conflict.

6157. Although it has not been established whether soldiers played any role in the attack on Mugombwa Church, the Chamber notes that prior to the attack, Ndayambaje told those taking refuge inside that they would be killed because they were accomplices of the Inkotanyi (). The Chamber considers that this statement also corroborates that the ensuing attack on Mugombwa Church was linked to the armed conflict.

6158. The Chamber also considers that other events provide further context as to the nexus to the armed conflict. For example, the Interim Government held Cabinet meetings between 9 April and 14 July 1994, during which they issued instructions to encourage the population to take action against the “enemy” and its “accomplices”, both of which referred to Tutsis in general (). Widespread killings and massacres commenced throughout Butare préfecture only after the swearing-in ceremony of Nsabimana on 19 April 1994, which featured inflammatory speeches referring to Tutsis as the “enemy” (). The civil defence programme was used to train and arm civilians to locate infiltrators and accomplices, referring to Tutsis (). Kanyabashi also used the terms “enemy” and “Inkotanyi” during his megaphone announcements in May and June 1994, which others understood to refer to Tutsis ().

6159. After considering the evidence in its totality, the Chamber finds that the only reasonable inference to be drawn is that the Accused and the perpetrators who committed these crimes in Butare préfecture after 19 April 1994 were either acting in furtherance of the armed conflict or under its guise. Accordingly, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that the alleged violations of Article 4 of the Statute had the requisite nexus to the armed conflict.

4.4.2.3 Victims

6160. Many of the victims in this case, at the time they were killed or raped, were taking refuge throughout Butare préfecture. This includes the victims at the Matyazo Clinic (), Mugombwa Church (), Kabakobwa Hill (; ), Kabuye Hill (), the Butare préfecture office () and the EER ().

6161. Other victims were killed or raped near roadblocks. These include the victims at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock (; ) and those who were taken to the IRST to be massacred (). The corpses of the Rwamukwaya family were also sighted near a roadblock ().

6162. The Chamber considers that these victims were primarily civilians. Considering the evidence in its totality, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that the victims were not taking an active part in the hostilities at the time of the alleged violations of Article 4 of the Statute.

4.4.3 Violence to Life, Health and Physical or Mental Well-Being of Persons

4.4.3.1 Introduction

6163. The Accused are charged with violence to life, health and physical or mental well-being of persons as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto, under Article 4 (a) of the Statute. This charge comprises Count 10 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment, and Count 9 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo, Kanyabashi, and Ndayambaje Indictments.

4.4.3.2 Law

6164. Article 4 (a) of the Statute provides that the Tribunal has the power to prosecute persons who committed or ordered serious violations of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto, including “[v]iolence to life, health and physical or mental well-being of persons, in particular murder as well as cruel treatment such as torture, mutilation or any form of corporal punishment”.

6165. Murder requires an act or omission intended to kill or inflict grievous bodily harm, in the reasonable knowledge that it might lead to death, and that caused the death of another person.<sup>14828</sup>

4.4.3.3 Deliberations and Conclusion

Nyiramasuhuko

6166. Nyiramasuhuko ordered the killings of Tutsis who were taking refuge at the Butare préfecture office. The Chamber has found that this constitutes genocide and the crimes against humanity of extermination and persecution (; ;).

6167. The Chamber likewise finds Nyiramasuhuko guilty of ordering violence to life, health and physical or mental well-being of persons, as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II.

Ntahobali

6168. Ntahobali killed Tutsis at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblocks, including a Tutsi girl who he first raped; ordered the killing of a Tutsi named Léopold Ruvurajabo, of about 200 Tutsis at the IRST and of Tutsis taking refuge at the Butare préfecture office; and aided and abetted the killing of the Rwamukwaya family and the killing and serious bodily and mental harm of Tutsis abducted from the EER. The Chamber has found that these acts constitute genocide and the crimes against humanity of extermination and persecution (; ;).

6169. Based on the same reasoning, the Chamber finds Ntahobali guilty of committing, ordering, and aiding and abetting violence to life, health and physical or mental well-being of persons, as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II.

6170. By failing to discharge his duty, Nsabimana aided and abetted the killings at the Butare préfecture office. The Chamber has found that this constitutes genocide and the crimes against humanity of extermination and persecution (; ;).

6171. Based on similar reasoning, the Chamber finds Nsabimana guilty of aiding and abetting violence to life, health and physical or mental well-being of persons, as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II.

6172. The Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Nteziryayo is criminally responsible for any killings or other acts of violence. Accordingly, the Chamber acquits Nteziryayo of the charge of violence to life, health and physical or mental well-being of persons, as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II.

Kanyabashi

6173. Kanyabashi bears superior responsibility for the killings of Tutsis by soldiers at Matyazo Clinic, and by Ngoma commune policemen at Kabakobwa Hill. The Chamber has found that these acts constitute genocide and the crimes against humanity of extermination and persecution (; ;).

6174. The Chamber likewise finds Kanyabashi guilty, pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute, of violence to life, health and physical or mental well-being of persons, as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II.

6175. Ndayambaje aided and abetted the killing of Tutsis at Mugombwa Church on 20 and 21 April 1994 and at Kabuye Hill from 22 through 24 April 1994, and instigated the killing of Tutsis after his swearing-in ceremony on 22 June 1994. The Chamber has found that these acts constitute genocide and the crimes against humanity of extermination and persecution (; ;).

6176. Based on the same reasoning, the Chamber finds Ndayambaje guilty of instigating and aiding and abetting violence to life, health and physical or mental well-being of persons, as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II.

4.4.4 Outrages Upon Personal Dignity

4.4.4.1 Introduction

6177. Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali are charged with outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 Common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto, pursuant to Article 4 (e) of the Statute. This charge comprises Count 11 of their Indictment.

4.4.4.2 Law

6178. Article 4 (e) of the Statute provides that the Tribunal has the power to prosecute persons who committed or ordered serious violations of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto, including “[o]utrages upon personal dignity, in particular humiliating and degrading treatment, rape, enforced prostitution and any form of indecent assault”.

6179. Outrages upon personal dignity are constituted by any act or omission which would be generally considered to cause serious humiliation, degradation or otherwise be a serious attack on human dignity. The mens rea requires only knowledge of the possible consequences of the charged act or omission.<sup>14829</sup>

4.4.4.3 Deliberations and Conclusion

6180. The Chamber recalls that it would not consider rapes at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock, the Butare préfecture office, or the École Évangéliste du Rwanda for the count of genocide, but that it would address them under the counts of rape as a crime against humanity and outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto (; ; ).

6181. The Chamber also recalls that it did not find that Nyiramasuhuko was responsible for rapes at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock ( ), and that neither Nyiramasuhuko nor Ntahobali were criminally responsible for the rapes committed by soldiers at the EER ( ). The Chamber considers that the same reasoning applies here.

Nyiramasuhuko

6182. Nyiramasuhuko ordered Interahamwe to rape Tutsis at the Butare préfecture office ( ). Although this could have been charged pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute, the Chamber notes that Paragraph 6.37, concerning rapes, was pled only in support of Nyiramasuhuko’s superior responsibility.<sup>14830</sup> Under these circumstances, and taking into account the Chamber’s discussion of this paragraph and of notice, above ( ), the Chamber will only consider whether Nyiramasuhuko bears superior responsibility for events at the Butare préfecture office.

6183. The Chamber has found, in the context of rape as a crime against humanity, that Nyiramasuhuko bears superior responsibility for these events ( ). For the same reasons, the Chamber finds Nyiramasuhuko guilty, pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute, of outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II.

<sup>14830</sup> Para. 6.37 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment (pled in support of Counts 7 and 11 against Nyiramasuhuko pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute, and in support of Counts 7 and 11 against Ntahobali pursuant to Article 6 (1) and 6 (3) of the Statute).

6184. Ntahobali raped a Tutsi girl near the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock. He also raped Tutsi women at the Butare préfecture office, ordered Interahamwe to rape Tutsis there, and aided and abetted the rapes of a Tutsi there. The Chamber has found that these acts constitute rape as a crime against humanity ().

6185. Based on the same reasoning, the Chamber finds Ntahobali guilty of committing, ordering, and aiding and abetting outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II.

CHAPTER V: VERDICT

6186. For the reasons set out in this Judgement, having considered all evidence and submissions of the parties, the Trial Chamber finds unanimously in respect of

CHAPTER VI: SENTENCING

6.1 Introduction

6187. Having found Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali, Nsabimana, Nteziryayo, Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje guilty of crimes under the jurisdiction of the Tribunal, the Chamber must determine appropriate sentences.

6.2 Law

6188. All crimes under the Tribunal's Statute are serious violations of international humanitarian law.<sup>14831</sup> When determining a sentence, a Trial Chamber has considerable, though not unlimited, discretion on account of its obligation to individualise penalties to fit the individual circumstances of an accused and to reflect the gravity of the crimes for which the accused has been convicted.<sup>14832</sup>

6189. The gravity of the offences committed is the deciding factor in the determination of the sentence.<sup>14833</sup> Gravity entails the particular circumstances of the case, the form and degree of the participation of the accused in the crimes, and the number of victims.<sup>14834</sup> It is not relevant, for the purpose of assessing gravity, that the crimes were committed in the accused's own préfecture, rather than at the national level.<sup>14835</sup>

6190. The Appeals Chamber has stated that "sentences of like individuals in like cases should be comparable".<sup>14836</sup> However, similar cases do not provide a legally binding benchmark for sentences. Although assistance can be drawn from previous decisions, such assistance is often limited, as each case contains a multitude of variables.<sup>14837</sup> In light of this, the Appeals Chamber has recognised that "[d]ifferences between cases are often more significant than similarities and different mitigating and aggravating circumstances might dictate different results".<sup>14838</sup>

6191. Pursuant to Article 23 of the Statute, and Rule 101 (B) of the Rules, the Chamber shall take into account the general practice regarding prison sentences in the courts of Rwanda, any aggravating circumstances, any mitigating circumstances, and the extent to which the convicted person has already served any penalty imposed by a court of any State for the same act. These factors are not exhaustive.<sup>14839</sup>

6192. Under Rwandan law, similar crimes as those at issue here carry the possible penalty of life imprisonment, depending on the nature of the accused's participation.<sup>14840</sup>

6193. Aggravating circumstances need to be proven beyond a reasonable doubt.<sup>14841</sup> The Chamber may only consider aggravating circumstances that are pled in the indictment,<sup>14842</sup> and any circumstance that is included as an element of the crime for which an individual is convicted will not be considered as an aggravating factor.<sup>14843</sup>

6194. The Appeals Chamber has listed various factors which, if proven beyond a reasonable doubt, may qualify as aggravating circumstances. These include the position of the accused, the length of time during which the crime continued, premeditation, the active participation of a superior in the criminal acts of subordinates, the sexual and violent nature of the acts, the vulnerability of the victims, the status of the victims, and the circumstances of the offences generally.<sup>14844</sup>

6195. A particularly large number of victims can also be an aggravating circumstance. This is true even for extermination as a crime against humanity, which requires "killing on a large scale", so long as the extent of the killings exceeds that required for extermination.<sup>14845</sup>

6196. In circumstances where the Chamber has not found alleged superior responsibility beyond a reasonable doubt, the Chamber may consider an individual's influence as an aggravating circumstance.<sup>14846</sup> Similarly, while a position of authority does not automatically warrant a harsher sentence, the abuse of such a position may constitute an aggravating factor. This remains the case even where the Chamber has taken this authority into account in finding responsibility as a superior.<sup>14847</sup>

6197. Mitigating circumstances need only be established by the balance of the probabilities.<sup>14848</sup> Such circumstances include any cooperation with the Prosecution, voluntary surrender, good character with no prior criminal convictions, comportment in detention, personal and family circumstances, indirect participation, age and assistance to detainees or victims.<sup>14849</sup> Selective assistance of Tutsis may be given only limited weight as a mitigating factor.<sup>14850</sup>

6198. An absence of mitigating factors does not require the maximum sentence,<sup>14851</sup> while the existence of mitigating factors does not preclude a life sentence where the gravity requires that the maximum sentence be imposed.<sup>14852</sup> There is no category of case where a life sentence is required, nor a category where a life sentence is barred.<sup>14853</sup>

6199. Rule 86 (C) of the Rules states that “[t]he parties shall also address matters of sentencing in closing arguments”, and it is therefore the accused’s prerogative to identify any mitigating circumstances at the time. As a general rule, if an accused fails to put forward relevant information at the appropriate time, the Chamber is not under an obligation to seek out such information.<sup>14854</sup> The Defence teams generally declined, to various extents, to make submissions concerning sentencing.<sup>14855</sup> Nevertheless, the Chamber will consider any mitigating circumstances in the interests of justice.

6.3 Nyiramasuhuko

6200. The Chamber has found Nyiramasuhuko guilty of conspiracy to commit genocide, genocide, rape as a crime against humanity, extermination and persecution as crimes against humanity, and two separate counts of serious violations of Article 3 Common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto. The Chamber must determine an appropriate sentence.

6.3.1 Submissions

6201. The Prosecution submits that Nyiramasuhuko’s crimes place her in the category of the most serious offenders.<sup>14856</sup> The Prosecution requests that Nyiramasuhuko be sentenced to the maximum penalty of life imprisonment for each count of the Indictment upon which a finding of guilt is based.<sup>14857</sup> It submits that by imposing a sentence on each count, the Chamber will assist in deterring other potential offenders.<sup>14858</sup>

6202. The Prosecution argues that Nyiramasuhuko held one of the highest positions in the country as Minister for Family and Women’s Affairs in the Interim Government during the events. One of her roles was to protect the population. Instead, she caused an inconceivable number of deaths in Butare préfecture as result of her direct participation in elaborating and executing the plan of genocide.<sup>14859</sup> It stresses that the crimes in which Nyiramasuhuko took part were heinous.<sup>14860</sup>

6203. The Prosecution underscores that there are no mitigating circumstances for Nyiramasuhuko that would justify a lesser sentence than the maximum penalty.<sup>14861</sup>

6204. The Defence submits that Nyiramasuhuko has been unreasonably detained for the last 12 years in Arusha and that this fact should be taken into account while determining her sentence in case of conviction.<sup>14862</sup>

6.3.2 Gravity of the Offences

6205. The Chamber has found Nyiramasuhuko guilty of conspiracy to commit genocide. The Chamber has also found Nyiramasuhuko guilty of genocide, crimes against humanity and serious violations of Article 3 Common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto, with respect to her involvement in various crimes including rape, abduction and killing of Tutsis committed at the Butare préfecture office between 19 April 1994 and late June 1994. The Chamber notes in particular the seriousness and atrocity of crimes repetitively perpetrated at the Butare préfecture office throughout a period of time where hundreds of Tutsis were abducted, raped and killed.

6.3.3 Individual, Aggravating and Mitigating Circumstances

6207. The Appeals Chamber has held that an accused's abuse of his or her superior position or influence may be considered as an aggravating factor.<sup>14863</sup> In the Chamber's view, Nyiramasuhuko's position as Minister for Family and Women's Affairs during the events made her a person of high authority, influential and respected within the country and especially in Butare préfecture from where she hails. Instead of preserving the peaceful co-existence between communities and the welfare of the family, Nyiramasuhuko, on a number of occasions, used her influence over Interahamwe to commit crimes such as rape and murder. This abuse of general authority vis-à-vis the assailants is an aggravating factor.

6208. The Chamber notes as an aggravating factor the catastrophic number of victims across Butare préfecture who perished and suffered as a result of Nyiramasuhuko's participation in the conspiracy to commit genocide. The Chamber further considers as an aggravating factor the numerous victims of rapes and killings at the Butare préfecture office in particular,<sup>14864</sup> many of whom were particularly vulnerable.

6.4 Ntahobali

6210. The Chamber has found Ntahobali guilty of committing, ordering, and aiding and abetting genocide, extermination and persecution as crimes against humanity, and violence to life, health and physical or mental well-being of persons as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto. The Chamber has also found Ntahobali guilty of committing and ordering rape as a crime against humanity, and outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto.

6.4.1 Submissions

6211. The Prosecution submits that Ntahobali's crimes place him in the category of the most serious offenders.<sup>14867</sup> The Prosecution requests that Ntahobali be sentenced to the maximum penalty of life imprisonment for each count of the Indictment upon which a finding of guilt is based.<sup>14868</sup> It submits that by imposing a sentence on each count, the Chamber will assist in deterring other potential offenders.<sup>14869</sup>

6212. The Prosecution submits that the crimes that Ntahobali and his subordinates committed were of the most serious gravity. They were deliberate, unprovoked and brutal; they were aimed at vulnerable Tutsi civilians who were not participating in any hostilities.<sup>14870</sup>

6.4.2 Gravity of the Offences

6217. The Chamber considers that these crimes are of the utmost gravity. These crimes were not isolated instances, but occurred in various parts of Butare préfecture, throughout a significant period of time. In particular, the Chamber notes the seriousness and atrocity of crimes repetitively perpetrated at the Butare préfecture office, where hundreds of Tutsis were abducted, raped and killed.

6.4.3 Individual, Aggravating and Mitigating Circumstances

6218. The Chamber considers the vast number of victims, far in excess of the threshold for extermination as a crime against humanity, to be an aggravating circumstance.

6220. The Chamber also recalls that Ntahobali's responsibility as a superior at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock, in relation to the Butare préfecture office, and at the EER are to be considered in sentencing.

6221. The Chamber notes Ntahobali's young age during the events, the fact that he is father of three young children, and any good character before these events can be considered as mitigating factors in his favour. The Chamber concludes, however, that these are of very limited weight. Of greater weight as a mitigating circumstance is that Ntahobali voluntarily surrendered himself to the jurisdiction of the Tribunal.

6222. Despite the weight accorded to these mitigating circumstances, the Chamber considers that they pale in comparison to the sheer gravity of Ntahobali's crimes, even before aggravating circumstances are taken into account.

6.5 Nsabimana

6223. The Chamber has found Nsabimana guilty of aiding and abetting genocide, crimes against humanity, and serious violations of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto. The Chamber must now determine an appropriate sentence.

6.5.1 Submissions

6224. The Prosecution submits that Nsabimana's crimes place him in the category of the most serious offenders.<sup>14876</sup> The Prosecution requests that Nsabimana be sentenced to the maximum penalty of life imprisonment for each count of the Indictment upon which a finding of guilt is based.<sup>14877</sup> It submits that by imposing a sentence on each count, the Chamber will assist in deterring other potential offenders.<sup>14878</sup>

6225. According to the Prosecution, aggravating factors include Nsabimana's position as préfet, his breach of trust, the vulnerability and suffering of the victims, the duration of the offences, and his abuse of authority by failing to utilise his power under the law to protect and defend the people of Butare préfecture.<sup>14879</sup>

6226. The Prosecution further submits that any mitigating factors are countered by Nsabimana's self-serving demeanour. His assistance of persons taking refuge and his evacuation of orphans should be seen as a further aggravating factor as they show that Nsabimana had the power to save lives and simply chose to save a few. There are also no mitigating factors. Accordingly, the Prosecution argues that he should be sentenced to life imprisonment on each count in his Indictment.<sup>14880</sup>

6227. The Nsabimana Defence submits that mitigating factors include the circumstances surrounding Nsabimana's appointment as préfet of Butare and his obligation to accept the post, his attempt to stem the wave of killings, and the evidence that he never participated actively in the killings.<sup>14881</sup> The Defence submits that albeit with enormous difficulties, Nsabimana conceived and enabled the evacuation to Burundi of close to a thousand, if not more, Tutsis and other persons, including children and that he organised several other discrete and individual evacuations with foreign dignitaries. He protected some Tutsi individuals and their families in his home and elsewhere in the préfecture, helping and providing better protection for the lives of some Rwandan Tutsis and Hutus alike through food, medical facilities and drugs.<sup>14882</sup> The Defence submits that he deserves extensive mitigating circumstances, as he was able to save several human lives irrespective of ethnicity in an atmosphere of terror and at risk to his own life.<sup>14883</sup>

6228. Furthermore, the Interim Government placed Nsabimana on its list of accomplices and he was consequently dismissed under humiliating conditions. The Defence submits that Nsabimana expressed regrets, that he wilfully presented himself for trial, where his conduct was good as he did not obstruct justice in any way, that he has exhibited exemplary conduct in detention, and that he condemned the massacres that were committed.<sup>14884</sup>

6229. The Chamber has determined that, between 19 April 1994 and 17 June 1994, Nsabimana was préfet of Butare, and as such was the highest authority in the préfecture. In this regard, there is no doubt that he was a very prominent person in Butare préfecture at this time. For a period of almost two months, numerous persons participated in a campaign of abductions, rapes and slaughter that targeted Tutsi civilians, including those who were particularly vulnerable, taking refuge at the Butare préfecture office.

6230. The Chamber has not found that Nsabimana was a direct perpetrator in any massacre or killing perpetrated in Butare préfecture, or that he ordered or was in any other way directly associated with any given attack. Nevertheless, the magnitude of human devastation could only have occurred because he failed to discharge his legal duty. Nsabimana's position as préfet imposed upon him a duty to act to protect those vulnerable people within his realm. His omission in this regard at the Butare préfecture office, despite his knowledge that these acts were occurring around him, was central to the crimes that resulted.

6.5.3 Individual, Aggravating and Mitigating Circumstances

6231. The victims of the attacks at the Butare préfecture office were particularly vulnerable. The Chamber considers this as an aggravating circumstance. The Chamber notes, however, that other potentially aggravating factors have not been proven in Nsabimana's case, including any active criminal participation and premeditation.

6.6 Nteziryayo

6234. The Chamber has found Nteziryayo guilty of committing direct and public incitement to commit genocide.

6.6.1 Submissions

6235. The Prosecution submits that Nteziryayo's crimes place him in the category of the most serious offenders.<sup>14890</sup> The Prosecution requests that Nteziryayo be sentenced to the maximum penalty of life imprisonment for each count of the Indictment upon which a finding of guilt is based.<sup>14891</sup> It submits that by imposing a sentence on each count, the Chamber will assist in deterring other potential offenders.<sup>14892</sup>

6236. The Prosecution submits that Nteziryayo was a person of considerable influence in Butare préfecture. He made it to the higher ranks of military command in the Rwandan Armed Forces, which would have commanded respect and even awe. Instead of harnessing this influence to put an end to the killings, he actively trained, armed and led civilians so they could be more effective killers.

6237. The Prosecution submits Nteziryayo was directly responsible for the killing of innocent people, who had entrusted their lives to him as their préfet. His premeditation and his direct participation as a perpetrator, should serve as aggravating factors. It submits that there are no mitigating circumstances, as any assistance he may have proffered to Tutsis was overshadowed by his self-serving motives to evacuate his own family and by his failure to garner his power to save more. Accordingly, the Prosecution submits that he should be sentenced to imprisonment for the remainder of his life.<sup>14893</sup>

6238. The Nteziryayo Defence submits that Nteziryayo's actions in saving Tutsis and protecting ordinary citizens, nuns, monks, bishops and others, should be considered in mitigation. It asserts that Nteziryayo has been detained for over 11 years and that his health problems should be factored into his sentencing as mitigation.<sup>14894</sup>

6.6.2 Gravity of the Offences

6239. The Chamber has found that Nteziryayo incited the population to kill Tutsis at meetings. He was not a direct perpetrator in any massacre or killing perpetrated in Butare préfecture.

6240. The Chamber has determined that Nteziryayo had a leadership role in the civil defence programme in Butare préfecture, and that he was later sworn in as préfet of Butare, on 17 June 1994. As such, he exerted considerable authority and power in Butare préfecture at this time. During this period, soldiers and civilian militiamen participated in a widespread and systematic campaign of slaughter and targeted Tutsi civilians, including those who were particularly vulnerable, as well as Hutu moderates.

6.6.3 Individual, Aggravating and Mitigating Circumstances

6241. In aggravation, the Chamber has considered Nteziryayo's role as leader of the civil defence programme and his position as préfet of Butare préfecture. Given his high profile position, Nteziryayo's active incitement and encouragement of the public to commit genocide demonstrates the abuse of his position.<sup>14895</sup> This constitutes an aggravating factor.

6242. The Chamber has already discussed the background and individual circumstances of Nteziryayo. It has taken into account his selective assistance to some Tutsis in Butare préfecture during this period, including Egide Gatera and his wife Rose Umulisa, who he welcomed into his house and helped evacuate to Burundi, as well as, among others, six seminarians of Mbazi, in cooperation with Father Vieckoslav.<sup>14896</sup> The Chamber has assessed his efforts to facilitate the evacuation of orphans on 18 June 1994 and 3 July 1994 respectively. It is mindful of Nteziryayo's endeavours in relation to the protection of Bishop Gahamanyi, a Tutsi, and other priests, Tutsi nuns and monks at the Karubanda minor seminary, and religious personalities in Save, including the Tutsi parish of Father Calver Rahundi and the Mother Superior of the Benebikira sisters, where many Tutsi refugees had sought sanctuary.<sup>14897</sup> In the Chamber's view, this selective assistance carries only limited weight as a mitigating factor.

6.7 Kanyabashi

6244. The Chamber has found Kanyabashi guilty of genocide, direct and public incitement to commit genocide, extermination and persecution as crimes against humanity and serious violations of Article 3 Common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto. The Chamber must determine an appropriate sentence.

6.7.1 Submissions

6245. The Prosecution submits that Kanyabashi's crimes place him in the category of the most serious offenders.<sup>14899</sup> The Prosecution requests that Kanyabashi be sentenced to the maximum penalty of life imprisonment for each count of the Indictment upon which a finding of guilt is based.<sup>14900</sup> It submits that by imposing a sentence on each count, the Chamber will assist in deterring other potential offenders.<sup>14901</sup>

6246. The Prosecution submits that Kanyabashi's crimes constitute the most serious offences known to law. They were committed in a cold, premeditated and brutal manner; they were directed against thousands of vulnerable and innocent people, who had entrusted their lives to Kanyabashi as he was their bourgmestre.<sup>14902</sup>

6247. The Prosecution submits that, as the bourgmestre of one of the most modern and powerful communes of Rwanda, Kanyabashi wielded powers and influence by virtue of his position. He held de jure powers over the conseillers and policemen in Ngoma commune, and de facto powers over soldiers and commune police. Kanyabashi abused his position to encourage and instigate his subordinates to commit the most atrocious crimes upon their fellow citizens, and he betrayed the confidence and trust of his own people by leading the killers and organising the massacres.<sup>14903</sup>

6248. The Prosecution submits that evidence adduced at trial demonstrates that Kanyabashi planned, led and directly participated in the killings carried out at various locations in Ngoma commune, including Kabakobwa and Matyazo Clinic. Kanyabashi wilfully and knowingly ordered the killing of thousands of innocent civilians based solely on their ethnicity.<sup>14904</sup>

6249. The Prosecution underscores that Kanyabashi did not surrender to the Tribunal. It further submits that Kanyabashi has not, at any time, cooperated with the Prosecution, has not shown any remorse or acknowledged his guilt for the crimes committed. Therefore, no evidence of mitigating circumstances exists in the case of Kanyabashi.<sup>14905</sup>

6250. The Kanyabashi Defence does not make any submission in relation to sentencing;<sup>14906</sup> however, throughout its Closing Brief it refers to a series of factors that might be considered as mitigating circumstances by the Chamber in determining a sentence against Kanyabashi.

6251. The Kanyabashi Defence underscores Kanyabashi's purported good character. It submits that in 1991, Kanyabashi earned the nickname of Kanyabatutsi because he was considered a friend of the Tutsis and he did not have any discriminatory tendency.<sup>14907</sup>

6252. The Kanyabashi Defence submits there is clear evidence of Kanyabashi's efforts to stop the killings and call for peace on several occasions between April and June 1994. In particular, it submits that Kanyabashi's actions show that he did everything in his power to forestall the massacres from spreading to Ngoma commune, by establishing blockades at the commune's periphery; by organising meetings with civilians, bringing together the entire population; and also meetings with policemen, where they were instructed not to take part in the killings, to resist the assailants, to collaborate with the population without any distinction, to provide security and assistance to the entire population, to help and rescue targeted persons and allow refugees into the commune.<sup>14908</sup>

6.7.2 Gravity of the Offences

6253. The Chamber has found Kanyabashi guilty of genocide pursuant to Article 6 (3) for the massacres at Matyazo Clinic and Kabakobwa Hill. Based upon these events, the Chamber has also found Kanyabashi guilty of extermination and persecution as crimes against humanity, and of serious violations of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto. Finally, the Chamber has found Kanyabashi guilty of direct and public incitement to commit genocide for his megaphone announcements in May and June 1994. The Chamber considers that all these crimes are of an obvious gravity resulting in a significant number of casualties in terms of death and injuries.

6.7.3 Individual, Aggravating and Mitigating Circumstances

6254. The Chamber considers the number of victims resulting from the killings at Matyazo and Kabakobwa as an aggravating factor in relation to Kanyabashi's conviction.<sup>14909</sup> In addition, the Chamber considers Kanyabashi's direct role in the Matyazo massacres, along with the position of authority he held over the physical perpetrators. The Chamber notes that Kanyabashi abused his position of authority in committing this crime, which amounts to an aggravating factor.

6255. The Chamber notes as well that as bourgmestre of Ngoma commune, Kanyabashi was an influential, respected figure in Butare. This aggravating factor is particularly significant in light of Kanyabashi's convictions for direct and public incitement to commit genocide. Rather than using his influence to stem the tide of the massacres occurring in his commune, Kanyabashi used his status and influence to further these tremendous crimes. The Chamber considers this abuse of authority as an aggravating factor.

6256. The Chamber has considered Kanyabashi's background and individual circumstances. It takes into account Kanyabashi's purported good character and his 20 years of service as a bourgmestre. It further considers the evidence indicative of Kanyabashi's efforts, on occasions, to stop the massacres from spreading and to assist the refugees. However, these mitigating elements are of limited weight compared to the gravity of the crimes for which Kanyabashi has been convicted.

6.8 Ndayambaje

6257. The Chamber has found Ndayambaje guilty of genocide, direct and public incitement to commit genocide, extermination and persecution as crimes against humanity and serious violations of Article 3 Common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto. The Chamber must determine an appropriate sentence.

6.8.1 Submissions

6258. The Prosecution submits that Ndayambaje's crimes place him in the category of the most serious offenders.<sup>14910</sup> The Prosecution requests that Ndayambaje be sentenced to the maximum penalty of life imprisonment for each count of the Indictment upon which a finding of guilt is based.<sup>14911</sup> It submits that by imposing a sentence on each count, the Chamber will assist in deterring other potential offenders.<sup>14912</sup>

6259. The Prosecution submits that Ndayambaje was directly responsible for the killing of thousands of innocent people. He committed these crimes in a cold, pre-meditated, and brutal manner. He abused the authority that was entrusted to him to protect and defend the people of Muganza. He had the ability to prevent and punish the perpetrators, however he chose not to, and instead he was in the forefront in the organisation of the killings and directing them.<sup>14913</sup>

6260. The Prosecution further submits that Ndayambaje had tremendous influence over Muganza commune in his capacity as de jure bourgmestre for so many years and then as de facto bourgmestre who was later reappointed. He used his political powers by virtue of his position to encourage and instigate his subjects to commit the most atrocious crimes upon their fellow citizens, and spearheaded massacres against Tutsis.<sup>14914</sup>

6261. As aggravating circumstances, the Prosecution suggests Ndayambaje's position as bourgmestre and his breach of trust, his premeditation, his direct participation as a perpetrator, the violent and humiliating nature of his acts and the vulnerability of the victims, and the duration of the offences and suffering of his victims.<sup>14915</sup>

6262. The Prosecution argues that an influential person in the community such as Ndayambaje should be held to a higher standard because he violated the trust placed in him.<sup>14916</sup> The Prosecution contends that Ndayambaje betrayed the confidence and trust of his people by leading the killers and organising the massacres. According to the Prosecution, such betrayal constitutes a gravely aggravating factor.<sup>14917</sup>

6263. The Prosecution submits that Ndayambaje was a willing participant who knowingly ordered the killing of thousands of innocent civilians based solely on their ethnicity. Ndayambaje not only planned the massacres but also directly participated in some of them. This is a seriously aggravating factor. The Prosecution underscores that the Tutsi victims of Ndayambaje's crimes were killed in the most atrocious manner.<sup>14918</sup>

6264. The Prosecution concludes that no evidence of any mitigating circumstances exists in the case of Ndayambaje. He did not cooperate with the Prosecution, did not show any remorse for his crimes and did not surrender.<sup>14919</sup>

6265. The Defence submits that in case of conviction, Ndayambaje should benefit from the broadest mitigating circumstances, taking into account everything that emerged from this trial relating to his personality and the circumstances under which he experienced the extremely difficult events from April to June 1994.<sup>14920</sup>

6.8.2 Gravity of the Offences

6266. The Chamber has found Ndayambaje guilty of genocide for his direct participation in the massacres at Mugombwa Church and Kabuye Hill in April 1994, and for his role in the ensuing killings of Tutsis in Muganza commune following an inciting speech he made during his swearing-in ceremony on 22 June 1994. Based upon his participation in these events, the Chamber has also found Ndayambaje guilty of extermination and persecution as crimes against humanity, and of serious violations of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto. The Chamber has also found Ndayambaje guilty of direct and public incitement to commit genocide at Mugombwa Church and at his swearing-in ceremony. It is difficult to find befitting words to describe the gravity of these offences which led to a loss of life on a massive scale and caused immense human suffering.

6.8.3 Individual, Aggravating and Mitigating Circumstances

6268. The Chamber notes as well that Ndayambaje was an influential, respected figure in Butare. Ndayambaje had been bourgmestre of Muganza commune between 1983 and 1992, prior to his participation in the attacks at Mugombwa Church and Kabuye Hill. Furthermore, he committed genocide and incitement to commit genocide both before and after his reinstallation as bourgmestre in June 1994. Ndayambaje used his status and influence to further these grave crimes. The Chamber considers this abuse of authority as an aggravating factor.

6269. The Chamber observes that massacres at Mugombwa Church and Kabuye Hill in particular, were carried out over days with the use of weapons capable of killing on a mass scale. As result of these repetitive attacks, very few out of hundreds if not thousands of refugees who gathered at these places survived. In the Chamber's view, the premeditated nature of these attacks constitutes an aggravating factor.

6270. The Chamber has considered Ndayambaje's background and individual circumstances. The Chamber notes in particular the propriety of Ndayambaje's first tenure as bourgmestre between 1983 and October 1992. Witnesses described him as an honest man who was concerned about the welfare of the people and the agricultural sector. At that time, there was no ethnic tension in Muganza commune and no favouritism towards any specific ethnic group.<sup>14922</sup> The Chamber also notes that during the events in May 1994, Ndayambaje accommodated two Tutsis in his home.<sup>14923</sup> However, the Chamber accords these mitigating circumstances very limited weight in view of the gravity of Ndayambaje's crimes and the nature of his involvement in them.

Subsequently, on 20 April 2004, the Trial Chamber issued a Corrigendum recognising that the Prosecution had in fact filed its response to Nyiramasuhuko's motion on 22 March 2004, but that the response did not have any effect on the outcome of the Decision already rendered: Prosecutor v. Nyiramasuhuko, Case No. ICTR-97-21-T, Corrigendum to the Decision on Nyiramasuhuko's Motion to Declare the Evidence of Witness FAS Inadmissible Against Her, 20 April 2004. 6489. On 7 April 2006, the Chamber denied Nyiramasuhuko's motion for severance, a new trial, and a stay of proceedings in all respects. The Chamber held that counsel for Nyiramasuhuko had attempted to re-litigate matters decided in 2003, and imposed sanctions pursuant to Rule 73 (F).<sup>15247</sup>

6490. On 15 May 2006, the Chamber ruled admissible interviews of Ntahobali conducted by the Prosecution in 1997. The Chamber granted in part a motion by Nyiramasuhuko to cross-examine Ntahobali, despite having waived her right to do so, but refused to change the order in which cross-examinations are normally conducted.<sup>15248</sup>

6491. On 17 May 2006, the Chamber overruled an objection by Ntahobali to a question relating to a conversation between Ntahobali and his wife, holding that there is no "spousal privilege" under the Tribunal's Rules.<sup>15249</sup>

On 17 August 2006, the Chamber denied a motion by Nsabimana to have Witness AGWA testify via video link,<sup>15262</sup> but granted his motion to delete three witnesses from his list, and to add Witness DEDE. The Chamber again ordered Nsabimana to call this newly added witness towards the end of his case.<sup>15263</sup> The Chamber dismissed a motion by Nyiramasuhuko for an extension of time to file responses to various motions on the grounds that it was frivolous and directed the Registry to deny all fees associated with its preparation.<sup>15264</sup>

The proceedings resumed on 21 August 2006.<sup>15265</sup> The Chamber overruled an objection by Nyiramasuhuko to an alleged lack of notice with respect to portions of Witness BURU's proposed testimony which referred to Nyiramasuhuko.<sup>15266</sup> The Chamber found it was improper for Kanyabashi to have contacted Nsabimana's witness and stated that once the identity of a witness is known, and it is clearly indicated that the witness is going to testify for a particular party, then all other teams must avoid contact with that witness unless a formal request has been made.<sup>15267</sup>

Ndayambaje et al.*, Case No. ICTR-98-42-T, Decision on the Prosecution's Urgent Motion to Compel Compliance with the Trial Chamber's Decision of 17 August 2006, 5 September 2006. The Chamber granted this motion in part, and ordered Nsabimana to: (i) provide detailed information on the areas where Witness DEDE was expected to contradict the testimony of Prosecution Witness SJ; (ii) give details on the "aid" that Nsabimana allegedly gave to Prosecution Witness SJ; (iii) to specifically mention the name or position held by the "MRND dignitaries" mentioned in the supplementary will-say statement and, if this included any of the Accused, to identify them; and (iv) to make the required disclosures regarding the proposed testimony of Witness DEDE as soon as possible and in any case before the close of business on 8 September 2006. Nsabimana complied with this order and filed additional material on 7 September 2006 which indicated that the "MRND dignitaries" included Nyiramasuhuko. On 19 September 2006, Trial Chamber II denied a motion by Nyiramasuhuko which sought to prevent Witness DEDE from testifying on facts relating to Nyiramasuhuko, or alternatively, sought additional disclosure: *Prosecutor v. The question was put to the witness as an assertion, without indicating that the assertion was evidence in another trial.

On 5 September 2006, the Chamber directed the Registry to inform Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali and Ndayambaje that if they failed to appear in court, they would be deemed to have waived their right to be tried in their presence, and the proceedings would continue in their absence.<sup>15272</sup> When the proceedings resumed, all Accused were present.<sup>15273</sup>

The Chamber ordered Nteziryayo to proceed with the presentation of his defence as soon as Nsabimana's Defence was closed; Nteziryayo was also ordered to ensure that all relevant disclosures were made in due time to avoid any delay in the proceedings.<sup>15277</sup>

The Chamber ordered Nteziryayo, Ndayambaje and Kanyabashi to review their witness lists and to file realistic and updated lists of witnesses by 4 December 2006.<sup>15280</sup>

Two days later, the Chamber again ruled that it expected Nteziryayo to attend and remain in court.<sup>15389</sup>

6592. On 14 November 2008, the Chamber denied a motion by Ntahobali to admit two Rwandan judgements relating to Prosecution Witness TQ.<sup>15390</sup>

6593. On 20 November 2008, the Chamber denied motions by Ntahobali and Nsabimana to recall Witness QCB. However, the Chamber granted in part a motion by Kanyabashi and ordered the recall of this witness so that the Defence might cross-examine and the Prosecution might re-examine Witness QCB on specific enumerated contradictions.<sup>15391</sup>

6594. On 25 November 2008, the Chamber dismissed a motion by the Prosecution to use portions of a statement that Ndayambaje made to Belgian authorities at the time of his arrest in cross-examination of this Accused.<sup>15392</sup> The Chamber sustained an objection by Nyiramasuhuko to questions the Prosecution attempted to put to the Accused Ndayambaje in cross-examination.<sup>15393</sup>

The Chamber directed the Registrar, pursuant to Rule 73 (F), not to pay the Defence any fees or costs related to this motion, due to Counsel's failure to heed the Chamber's warnings with respect to filing multiple motions relating to the same issue: *Prosecutor v. 6602. On 19 January 2009, the Chamber denied a motion by Ntahobali for the exclusion of evidence or the recall of various witnesses.<sup>15404</sup>

The Chamber reiterated in this decision that the purpose of a response is to give a full answer to the issues raised in a motion, and not to submit separate or additional requests. Kanyabashi's request for consideration of this issue with respect to his case was therefore improper and was not considered. Although Kanyabashi did eventually submit a separate motion for disclosure, Kanyabashi's motion did not allege violations of his right to fair trial. Kanyabashi's motion was also denied by the Chamber: Prosecutor v. Kanyabashi et al., Case No. ICTR-98-42-T, Decision on Kanyabashi's Motion for Disclosure Pursuant to Rule 68, 25 February 2009.
